Unique Vicks Formula Is Now Aiding Millions In Preventing Many Colds

Vicks Va-tro-nol, the unique aid in preventing colds, is now helping millions of adults and children to enjoy greater freedom from colds.

Va-tro-nol is especially designed for nose and throat, where most colds start. Va-tro-nol should be used at that first sneeze or nasal irritation—just a few drops up each nostril. Its timely use helps to prevent many colds—and to throw off colds in the early stages.

Where irritation has led to a clogged-up nose (a stuffy head cold or nasal catarrh)—Va-tro-nol penetrates deep into the nasal passages—reduces swollen membranes—clears away clogging mucus—brings comforting relief.

Va-tro-nol is powerful yet absolutely safe—for both children and adults. It has been clinically tested by physicians—and proved in everyday home use by millions.

(Note: The remarkable success of Vicks Drops—for nose and throat—has brought scores of imitations. The trademark Va-tro-nol is your protection in getting this exclusive Vicks formula. Always ask for Vicks Va-tro-nol. Now in two generous sizes—30c and 50c.)

Va-tro-nol and its companion product, Vicks VapoRub (the modern external treatment for colds) form the basis of Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds—fully explained in each Vicks package.

A. E. A. and P. T. A. In Joint Meeting

First of A Series Of Gatherings Will Be At Ozark October the 13th

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 6.—The first of the series of joint meetings to be held during October and November by the Alabama Education Association and the Alabama Congress of Parents and Teachers will open at 10:00 a.m., in Ozark, on Saturday, October 13, H. G. Dowling, head of the school group in Alabama, announced at Tuscaloosa Saturday.

Mr. Dowling explained that the Ozark meeting would assemble seven or eight hundred teachers and parents from eight counties comprising the southeastern district.

Visitors to the meeting will hear Mr. Dowling and Mrs. James Fitts Hill, president of the Alabama Congress of Parents and teachers, outline the plans of their respective organizations for the current year. In addition, detailed reports of the financial status of schools in the counties concerned will be made by the superintendents attending the meeting. Of special interest at this particular time is the extent to which federal aid will be needed to complete the normal terms of schools this year as indicated by these reports.

Special invitations to attend the afternoon session are being forwarded by Mr. Dowling and Mrs. Hill to the newly elected members of the 1935 legislature. At that time suggestions or measures which may be included in the educational program to be recommended to the next legislature by the combined parent and teach forces of the state will be received. Representatives of the legion posts in the district are also expected to attend the meeting.

The eight counties sending representatives to Ozark on October 13 are: Crenshaw, Pike, Coffee, Geneva, Barbour, Dale, Henry and Houston.

Six meetings on consecutive Saturdays will follow the Ozark meeting. These will be held at Brewton, Marion, Tuscaloosa, Anniston and Decatur.

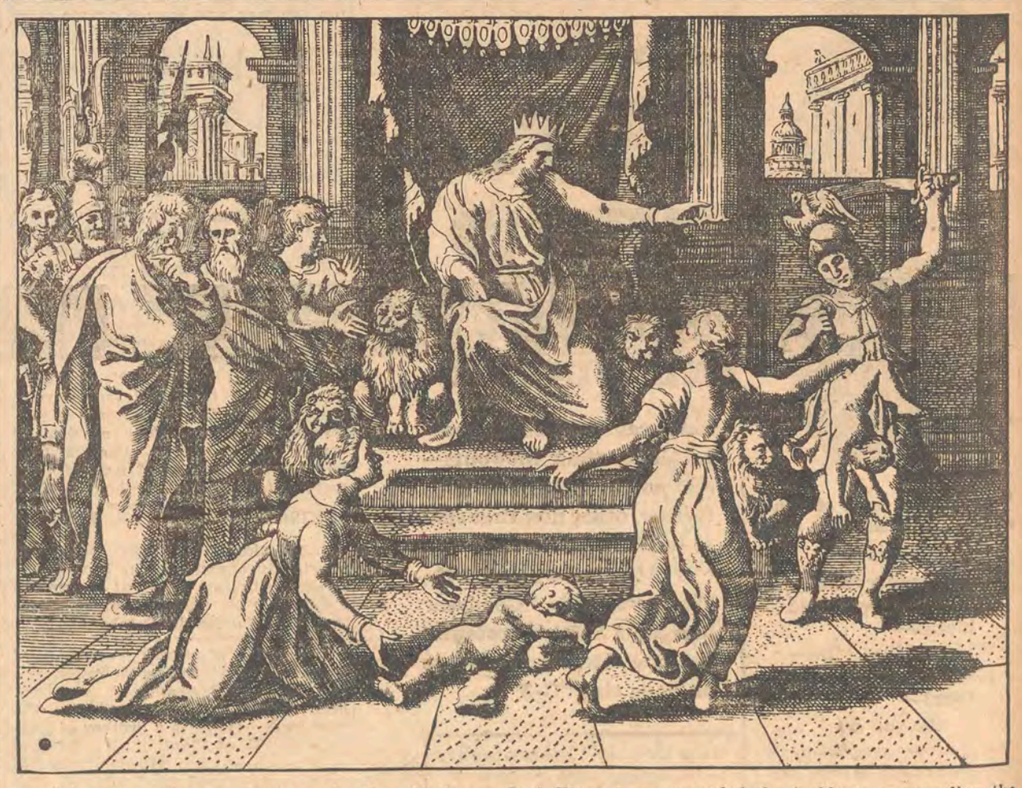
The Story of the Bible Told in Pictures



Solomon's Judgment Between the Two Mothers.—In I Kings 1 are recorded the incidents surrounding the death of David, who promised Bath-sheba that his son by her, Solomon, should have the throne. After charging Solomon in regard to his duties, David died. At Gibeon the Lord appeared in a dream to Solomon, asking what he wished as a gift. Solomon chose wisdom, and in I Kings 3 is recorded the first instance of the judgment for which he became so famous. Two women came before him, claiming the same child, each declaring that the other's child had died during the night and the surviving child was her own. Solomon asked for a sword and ordered the living child divided into two parts, one part to be given to each woman. At this command the real mother offered to relinquish her claim if the child's life were spared, but the false mother expressed herself as willing to take half the living child. So Solomon ordered the child given to the first mother, declaring that the child, whose welfare was her first thought, was hers. This illustration by Merian was engraved in 1625.

Thorsby Institute News

The first open meeting of the Helen Keller Literary Society was held on Saturday night in the auditorium. Two plays "Release" and "A Likely Story" were given. Miss Mabel Allen, music teacher at the Institute this year, played a violin solo. Lucille Each presided as president of the society, and Lance Franklin was the secretary. The next open meeting of the society will be the first Saturday night in November.

Mr. Enoch Bell, editor-in-chief of the Missionary Herald, was a visitor at the Institute on Saturday. At dinner he spoke a few words to the boarding department, then played unusually well on the harmonica. Dr. Bell was at one time a missionary to Japan and while there, played a great deal on the harmonica for the people. Mr. Ross Ensminger, president of the Southern Union College, made a few remarks after Dr. Bell finished playing.

Recently Mr. and Mrs. Martin Peterson presented the Institute with a bird bath which is placed between the campus cottage and dining hall. This gift is very much appreciated.

The school has been presented with a large flag by Mrs. S. E. Norton. This flag was given originally to her husband by Mr. O. W. Norton, a brother, of Chicago. The Institute is very glad to have it.

Miss Elizabeth Glasson, a graduate of Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky., is the new commercial teacher and office secretary of Miss Welch, who resigned because of her mother's health and the offer of a chance to teach in the city schools and be with her mother in Chattanooga.

The following girls have been chosen for the glee club: Lessie Rasco, Mary Frances Duke, Inez Jackson, Sarah Green, Margaret Bean, Mary Maud Knight, Louise Yeager, Jane Billingsley, Mary Louise Reinhardt, Mary Francis Harris, Arudell Swiney, May Pearl Sorrell, Mary Nell Pate, Catherine Morgan, Dora Holt, Louise Mims, Josephine Billingsley, Lois Rister, Ruth McKee and Blanche Morgan.

W. M. U. MEETING POSTPONED

The W. M. U. of Chilton County Association was scheduled to meet last Friday, October 5, but the weather was so bad we had to put it off. This is a very important meeting. We need every woman of Chilton County to help out in the October meeting, as this is the day for nominating the officers. We are going to meet with the Thorsby Baptist church next Saturday, October 13. Miss Stallworth is planning to be with us on that day, So everybody go to Thorsby. We especially want the nominating committee to be there. Don't forget the date, Saturday, October 13, at Thorsby Baptist church. — Sec'y-Treas, Louanna Jones; Superintendent, Mrs. L. D. Hughes.

SURVEY FOR NEW FARM PROGRAM

Rural Rehabilitation Plan Will Begin Operation On November 1st

Preparatory to inauguration of the new farm rehabilitation program under the Alabama Relief Administration on the first of November, Miss Kittye Clyde Austin states that visitors from the relief office are working daily making a survey of farm families on relief in Chilton County.

This survey will be presented to the local rehabilitation advisory board for classification before the new program is set up next month. The local advisory board is composed of the following local people:

Probate Judge L. H. Reynolds; County Farm Agent J. W. Fant; County Home Agent, Miss Ruth Pardue; Relief Works Director, Floyd Smith; Mr. W. A. Gulledge, Verbena; Mr. H. S. Shaw, Clanton; Miss Kittye Clyde Austin, director of relief in Chilton County.

Mr. Green, director of the rehabilitation program for all of Alabama, has advised local authorities that the program can not proceed further than the present preliminary survey until further instructions and outlines are given out from headquarters.

Next Monday and Tuesday Mr. Floyd Smith and Mr. F. L. Harris, of the local relief office, together with the field workers, will attend a two-day institute in Montgomery for the purpose of making a study of social work and planning.

Miss Charlotte Leeper, recently appointed director of the Bureau of training and personnel for the Alabama Relief Administration, will be in charge of the meeting.

SERIES MEETINGS AT THE CHESTNUT CREEK CHURCH

Beginning Sunday night, October 21, Rev. R. V. Jones will begin a series of meetings at Chestnut Creek, Cooper. Services will run into the following week, nights only, beginning at 7 o'clock. The public is cordially invited. Rev. Jones is the son of Joe Berry Jones near Cooper, and now lives at Clanton Cotton Mill.

CHESTNUT CREEK SINGING

Don't forget the all day singing which is to be held at Cooper next Sunday, October 21. Every singer and lover of music has a special invitation to be there. The chairman of our society has invited some quartets and other prominent singers to help make the day a success.

The singing will begin at 10:00 a.m., with Sunday school beginning at 9:00.

Prof. W. M. Devaughn advises that the Sylacauga quartet has promised to be present all day.

Big Rattlesnake Attacked Hunter

Clanton Man Pulls "Frank Buck" Stunt In Wilds of Autauga

J. E. Easterling of the Woco Pep Filling Station, went hunting in Autauga County last Monday, and brought back game, but not the kind he went after.

He was "still hunting" for squirrels. He said he backed up and propped up against a big tree, scanning the trees for sight of a squirrel. He noticed something tapping his leg, and looked down to see a 5-foot rattlesnake, striking with all its might.

J. E. said he moved away quickly, (no doubt of that), and then stepped back and shot the big fellow. He was showing him around town Monday night and Tuesday—he measures five feet and one inch, and carried about 25 rattles.

J. E. says tell everybody that he intended to do quite a bit of hunting this winter, even buying a new rifle, a state license, and everything. He now has a slightly used hunting license for sale; he will have no use for his gun; and he intends framing the pair of boots he was wearing when the snake struck, because that was what saved his life. He will have no use for any of his hunting paraphernalia—he is through hunting.

NEW FOURSQUARE CHURCH IS TO BE BUILT SOON

Information has been given out that work is to be started soon on a new Foursquare church building.

The property on which the old church stood was sold to Mr. W. W. "Bud" Jones, and the church removed.

The site of the new church is the corner of First Avenue and Third Street, just south of the old Tom Curry property, where a lot was purchased, from G. O. Foshee.

COOKE'S TENT THEATRE HERE WEEK OF OCTOBER 22

Circle No. 1 of the Clanton Methodist church is sponsoring the Cooke Players in their appearance in Clanton, which will be in their big tent the week beginning Monday, October 22.

This famous company needs no introduction to the people of Chilton County. They have the reputation of being the cleanest, most moral and up to date dramatic company on the road today. The plays, seven of them, are all new, clean and modern, and the best that money can buy.

Don't fail to help the Circle by catering to the Cooke Players all the week beginning Monday, October 22.

Chilton Tigers To Tackle Shelby Hi

Columbiana Team Will Come Here For Game Tomorrow Afternoon

Chilton County High's "Tigers" will take on the Shelby High (Columbiana) team on the local field next Friday afternoon at 3:00 sharp!

The "Tigers" have won two of their three games so far this season. In fact, they are fast coming to be known as the "fighting Tigers", from reports of the last game, with Wetumpka.

They lost their first game to Selma High, but came back to beat Verbena High 6 to 0; then they went to Wetumpka last week, with the odds heavily against them, and defeated Wetumpka 20 to 6.

Wetumpka took advantage of a Chilton fumble in the first quarter, to score their only touchdown. In the fag end of the second quarter, "Cave Man" Baker intercepted a Wetumpka pass on his 10-yard line, and stepped 90 yards behind perfect interference for Chilton's first score. In the third quarter, a pass, Johnson to Cecil Jones, was good, and Jones raced 30 yards for a touchdown. Again in the fourth quarter, another Johnson to Jones pass was good for a touchdown, Jones taking it 20 yards for the counter.

The two last extra points were added; the first missed.

The two teams were about evenly matched in line play, and it looked like a 6-6 game until the firm of Johnson & Jones went on the air and began broadcasting footballs all over the field and Wetumpka was caught napping.

Don't miss the game Friday, for it is a grudge affair, and both teams are in for a lively afternoon.

And don't forget the hour — 3:00 p.m.

PATRONAGE DIVIDED TO BE PAID TO FARMERS WHO SOLD COTTON THROUGH THE A. C. C. A. IN 33-34

It was announced today by R. K. Welch, local representative of the Alabama Cotton Co-operative Association, that a $3,000.00 melon for Chilton County would be cut at the courthouse, Clanton, Alabama, Saturday, October 20, 1934, beginning at 10 o'clock.

Mr. Welcr further explained that every farmer who sold his cotton through the association during the past season would receive a patronage dividend on profits made in the handling of cotton which amounts to 70 cents per bale.

The association is the farmer's own organization and profits made in the handling of cotton must be returned to the farmer as a patronage dividend on business done through the organization.

The association is handling the 12 cents loan for the farmers this year and up to the present time has handled about 8,500 bales in this county. This represents about 95 per cent of the cotton crop of this county that has been disposed of to date.

If you sold any cotton through the Alabama Cotton Co-operative Association from your 1933 crop be at the courthouse Saturday to get your slice of this melon.

Farmers Meeting Called October 20

To Protest Methods of Committee In the Cotton Allotment

To the Farmers of Chilton County Alabama:

We, the undersigned, hereby call a county-wide meeting of the farmers of Chilton County to be held at the courthouse at Clanton, Alabama on the 20th day of October, 1934, at two o'clock p.m., at which time to take up and consider the question of protesting against the methods being used by the county committee in the allotment of cotton and gin certificates.—R. L. Veazey, F. M. Lockhart, W. G. DeShazo, J. D. McFarland, D. H. Tyus and Madison Mims.

Chilton County News Is "Raking Leaves"

(EDITORIAL)

You no doubt have heard the old joke about the fellow raking leaves when he got in a plight and could find nothing else to rake. Well, this "bust" of the Democratic New Deal has got our neighbor, The Chilton County News to "raking leaves."

Last week and the week before that paper made attempts to "hold up the hands of the sinking man," but it is amusing how futile were their attempts. All they could say both weeks was "Everybody knows that things are better." But nothing concrete could be given to back up their statements. They stated on September 27th that deposits in local banks had increased over $200,000 in the past two years. They changed that statement last week and said deposits had increased this amount in one year; however no figures or specific dates are given in either case. The fact is, as we have stated before, deposits in the two local banks increased $158,711.67 from December 31, 1932 to June 30, 1934, a period of a year and a half. These figures are taken from the official statements of the two banks. As stated before, this is an increase of approximately 25 per cent; and during the same period of time the value of the dollar decreased a little more than 40 per cent, making a net decrease in the value of deposits in local banks during the first year and a half of Roosevelt's administration of approximately $159,000.00

Of course, the American people are going to recover from the depression. They always have and always will. Natural causes are now doing all in their power to bring things back to normal, and they will eventually bring them back in spite of the artificial and strangling efforts being exerted by the experimentalists of the country. What we are arguing is that this country would recover much quicker if the natural forces were permitted to take their course rather than try to hasten it on by these dangerous experiments. They are a hinderance to recovery rather than a help.

The great minds of the country now say that the way to remodel the NRA is to abolish it. That is the only sound thing to do. American industries are able to take care of their own businesses, and all they need is the restoration of confidence among the people. Such confidence cannot be restored so long as the federal government engages in the spending orgy that it has for the past year and a half. Nobody knows what money is going to be worth, therefore they cannot afford to risk anything; this brings about a lack of confidence.

The Chilton County News scoffed at us when we stated that "We had rather 'tuff it out' a few years and build up gradually, retaining our liberties, than to surrender our rights as American citizens for temporary relief." We still say that this method is better, and we will have to get down to this principle before we actually and permanently recover.

The News has stated time and time again that the local Democratic candidates in Chilton County are in full sympathy with the New Deal, but they try to take back water last week on the "booze" question and "unlimited spending of government money." They want to "stay put" on the New Deal, but they want to "squirm out" of these two situations. Well, neighbor, let's not have any "shenanigin" on this business. The New Deal has made itself too plain on the booze business and the promiscuous spending of federal money. These two things constitute the biggest part of the New Deal, and you cannot be in "full sympathy with the New Deal" without being head over heels in booze and reckless spending of government money. Now, we say to The News, come on out and take your medicine; this crawfish business will not pass in this game. If you are not for booze and the reckless spending of government money, together with the encouragement of atheism, communism, socialism, and numerous other isms detrimental to American principles, then you are not "in full sympathy with the New Deal." Now, answer us this question, just what do you and your local Democratic candidates stand for, Mr. News editor?

The News says that "Even the suggestion of such a thing (booze) is utterly ridiculous and a gross insult to anyone's intelligence." We heartily concur in this statement—that is one reason we cannot swallow the New Deal. The New Deal with booze and waste of government money left out would be like "The Merchant of Venice," with Shylock left out. There wouldn't be much of it left.

The Union-Banner and, if we are correctly informed, all the local Republican nominees to appear on the ticket in November, are not in favor of turning whiskey loose in this country, neither do we believe it is a good policy for the government to drain its resources and inflate its money until we are thirty-two billion dollars in debt, this money to be paid by heavy taxation upon the people of the country. It's true, it gives a little spending money which we can get hold of now and then, but any thinking person knows that when the government spends, it makes the burden of taxation heavier, which will have to be paid sooner or later. The whole scheme is simply "robbing Peter to pay Paul," and it is certainly not getting us anywhere.

We all admire the idea of lending help to our people who are in distress and destitute of sufficient clothing and food. It is a noble thing; but that relief should take the form of jobs rather than doles which will be expected to continue indefinitely. There is such a thing as giving to a person until you ruin him—that is the danger we are facing, aside from the manner in which the nation's finance is being crippled.

On the other hand, kind voters of Chilton County, the "local Democratic candidates are in full sympathy with the New Deal."

Funeral services for Mrs. Caroline Headley, age 83, who died in Sheffield, were held Sunday at two o'clock at Union Grove, with Rev. J. N. Green officiating. Spigener Funeral Home was in charge of burial.

Mrs. Headley is survied by six sons and three daughters: Ed and Dee Headley of Birmingham, Henry Headley of Summit, Ala., Willis Headley, of Sheffield, Richard Headley, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Brade Headley of Washington, D. C.

Pallbearers were her nephews, Willis, Archie, Buddie and Euel Headley, H. C., Robert and W. V. Chandler.

Code Provisions To Be Modified

State Agency To Carry Out Recent Order of President Roosevelt

Organization of the state agency which is to carry out the provisions of the president's recent executive order permitted modification of codes in the case of apprentices was begun at a meeting called by Noel R. Beddow, State NRA Labor Compliance Officer, under the supervision of Judge John D. Petree, state NRA compliance director and head of the Nation Emergency council at the Paul Hayne High School in Birmingham, on August 28th.

The meeting was attended by representatives of the NRA, the State Department of Education, the United States Reemployment office, and the state labor division.

Four members of the permanent body were selected from the four agencies prescribed by the Secretary of Labor. Mr. Noel R. Beddow will represent the NRA; Mr. E. R. Plowden, the state department of education, division of vocational education and Mr. A. J. Speer, the United States reemployment office. Miss Ella Ketchin was selected to represent the state labor office. Two additional members, one for labor and one for employers, are specified in the executive order of the president.

On October 18, 1934, it is proposed to hold another meeting to which educational, labor, and industrial leaders of Alabama will be invited. The members for industry and labor will be selected at this meeting.

Dr. Frank Cushman of the United States Office of Education, Chief of the Division of Industrial Education, will address this meeting and outline the purpose and policies of the Federal committee for apprentice training of which he is a member.

Under the provisions of the president's order, approved industrial organizations may select capable young men between the ages of 16 and 22 and designate them as apprentices.

A contract between the company, the boy, and the state agency then permits the suspension of the code as to hours of employment, and fixes the beginning wage of the apprentice at 25 per cent of the minimum wage for journeymen of the same occupation.

At least 2,000 hours of continuous employment, of which 144 hours per year must be given to study of related theory in approved schools, are provided for by the order.

It is expected that the state apprenticeship agency will be able to focus the efforts of the various interested groups, and establish a permanent method of supplying to industry the skilled workers which are necessary to the proper economic development of the state.

Mr. Beddow states that it is one of the most important steps taken by the NRA and of peculiar significance to the south, since it will give employers the right to train future executives under their own supervision, while at the same time receiving technical instruction under the direction of the state and federal government.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Mims motored to Montgomery yesterday.

MORE PAVING ON SELMA HIGHWAY

Additional Two and A Half Miles Comes In Program for Next Year

Paving of 2.5 miles more of the Selma Highway west of Clanton is included in Alabama State road projects for next year, with approval of the United States Bureau of Public Roads, it was announced Tuesday.

The following information concerning the new road program is taken from the Montgomery Advertiser of Tuesday:

Alabama's $4,259,000 road building and paving program yesterday was given approval by the United States Bureau of Public roads and released for publication upon authority of Gov. Miller, by the state highway department.

The program touches every county in the state and provides for completion of a paved north and south route to Mobile and an east and west route across the state from Lanett, Ala., to Demopolis and the Alabama-Mississippi line.

Already, in anticipation of approval by the United States Bureau of Public Roads, the State Highway Department has surveyors in the field, according to R. D. Jordan, assistant state Highway Engineer, so that the work can be begun at the earliest possible moment.

The program authorized completion of pavement on U. S. 31 to Mobile in Conecuh, Escambia and Baldwin Counties to within a few miles of the Cochran Bridge, which will be paved entirely with state funds.

The paving to be done on U. S. Route 80, East and West, will be on the unpaved stretch West of Demopolis to the state line.

Notice that the program had been approved was received yesterday by Charles D. Snead, district engineer of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, who immediately mailed to the State Highway Department a letter advising that approval had been given and advised Mr. Jordan by telephone, of such approval.

Mr. Jordan subsequently announced full details of the program, upon authority of Gov. Miller.

A long list of the projects followed the above in the Advertiser. They are distributed in all counties of the state. The additional 2.5 miles on the Selma Highway was the only project listed for Chilton County.

The total of cotton ginned in Chilton County in 1934 prior to October 1st was 7,370 bales, as compared to 7,554 bales ginned prior to October 1st, 1933. These are official figures given out by B. L. Vance, cotton census enumerator for Chilton County.

Joe Reynolds Died Following Assault

Was Never Able to Tell Story of How He Received Mortal Wound

Joseph Thompson Reynolds, age 26, died at Central Alabama Hospital last Wednesday night.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. S. J. Ezell at Clanton Baptist church Thursday. The body was carried to the Reynolds cemetery near Montevallo and buried by Martin.

The deceased was a son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Reynolds, and was an employee of Alabama Mills in Clanton.

The body of Reynolds was found Sunday morning, October 7, lying unconscious by the railroad tracks near the overhead bridge in Clanton. He had been hit on the head suffering a fractured skull that caused his death.

He was carried to the hospital and died without regaining consciousness.

Facts as to how he met his fate have not been revealed, but the theory is that he was struck by an assailant and placed beside the railway tracks.

SHERIFF NEWS

During the past week the sheriff's force has made two arrests for public drunkenness, two for murder, and three for violating the prohibition law.

REVIVAL CLOSES AT BAPTIST CHURCH WITH 34 ADDITIONS

The revival at the Clanton Baptist church came to a close Tuesday night, when Rev. Frank T. Woodward of Birmingham preached his closing sermon. Services have been held daily and nightly for the past ten days, and the attendance has been very gratifying. Mrs. Woodward has spoken a few minutes at every day service preceding the preaching hour.

The singing was in charge of Mr. Fred Bond, also of Birmingham, and Mrs. Bond was present for the last few services.

The results of the meeting as a whole have been very gratifying, there being thirty-four to join the church, bringing the total membership up to a little better than 800.

Rev. and Mrs. Woodward will leave in a week or so for China to resume their missionary work.

FOREST WORK UPKEEP DEMAND

Montgomery, Ala. — Considerable confusion is being caused in various quarters due to popular misconceptions as to the conditions under which forestry CCC camps are authorized for and continued upon private lands, according to information issued by the Alabama Commission of Forestry. It is sometimes thought that the various states are given definite quotas of camps to be allocated in the discretion of the state forestry authorities. Nothing can be farther from the truth, however, according to the commission. The camps are federal projects, and while the state forestry agency as the representative of the government is permitted to make recommendations as to the general location of the projects to be administered by the state, the circumstances affecting each proposed camp are closely scrutinized by the United States inspectors and other officials whose decision is final in the matter and must be conformed to by the forestry authorities of the state.

It is not enough that there be a large extent of forest land badly in need of the kinds of work authorized under the president's direction. The president, from the beginning, has demanded that continued maintenance of the work done upon private lands be guaranteed by the state. Further, it is not sufficient that a guarantee merely be stated; it must be shown to the satisfaction of the federal authorities that such guarantee is based upon substantial grounds and not mainly upon hope and enthusiasm.

The state may not offer as a basis of a reliable guarantee that the owners of the private lands have undertaken, verbally or in writing, to care for and maintain the improvements constructed. However, if such owners have back of them a history of consistent care, protection and development of their forest lands for several years in cooperation with the state or federal government, or both, such fact is construed as supporting a reasonable assumption that the required maintenance will be forthcoming, and past performance of this character on the part of the landowners is recognized by the government as strengthening such guarantee as the state may make. Eleventh hour conversion to forestral practices and intermittent or erratic cooperation in the past are not regarded as conributing to the adequacy of the state's guarantee.

The most important element of the guarantee lies in the amount of Alabama forestry funds available for cooperative work with the landowners. The state forestry fund comprises the license fees paid by the sawmills, lumber yards, turpentine stills and other forest industries. Unfortunately less than half of these fees have been collected. As a result the funds available to the state forestry department are very meager and are not considered by the federal government as being sufficient in amount to justify a guarantee on the part of the state that the work performed by the CCC camps will be continously maintained. Exceptions exist in a few cases where the past performance of the landowners and the proportional amount of state funds that properly may be expended in cooperative work in their locality together give substantial assurance of future upkeep of the improvements. Since under the most favorable circumstances heavy expenditures of public funds upon private lands raise a very serious question, the adequacy of state guarantee is a matter rigidly insisted upon by the government.

At the beginning of the Emergency conservation work in Alabama every effort was made by the state authorities to have the camps located at the places where previous private cooperation or the existence of considerable acreages of state land gave greatest promise of satisfying the federal government requirements as to the state pledges.

The program originally called for a work period of but six months duration. The financial resources of the commission of forestry were sufficient to provide for maintenance of all work of the specified kinds that could be done during the length of time. However with the authorization of a second work period and also a third, the resources of the forestry department became so thinly spread over numerous projects that they no longer constituted a substantial basis for the guarantee required by the government.

The twenty-sixth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama forbids any state agency to incur new obligations except under authority of a two-thirds vote of each house of the legislature. This, of course, precludes the forestry department from pledging a financial outlay sufficient to satisfy additional maintenance requirements araising from the work of private land camps. As a result of these circumstances, the private land forestry camps are scheduled to move to new locations except in a few instances where a long record of consistent past cooperation on the part of the majority of the landowners is construed by the federal officials as compensating to a considerable extent for the lack of state forestry funds.

The State Commission of Forestry, however, has not recommended or approved the discontinuances of any of the camps in the state. To retain all the camps for which the state could possibly qualify, a strong effort was made to have those private land camps in connection with which the state's guarantee was not regarded as adequate by the federal government converted to other branches of the emergency conservation work, mainly as state parks camps. The class of work performed under the latter projects involves much less cost of annual maintenance. These recommendations were made after consultation with the regional forest inspector of the U. S. Forest Service and the district officer of the national park service. Both of these officials approved the recommendations but, with the exception of two projects, the Washington authorities failed to take favorable action.

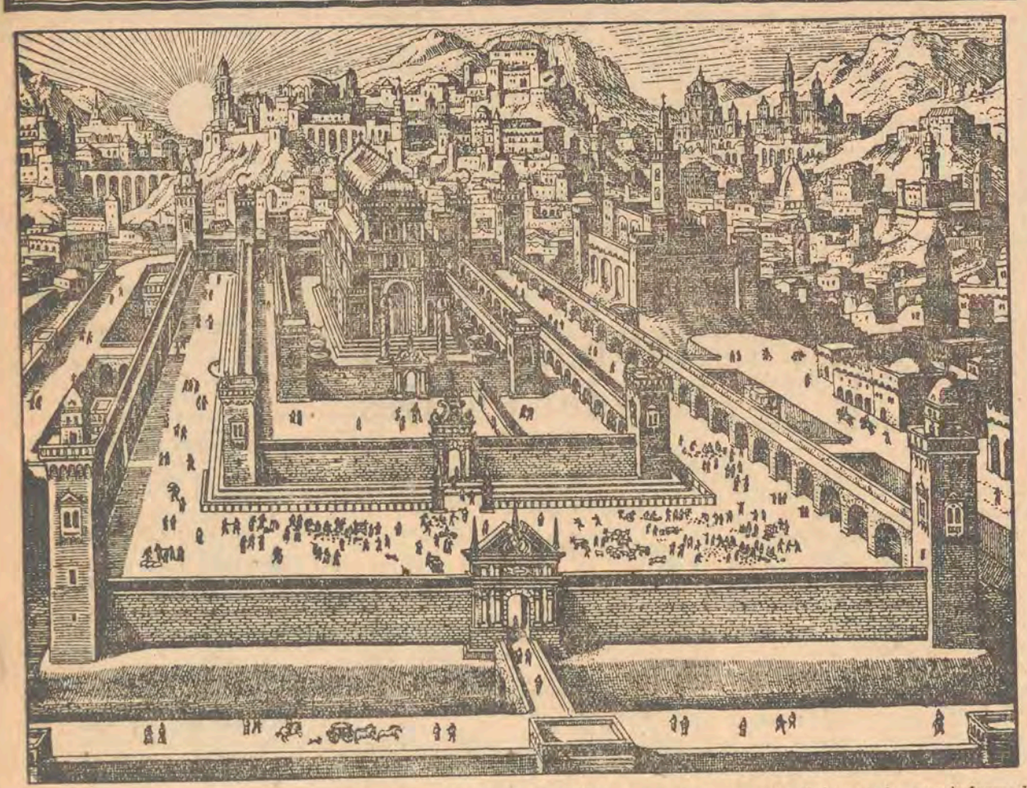
The Story of the Bible Told in Pictures



The Building of Solomon's Temple.— When Hiram, king of Tyre, sent messengers to Solomon, he was informed that the latter intended to build a temple. "And Solomon sent to Hiram, saying, 'Thou knowest how that David, my father, could not build a house unto the name of the Lord his God, for the wars which were about him on every side, until the Lord put them under the soles of his feet. But now the Lord my God hath given me rest on every side, so that there is neither adversary nor evil occurrent. And, behold, I purpose to build a house unto the name of the Lord my God.' "—I Kings 5: 2-5. Lumber for the temple was brought from Lebanon and many thousands of men were engaged in the work of building it. I Kings 6 gives details of the construction of the temple, and the fact that it took seven years to build it. King Solomon sent to Tyre and had Hiram, who was a worker in brass, brought to Jerusalem. And Hiram wrought many decorations for the temple. Solomon constructed an edifice which ever since has been famous as a symbol of costliness and magnificence. This illustration is from Merian's story of the Bible in pictures, engraved in 1625.

You're The Loser

I have been using Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills for thirty years. No matter what kind of pain I have, they stop it almost instantly. Never without them in the house.
Mrs. Chas. W. Webb, Indio, Calif.

WHEN you allow Headache, Neuralgia, Muscular, Rheumatic, Sciatic or Periodic Pains to keep you from work or pleasure.

You can't go places and do things when you are suffering—and the work or good times won't wait for you.

Why allow Pain to rob you of Health, Friends, Happiness, Money?

DR. MILES ANTI-PAIN PILLS have been used for the relief of pain for more than forty years. They taste good, act quickly, do not upset the stomach, nor cause constipation, leave no dull, depressed feeling.

Thousands have used them for twenty, thirty, forty years, and still find that nothing else relieves pain so promptly and effectively.

Why don't you try them? Once you know how pleasant they are to take, how quickly and effectively they relieve, you won't want to go back to disagreeable, slow acting medicines.

You too may find quick relief. Why wait forty minutes for relief when Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills will relieve you in ten to twenty minutes?

As a household remedy I have never found anything that equalled Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills. Mrs. Silas D. Keller, Penfield, Pa.

I never found anything that was so good to stop pain as Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills. I have told many about them and I find they are all using them. Mrs. Martha Lacy, Davenport, Iowa

I have been using Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills for years. I keep them on hand all the time. I can certainly recommend them for pain. Miss Audra Seybold, 2417 W. 2nd St., Dayton, Ohio

Your Anti-Pain Pills have been a wonderful help to me. I have used them for three years and always keep them on hand. Mrs. E. Pierce, Lapwai, Idaho

I have used quite a lot of Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills. They are fine pills to stop pain. Mrs. J. L. Kester, Shickshinny, Pa.

If you tire easily-

why not reason out the cause of this unnatural condition?

Your first thought may be, "I must eat more." That's not all. You should enjoy what you do eat. Frequently, the blood cells are low... and this, perhaps, is what makes you feel weak. If this is your trouble the stomach may not be calling for sufficient food. Zest to eat may be lacking. But what a difference S.S.S. makes when taken just before meals. Just try it and notice how your appetite and digestion improve.

S.S.S. stimulates the flow of gastric juices and also supplies the precious mineral elements so necessary in blood-cell and hemo-glo-bin up-building. Do try it. It may be the rainbow you need to brush away present discouragement over your health condition.

Do not be blinded by the efforts of a few unethical dealers who may suggest substitutes. You have a right to insist that S.S.S. be supplied you on request. Its long years of preference is your guarantee of satisfaction.

Advertising Men Met In B'ham

Birmingham, Ala. — Advertising offers unusual opportunities today to every enterprise engaged in the sale or manufacture of building supplies and materials, plumbing, household equipment and furnishings electrical supplies and to makers and dealers in other merchandise which may expect profit from the program of the Federal Housing Administration, Mr. Robert Jemison, Jr., state director of the FHA said here today.

Addressing a group of advertising men in Birmingham, Mr. Jemison emphasized the benefits which would accrue from advertising at this time to distributors and manufacturers of merchandise affected by the broad FHA effort.

"There is being created today", Mr. Jemison said, "a vast potential market for merchandise of all kinds, especially the wide variety of products that are useful in the home. Some have the mistaken impression that the FHA program touches only repair and building operations. This is far from true. Building or repair expenditures inevitably inspire demand for all kinds of house furnishings and equipment, for rugs and draperies and furniture, paint and wall paper, new lighting fixtures, shrubbery, landscaping, fencing, concrete walks, silos barns, etc."

"Through the program of the federal housing administration over ten million copies of a 24-page booklet, advising property owners how they can obtain the benefits of the National Housing Act, have been distributed throughout the country. These together with a vast amount of other literature and advertising, and aggressive local community campaigns, is already exerting its effects."

"Within the next thirty to sixty days we are sure to see a marked increase in demand for merchanidse of many kinds. Alert manufacturers and dealers should take advantage of the promotional effort of the FHA to acquaint prospects with their own merchandise. Such a policy has already been adopted by many of the larger manufacturers and distributors. Considerable advertising has been used in the national magazines. More should be used in local papers in each community."

Reports throughout Alabama show continued progress in community campaigns. In Birmingham plans are practically complete for opening an elaborate exhibit in a five story building downtown.

ALABAMA 4-H BOY WINS PLYMOUTH CAR IN NATIONAL CONTEST

Joe Norton, Jr., 4-H club member near Mobile, Alabama, is home from the World's Fair at Chicago with a brand new Plymouth de luxe Sedan which he was presented there for writing the best story in a national contest sponsored by Chrysler Motors for 4-H members. It required a club member to tell how such a car would be used, if won, to advance 4-H club work. Joe wrote three pages and boiled it down to a coupon less than the size of a post card. He received the car just in time for his 17th birthday.

"I will use the prize to make my club as good a club as the Plymouth is a car," he wrote among other things. The boy gave much credit for his success to the inspiration received in his 4-H work from his parents and a new county agent, Charles Brockway.

Hard, well directed work is back of Joe's fine club record and his latest success. "I just had a hunch I could win the car if I tried hard enough," he said. With this faith in himself he pledged his mother before entering his story to equip the car with a radio if he won it. From his father he obtained a promise to supply the gas.

Young Norton is president of his 4-H club and is specializing in dairy calf projects. He is a successful exhibitor and already owns three purebred Jerseys. The boy expects to graduate from Mobile High School next spring where he ranks high as a student. He spends all of his spare morning and evening hours looking after his 4-H projects.

7,200,000 Kilowatt Hours MORE Electricity for $214,000 LESS Money

That's How One Year's Operation of Our New Promotional Rate Plan Has Benefited Our Residential Customers

OCTOBER 1st, 1933, Alabama's new low rates for electric service were put into effect by the Alabama Public Service Commission.

When the new rates were installed we told you they would at once cut the cost of electricity to our residential customers by $336,000 annually, and furthermore provide for progressive reductions over a three year period, bringing total savings to our customers of over $600,000!

We also told you that if you wished to use MORE electricity, you could get all or part of the increase FREE, and that when you had used up your FREE electricity, any extra electricity you might want to use would come to you at special bargain prices.

One year's operation of the new rate schedule reveals the fact that our residential customers have actually used 7,221,548 kilowatt hours MORE electricity these past twelve months than during the same period a year ago, yet their electric bills for this larger amount of electricity were $214,667 LESS than they paid for the smaller amount the preceding twelve months. In brief, 13.5% MORE electricity for 8.3% LESS money! If the use of electric service by the residential customers of the company during the past 12 months had been at the average rate during the preceding 12 months, the cost would have been $564,479.00 more than the actual cost at the new rates.

Some have used the same amount of electricity and saved money. Some have used MORE electricity and paid LESS for it than the smaller amount cost them last year. Some have made big INCREASES in consumption, but their electric bills have gone up very little, if any!

Yet the fact remains that there are many customers who have not taken full advantage of the benefits the promotional rate schedule offers them. There are many customers who could actually use much more electricity than they are using now without a single penny's increase in cost. There are many customers who could operate an electric iron, waffle iron, electric fan, or increase their electric lighting without any increase in their electric bill. And there are still others who could enjoy the comfort and convenience of electric cooking, electric refrigeration, electric water heating at very little added cost for these major appliances.

Perhaps you, too, are letting your opportunity slip by to enjoy the advantages of increased electric service at no added cost or for a negligible extra sum each month. We invite you to call at our local office and talk it over with our manager.

THE CHRISTIAN AT PRAYER

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 6:5-15; Ephesians 3:14-21.

GOLDEN TEXT—Rejoicing in hope; patient in tribulation; continuing instant in prayer. Romans 12:12.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How to Pray.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Prayer Jesus Taught His Disciples.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Learning How to Pray.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Prayer as Fellowship With God.

I. False Prayer (vv. 5, 7, 8).

1. Praying to be seen and heard of men (v. 5). To go through the act of praying with such an object is to play the hypocrite. In praying, the soul is dealing with God; therefore, to engage in it to attract men's attention is blasphemy. Many of the prayers uttered in the public sanctuary are false, for there is more consideration given to what the people think than to what God thinks. Men who thus pray get a reward, but not from God.

2. Using vain repetitions (vv. 7, 8). This does not mean that we should ask but once for the thing desired, for we have examples of Christ and Paul praying three times for the same thing (Matt. 26:39-46; 2 Cor. 12:7, 8), but rather it means the use of meaningless repetitions, their reiterations becoming empty sounds. To thus pray is heathenish. The heathen nations in their worship of idols engage in senseless babble, an example of which we see in the priests of Baal on Mount Carmel (I Kings (18:26).

II. True Prayer (v. 6).

Since true prayer is a definite transaction of the soul with God, the communion of the human personality with the divine personality, we should have a real desire for fellowship with God and then go to meet him in secret.

Life for its fullest development needs both solitude and companionship. Solitude alone makes one morose, while constant companionship makes one shallow. God who made us knew what our natures required, therefore he commands both public and private prayer (Heb. 10:25; Matt. 6:6). We should have our closet prayers, when all the world, its cares and pleasures, is shut out, and we are shut in with God. We should also meet with God's children to pray.

III. A Model Prayer (vv. 9-15).

This was given in response to the disciples' request that the Lord would teach them to pray (Luke 11:1). It is not, therefore, strictly the Lord's prayer, but the model prayer for the disciples. It involves:

1. A right relationship (v. 9). One must be in such relationship as to be able to say "Our Father." Only those who have become children of God by faith in Jesus Christ (Gal. 3:26) can pray aright.

2. A right attitude (vv. 9, 10). "Hallowed be thy name." When one realizes that he has been delivered from the power of darkness and translated into the kingdom of his dear Son (Col. 1:13) by being made a child of God, he cannot help pouring out his soul in gratitude and praise, intensely longing for the kingdom—that is, the righteous rule of Christ on the earth.

3. A right spirit (vv. 11-13).

a. That of trust which looks to God for the supply of daily bread. We are dependent upon him for our daily food. With all man's boasted progress, he cannot make a harvest.

b. That of love which results in forgiveness of others. God will not listen to the prayers of the one who has an unforgiving spirit.

c. That of holiness which moves one to pray not to be led into temptation. Such a one longs to be delivered from the Evil One.

IV. Paul's Prayer for the Ephesians (Eph. 3:14-21).

1. To whom made (vv. 14, 15). It was to the Father of the Lord Jesus Christ.

2. For what he prayed (vv. 16-19).

a. For the strengthening of the inner man by the Holy Spirit (v. 16).

b. For Christ's indwelling (v. 17). The human personality needs the quickening of the Spirit in order that it might be a fit place for Christ to dwell.

c. That they might be rooted and grounded in love (v. 17). The only way that real love can flow from the human heart is through Christ's indwelling.

d. The apprehension of Christ's love (vv. 18, 19). This love, in its depth, breadth, width, and height, transcends human understanding.

3. The triumphant assurance that this will be realized (vv. 20, 21). This realization, which is beyond human ability to even think, is to be accomplished by the indwelling of the Holy Spirit.

What We Live For

We may say what we will, and profess what we will, that which we live for determines whose we are and what we are. "For me to live is Christ," cried St. Paul. As other men live for gain or pleasure, the Christian is meant to be a man who lives for Christ.

Trouble Within

Today I have got out of all trouble or rather I have cast out all trouble, for it was not outside, but within and in my opinions.—Marcus Aurelius.

Big Circus Comes Montgomery 20th

The Great Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus, one of the two largest shows in America, will exhibit in Montgomery, on Saturday, October 20. A two-mlie long street parade at 11 a.m. will be the inaugural event of the day—the first real old-fashioned circus parade since 1926.

The huge circus traveling on three all-steel trains of double length circus cars, will, this year, offer more thrilling features than ever before. Every display on the lengthy program is of gigantic proportions, and scores of them new to circus patrons.

Clyde Beatty, world famous wild animal trainer, will again thrill the vast audiences with his daring in the all-steel arena with forty wild and ferocious lions and tigers. The most awe-inspiring display of the kind in the whole world.

Other stellar features from among the 600 men and women arenic stars will include the famous Christiani Troupe of equestrians, direct from Europe; the world famous flying Condonas, with Alfredo, greatest aerialist of all time; Bombayo, the man from India—sensational star of the bounding rope, and over 100 other ring, track and stage displays on the mighty 1934 Hagenbeck-Wallace program.

The performances will open with a stupendous spectacle, "Persia," featuring nearly 2,000 people and animals, and an elaborate pyrotechnical display, while for the youngsters, seventy five of the world's best known clowns will be on hand to furnish laughter throughout the length of the two-hour program.

The big double Menagerie, the largest on tour in the world, is, this year, augmented by five great herds of performing elephants—40 in number, 30 camels and 20 zebras. Performances will be given at 2 and 8 p.m. with the main gate opening one hour earlier.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS
(By Frank P. Litschert

President Roosevelt, in the mention of British program for recovery, during his Sunday night "fireside" radio talk, has called attention to the fact that Great Britain for nearly two years has been steadily climbing out of the depression. Many experts, in fact, agree that England is further along the road to recovery than we are. The President took exception to statements which he credited to critics of the New Deal to the effect that Great Britain had been climbing out of the depression by following a "do nothing" policy. He called attention to the fact that England went off the gold standard, called in ten billions of her war bonds and issued new ones at a lower rate of interest thereby saving the British Treasury $150,000,000 a year, and he continued:

"Is it not a fact that ever since the year 1909 Great Britain in many ways has advanced further along lines of social security than the United States Is it not a fact that relations between capital and labor on the basis of collective bargaining are much further advanced in Great Britain and the United States? It is perhaps not strange that the conservative British press has told us with pardonable irony that much of our New Deal program is only an attempt to catch up with English reforms that go back ten years or more."

It is undoubtedly true, as the President states, that Great Britain has gone further along the line of social legislation that the United States, especially in the matter of unemployment insurance, pensions, workmen's compensation, health insurance and so on. Many British economists believe that these programs, in force long before the collapse of 1929, helped to cushion the fall that came to the populace and the government during those trying times. It is true also that the administration now proposes to put some of these measures into effect in the United States. But these proposed enactments have little to do with the crisis at hand. When critics of the New Deal point to the record of Great Britain advancing out of the depression more rapidly than Uncle Sam, with his program of vast expenditures, they are not discussing permanent social legislation but efforts to solve the present critical situation. And if we are to compare methods used by the United States and Great Britain in dealing with the recovery from the 1929 crises, a recovery which began the world over in July, 1932, a year before the present administration went into power, it must be admitted that the methods of the two nations have been far different.

Great Britain, of course, went off the gold standard, but the government was forced to abandon it because its gold reserve was slipping away. In the United States, where we had and still have a tremendous gold reserve, there was no such crisis. What American business fears now is that because of our rising tide of expenditure there may have to be further tinkering with the standards of our currency.

But leaving the question of money aside, it is clearly evident that there has been a great difference in the methods used by Uncle Sam and Great Britain in attempting to bring about recovery. The first thing that Great Britain did was to reduce expenditures and bring about a balanced budget. This restored confidence and set at rest all fears of uncontrolled inflation. Every effort for recovery in Great Britain has been along the line of reduced expenditures and increased home production. Protective tariffs were put into effect and English farmers were urged to produce MORE, not less, of the natural wealth of the nation. All of this was accomplished without regimentation, without increased bureaus and commissions, and without taking on an army of new government employes. The methods used in the United States have been entirely different. The British method seems to be working. Almost daily we hear bullish reports on conditions in England and the permanent improvement which seems to have set in. We all hope, of course, that the American method will work, too. One thing certain, though—it is much more expensive and after all, the people themselves have to pay the bill. The money which is being spent at Washington belongs to the people—not to the folks who are doing the spending. Most critics of the New Deal do not claim that Great Britain is recovering by doing nothing. They say that John Bull is winning the battle by using time-tried methods instead of experimentation.

SOME SALIENT POINTS

The opinion that there can be no real prosperity in the United States until we return to a gold basis so that businessmen and investors may be able to know just what the dollar is worth and what it will be worth a year hence is expressed in no uncertain terms by the Federal Advisory Council of the Federal Reserve Board, in a recent statement which makes a number of recommendations to the administration at Washington. The statement sets forth that no recovery "can be had or reasonably hoped for until the country has been placed upon a sound financial basis, and that such sound basis necessarily implies a standard gold dollar of definitely and permanently fixed gold content, with other forms of currency redeemable at all times in gold bullion in the amount so fixed."

The statement points out that a currency of fluctuating value, such as we have now, will not permanently affect the level of the prices, nor will it adjust inequalities of price between various commodities. Price levels, it is stated, fluctuate as a result of business activity and are not a cause of such activity; a higher price level helps only if brought about by greater business activity and a higher national income, and this higher income can only come about through increased business and greater employment, which in turn must wait on a return of business confidence.

The soundness of this argument is so apparent that anyone ought to see it. In bringing higher prices artificially before greater business and an increased national income warranted it, the New Deal has simply put the cart before the horse, and has retarded the return of prosperity rather than accelerated it. The statement of the Council states further:

That a balanced budget within a reasonably short time is necessary for the restoration of business confidence;

That the tendency of business conducted by the government to spread into fields formerly occupied alone by private capital is a serious deterrent to a return to normalacy, destroying taxable values and paralyzing private initiative;

That the steady increase in the public debt without an increase in federal income is a serious threat to our future economic stability and a threat to public credit, which is so valuable to the national welfare.

That the currency and credit now available are sufficient to take care of an expansion of business far greater than anything we have ever experienced and demands for currency or credit inflation are without justification;

That the threat of inflaiton is "a threat to every prudent man and woman who by honest work and intelligent thrift has accumulated a savings account for old age," a threat to every father who has invested his savings in life insurance to protect his family, and a threat to every working man and woman "who, if inflation comes, will see the money he receives for his toil shrunk and shrivel in his hands."

The Council's report is so plainly worded and so logical that it ought to impress everyone who reads it. But so long as we think we are on a national joy ride it is going to be difficult to get a considerable of our population to stop long enough to read and think. There will be a lot of thinking going on when Santa Claus runs out of presents and the January bills become due—but then it may be too late to avoid serious consequences.

MORE TAXES FEWER JOBS

One of the troubles with a general political movement like the so-called New Deal is that it invariably has a number of contradictions in it. We see on one hand an effort to raise prices and on the other pleas to "keep down" the cost of living, first an effort to curtail production. We talk about increasing our foreign trade in agricultural products and then make this impracticable by curtailing our production, and raising the prices to a point where we cannot compete in foreign markets. But there are still other contradictions.

Take the subject of government controlled hydro-electric power for example. Every project of this kind completed means a lessened demand for coal and this in turn will spell fewer jobs for coal miners, for railroad workers who haul the coal and for many kindred industries. This at a time when we have ten million of unemployed in the country and are seeking in every way to put men back to work. Government power plants, too, mean the reduction of the value of privately owned utilities who pay a great deal of our taxes. This in turn will mean higher taxes for the other property owners, who will have to make up the difference, and also dig up the sums which are to be expended on these government projects.

It is estimated that, according to present plans, the government will spend $2,000,000 for the development of hydro-electric power and that the projects to be developed will have facilities for producing 83 billion kilowatt hours of electricity annually. Touching on this Mr. George J. Leahy, chairman of the National Job Saving and Investment Protection Bureau for the coal industry said recently:

"This tremendous amount of power will mean the loss in steady employment of more than 152,000 men in the coal mines, railroad lines and coal yards, to say nothing of other thousands who indirectly will be affected through decreased production in allied trades.

"The expenditure of two billion dollars is beyond the comprehension of the taxpayers. It means an assessment of $16 against every individual in the country.

"More than half of this two billion dollar expenditure can be saved for the taxpayers if they will understand the true issues involved and bring pressure to bear to halt further appropriations, such as that for the St. Lawrence Waterways, Missouri Valley Authority in the Middlewest, Monongahela River Basin in Pennsylvania, Hamilton Dam private promotion in Texas, Wabash Valley Authority in Indiana, and Arkansas River Watershed Authority. None of these are necessary for future development of the country. Each one is unsound and experimental.

"The least that can be done is to wait until the present experimental yardsticks are completed and proven before the government spends more than another billion dollars on developments now under construction.

"Each time a hydro-electric project is built, there are some people put to work temporarily, but there are many more times this number of them in coal mines, railroad systems and steam plants who will lose permanent employment."

Here children, is a riddle: Why is General Johnson like the month of March? The answer is—because he came in like a lion and went out like a lamb. But, anyhow, General Johnson can look back on one thing with satisfaction. When he left the job the president had to hire five people to take his place.

Buying Votes Was Once Against Law

One of the greater issues today is whether Americans intend to let their heritage of freedom be bought from them with public handouts by would-be "regimenters" as though they were irresponsible members of a decadent Roman mob.

We do not for a moment believe Americans will stand for any such thing; but the temptation is being placed before them daily and with growing intensity.

Formerly, and not so long ago, a candidate for public office who spent large sums of money belonging to himself and his friends in order that he might carry an election was considered guilty of a heinous offense. He was liable under the corrupt practices act, and frequently he got it in the neck.

Today it is being drummed into the ears of American people that they are too incompetent, too weak, too miserable, too decrepit to pull themselves out of a temporary economic depression in the usual way by using their God-given courage, brain and strength, but can find salvation only by throwing up their hands and submitting to a belevolent dole-dispensing paternalism.

And having thus done their best to create a spirit of cowardice and defeatism, having done everything they could to make people sorry for themselves instead of stirring them to self-effort, certain Apostles of the New Deal, under pretext of doing a great rescue work are pouring out or promising billions belonging not to the doners themselves but to the nation. And for the most part they are distributing the funds where they are likely "to do the most good."

The handlers of the old pork barrells were second rate pikers compared with some of the lordly distributors of government moneys of today.

In the last two or three years, much has been said about trading on human misery. More needs to be said about the wickedness of attempting to exploit it for ends subversive of liberty.—Detroit Free Press.

SHERMAN MARCH REPEATED

(From Cottons Ginner's Journal)
(Reproduced in Southern Farmer)

Almost seventy years have passed since Sherman lay waste to the heart of the South in his destructive march to the sea. On December 20, 1864, after he captured the city of Savannah he telegraphed President Lincoln, "I wish to present you the city of Savannah and 25,000 bales of cotton for a Christmas present." How short is the memory of man.

With the suffering that followed in the reconstruction of the south whose fertile fields had been made more fertile with the life blood of her stalwart sons, one would naturally think that any program of destruction would be looked upon with horror by the grandchildren of these defenders of state rights. But times have changed, the modern mind is easily swayed by propaganda. Individual thought has given way to mass action, and the mass is usually directed by what is known as the mob spirit. With unlimited resources and planned publicity the mass can be led into the unbelievable.

As Sherman stood looking back at his path of destruction, the last wisps of smoke from burning supplies being wafted about the gentle breeze as from the dying embers of a funeral pyre, he exclaimed, and truthfully so, "WAR IS HELL!" But from this calamity there arose a greater nation, a stronger union. Not one builded upon doles or federal appropriation, but a great nation baptized in the blood of its sons and built upon the faith of a great people. A nation of individuals who dared to face the future and BUILD.

Just as Sherman gazed about at the work of war and cried, "WAR IS HELL!" there is no doubt but that the citizen of the modern south who has been willing to submerge his individuality and accept the mass leadership of the theorist, will stand and gaze at the hardships and destruction of regimented agriculture and cry in despair, "What Sherman said of war is true of regimentation."

W. T. (Bill) Sherman wired the president, "I present you 25,000 bales of cotton for Christmas."

Bankhead Bill should now write his wire, and it should read:

"I have reached the sea. I have driven farm-laborers and farm-tenants from their homes to the cities to seek their place in the relief lines. I have taken from them their hog, cow and chickens, but the taxpayers feed them. A great drought came over the land and aided me in my crop reduction, but I should have all the credit. Your monetary program was a fine thing. It added at least 5 cents per pound to the price of cotton, but I should have this credit also. It is true that I have thrown thousands out of work, but you must remember that I have made possible jobs for thousands of our political followers. It will take millions of dollars to force this program over, but if money gets short I recommend more taxes. Feed is scarce, but this will make feed prices higher and force these cotton growers to buy feed. I have done all in my power to disrupt the orderly gathering of the cotton crop, so do not hurry the exemption certificates; let 'em suffer a while longer. I have done my best to deliver the export market to foreign countries. I have encouraged them to plant cotton and if they succeed we will need no regulation over here as they will not have our market. YOURS FOR MORE JOBS,

BANKHEAD BILL.

Let's Have a Showdown

And so the Chilton County News editor did not like the reply made to his editorial. Well, that's just too bad. But, to tell the truth, I didn't really expect him to relish it to any great degree. Not that it was so scorching, but that it merely explained a lot of things that the editor had apparently "overlooked."

The News has been ripping its shirt for a long time, trying to get the word around and explain just who "The Man in the Moon is. I have never tried to hide my identity, and I am not ashamed of anything I have ever written under the above caption. So, I believe I'll just help the News along with this matter. "The Man in the Moon" is none other than Paul C. Mims, sometimes known as "Chester", or "Jack," or what have you. I am a native of Chilton County, (which is more than can be said of most of the News ownership and management.) I am 31 years of age, married, have two children, own my home, and am not looking to anyone (especially Democrats) for anything. I will be glad for anyone interested to check as closely as he pleases on my life, and publish his true findings in a leather-bound volume and distribute it. Not that all this is necessary, but the News seems to want people to know who I am, so I am offering this suggestion.

And since all that is made clear, we would like to know who is the real editor, "the brains" (if there are any) behind all the long-winded, high sounding editorials the News has been spewing out in the immediate past. From time to time, editors and columnists have come to the News, and gone again, without anyone ever knowing who they were. Personally, I don't care. But, inasmuch as the News wants to explain so fully just who "The Man in the Moon" is, maybe the editor of the News will reveal just who he, she, or it, is. Let's have a showdown—put up or shut up!

It was just a bit amusing to notice how the News, in its last issue did not dispute one single assertion that my little article carried. They KNOW it was all true, so the best they could do was to try a little personal digging. That's all right by me, too—I can take it! If we were trying to run a scandal sheet, we, too, might be able to reveal a few things. But we try to make of The Union-Banner a clean, interesting weekly, and we will not go to the gutter to fight.

The News editor gets a real kick out of the fact that I worked for the CWA. I did work for the CWA, and, I believe, did a fairly good job of it. I am not ashamed of it, and will work in the same capacity again, if they need me.

The News editor says that I soft-pedaled on the official procedure while I worked for CWA, and that on some occasions I defended such. The first assertion I construe as an insinuation that I was willing to forego my convictions and the voicing of them for a price. As such I must brand the assertion a flat lie. I have always said that some phases of the program were good, but that, on the whole, the whole set-up was a bad one, bound to lead the nation further into the wilderness rather than placing it back on the high road to success. And I have NEVER defended the program as a whole. On one occasion, when those in charge of the re-employment office were objects of unwarranted criticism and persecution, relative to their manner of handling the office, I did defend them, because I knew that they were honest in their work, and believed that such criticism was unjustified. We must remember, too, that it was the News and its contributors who were doing the most of the kicking.

Another thing—I wonder if the News editor would like to know just how I came to work for CWA. I wonder if he would be interested to know that I was called at my home at 11 o'clock at night to assist with their work. And I wonder if he would believe that I was invited to sign an application card for a position as timekeeper, because of experience in that capacity. After invitation, I signed the application form on Friday night, December 15, 1933, and went on the job as project timekeeper on December 19. On January 19, 1934, I was called into the main office to assist the chief timekeeper, Mr. L. M. Matthews, and I will be glad to have any representative of the News or anyone interested ask Mr. Matthews as to his opinion of me or my work. I was kept on the job until the quota cut disposed of the position of assistant timekeeper.

That's the story of my connection with CWA—I am not ashamed of my record. Without boasting, I would like for the News editor to point out another who was hired under like circumstances. I never heard one commendatory word the News uttered about the program during the whole period. When the time came to make an accounting of the whole program, I was called upon by the director to prepare the statistics, and the News accepted a copy of the accounting sheet from which to make up its story. Last week the News seemed to doubt that some figures I gave were authentic; but they didn't doubt the figures on that CWA account sheet—they accepted them without a word. Maybe they didn't know they were prepared by a poor country boy with just brains enough to vote Republican.

But, be that as it may, I want to assure the News editor that no matter how much mud he may toss at me personally, I shall remain the same true blue Republican that I have always been until he can prove to me that his party has something better. All the money his party has can't buy my vote nor lessen my fight for my convictions; when he has proved to me that his party has something better for the country as a whole, and for me as an American, with no selfish and personal motives considered, then he won't have to buy me—I'll be with him tooth and nail. I never have found myself able to remain neutral about anything, and I shall continue to fight for the Republican cause as long as I have sense enough to read and think, and strength enough to pound a typewriter.

So, let's have a showdown! Let's know who's who. Let's fight this campaign to a finish, but for cripe's sake, let's be clean about it. I sincerely try to write nothing but facts, as such. When I am surmising, I shall say so, when I state a fact, I intend to know that it is a fact. When I give you figures, they are authentic—you can bet on that. I would be foolish to state falsely, for nothing would suit the News better than to catch me out. Call my hand any time you please, Mr. Editor, and I'll push the evidence under your eyes. But, when you are caught, for decency's sake, don't try to crawl out through the bottom—you might get muddy, and I don't like mud and will have notthing to do with it.

The News finished its editorial last week with a long quotation from the Birmingham Post. I wonder why the News never quotes anything from Senator Carter Glass, or the Hearst Newspapers, or a score of other big Democrats. I can tell you. A few days ago, someone asked Sen. Glass what advice he would like to give in regard to reorganization of the NRA. His reply was: "I think it would be a good thing to repeal." William Randolph Hearst put his newspapers in the 1932 campaign for Mr. Roosevelt and the Democratic cause, and Mr. Hearst's latest statement in regard to the methods being used by our national officials is this: "I believe the present national program is the biggest and most expensive and insane hoax ever perpetrated upon the American public." And only a few days ago the Georgia State Democratic Committee, in regular session, went on record condemning the program, and demanding a return to a sane and proved course of procedure. But I'll bet you haven't read about that in the Chilton County News, and you never will! Why? Because these statements come from men who think for themselves and who have stripped the hokum from the whole affair. They are not "rubber stamps"—they follow their true convictions, and have the courage to voice them. I have quite a few clippings from noted Democrats in regard to the program which I intend giving out before long. Look for them in The Union-Banner, for you'll never see them in the News.

FOREIGN COTTON FIELDS

There is said to be a growing revolt in the South on the part of the small cotton raisers against the regimentation of the Bankhead cotton control bill. This measure was designed, so its authors stated, to bring prosperity back to the cotton raising industry. That it has not done so is proved by the complaints that are now becoming audible even north of the Mason and Dixon Line.

Cotton production curtailment may temporarily have raised the price of raw cotton but it has run counter to another section of the administration's New Deal program, which is the one dealing with re-employment. The cotton control act has contributed to unemployment, just as it has helped curtail the demand for cotton goods by raising the price to those whose incomes have not increased accordingly.

It is stated on good authority that the cotton reduction program has thrown nearly 30 per cent of the cotton share croppers, field hands and pickers, out of employment. Many of these, it is said, are now roaming the countryside in search of work and bid fair to be added to the permanent unemployment problem of the nation. One prominent Southern Senator is quoted as stating recently:

"Small cotton farmers are in many instances being allowed such small allotments of cotton under the terms of the Bankhead bill that it will be impossble for them to pay rent or taxes, or advances for marketing their crops, much less provide their families with the actual necessities of life."

But that is not all of the story, even yet. It seems that the word about the American cotton crop reduction has spread farther than our own outer boundaries. Word now comes from Mexico to the effect that our sister republic to the south will double its cotton production next year. Some time ago dispatches from Europe informed us that Egypt, Russia and other foreign cotton growing countries are preparing to raise bigger and better crops next year in an effort to capture the European market from American cotton growers.

Now why are they planning to raise bigger crops? The reasons are, of course, easy to find. They know that reduced production in America means higher costs and a higher price for the American product. And if the American price is above the world price these foreign growers know that they can undersell us in the European markets where the business will go to the lowest bidder. It costs much less to produce a pound of cotton in Egypt and in Soviet Russia than it does in the United States. The higher the price and the shorter the crop here, the more cotton those Egyptians and Russians can sell. It therefore looks as though, in the long run, the sacrifices of the American cotton farmer will rebound principally to the benefit of the alien producer. The price may be higher here, temporarily, but as foreign production increases the world price will drop with serious effects on the price in America.

INNOCENCE AT GENEVA

Those innocent souls who seem to picture the delegates of the League of Nations as sitting around a table doing their utmost regardless of the nations they represent, to accomplish something for the good of humanity, ought to get some enlightenment from the newspaper reports of the meetings now being held at Geneva.

One of the fights in the League Council has been between the friends of China and Turkey, as to which nation shall occup China's chair around the council table. Was the question debated on the merits from the standpoint of humanity? Most certainly it was not. China was in and Turkey wanted the seat. China was supported in the League while Turkey had the backing of France and the Little Entente. John Bull was for China because he feared that if the Turk got the seat he might line up his vote for Russian projects in the future and so handicap the spread of British ideas about the Dardanelles. France and her allies backed Turkey because France is now flirting with Russia, since Poland has been wavering in her allegiance to Paris. There you are. Can you imagine just how your Uncle Samuel would fare in that sort of international poker game? Our idea is that he would be lucky if he got back home in his shorts.

The old fashioned mother used to punish little Johnny when he was naughty by tapping him on the head with a silver thimble. The modern mother uses a silver cigarette case.

Soviet Russia is giving the kulaks, or "rich" peasants, the right to vote again. But, of course, it is understood that they will vote "red."

Remember the good old days when we went out driving on Sunday afternoon and the worst traffic menace we had to put up with was the horse fly?

The more the government primes the business pump of the nation the more the old pump handle seems to squeak.

"LITTLE MISS JACK" IS COMING BACK TO COLLINS CHAPEL

The same play presented at Collins Chapel last year will be presented again Saturday night, October 20, beginning at 7:30. Many have already expressed the desire to see the play again. Admission 10 cents and 15 cents. Proceeds to go for the payment on paint and seats.—H. G. Daniel, Principal.

FIDDLERS CONVENTION AT THE SMITH SCHOOLHOUSE

There will be a fiddlers convention at Smith's schoolhouse next Saturday night, October 20th, opening at seven o'clock. Everyone is invited. —C. M. Williams.

TERRACING DEMONSTRATION FOR CHILTON COUNTY WILL BE HELD

There are several thousand acres of farm land in Chilton County that needs terracing. And several thousand more acres that need re-terracing.

Thursday, October 25, there will be a terracing demonstration held on R. E. L. Ward's farm at Lomax. Power equipment will be used in this demonstration. A 30-horse power Deisel tractor and a machine built for the purpose of building terraces.

Mr. J. B. Wilson, extension engineer of Auburn, Alabama, will be with us and will give some information on how to set up an organization for getting our terracing done with this power equipment. There will be others on the program.

Come to this meeting and see some real terraces constructed, with equipment built especially for this work. I would like to see every farmer who is interested in terracing at this meeting.

Growing Mash costs $43.66 Less than Grain!

"The quicker that pullets make the jump from the seventh week of age to the laying house, providing they are fully grown and fully developed, the sooner they'll start making money in the nests. To do this job of growing large type, well developed birds in the shortest possible time reqires as close attention to their care and feeding during the growing period as they received during the first six weeks of their lives," says E. B. Powell, Manager of Purina Mills' Experimental Farm, Gray Summit, Mo.

"Since those facts are so obviously true it doesn't seem possible that any poultry raiser, after giving his chicks a good start, would turn them loose and let them shift for themselves from the sixth week on, living on bugs, table scraps and occasionally grain feeding. But this happens all to frequently, and that's the reason for the oft-proved statement that the poultryman either makes or breaks himself by the way he cares for his pullets from the sixth to the twentieth week—but he doesn't find it out until the following winter."

The cost of letting up in the care of young pullets as compared to good management and feeding to keep them coming as fast as possible has been made a matter of special study at Purina Mills' Experimental Farm. The results of this study are clearly set forth in the accompanying illustration. But in so many words the situation is just this:

It may seem cheaper, after giving chicks a good start, to turn them out and let them rustle for their food, but when they coast right on through those fall months of high egg prices and don't develop enough to come into production until after the first of the year, the owner loses that good egg money he should be getting.

It pays to biuld pulets big and get them in the nests early. The average egg produced from September to January is worth two eggs produced during the other seven months. The poultry raiser who hits this period of high egg prices—September through January—with big pullets at 50% production or better has by March 1st paid for feed cost for the entire laying year, paid a profit above all costs and has his birds making money for the remainder of the year, almost regardless of egg prices. On the other hand the man who does not get at least 50% egg production during the high egg price period has many of these costs to pay during the months of low egg prices—from February through August.

Building pullets that are ready for early laying is a job for feed because pullets are made of feed. They must be supplied with the materials that will develop body frames, tissues, muscles, and egg producing organs. It takes a balanced growing feed to do this. According to Purina Experiment Farm records, pullets raised on a balanced growing ration produced $43.66 extra profit per hundred birds over pullets fed on grain alone.

OBITUARIES — IN MEMORY

It becomes necessary for us again to call attention to the fact that we make a charge of one cent per word for all obituaries over 150 words published in The Union-Banner. So, if you want an obituary, or in memory article, published about a departed friend or relative, it must be confined to not over 150 words, or else money order for the remainder should be included if sent by mail, as outlined above.

If obituaries are sent in containing over 150 words and no money accompanies same, it will be either omitted entirely or, if possible, condensed to come within the requirement, and published.

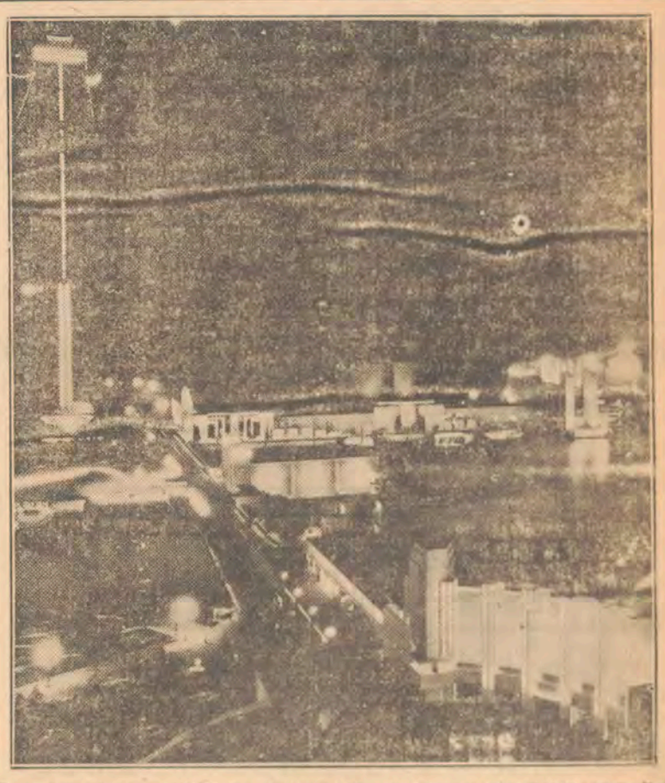
World's Fair Nears Closing



Gone for all time will be the striking illumination which transforms A Century of Progress in Chicago into a dream city when night falls, after the Fair closes October 31. Dismantling of the buildings will begin immediately after that day. Meanwhile the nearness of closing and the ideal fall weather are beckoning greater and greater crowds.

Mr. and Mrs. Hosea Downs were visitors in Montgomery Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hayes and children and Miss Kittye Clyde Austin motored to Montgomery Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Walter White of Birmingham was the guest of Mrs. M. L. White last week.

Miss Carrie Foshee and Miss Anita Campbell were visitors in Birmingham Saturday.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

GIN CERTIFICATES AVAILABLE

Auburn, Ala.—Farmers in Alabama, where official estimates indicate there will be a shortage of about 100,000 cotton tax-exemption certificates, will be able to purchase all the certificates they need at four cents a pound instead of paying 5.6 cents a pound tax levied on the ginning of cotton by the Bankhead Cotton Control Act.

Assurance that there will be more than enough certificates abailable at this price is shown by the fact that excess cotton in states have produced above their Bankhead quota amounts to only 431,223 bales, while excess certificates where production is below the Bankhead quota amount to 1,639,474 one-bale certificates.

Although Alabama, as a whole, will need to purchase certificates, some individual farmers with poor yields will have surplus certificates for sale. If they canot sell them to other farmers within their county, they can turn them into the national pool.

HOT DOG AND SANDWICH SUPPER AT FLOYD CHURCH

Everybody is cordially invited to a hot dog and sandwich supper at Floyd church. This church is five miles west of Verbena, Ala., and eleven miles south of Clanton. This supper is for the benefit of the church. The date of the supper is Saturday night before the third Sunday in October, October 20.—W. M. Headley.

RATS AND MICE DESTROY HALF MILLION ANNUALLY

Auburn, Ala.—A loss of more than one-half million dollars annually to Alabama farmers probably results from the wanton desruction of stored grains and feed stuffs by rats and mice.

Exact figures for the state are not available but it is authoritatively known that one rat will consume at least $2 worth of food a year. Conservatively estimating 10 rats to be the average infestation on each of the 257,000 Alabama farms, the above figure appears to be well within the annual loss to the state.

Not only are these rodents highly destructive and expensive to harbor on farm premises but they are definitely known to spread certain human diseases and insect pests such as fleas. Since rats and mice feed mostly at night the full extent of their damage is not readily in evidence.

Now is the time for farmers to go the limit in controlling rats, says Prof. J. M. Robinson of the Auburn department of entomology. The food supply of these rodents will soon be exhausted in the fields and they will in increasing numbers seek shelter and food in barns and houses where grain is stored. Rats and mice will be a serious menace this winter to the large corn and peanut crop which constitute their favorite foods, he added.

Excellent information is available without cost to any farmer who wishes to reduce the loss on his farm caused by rats. The bulletins on rat control may be found at the office of the local county agent.

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION TO NON-RESIDENT

The State of Alabama, Chilton County; Circuit Court, in Equity. Pearlie Peterson, Complainant; vs. Elbert Peterson, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of A. B. Foshee, Solicitor for Complainant, that the defendant is a non-resident, and that his place of residence and post office address is unknown, and that such address cannot be ascertained after reasonable effort; and, further, that, in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is over the age of twenty-one years:

It is, therefore, ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Union-Banner, a newspaper published in the County of Chilton, once a week for four consecutive weeks requiring him, the said Elbert Peterson, to plead, answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 13 day of November, 1934, or, in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against him.

Done at office in Clanton, this 12th day of October, 1934.

COLOR SCHEME HELPS TO SELECT THE BEST HENS

A simple plan of selecting the best layers in a farm flock is described by H. L. Shrader, of the United States Department of Agriculture, as the red-white and blue method. It calls for the use of 3 colors of leg bands for marking 3 desirable characteristics of hens in the breeding flock. The banding may be done on or near three easily remembered dates—November 11, March 4 and July 4.

The first culling date, November 11, provides a check on all pullets that have begun to lay. These are the early-maturing pullets and are marked with red leg bands. It is easy to determine an early layer, as she has a deep red comb and wattles and a moist vent. If the bird belongs to one of the yellow-skinned varieties she will show distinct bleaching around the vent and on the beak.

The next culling period, in March, affords an opportunity to check the rate at which the pullets have laid during the winter. Those that have laid steadily will have lost, through the egg yolks, most of the yellow coloring matter assimilated from yellow and green feed. But birds that have taken a vacation during the winter will have some of this pigment readily observable, in the beaks and shanks. All pullets with bleached beaks and shanks are marked with a white leg band.

The last period for culling comes after the hot weather has arrived. This is the time to detect the birds that take their vacation before they have finished their laying year. The molt is a good indication of the time these pullets have been out of laying. The bird with ragged, worn feathers may not look like a blue-ribbon winner compared with her sister that has bright feathers. But the bird with worn feathers deserves the blue leg band because she is a persistent layer and has kept up with her production into the hot weather instead of molting and a new crop of feathers. Leg bands are removed from birds that go broody.

The red-white and blue layers should be mated the next spring to males from flocks with trap-nest records that show heavy winter production of good sized eggs of the proper color for the breed. A breeding program of this kind will not take much time from the farmer's regular duties and will aid greatly in developing a high-producing flock.

MUST SELECT GOOD MALES FOR HIGH-LAYING FLOCKS

A good male is 10 times as important as a good hen in building up a flock of poultry. For this reason progency testing, a method which enables a poultry breeder to identify the superior males in his flock, is a necessity to progress in poultry breeding, says Dr. M. A. Jull, in charge of poultry investigations for the United States Department of Agriculture.

Too much significance has been attached to phenomenal records in egg-laying contests, according to Dr. Jull, who bases his statement on the results of a recent experiment with white leghorns and Rhode Island reds at the Beltsville Research Center of the department at Beltsville, Md. High-production records in the ancestry of hens used in a breeding flock are, of course, desirable but the experiment shows that such records on only one side of the ancestry are not sufficient assurance of high producing pullets. On the other hand, three generations of good egg-production records do give some assurance of good records of the pullets.

A hen that produces good laying pullets by one sire may produce pullets with much lower averages when mated to another sire the next year. This indicates that a hen's value as a breeder is not always shown by the average egg production of her daughters but depends also on the mating involved. The ability to select superior breeding males is of great importance because a sire's influence on a flock is at least 10 times as great as that of a hen, as one sire is usually mated to ten or more hens. The index of greatest value in determining a sire's breeding worth was found to be the average egg production of all of his daughters.

SHELBY COUNTY PARK IS TO BE DEVELOPED

Montgomery, Ala.—Oak Mountain State Park in Shelby County will soon be the scene of active operations by the Emergency Conservation Work, says Colonel Page S. Bunker, state forester and director of state parks. A CCC camp has been assigned to carry on the work under plans submitted by the state forester and approved by the United States Department of the Interior.

The company detailed to develop this project is now stationed at the former Jefferson County Forestry Camp at which all forestry work for the permanent maintenance of which the state's guarantee will be accepted by the federal government has been completed. This camp, together with several others in the same circumstances, was recommended by the state forester for conversion into a state park camp with view to retaining within the state as many CCC companies as possible and with the further specific purpose of developing scenic and recreational areas on which the president's requirements as to state guarantee of future maintenance can be more easily met.

Whether the company assigned to the Oak Mountain state park project will continue to work out from its present location in Jefferson County or will occupy a new camp closer to the park site has not as yet been definitely determined. Regardless of this question, however, the assignment of the company to the new project was made effective October 6.

Mr. and Mrs. Broadus Connatser have been visiting friends in Clanton for the past week. Broadus has just finished his baseball season, having played with the Kansas City and Tulsa teams.

SAVING SWEET SORGHUM SEED

Conditions indicate that there is likely to be a shortage of planting seed of sweet sorghum (cane) varieties in Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, and Arkansas next spring. It is suggested, therefore, that you do everything possible to encourage the farmers who have small acreages of sorghum which they intend to use for syrup, to save the seed. The varieties which will be most useful in the states previously mentioned are: Red top, orange, red orange, sugar drip, honey drip, and any of the various strains of black amber.

Since the seed on the sorghum crop which is harvested for syrup is usually of no particular value to the farmer is accustomed to save only sufficient seed for his own planting. If a majority of those who are growing sorghums for syrup can be induced to save the entire lot of seed produced, it will do much to relieve the shortage which exists elsewhere, mainly for planting for forage. There should be a reasonably good market for such seed.

Seed which is intended for sale should be stored in the head on racks where it will be protected from rain and dry out without heating. Such seed, if allowed to lie in large piles until it is threshed, will often heat and this lowers the germination and sometimes makes the seed entirely worthless for planting purposes.—C. W. Warburton, director of extension, Washington, D. C.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala.—The University of Alabama placed 25 of its faculty in the new edition of "Who's Who in America" which has just come off the press. The University also has 31 of its younger alumni in "America's Young Men," a volume dedicated to the recording of the achievements of young Americans who have not yet passed their fortieth birthday.

Senior Commerce students at the University of Alabama are to make their annual tour of the Birmingham district on October 18, 19 and 20, according to Dr. Burton R. Morley, director of the tour. The annual commerce dinner will be given at 6:30 o'clock at Hotel Thomas Jefferson, Friday, October 19. All alumni of the commerce school are invited to attend. Dr. Lee Bigood, dean of the school of commerce will speak.

The department of aeronautical engineering, University of Alabama, has received the gift of two army observation planes. The planes were secured from the Army Air Corps and were formerly stationed at Roberts Field, Birmingham. The department has also been presented a new 500 h.p. motor. The total value of the gifts when new was $30,000.

With all "warming up games a thing of the past, the Crimson Tide of Alabama will swing into its suicide schedule Saturday, October 20, at Birmingham against the Tennessee Vols. The Vols have been difficult to defeat since Alabama inaugurated her present series with Neyland's men. Since the fall of 1928 when Hackman and McEver startled the grid world with their running and defeated Alabama 15-13 on Denny Field, the Tide has come through as victor only twice. The 1930 Rose Bowl team beat Tenessee 18-6, and in 1933 Thomas's men won 12-6. The other four entanglements resulted in victories for the wearers of the orange.

CORN HOG FARMERS ARE PAID

Auburn, Ala. — Alabama farmers who signed corn-hog contracts have been paid $185,371 in benefit payments reports Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the Alabama Extension Service.

Reports reaching Alabama are that corn-hog farmers have voted for the AAA to continue the corn-hog program during 1935.

In case the program is continued the farmers who agree to retire a certain acreage from the growing of corn, and to limit their production of hogs, will receive in return benefit payments from the government.

CHESTNUT GROVE

We are glad to say our Sunday school is progressing nicely. We are proud to see our young people take the interest they are in Sunday school. But there is room for improvement yet. So let's do our best.

Brother Horace Nabors preached for us Sunday evening. It was enjoyed by all present.

We were glad to have Brother Canant of Wilton and Brother Harrell of Pea Ridge with us Sunday evening. We welcome them into our midst.

Mr. G. W. Haywood and family, of Ensley, and Mr. Harvey Nabors and wife, of Spring Creek, visited Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Nabors Sunday.

Mrs. Addie Head and Miss Delilah Curry visited Mrs. Nannie C. Moore Sunday evening.

Mrs. Alice Denson and Miss Betty Denson and Mr. Lee Denson and wife visited relatives near Moore's Cross Roads Sunday.

LIBERTY HILL SINGING SOCIETY

The Liberty Hill Singing Society met last Sunday afternoon with a large crowd. The opening song was sung by Soverign Dickey. After prayer by Mr. L. D. Hughes, the following directors sang one or two songs each:

D. T. Melton, Fonzie Coe, L. D. Hughes, A. L. Brown, Dewell Jones, Kermit Lowery, Hiram Littlejohn, Coy Lockhart, George Chambers, Cornelius Hand, Houston Melton and Leonard Culp.

Special songs were arranged by Chestnut Creek and Liberty Hill singers. Pianoists for the afternoon were Leonard Culp, Miss Louanna Jones and Miss Olene Mims.

We appreciate the help of all visitors, and especially those from Chestnut Creek. All singers are invited to attend our singing each second Sunday afternoon.—Marvin Lowery, Secretary.

CEMETERY CLEANING AT SHILOH

Those who are interested in the Shiloh cemetery are requested to meet there Wednesday October 24, for the purpose of cleaning off the cemetery. Please bring necessary tools.—J. O. Bice.

WALNUT CREEK

The morning services were very good Sunday. The C. E. Society put on a fine program Sunday night. Our services could be much better if the people would cooperate.

There will be preaching at 11 o'clock Saturday. The Fourth Quarterly Conference of Clanton Circuit will be held in the afternoon. Preaching Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. C. E. at 6 o'clock p. m. and preaching at 7 o'clock.

Everybody come for these services. Don't forget to bring lunch for Saturday.—C. M. Nolen, Pastor.

Mr. and Mrs. Spurgeon Calloway and the former's sister, Mrs. Willie Jones, returned Tuesday night from a week's visit to another sister, Mrs. Joe Funderburk, in Dallas, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. John Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Wyatt and Mr. John C. Page attended the Kiwanis Convention in Montgomery Tuesday night.

Farmers Dislike Cotton Alloting

There is a lot of disatisfaction among farmers in their cotton allotment from the Bankhead Cotton Law. And they have a good reason for dissatisfaction. If it is the law for a two horse farmer to gin two and one-half bales, and if it is law to take from the farmer that grows from three-fourths to a bale per acre and give to the one that grows one-half bale or less per acre, and if it is law for the men that have from 300 to 600 weight bales taken from him and given to the one from 350 to 400 weight bales. And if it is law for the farmer to give the average bales more than the yield was and gin as much cotton as he ever ginned and if it is law for the little grower, who gives a correct number of bales grown on his farm to be cut so low that he can not pay for the cotton committee to allow one man the bale grown to the acre and refuse another that grows a bale per acre.

If this is the Bankhead Law, he should never enter the doors of the senate again.

I am an old man in the seventies, and have never known such an unreasonable thing, and if continued, will bankrupt many of the cotton growers. Many of them can not buy clothes for their families this winter. Many acres of land will have to grow up to weeds next year if this cotton law is continued. Because the little renter can not pay rent with such small allotments of cotton and pay high prices for what he has to buy. You could buy as much with 6 cent cotton as you can buy now with 12 cent cotton.

I suggest that the small cotton growers get together and employ a lawyer to investigate the law and see if the thing has been carried out as it should be.—B. H. Jones.

A RESOLUTION OF RESPECT

We, the members of the Cooperative Singing Society, composed of Providence, Mars Hill, Center Hill and Oak Grove, wish to offer the following resolution:

That God in His infinite wisdom saw fit to call from our midst one of our beloved members, Loyce (Rip) Northcutt.

Rip will be missed by us all, as a class and quartet singer. He was the bass singer on the Oak Grove Quartet. We feel that our loss is heaven's gain.

Be it resolved, that while we bow in humble submission to God's will that we extend our sympathy to his family and Oak Grove church, and that a copy of this be sent to each of the county papers and a copy to his family.—Respectfully submitted by the committee, B. L. Cobb, Center Hill; Burl Martin, Providence; Lloyd Edwards, Mars Hill.

MAPLE SPRINGS

Services Saturday and Sunday were well attended. Bro. Carroll brought a wonderful message, which everyone seemed to enjoy. There were two additions made to the church Saturday. They were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Powell—by letter.

Our B. Y. P. U. is still pulling, and if you are not attending B. Y. P. U. at some place each Sunday night, come join us. We would be glad to enroll you.

Mr. Ottis Glenn had as his guest Sunday morning Mr. Alton Downs from Poplar Springs community.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Downs and family had as their guests Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Lee Downs and baby from Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Devaughn had as their dinner guest Saturday Rev. Homer Carroll.

Mr. Henry Sandlin and Mr. Hershel Hand from Rambler's Rest was in this community Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Devaughn, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Glenn and Mrs. Robert Davis spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Kelley.

We are glad to know that Mrs. F. M. Guy's health is improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mims were the Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Barrett of Pleasant Grove.

The adult school is progressing fine. The pupils and teacher are working for a perfect record. We have enrolled 4 new pupils. The B. Y. P. U. junior class is progressing fine and we hope it will continue.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

There are three tendencies in our modern day which are world wide: First, the deification of man; second, the humanizing of God; third, the minimizing of sin.

The devil told Adam to become like God. Adam was to accomplish this in the pursuit of knowledge and was to do it independently of the help of God. In the study of history we note an inclination on the part of the human race to worship individuals. The devil has tried to find some one man to whom he could commit world leadership. He offered the kingdoms of this world to Jesus Christ if Jesus would simply bow His knee and acknowledge satanic authority. Jesus never questioned the ability of the devil to deliver. Jesus simply refused to "sell out." One of the perils which threatens our chaotic modern world is that some great genius may appear to whom the devil will commit a world dictatorship. This great leader would be an enemy to Jesus Christ and the world would possibly worship this dictator as men worshipped Nebachadnezzar centuries ago.

"I wouldn't send my child to hell." We have all heard expressions like that. That sort of statement is a human effort to pull God down to the finite plane where men live. You cannot humanize God. Jesus Chrsit was God incarnate. God clothed himself with a human form and walked among men. Jesus was human, but He was also divine. There never was in all the history of the world but one Jesus Christ. There never will be another. "My ways are not your ways and my thoughts are not your thoughts," so speaks Almighty God.

Sin has always been sin. It never has been right to steal and lie and murder. In the modern world we try to do away with sin and, failing in this, we try to minimize it. We say, "Well, why did God make me like this?" "Isn't it just as bad to want to do a thing as it is to do it?" "I had nothing to do with coming into this world." "I think God wants me to do what I want to do." "After all, I don't know whether things are as bad as they used to be or not." "If I wanted to do a thing I would go on and do it." These expressions represent modern man's ideas of sin. There is always hope for a good "repenter". But the most hopeless man in the world is the man who sins and then tries to justify it.

REFUGE NEWS

There were services at this place Saturday night. Although the crowd was small, we had good services.

Our Sunday school is going on very nicely. Next Saturday and Sunday are our regular preaching days. We would like for every member of this church to be present, especially on Saturday.

We will have Sunday school at 10 o'clock, preaching at 11, and in the afternoon there will be singing. We are hoping to have some good singers with us. Come and bring some one with you. The new and old books will be used.

W. M. U. MEETS AT BILLINGSLEY

IN MEMORY OF HOUSTON RAY

We miss him oh we miss him,
For our Savior called him away,
But we are preparing to meet him,
In a better world some day.

We know that he is resting
In paradise above.
We hope some day to meet him,
With joy, peace and love.

No more on earth we'll see his face,
His voice we'll hear no more,
But let us live to meet him
On that bright and happy shore.

We love him,
No human tongue can tell.
We said goodby for a little while,
But we don't say farewell.

A precious one from us has gone
His voice we love is still.
A place is vacant in our home,
Which can never be filled. (Pd.)

East View News

The church held its annual conference last Saturday and unanimously re-elected Rev. A. C. Nelson for another year as pastor. He has served this church for 8 years and he now begins on his 9th year as pastor.

O. F. Wells was elected superintendent of the Sunday school and L. P. Rushing assistant. J. A. Dobbs, J. P. Rushing and O. F. Wells were re-elected deacons. S. P. Smith, L. P. Rushing and Otis Coggins were elected trustees. Mrs. Zora Dobbs was re-elected clerk.

Tht S. S. elected the following: Mrs. Ruby Strength, teacher adult class; Mrs. Cornelia Coggins, teacher young peoples class; Silas Nelson, teacher junior class; Mrs. Estelle Rushing teacher beginners class and Miss Gulma Traywick secretary. Watch our Sunday school grow and glow for we are going to make it so.

There will be Sunday school next Sunday promptly at 9:00 o'clock, so that those who wish to attend the home coming at Mt. Springs may first come to Sunday school and then go to Mt. Springs.

Mrs. Mollie Strength of Thorsby spent last week here with her daughter, Mrs. Clara Rushing.

Mr. and Mrs. Ocie Rushing and Mrs. Clara Rushing and children spent the week end in Geneva County, where they visited Mr. and Mrs. William Rushing.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Coggins was the week end guest of Rev. and Mrs. A. C. Nelson.

Mrs. A. C. Nelson has been sick in bed for more than a week.

The church here gave the pastor a pounding Saturday for which he wishes to express his appreciation.

Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Rushing visited Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Nelson Sunday evening.

Rev. and Mrs. M. L. Thrasher, little son and Mr. and Mrs. Stewart, all of Andalusia, Ala., visited Rev. and Mrs. A. C. Nelson Monday night. Rev. Thrasher preached an interesting sermon at the church, which we all enjoyed. Rev. Thrasher sang a solo and Mr. and Mrs. Stewart and Rev. Thrasher sang two trios.

Come to Sunday school Sunday at 9 a.m.

If you find a welcome at East View tell others, if not tell us.

SANDWICHES, ICE CREAM, P-NUTS

Come and enjoy the good eats and have skads of fun. Where? When? Mrs. Clezie Foshee's place, Saturday night, October 20. Your girl will be there, boys. Your beau will be there, girls.—Frances Mims, Louise Davenport, Reporters.

JACKSON CHAPEL P.-T. A. MEETS

A special meeting of the Jackson Chapel P.-T. A. will be held Friday evening, October 19. Please be present for final action is going to be taken on certain problems.

Prof. R. B. Johnson, principal at Vermont School, was in Clanton on Monday afternoon.

SHOULTS CLUB WORK

The Home Demonstration Club of Shoults community met at the home of Mrs. Brooks Shoults last Thursday afternoon. The meeting was opened with prayer by the president, Mrs. Willie Hicks, after which a business session was held. Almost all the members were present.

Miss Ruth Pardue, our agent, was present and gave a demonstration on cheese making. It was very interesting and will prove beneficial to the women, for many are now going to make cheese at home.

The home demonstration work is a great help and inspiration to us. As we look back over this year we see so many ways we have been benefitted. We thank God for an opportunity to be club members and thankful for such a wonderful leader as Miss Pardue.

We are able to help others with things we have learned in club work. We are much better dressed by learning to construct the proper type of garments. Our meals are balanced, and our families get more of the food they should have. We have learned how to prepare it so as to be most nutritious. Also we learn how to grow vegetables the year round and a greater variety, with sufficient quantity to can for future use. The canned fruits and vegetables taste and look better the way it is now canned, and it is a joy to do it.

Miss Pardue has helped us in our club work to save many dollars on our clothing by renovating our old dresses and hats, and by saving our sacks for towels, clothes, etc., we have even learned to make beautiful dresses, coats, undergarments and other household articles from sacks. Our home demonstration agent is an inspiration to us at all times. When we are discouraged she inspires us on. We forget our cares and troubles as we meet and study together with our neighbors. The fellowship together is such a recreation, we make new friends from other sections of the county by having our club work.

There are many other things we could mention that we have been helped to do, such as our poultry, making our home more attractive, planting shrubbery, and our next demonstration will be making Christmas gifts. We hope to have Miss Pardue with us for many years.—Mrs. Willie Hicks, President.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our appreciation and thanks to our many friends for their kindness in helping pay our husband and fathtr's hospital bill. Especially do we thank Mr. Percy Freeman, who took the responsibility upon himself in getting the help.

May God's richest blessing be upon each and everyone, is our prayer.—Mrs. W. I. Langston and children.

Thorsby Institute News

At chapel Thursday morning the English Literature class read a cutting from the Morality play called "Everyman." On Friday at chapel a Columbus program was given. On Monday several members of the second year Latin class told something of the schools, libraries, etc., of old Roman days, and declined some nouns, gave the principal parts of some verbs and translated a few sentences. The Tuesday chapel is arranged by the music teacher. This Tuesday it was in charge of Miss Allen. A Chinese program featuring Chinese music and poetry was presented.

It has been found necessary to postpone the social gathering planned by the faculty for parents of pupils attending Thorsby Institute until November 6th. The parents are invited at that time to come to the Institute auditorium.

November 6th at 7:30 will be the second open meeting of the Helen Keller Literary Society to which everyone is invited.

GAME AND FISH NEWS

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 16. — The Sipsey River Game Club, recently created as a cooperative experiment between Fayette county sportsmen and landowners, promises to blaze a new trail across the field of conservation in Alabama.

The game authorities in this state have long recognized the need of closer unity between the landowner and the hunter and the task undertaken by this new club will be a practical demonstration of this theory.

Collectively binding themselves to observe the game laws and restore game in the Sipsey river bottoms, the club members have adopted these rules:

That no member of the club shall hunt on the land of another member without a written permit; that all members post their lands against invasion of outside and non-member hunters; that all members refrain from hunting on the land of a non-member without invitation or written permit;

That no member shall kill more than 10 quail per day nor hunt for quail more than one day in each week; that all members strive to protect the mother grail during nesting and raising periods; that all members agree not to destroy denning trees used by squirrels; that they agree not to kill a squirrel after he has gone into a nest and never kill more than five squirrels in one day;

That all members agree not to seine, dynamite, lime, gig nor muddy the waters or uselessly destroy small fish when caught, but place them back in the water; that all members make a strong effort, especially during the spring, to control fires on farms and in woodlands and prevent the destruction of den trees, quail nests and nests and habitat of other game birds and animals.

DOMINO PARTY AT THORSBY

The Thorsby Chapter of Eastern Star will give a Domino Party at the Masonic Hall on Friday night, October 19th, at 7 o'clock. Refreshments will be served free. Admission 10 cents. Everybody invited.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By ANN PAGE

GRAPEFRUIT is again in season and moderate sized fruit is selling at low cost. They will largely replace melons in the coming weeks. A large variety of grapes is available though the season for slip-skins grows short. Tokays are especially plentiful. Both cooking and eating apples are abundant and low in price.

White potatoes, cabbage and yellow onions are unusually cheap. Fine quality spinach is available and the season for broccoli, Brussels sprouts and cauliflower is getting under way. Sweet potatoes and yams are at their best. Carrots and beets are still plentiful and cheap. Tomatoes are less plentiful but still cheap, and iceberg lettuce has come down in price and up in quality.

The following menus are made up from the latest market news available.

Low Cost Dinner

Braised Beef Boiled Rice
Glazed Onions
Bread and Butter
Apple and Grape Salad
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner

Roast Lamb Shoulder with Gravy
Browned Potatoes Stuffed Tomatoes
Bread and Butter
Jellied Fruits
Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner

Fruit Cup
Fried Chicken with Gravy
Mashed Yams
Buttered Celery and Onions
Avocados with Lemon
Rolls and Butter
Baked Apples
Frozen Whipped Cream

THIS AND THAT

By W. J. Baldwin
Montgomery, Ala.

A Texan, whose education has been sadly neglected, thinks sugar in cornbread is essential.

Sugar in cornbread would be as foreign to my judgment of good cornbread, the kind we Alabamians know and like, as a Jap would be in Borneo.

Even the bare suggestion that sugar is essential in cornbread is an affrontery. It is an unpardonable reflection on the culinary art as our old negro mammies and our forefathers taught it to us.

A rose, they say, would be just as sweet if its name were changed but cornbread with sugar in it would not be cornbread. No Rembrandt could improve upon the natural beauty of a lily, but the effort to do so would not be nearly so distasteful and unsuccessful as an attempt to improve the savory and palatablenesss of corn bread by putting sugar in it.

Cornbread, as we know and like it, is the piece de resistance of Southern cooking. It is an unerasable part and parcel of Southern tradition.

Put sugar in cornbread? Never. If Texans want sugar in theirs, well enough. But when they go about poisoning the minds of the youth of our land with such heinous thoughts as sugar in cornbread something should be done about it, and done quickly.

Believe it or not

The most disrespectable hog will not eat spinach. I'd run two miles for a cup of Gay-Teague coffee.

Montgomery ices a maximum of 100 carloads of roasting-ears and 30 cars of cucumbers per day at the peak of the growing season. These viands come from truck farms in Baldwin and Mobile counties and are enroute to appease the appetites of our Northern neighbors.

Take That Out

O. .O. McIntyre wrote a whole column without using the word that. Somebody told him that could be left out of every literary effort, so he proceeded to prove it could be done, just like that. So, that's that.

Newspaper Nonsense

A Courier from Fairhope met a Courant from Evergreen just as the LaFayette Sun was shedding its final rays above the Western horizon and the Ozark Star was peering in all its brilliancy in the East. Presently they were joined by a Reporter from Columbiana and the three sat themselves on the roadside to reflect upon the Outlook in Alexander City and to discuss Progress in Prattville.

"What is the News from Sylacauga?" inquired the inquisitive reporter. Optimistically all three agreed that business conditions were as bright as the Spotlight in Haleyville. An Advertiser from Moulton appeared on the scene. Hitching his horse to the Mobile Post, he joined the optimists.

"What brings you here?" asked the three in unison. "I am a Leader from Roanoke seeking a Democrat from Grove Hill," he retorted. "Perhaps you seek a Southern Democrat from Oneonta," they advised.

"Look!" they cried aloud, as a Mountain Eagle from Jasper came into view. Frightened, the quartet rose and followed the Brewton Standard bearer to his Daily Home in Talladega. Safe from the mighty bird, the four sat down to resume their conversation. No sooner done than they discovered an Onlooker from Foley waving a Banner from Fayette. "Tis a Union-Banner from Clanton," they opined as they searched the Clayton Record.

"Let's go to Our Southern Home in Livingston," one of the scribes suggested. Entering, they again sat themselves down and the discussion centered on the subject of a Free Press at Clio, and what they should Advocate in Greenville. At this junction, a rap on the door attracted their attention. It was a Wiregrass Farmer from Headland seeking a Reaper from Geneva who claimed he was a Citizen from Pritchard.

"Let's Advance on Atmore," suggested the tribe as a Messenger from Troy joined them. "Who comes there?" cried a Sentinel from Hackleburg. "Friends," they replied. "We came in answer to the Call from Citronnelle."

And they arose and went straightway to the Press Room at the Gay Teague Hotel, where plans for the next annual meeting of the Alabama Press Association were formulated.

Mr. Ernest Moore, who is with the Yellow Front Store at Uniontown, Ala. was in Clanton Monday.

CANE CREEK

Last week end was our regular meeting time. Bro. Robinson filled his place as usual and delivered some excellent sermons. Had large crowds for each service. We are always glad to have visitors to come to this place. Come and feel at home in worshiping with us.

Our Sunday school is doing fine. Had a large crowd and every one seemed interested. Had several new members last Sunday, whom we were glad to have. Then in the afternoon our singing society met at 2 o'clock and the following directors sang two songs or more:

Floyd Little, Emmett Wilson, Sara Collins, Delene Willis, Lilly Mae Weldon, Zula Jones, Lorenza Sanders, Fonza Cleckler, and a little Cleckler boy, Sue Beth Willis, Gertie Jones, Myrtis Traywick, Elnora Sanders, Elwin Wilson and Norma Jean Gillespie sang a song together. Pianists for the afternoon were Mrs. James Gillespie, Mrs. Cleckler and Lilly Mae Weldon. The singing did very well and glad to have everyone present, and give you an invitation to come back.

Our B. Y. P. U. and preaching Sunday night were good. The B. Y. P. U. is improving some, but it is not yet what we want to make of it.

Let's everyone not forget to come each time to Sunday school. Let's be there promptly at 10 o'clock Sunday morning.

The quilt that was given away was received by Mrs. J. Lee Yates of Coopers.

CARD OF THANKS

Please allow me space in your paper to thank the people of this community for the kindness shown during the illness and death of my grandmother. She was 92 years of age and had been in bed for several years. She was loved by all who knew her.—By a Grandson, Ralph Martin.

ALABAMA SINGING CONVENTION

The Alabama Singing Convention will be held in Birmingham on Saturday and Sunday, November 10 and 11 in the Municipal Auditorium. All singers and lovers of singing are invited to attend.

Why Hospitals Use a Liquid Laxative

Hospitals and doctors have always used liquid laxatives. And the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. Do you know the reasons?

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be regulated to suit individual need. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The right dose of a liquid laxative brings a more natural movement, and there is no discomfort at the time, or after.

The wrong cathartic may often do more harm than good.

A properly prepared liquid laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin brings safe relief from constipation. It gently helps the average person's bowels until nature restores them to regularity. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an approved liquid laxative which all druggists keep ready for use. It makes an ideal family laxative; effective for all ages, and may be given the youngest child.

Sad Tragedy Near Jemison

Editor Union-Banner:

A very sad accident occurred in Chilton County about five miles north of Jemison on Thursday, October 4th, at about 6:15 a.m., when the northbound Pan-American train ran over and instantly killed Rip Northcutt, a young man twenty years of age, the son of W. J. and Minnie Northcutt, and Bobby and Eleanor Northcutt, ages three years, and fourteen months respectively, children of Lonnie and Carrie Northcutt.

The death of any person brings sadness to the bereaved and to the friends and the death of young people especially brings a deeper sorrow and especially in a tragic event when the lives of three persons are instantly taken away. Death in this case not only took three lives, but reached further and took the joy of a happy marriage from Miss Loy Mae Glass, to whom Rip was to have been married on the same day that his life was ended, and at the time of his death with the wedding ring in his pocket he was on his way to Clanton to secure the marriage license to marry, and all plans had been made for the happy union on the night of his death, and it seems in this case that fate was unusually heavy in taking its toll from the Northcutt family, but they are bearing their loss with brave fortitude, as is characteristic with the Northcutt family. Rip had just picked up his brother's two children as he started across the track and there in the presence of the mother of the two children, who saw the terrible calamity, the three were killed and the body of one of the children was taken from the cow catcher of the train and the mother picked up the earthly remains of the dead body of the other child. A pocket book was found on the bank of the railroad track, which Rip had just purchased a few days previous and in it were directions to notify W. J. Northcutt, his father, in case of an accident, and the sum of $15.00 was also found therein.

The Northcutt family is one of the oldest families of Chilton County and are pioneers in and around Jemison, and I have been personally acquainted with this family for over forty years. They are of a quiet and peaceful nature and people prone to attend to their own affairs and hard-warking, honest and God fearing people. I attended the funeral of these unfortunate people and the little modest home would look small indeed beside the great throngs of people who were eager to pay their respects to the dead and the bereaved living, and there were no dry eyes as the funeral cortege passed from the house to the church, the smallest child in the front and Rip in the rear, with young girls carrying the many beautiful flowers, which was a distinct token of the esteem in which the Northcutt family was held. The funeral was conducted by Rev. Green at Oak Grove cemetery and the fair sized church would not attempt to furnish even standing room for the hundreds of people who were there. The funeral ceremony for the three was conducted jointly and then Rip and the two small children were laid side by side in one large grave.

No more could probably be said for this son of Will Northcutt, when it is made known that in his pocket at the time of the fatal tragedy, there was found a Sunday school book and this, along with his song book, which had therein only religious hymns, were all buried with him in his final resting place.

The family have requested that I write for the papers the facts and circumstances with this sad event, which has befallen the Northcutt family, and it is a sad duty for me to perform for my friend, Will Northcutt, and his family, but to observe the esteem and the respect in which he and his family are held and the great offerings of sympathy that were exhibited toward them and the other relatives of the deceased, has in a measure taken the sting of death from the grave.—L. H. Reynolds.

VERMONT SCHOOL

Our Parent-Teachers Association met in regular session last Thursday with one hundred and ten persons present. Of this large number there were forty-one parents and the entire faculty. Several new members joined after seeing their need for aligning themselves with the educational cause. Following the devotional exercises, the meeting was called to order by the president, Miss Cagle, who, after making several preliminary remarks, called on Mr. Johnson to outline briefly some of the plans we are studying, relative to installation of new class room equipment. Afterwards the house was made open for election of new officers for the new year. Miss Cagle was re-elected without opposition to serve another year as president. Miss Manning was then chosen as vice president, with Mrs. Bertie G. Johnson being re-elected as secretary, and Mr. Johnson being retained as reporter. Next in order came the committee appointments by the president. Mr. R. W. Kendrick was selected as chairman of the membership committee, being given the privilege of choosing his two associate committeemen. Mrs. M. L. Williams was appointed chairman of the entertainment committee, also allowed to select her two assistants. Miss Manning was appointed chairman of the refreshments committee, with Frances Kendrick, one of the alert members of the Jr. III class, being selected as chairman of the program committee. This gives us a strong and lively corps of leaders, and with the enthusiasm already manifested, and a determined spirit of cooperation, we set forth in our drive toward a goal of real and lasting accomplishments. Our next P.-T. A. meeting will be held on Thursday night, November 8th.

The entire student body underwent a medical inspection last Friday morning for any mouth disorders, which might lead to serious consequences. For this examination we are very grateful to Supt. Little, who brought Dr. Hodges of Montgomery, Dr. Gowan of Clanton and Dr. Nix of Maplesville. Dr. Hodges outlined a few simple health rules to be followed.

Ninteen truck and wagon loads of wood were brought in last week which leaves only a very few patrons who have not complied with the agreement with our county board and local school officers in placing a specified amount of wood on our campus in order to get funds which our school is entitled to, for making available a much needed water supply. In this, our final appeal, we urge your cooperation so we may move with other projects toward a mark of real progress.

Basket ball practice, both boys and girls, began this week. Those who intend to enter into the game with hopes of becoming members of the team will meet this week to elect their officers.

Under the direction of the faculty an interesting program centering around the Thanksgiving season, will be presented the fourth week in November. Definite announcements will be made later.

We have the promise of the district road commissioner to prepare our school grounds soon for the purpose of planting trees and shrubbery, lining of driveways, leveling the athletic field, etc.

Attendance this week has been exceptionally good. What can I do to make it better next week?

The Jr. High School Honor Roll for the first month will be published in the school news next week.

Hunters, wait for the annual Shell Sale Saturday, October 27, at Clanton Building Supply Co.

MISS MERONEY TAKES UP CHILD WELFARE WORK

Miss Nolen Meroney, recently elected superintendent of Child Welfare work in Chilton County, has taken up her duties here this week.

The office of Miss Meroney will be separate from that of the relief office, while both the child welfare work and the relief work are administered under authority of the Chilton County Child Welfare Board.

While not yet definitely announced, it is expected that the office of Miss Meroney will be at the courthouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Latham of Montevallo were the week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Upchurch last week.

Just a word about the SERVICE at the
MOLTON HOTEL
FIFTH AVENUE AND TWENTIETH STREET

THERE'S a pleasant, friendly atmosphere about the Hotel Molton—a delightful informality and unobtrusively efficient service that appeals to discriminating guests. While Molton service is punctilious, it is entirely lacking in that stiff formality one often finds in larger metropolitan hotels. That's why the guests who stop here once, feel like they're coming home when they return to see us.

The MOLTON BIRMINGHAM

BASEBALL GALLERY AT HAYES CHEVROLET CO.

Lovers of the national sport, especially American League fans, should drop into the show rooms of Hayes Chevrolet Co., and view the "mugs" of members of the teams which go to make up this league.

In the main show room is arranged eight groups of fourteen pictures each, one group for each team in the league.

In addition to this, there are six large pictures, as follows: "Muddy" Ruel, coach; Jimmy Austin, coach; "Sad Sam" Jones, pitcher; Luke Appling, short stop; Phil Gallivan, pitcher; and "Mule" Haas, center fielder, all of the Chicago White Sox club. Each of the above named are shown standing by their cars—Chevrolets, of course, and each bears a word of praise for his car. The one Ruel owns was sold by Jack, himself.

Some of the pictures, especially those of the New York Yankees, bear special notes of regard for "Jack" Hayes, and others bear mementoes of jokes or special incidents known to themselves.

There is another collection of pictures, 95 of them, in another room at the Chevrolet place, and the whole collection, totalling 207, makes up a complete gallery of the American League; every team, and every member from bat boy to manager, and each is autographed. In the collection, too, there is a group picture of the Detroit Tigers, American League Champions for 1934.

These pictures were gathered by Jack Hayes, second baseman for the White Sox, during the past season. Jack was the victim of a series of mishaps this season, and finding time heavy on his hands, gathered the pictures for pastime. At the close of the season he spent a week framing the lot.

Drop in to see this interesting collection. It is one of which any baseball fan would feel proud, and Jack takes great pleasure in showing one through the gallery. He'll show you.

And while you're there, you'll very probably be shown the new Chevrolet, too, but it is a fine car to look at, drive, ride in, or own, so maybe you'll get an extra thrill out of that, too.

MRS. ELVIRA HESTER

Mrs. Elvira Hester, age 85, died October 14 and was buried the following day at Pine Hill. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. B. P. Cochran, with Martin in charge of burial.

The deceased was a member of Clanton Methodist church. She was an aunt of Mr. J. B. Farley and Mrs. G. O. Foshee.

BURNETT-DENNIS

Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Dennis annonce the marriage of their daughter, Rena, to Theodore Burnett. The ceremony took place October 13, at the bride's home, Rev. B. Lawrence officiating.

The bride wore a Navy blue crepe dress with accessories to match. Only relatives and close friends of the bride and groom were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Burnett will make their home at Clanton.

FIDDLERS CONVENTION TO BE AT ENTERPRISE SCHOOLHOUSE

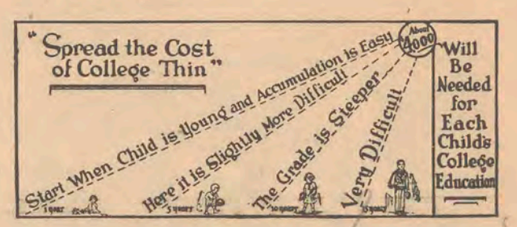
There will be a fiddlers convention at Enterprise schoolhouse Saturday night, October 27, begining at 7 p.m. All fiddlers and musicians are invited, and all lovers of music are urged to attend.

There will be cash prizes awarded to successful contestants.

Price of admission will be 15 cents or two for 25 cents.

Use Life Insurance to Pay the College Bills

Some day son or daughter will say, "I am ready. I have graduated with honors from high school." . . and you will face the problem of college bills.



Ask this question:

"Would it be easier for me to pay five or six percent interest on four thousand dollars during the next fifteen years, or to pay four thousand dollars cash in four years?"

Under the Life Insurance plan the cost is spread so thin that a payment of only five or six percent annually upon the sum needed is all that is required to accumulate a college fund—providing you do not wait too long to begin.

A Life Insurance company will contract to complete the college fund whether or not father is alive when the great day comes.

Four thousand dollars cash for each child in the space of four short years—or five or six percent on that sum if the start is made now.

Which plan is easier, safer, better?

Red Cross Roll Call Opens Armistice Day

J. Mell Martin Is Roll Call Chairman for Chilton County

Organization plans for Chilton County Chapter of the American Red Cross are now being made for the annual Roll Call Membership campaign which opens on Armistice Day, Sunday, November 11, according to a statement given out by J. Mell Martin, Roll Call Chairman. The quota assigned to this chapter is 500, and Mr. Martin says there is every indication that the goal will be reached if not passed, during the roll call campaign.

Further outlining the plans Mr. Martin states that he expects to organize a corps of volunteer workers to solicit memberships in every community of Chilton County. Several enthusiastic persons have already signified their willingness to accept a place among these workers, and others will be drafted into the cause.

About the first of November Mr. Martin will have the list of volunteer workers completed, at which time he will invite them to come to Clanton for a meeting. At this meeting full instruction will be given the workers and all plans for carry the roll call over the top will be thoroughly outlined.

"Red Cross services to the public must be continued at their present high peak," Mr. Martin concluded. "The organization must stand ready at all times to answer calls for relief in catastrophes, great and small; it must be ready for any sort of governmental cooperation that may be needed. An increased membership will provide the means through which the needs of the coming year can be met. Chilton County Chapter will ask all our citizens to remember the fine work of disaster relief which the Red Cross rendered our suffering citizens in 1932, and join the Red Cross again this year during the Roll Call from Armistice to Thanksgiving."

GRAVES TO SPEAK

Col. Graves will deliver the opening shot for the Democrats of Chilton County at Clanton next Saturday, when he will return from the American Legion Convention at Miami. Chilton today presents a queer situation with Republicans bolting their party and Democrats bolting theirs. L. H. Reynolds served as Republican probate judge of Chilton for 30 years and this time failed to get the nomination. He is now playing with the Democrats. On the other hand, a good many Democrats are peeved and Chilton reports say that at least 100 donkey influentials will support the elephant.

Chilton normally casts around 2,700 for Republicans and from 1,500 to 2,100 for the Democrats. If the Democrats do not take it this time all agree that they might as well give up. And the Republicans hear that before election day Judge Reynolds will be working for the party again. Col. Graves will do his best when he speaks there Saturday.

While the Democrats are having their field day at Clanton, the Republicans of DeKalb County will rally at Fort Payne Saturday with C. O. Vardaman, chairman of the Ninth District committee, billed for a speech at 10 a.m.—Ralph Hurst in Sunday's Birmingham News.

FIDDLERS GOING TO VETERANS HOSPITAL AT TUSCALOOSA

The fiddlers and musicians who were selected to go to the veterans hospital at Tuscaloosa are reminded that Friday of this week is the day to go.

All are requested to be in Clanton and get in touch with Percy M. Pitts right after noon Friday so that full arrangements can be made for transportation.

There will be no expense for the musicians and entertainers who were selected to go. All others who wish to go must provide for their own transportation and expenses.

FIDDLERS CONVENTITION TO BE FRIDAY NIGHT, NOVEMBER 9

The Parent-Teacher Association of Clanton Grammar School will sponso a fiddlers convention at the court house in Clanton Friday night, November 9th.

About thirty prizes will be given by the merchants and business men of Clanton. List of the prizes donated will be published next week.

All fiddlers and musicians who wish to enter the contest are requested to see or notify W. M. Wyatt at The Union-Banner, as early as possible.

ROCKETT'S ANNUAL SHELL SALE WILL BE HELD NEXT SATURDAY

The annual gun shell sale of Clanton Building Supply Company will be held next Saturday. Extra special low prices are being advertised on the entire line of shot gun shells and rifle cartridges. These special prices are for one day only, and all hunters and sportsmen are urged to take advantage of the occasion to buy all the ammunition they will need this season.

The hunting season opens on Thursday, November the first. This Shell Sale comes just in time to give everybody a chance to get fixed for a good start on opening day.

FOUR CHURCHES JOIN IN SINGING SOCIETY

Friendship, Cane Creek, Mineral Springs and Pleasant Hill (Blow Graveyard) have organized themselves into a singing society, which meets every Sunday afternoon. It meets at each church on the afternoon of its respective preaching day. The singers of the county are urged to help these churches make their society a success.

The singing will be held at Friendship next Sunday afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock. Everybody invited.

The public is reminded that services are held at Friendship every Wednesday night. Saturday night of this week there will be communion and preaching services; Sunday morning Sunday school and preaching at 11; singing in the afternoon; B. Y. P. U. Sunday night, followed with preaching. The public is cordially invited.

BEN DUKE HOME BURNED LAST SATURDAY NIGHT

The home of Mr. Ben Duke, four and a half miles northwest of Clanton, on the old Thorsby Highway, was completely destroyed by fire early last Saturday night.

Mr. Duke stated Monday morning that he has no idea how the fire got started. He and his family had gone to the home of a neighbor after supper, and while there they were notified that their home was burning.

All contents of the house were a complete loss, Mr. Duke stated Monday morning.

JIM PARRISH HURT IN AN AUTO ACCIDENT AT CALERA

Mr. Jim Parrish, who lives on the Lay Dam road, near Friendship, has been confined to his home for several days from the effects of an automobile accident at Calera on Saturday, October 13. Details of the accident have not been learned, but it is said that Mr. Parrish will likely be unable to get out for some time.

FIRE AT HOME OF R. J. SUMNER TUESDAY NIGHT

The fire department was caleld about 1:30 o'clock Wednesday morning to fight a fire that was headed toward the destruction of the home of Mr. R. J. Sumner, after it had already consumed his automobile.

Mr. Sumner stated that he drove his car into the driveway close to his house about 11:30 Tuesday night, and immediately went to bed. About 1:30 someone discovered the fire that had already burned up the car and spread to the house.

The fire was brought under control before a great amount of damage was done to the house.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Marcus Friday night, a fine baby boy. They have named him Walter Howard.

Local Young Man Died From Burns

Fifteen-Year-Old Son of Mr. O. C. Bennett Is Victim of Accident

Oscar Bennett, 15-year-old son of Mr. O. C. Bennett, of Clanton, died at Central Alabama Hospital about 3:30 Sunday morning as a result of being severely burned late Saturday evening, when his clothing, wet with gasoline, caught fire at a local filling station.

The youth, before he died, is said to have told his father that he did not strike the match as had been currently reported. He was conscious until the end and lived about ten hours after the accident happened.

It is reported that young Bennett had placed his father's car upon a lubrication rack at the filling station to enable him to drain the gasoline from the tank and clear the gas line of trash. Some of the gasoline spilled on him and upon the ground. Someone struck a match to ignite the gasoline on the ground and the flames immediately enveloped the boy. Several men caught Bennett and ripped off his clothes and he was taken to the hospital in an ambulance by Martin. The boy, although badly burned, was able to walk from the ambulance into the hospital.

Funeral services for the youth were held Sunday afternoon at Clanton Methodist church, conducted by Rev. J. W. Jones, Rev. R. P. Cochran and Rev. S. J. Ezell. The body was carried to Jasper for burial Monday.

Young Bennett was a popular student at Chilton County High School, where he was a member of the football team. His fellow-members of the team were honorary pallbearers at the funeral. Flowers at the funeral were carried by the intermediate class of Samaria Sunday school, of which he was a member. The dead youth was also a member of the Boy Scouts and of the Methodist church.

Active pallbearers were E. L. Klinner, Herbert Klinner, J. Z. Mims, R. W. Lowe, C. B. Cox and O. P. Klinner.

The deceased is survived by his father, Mr. O. C. Bennett, who is connected with the E. L. Klinner Furniture Co., of Clanton.

Mrs. J. E. Evans found an old set of teeth while working her flowers one day not long ago. Four gold teeth were in the set, which were sold for $6.00.

Is This Another Last-Minute Democratic Political Bombshell?

[AN EDITORIAL]

The Montgomery Advertiser Wednesday morning carried a story of a report of the State Examiners in which it is charged that Circuit Clerk, J. Z. Mims (also candidate for Probate Judge) is short over $3,000 in his official accounts in the Clerk's office.

We wonder how much politics there is in bringing out this report at this particular time, and why it was calculated to come out at this late date just on the eve of the election.

Not having had time to fully analyze the matters involved, The Union-Banner wishes to ask a few questions which the people of Chilton County may well think about as they hear the broadcast discussions which are sure to spread over the county concerning this report on Mr. Mims and his office.

First, we would urge you to satisfy yourself on the question as to whether or not the report was brought out at this time for its political effect on the campaign of Mr. Mims for Probate Judge.

You will doubtless recall that it is no new thing in Chilton County politics for the Democrats to pull things in the last days of a campaign for the purpose of misleading and confusing the voters.

And speaking of reports on public officials, do you suppose this report on Mr. Mims is as fair as the report made on Johnnie Plier, former Clerk of the Town of Clanton, and which report was diligently pushed by Mr. Lee Smith while he was Mayor of Clanton?

We ask you to recall the campaign of 1916, when Judge Reynolds was made the object of all kinds of slander, abuse, and false charges, in the last days of the campaign, by his Democratic enemies. Did those things have any other purpose than political effect?

In that famous campaign, in his final statement Judge Reynolds warned the people in these words: "The contemptible hounds of slander who are continually baying at my heels, by their dirty efforts to besmirch my name, hope to divert the minds of the people from the real and vital questions of the campaign."

We offer these references and these questions in order to put the Republicans on guard in this campaign. You know the tactics that have been employed in the past. This may be another effort the purpose of which is solely to divert the minds of the voters from the real issues of the campaign.

We are assured that Mr. Mims will be able to explain the report on his office to the full satisfaction of all fair-minded and reasonable people. He promises to strip the whole thing of its political vestments and to show the people what element of last-minute politics there is in it.

Meanwhile, we urge the Republicans of Chilton County to sit steady in the boat. The light of truth will reveal many hidden mysteries of the present campaign before election day comes around.

REPUBLICANS DO NOT ENDORSE CORRUPTION

Referring to the record of the Commissioners Court and the gasoline business of Chilton County certain opponents of the Republican party seek in the present campaign to etsablish the argument that those who vote the Republican ticket on November 6th, will be casting their votes in support of corruption in office and bad government. This corruption and bad government, it is charged, has been committed by those who have been connected with the Commissioners court and the gasoline business, as representatives of the Republican party.

Such argument made against the present Republican nominees, The Union-Banner believes, is wholly unjustified, and is a deliberate effort on the part of political strategists to weaken the Republican cause by misleading and misinforming Republicans who may not be able to see through the maze of political camouflage.

In the first place, we would point out to you that the record of the Commissioners Court and the conduct of the gasoline business are not an issue in the present campaign. The Republican candidates who are asking for public office are not responsible for what has happened in the Commissioners Court and the gasoline business.

At the beginning of the present campaign, before the primary, there were some of the Republican candidates who were mixed up in and responsible for actions of the Commissioners Court and the gasoline business. Each and everyone of those who had such responsibility were defeated in the Republican primary. These men who had a part in the responsibility for what has been done by the Commissioners Court and the gasoline business, asked the Republicans of Chilton County to nominate or continue them in office, and the Republicans turned them down.

Now, if there was anything wrong with their official record, it must be admitted that the proper thing to do was to refuse to let them continue in office. Therefore, by the same argument, it must be admitted that the Republican party did the right thing in telling them to step aside and retire.

Further, it should be remembered that the present Republican candidates, each and all, have openly and publicly declared that they are opposed to any mismanagement of public business, whether in the commissioners court, the gas business, or elsewhere, if there be any such, and have pledged themselves to stand for correction of the same in the future.

The final responsibliity of the Republican party in the discharge of its duty to the people of the county as an agency of government, is to refuse to continue in public office those who may be found unworthy and incapable.

If you want to hold to the argument that the Commissioners Court and the gasoline business have been guilty of incompetency and corruption, then you must admit, in fairness to the Republican party that it has vindicated itself by turning down everyone of those who were in any way connected with such alleged mismanagement, and has turned its support to a group of men who denounce corruption and mismanagement, and declare for a correction of any evils as speedily as possible.

The Union-Banner appeals to the reason and sound judgment of our citizens to study the facts and think for themselves, and not be blinded by the cunning subterfuge of politicians who would mislead you, and some of whom doubtless have already proved that they are unfaithful to the trusts which have been reposed in them.

FARMERS' REAL INTEREST DEMANDS LAW REVISION

A symposium of opinion as expressed in the weekly press of Alabama—editors close to their people and accurately reflecting the wishes and sentiments of their communities—can leave no doubt of positive objection on the part of thousands of farmers in Alabama to certain provisions of the Bankhead cotton control law.

Two specific amendments to the Bankhead law appear to demand definite action. They are (1) exemption from the law's operation of the farmer producing two to three bales of cotton and (2) levy of the tax on excess production, beyond the allotment upon both the landowner and the tenant farmer, so that the operation of the law will not exempt the landowner's cotton from taxation thus increasing the rental of his land, and force the sharecropper to bear all the burden of the tax. Instances prove that the present law has the effect of reducing the price of the cotton to the actual raiser when operating on a share cropper basis, to a net figure no more than, or even before, last year.

It must be kept constantly in mind that on 160,000 Alabama farms two bales of cotton or less were produced in the current statistical year, yielding on 160,000 farms 280,000 bales. It cannot be disputed that the men and women who cultivate these 160,000 farms are the ones who primarily and specifically need the greater relief. In truth, they are the ones who should be first considered in seeking their economic independence. Every source of government should be directed toward insuring the farm independence of so large a group in Alabama or any other Southern State. Proof that such is the intent and goal of the government is reflected in the present activity of President Roosevelt's administration to create an agrarian independent class of citizenship in this nation composed of small farmers.

That a tax should fall equally upon the landlords and tillers of the soil there can be no just dispute. The back of the farmer must not be bended to double the rent of the land he tills. Exemption of from two to three bales and the necessity for such relief is but a mathematical calculation. At present prices seed and cotton produce about $80 to $90 a bale. The full net value of a three-bale crop represents about $20 a month to the three-bale farmer. Granting he raises food supplies, what citizen concerned in the welfare of his people would assert that a net $20 a month from a farmer's basic crop could be clasified as a taxable surplusage?

Tom-tom beating and a shelling of the woods by quasi-political farm "leaders," and the salaried administrators is not going to change this basic demand founded upon common and simple justice.—Ala. Journal.

Mims Promises To Make Revelation

Will Explain Charges of Shortage In Report of State Examiners

To the Voters of Chilton County:

Immediately following my nomination for Probate Judge in the Republican primary on June 12, two examiners were sent to Clanton to make an examination of the affairs of my office. I have never received any report from them or from their superiors at Montgomery as to what charges, if any, they had concluded to make, until I saw in this morning's Advertiser a statement that a report had been filed with the governer, charging that I was due a large amount to the state, county and certain officials, and this information reached me too late to make any answer in this week's paper and barely time to write this short letter.

I wish to say to the voters of Chilton County that these charges are enirely untrue and that I can and will answer every charge and specification contained in that report just as quickly as I can obtain a copy of the same and will do this before the close of this campaign, so that every voter will have an ample opportunity to know the facts, and I ask of you that you give me an opportunity to make this answer to these charges.

I wish to say further at this time that there has never been a day in the history of Chilton County when the people needed any more to know the truth about the conditions relative to the management of our County government, and as to the conspiracy now on foot to thoroughly wreck the principles of good government and law enforcement that the people of Chilton County believe in, and to perpetuate the control of our county government and county treasury in the hands of a few individuals, who will profit thereby; and I promise you that with my answer to these charges, I will give you information which will be a revelation as to the present conditions in politics in Chilton County.

I again ask that you withhold your judgment until you receive my statement on this matter.

J. Z. MIMS.

Young Man Dies As Result Of Getting Cut

Dan Lockhart Is In Jail Charged With Inflicting Fatal Wounds

C. A. Johnson, age 23 years, died at Central Alabama Hospital about four o'clock last Saturday afternoon, the result of knife wounds sustained in an altercation with Dan Lockhart, said to have happened about one o'clock Saturday afternoon.

It is reported that the difficulty between Johnson and Lockhart happened on the road between Billingsley and Pletcher. Martin's ambulance was summoned and brought Johnson to the hospital where he died no the operating table.

The dead man was the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Johnson. Funeral services were held at Chestnut Creek, Cooper, Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. J. W. Jones. Burial was in charge of Martin.

It is reported that there had been some misunderstanding between the families of Lockhart and Johnson a few weeks ago. Saturday Johnson with his father and mother were going along the road in a car. As they met or overtook Lockhart, Johnson got out and accosted Lockhart about the matter. A fight resulted, and Lockhart's statement is that he got loose from Johnson and ran toward his home. Johnson overtook him a short distance down the road and another fight ensued, in which Lockhart cut Johnson slightly. Again Lockhart says he got away and ran toward home, but Johnson overtook and attacked him a third time. It was in the third and last fight that Johnson was fatally wounded.

It is said that Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, father and mother of the slain man, were eye witnesses to the fight, but no statement from them was available.

Dan Lockhart is a World War veteran, having served with the A. E. F. in France as a member of the Rainbow Division.

S. F. AVERY WRITES ABOUT BANKHEAD COTTON PLAN

Editor Union-Banner:

I have noticed in the paper some dissatisfaction with the Bankhead cotton plan, and those dissatisfied have a perfect right to be. The bill, in itself, is all right, but the application of it is all wrong. There is no one set of men who can allot to very man just what is right for him to have, but why go and do another wrong by making the man who got less than his part buy from the man who got too much—in other words, give part of his crop to someone else who made just as good crop as he did, or maybe better. That is all wrong. What should have been done is, that those who got more than their share should turn this surplus over to those who did not get enough. It is not right for a man to take part of his neighbor's crop when one made just as good crop as the other, everything considered. If all allotments had been properly made, there would have been enough tickets for every man to gin all he raised, or practically so. I believe in controlled production, and it seems that we must have it if we get a fair price for our crops, but let's give every man his just dues. The government collects income taxes in proportion to earnings. Why not run the cotton business on these same lines? In this way the big grower will pay more, the small grower will pay less, and nobody will be hurt.

Yours for a fair deal to all,

S. F. AVERY.

NORTHEAST CHILTON SOCIETIES TO HOLD ANNUAL SINGING NOV. 4

The singing societies of northeast Chilton County will hold their annual convention at Jemison High School building the first Sunday in November, the 4th. The societies composing this convention are: Collins Chapel, Oak Hill, Oak Grove, Mars Hill, Center Hill, Providence and Mudtown.

A special invitation is extended all singers and lovers of music to attend this singing, which will begin at 10 o'clock. The late books will be used. A number of good quartets will be present. Everybody come and bring dinner.—Velpo Mims.

FARM FOREMEN

J. Dudley Collins, Glenn W. Sessions and Marvin Durbin are the farm foremen who will administer the new farm rehabilitation program of the relief administration in Chilton County.

These foremen already are at work on preliminary plans, and will be ready for the beginning of the new program on November 1st.

Leon Popwell and a party of friends from Thorsby are spending this week with relatives and friends in Baldwin County. They expect to do some plain and fancy fishing while in the vicinity of gulf shore waters.

AUNT TINZIE SMITH

Last week The Union-Banner carried a death notice of "Aunt Fannie Smith" of West Chilton. The name should have been "Aunt Tinzie Smith." We gladly make this correction, and extend our apologies to the relatives and friends.

KITCHEN COACHES TOURING STATE

13% MORE ELECTRICITY IS GIVEN FOR 8% LESS

When on October 1st, 1933, Alabama's new rates for electric service were put into effect by the Alabama Public Service Commission, we told you they would at once cut the cost of electricity to our residential customers by $336,000 annually, and progressive reductions over a three year period would bring total savings to our customers of over $600,000!

We also told you that if you wished to use MORE electricity, you could get all or part of the increase FREE, and that when you had used up your FREE electricity, any extra electricity you you might want to use would could to you at special bargain prices,

One year's operation of the new rate schedule reveals the fact that our residential customers have actually used 7,221,548 kilowatt hours MORE electricity these past twelve months than during the same period a year ago, yet their electric bills for this larger amount of electricity were $214,667 LESS than they paid for the smaller amount the preceding twelve months. In brief, 13.5% MORE electricity for 8.3% LESS money!

If the use of electric service by the residential customers of the company during the past 12 months had been at the average rate during the preceding 12 months, the cost would have been $564,479.00 more than the actual cost at the new rates.

There are many customers who could actually use much more electricity than they are using now without a single penny's increase in cost. There are many customers who could operate an electric iron, waffle iron, electric fan, or increase their electric lighting without any increase in their electric bill.

We invite you to call at our local office and talk it over with our manager.

Homemakers Are Invited To See The New All-Electric Kitchen

Three beautiful cream-colored kitchen coaches, each manned by an expert home economist, have just begun a tour of the smaller communities to show Alabama housewives the newest low-cost electric kitchen equipment now being offered.

Open house is being held in each community where the coaches stop and the use of many new labor-saving appliances with which the coach is stocked are being explained to housewives by the home economist in charge. The latest models in washing machines, electric irons, percolators, toasters, glow heaters, waffle irons and electric mixers are being shown as additions to the all-electric kitchen.

TAXES PAID EARLY TO AID WALKER TEACHERS

Alabama Power Company paid Walker County its 1934 taxes of approximately $130,000 on October 12, in order that the salaries of its teachers may be paid without delay.

Though not due until December 31, the advance payment was made by the Power Company in response to a plea received by Treasurer Lamar Aldridge, from A. S. Scott, Superintendent of Walker County's Board of Education, stating that no money was "in sight to meet our teachers pay roll in Walker County for the first month."

The Power Company responded at once that it would take some days to gather together the $130,000 necessary to pay its ad valorem taxes in Walker County, and later notified Mr. Scott that it would pay such taxes not later than October 12, $54,000 of which goes directly to school funds.

"Hog Killin' Time" Will Be Anytime Now

Anytime will be "hog killin' time" in the vicinity of Atmore and Florala following the completion of meat curing plants there by Consumers Ice Company, a subsidiary of Alabama Power Company, the early part of November.

The new plants will be community smokehouses installed as additions to existing ice plants and will be a boon to the farmers in those sections who now lose 50 per cent of their meat from spoilage according to estimates of agricultural authorities.

Farmers have already signed contracts to cure many thousands of pounds of meat at these plants during the coming season, but with skyrocketing prices of all cured meats and the urging of United States and Alabama agricultural agents to save all food and feed crops, it is expected that the facilities of both plants will be taxed to the limit.

A. E. A. AND P.-T. A. TO MEET AT MARION

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 19.—"Between five and six hundred teachers and members of the Alabama Congress of Parents and Teachers will meet for an all-day session at Marion, at 10:00 o'clock, on Saturday, October 27," announced W. M. Jackson, president of District No. 3, of the Alabama Education Association, Saturday in Selma.

Mr. Jackson explained that the meeting is one of a series planned for October and November, which will bring together representatives of the A. E. A. and the P.-T. A. for conferences concerning the school situation in Alabama.

At the morning session. Mr. H. G. Dowling, president of the teacher group, and Mrs. James Fitts Hill, state head of the parents and teachers, in brief addresses will outline the plans of their respective organizations for the current year. In addition detailed reports of the financial status of schools in the counties concerned will be made by the superintendents attending the meeting. Of special interest at this particular time is the extent to which Federal aid will be needed to complete the normal terms of school this year as indicated by these reports.

To the afternoon session recently designated nominees of the 1935 Legislature, as well as representatives of the several Legion posts of the district, have been invited. At that session suggestions of measures which may be included in the educational program to be recommended to the next Legislature by the combined parent and teacher groups of the state will be received.

The nine counties sending representatives to Marion on October 27 are: Choctaw, Marengo, Perry, Dallas, Wilcox, Chilton, Autauga, Lowndes, Butler.

Four meetings on consecutive Saturdays will follow the Marion meeting. These will be held at Tuscaloosa, Auburn, Anniston, and Decatur.

BOX SUPPER WILL BE AT THE SMITH SCHOOL HOUSE

There will be a box supper and cake guessing contest at Smith School House next Saturday night, October 7th, begining about 7 o'clock. Proceeds will be used to help pay expenses of Mrs. Howell Robinson in the hospital at Birmingham. Everybody is invited to come and help in this worthy cause.—Mrs. Mahala Cost.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Rogers of Demopolis spent the week end here.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S PROGRAM

The following is the program for the young peoples meeting to be held at Poplar Springs, October 27, 1934, at 1:00 o'clock, Saturday afternoon:

Hymn, "Praise Him, Praise Him."

Devotional by Y. W. A. members, Mrs. Curtis Dykes.

Business.

Special prayer for our college students.

Talk, "What my College Life Meant to Me" by Mrs. S. J. Ezell.

Talk, "How Can I Make My School Days Count for Christ?" by Grace Ezell.

"House Beautiful," by Bethsalem G. A.

Offering.

Song, prayer for dismission.

I urge every church to send your young people to this rally. We need your help and cooperation. If you haven't already sent me your reports, send them to me as quick as possible so I can make my report.—Chilton County Association Young Peoples Leader, Ora Devaughn, Clanton, Ala. Route 2.

WHEN you are suffering, you want relief—not tomorrow—not next week—but right away. DR. MILES ANTI-PAIN PILLS relieve in just a few minutes—less than half the time required for many other pain-relieving medicines to act.

Next time you have a Headache, or Neuralgia, or Muscular, Sciatic, Rheumatic, or Periodic Pains, just take an Anti-Pain Pill. Learn for yourself how prompt and effective these little pain relievers are. You will never again want to use slower, less effective, less palatable medicines, after you have used Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills.

I am much pleased with your Anti-Pain Pills. They sure are wonderful for a headache and for functional pains. I have tried every kind of pills for headache, but none satisfied me as your Anti-Pain Pills have.
Ann Mikitko, St. Benedict, Pa.

DR. MILES' Anti-Pain Pills

If you tire easily-

why not reason out the cause of this unnatural condition?

Your first thought may be, "I must eat more." That's not all. You should enjoy what you do eat. Frequently, the blood cells are low... and this, perhaps, is what makes you feel weak. If this is your trouble the stomach may not be calling for sufficient food. Zest to eat may be lacking. But what a difference S.S.S. makes when taken just before meals. Just try it and notice how your appetite and digestion improve.

S.S.S. stimulates the flow of gastric juices and also supplies the precious mineral elements so necessary in blood-cell and hemo-glo-bin up-building. Do try it. It may be the rainbow you need to brush away present discouragement over your health condition.

Do not be blinded by the efforts of a few unethical dealers who may suggest substitutes. You have a right to insist that S.S.S. be supplied you on request. Its long years of preference is your guarantee of satisfaction.

S.S.S. the world's great blood medicine

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION TO NON-RESIDENT

The State of Alabama, Chilton County: Circuit Court, in Equity. Pearlie Peterson, Complainant; vs. Elbert Peterson, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of A. B. Foshee, Solicitor for Complainant, that the defendant is a non-resident, and that his place of residence and post office address is unknown, and that such address cannot be ascertained after reasonable effort; and, further, that, in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is over the age of twenty-one years:

It is, therefore, ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Union-Banner, a newspaper published in the County of Chilton, once a week for four consecutive weeks requiring him, the said Elbert Peterson, to plead, answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 13 day of November, 1934, or, in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against him.

Done at office in Clanton, this 12th day of October, 1934.

OBSERVATION TOWERS IN ALABAMA

Montgomery, Ala.—A total of forty-five observation towers have been constructed on state and private land in Alabama to date, states Col. Page S. Bunker, state forester. Of these the state owns thirteen steel towers, three of pole construction and one of stone. Private landowners in cooperation with the state commission of forestry and federal agencies have built five towers of steel, twelve of sawed timbers and eleven of pole design.

Observation towers take the place of high hilltops and other natural elevations where these do not exist. Their most important use is to enable the landowners and others engaged in the detection of forest fires to locate incipient blazes before they assume large proportions. They are also used extensively, however, particularly in the case of those within the state parks, by tourists and other recreationists in obtaining wide views of Alabama forests, mountains and other scenic features.

Fifteen of the towers are located in Baldwin County, one in Bibb, two in Butler, one in Choctaw, one in Clarke, one in Cleburne, two in Covington, three in Escambia, one in Geneva, three in Mobile, four in Monroe, five in Sumpter, five in Washington and one in Wilcox. Several additional towers are now being built and others are scheduled for early construction.

COMMUNITY ENTERTAINMENT

There will be a community entertainment at Vermont school Friday night, October 26. There will be speaking on community life, also games and fun for all, with plenty of good things to eat. Come on, folks, and let's get together and have some real fun.

Why the Sudden Change to Liquid Laxatives?

Doctors have always recognized the value of the laxative whose dose can be measured, and whose action can be thus regulated to suit individual need.

The public, too, is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have learned that a properly prepared liquid laxative brings a more natural movement without any discomfort at the time, or after.

The dose of a liquid laxative can be varied to suit the needs of the individual. The action can thus be regulated. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The wrong cathartic may often do more harm than good.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a prescription, and is perfectly safe. Its laxative action is based on senna —a natural laxative. The bowels will not become dependent on this form of help. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is obtainable at all druggists.

ALABAMA FAVORS CORN-HOG PROGRAM

Auburn, Ala. — Alabama Farmers voted 25 to 1 for the corn-hog program to be continued during 1935. The vote in the state up to October 12 was 772 in favor and 31 against, while the vote in 41 states was 345,181 against.

As a result of the majority for the program plans will be made immediately for 1935 and it is intimated that the same general program as prevailed this year will be used next year.

ALABAMA RECEIVES BENEFIT PAYMENTS

Auburn, Ala.—Cotton and corn-hog farmers of Alabama have received $13,577,647.35 in rental and benefit payments and they will receive over $7,000,000 more within the next few weeks, according to Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the state extension service.

Cotton farmers have received a total of $13,390,044.41 while corn-hog producers have received $186,03.94.

STALK DESTRUCTION WILL REDUCE WEEVILS

Auburn, Ala. — Cotton growers should cut the stalks and plow them under just as soon as picking is finished, says Prof. J. M. Robinson, entomologist. "Boll weevils thrive in the stalks and are better able to survive the winter if allowed to feed on the stalks till frost."

BURNING WOODS DOES NOT CONTROL THE SCREW WORM

Auburn, Ala.—Burning the woods will not control or eradicate the screw worm, declares Prof. J. M. Robinson, entomologist of the Alabama Experiment Station, who is urging farmers not to burn their woods in an effort to destroy these worms.

Prof. Robinson says that carcasses of all dead animals should be burned but that it is useless to burn the woods.

LEAVE HOGS WITHOUT FOOD BEFORE KILLING

Question: How long should a hog be without food before killing?

Answer: The animal should not be fed for at least 24 hours before the slaughter, but should have plenty of fresh water. This makes it easier to get a good bleed and the meat cures out better when the small blood vessels are free from food particles and blood. Before the animal is killed keey it as quiet as possible as excitement produces a feverish condition prevents proper bleeding and causes the meat to sour while in cure.

COOSA FARMERS BUY REGISTERED GILTS

Rockford, Ala.—Twenty registered gilts have been shipped into Coosa County to be used by the farmers as foundation stock for producing pork products for home consumption, writes E. N. Merriwether, county agent.

STORRS REPORTS SAVING

The Alabama Department of Agriculture and Industries not only lived within its income during the past year, but accumulated a surplus of $17,752.91, according to an official announcement yesterday afternoon by Seth P. Storrs, state commissioner of agriculture. The reciepts of the department for the year were $308,689.54 and the disbursements were $290,836.-63.

During the past five and one-third years which Commissioner Storrs has served, the receipts of the department exceeded the disbursements by $24,901.

Commissioner Storrs was elated over having been able to operate the department in such a way as to make it live within its income despite the years of the depression when the income was much lower than during normal years.

SOIL EROISION EXPERIMENTS

In 1929 the Agricultural Engineering Department of the Alabama Experiment Station at Auburn, Alabama, began some experiment on soil erosion. To be able to get definite information on what was happening to the soil it was necessary to build concrete walls around the plots, and concrete bins to catch runoff water. Rain guages were installed so that the amount of rain as well as the time of falling could be recorded.

The effect of winter rains on bare lands, plowed lands, and lands growing winter cover crops was studied. On each plot an artificial rain was produced equal to one inch in eight and one-half minutes. The water that ran off was collected and the soil filtered out. From this information the number of pounds lost per acre was determined. The following tables give a summary of this experiment.

Loss of soil in pounds per acre from one inch of rain in eight and one-half minutes:

Slope 5 per cent, land in vetch 65, land bare, 193, land plowed, 1,995; slope 10 per cent, land in vetch 82, land bare 283, land plowed 2,427; slope 15 per cent, land in vetch 268, land bare 2,393, land plowed 6,294; slope 20 per cent, land in vetch, 284, land bare, 5,823, land plowed, 19,000.

It will be seen from the above that even on a slope of 20 per cent the loss of soil from erosion was small where a cover crop was growing. Where there was no cover crop and the land was bare nearly three tons per acre of the finest soil was washed away. If the land was plowed up the loss was nine and one-half tons per acre.

Soil Erosion Experiments

During the summer of 1931 these plots were planted to cotton. On some the rows were run with the slope and the others across the slope. During the growing season there were 7.36 inches of rainfall on the plots. No water was applied artificially. The following table shows the pounds of soil per acre lost.

Loss of soil from natural rains during period of cultivating cotton, 7.36 inches of rainfall:

Pounds soil per acre lost when rows were run with slope 5 per cent, 11, 412, on contour 5 per cent, 4,178; with slope 10 per cent, 58,580, on contour ten per cent 29,696; with slope 15 per cent, 88,160. on contour 15 per cent, 47,160; with slope 20 per cent, 121,046, on contour 20 per cent, 67,338.

As the major part of our lands are cultivated in crops such as cotton and corn, we can see that some methods are needed to supplement methods formerly used. An experiment was run to study the effects of filter crops. by "filter crops" is meant the growing of some crops in strips across the field to check erosion. Looking back on the first experiment conducted it was found that winter legumes were successful in preventing erosion during the winter, so it was decided to see what strips of summer legumes would do to check erosion in the summer. These crops could be cut later and used for hay. Soy beans were selected as the filter to be tried.

On one plot of each slope cotton was planted along in three foot rows across the slope. On the plot beside it soy beans were planted in eighteen inch rows across the slope for twelve feet, then a strip of cotton for twelve feet, and so on down the slope. This gave alternating strips of cotton and soy beans. Before the soy beans were ready for hay there were 13.95 inches of rainfall, and the following table compares the loss of soil in pounds per acre:

Slope 5 per cent, cotton alone palted on contour, 6,975, 10 per cent 14,-139, 15 per cent 51,193, 20 per cent 47,348; slope 5 per cent, alternating strips of cotton and soy beans, 5,517, 10 per cent 7,528, 15 per cent 11,354, 20 per cent 14,473.

Soil Erosion Experiment

From the above it will be noted that the amount of soil lost on the 20 per cent slope was only 30 per cent as much when strips of soy beans were planted between strips of cotton.

The hay was cut at the proper time, and the stubble and roots continue to help in preventing washing. After the filter crop was removed there were 8.52 inches of rainfall and the comparison of erosion during this period is as follows:

Slope 5 per cent, cotton alone, 2,480, 10 per cent 2,824, 15 per cent 12,105, 20 per cent 14,773; slope, alternating strips of cotton and soy bean stubble, 5 per cent, 2,097, 10 per cent 2,205, 15 per cent 3,666, 20 per cent 3,939.

On field conditions with slopes carrying from five to forty per cent the principle of filter strips has been tried with marked success. The Nichols broad-base terraces was used and rows were run across the hill and in some cases this meant crossing the terraces. Strips twenty feet wide were used, as this permitted the use of modern haying equipment. These strips should be alternated each year. Filter strips may be planted in such hay crops as cowpeas, soybeans, sorghum, etc.

This experiment was in charge of H. D. Sexton and E. G. Diseked of the Agricultural Engineering Department at Auburn, and they summarize the result as follows:

(1) Results indicate that terraces, while necessary on all steep cultivated land to prevent gullying, alone do not sufficiently control erosion.

(2) That Austrian peas or vetch will satisfactorily control erosion once they cover the ground.

(3) That the losses from a single rain, or material carrying plant food may be more than that supplied by a winter cover crop, if the land is left unprotected during the cultivated period.

(4) That planting in strips eliminates the necessity of having all the field plowed up or loose at the same time.

(5) That " filter" cropping reduces sheet erosion between terraces very materially.

(6) That certain leguminous crops used as filter crops are satisfactory is preventing erosion.

(7) That the Nichols terrace can be successfully crossed by properly designed equipment.

ISABELLA DEMONSTRATION CLUB

Our Home Demonstration Club met at the schoolhouse Monday afternoon, October 15th, with thirteen members present. Two new members were enrolled.

Miss Pardue gave a demonstration on cheese making. All the members present were very interested in the project.

Mr. Thomas, our vocational teacher, presented our club with a cheese press which was appreciated very much. Miss Pardue urged all the members to send in their annual reports as early as possible.

Our next meeting will be Thursday afternoon, November 1, at two o'clock p.m. The demonstration will be on making Christmas gifts and toys.—Reporter.

CONCERNING TAX ON SYRUP

County Agent, J. W. Fant, wrote a letter on October 12 to Mr. Harwell G. Davis, collector of internal revenue for Alabama, requesting information relative to processing tax on sugar-cane syrup. Under date of October 16 Mr. Fant received the following reply from Mr. Davis:

All syrup taken as toll for processing is taxable, and in allition to this there should be shown on the return the taxable quantity of syrup which the farmer-producer declares for sale above the two hundred gallon exemption which he is allowed provided he sells the syrup directly to a consumer or to a person who sells directly ot a consumer without changing the syrup in any way, and provided, further, that the farmer-producer does not sell more than five hundred gallons during the marketing year, June 12, 1934, to June 12, 1935.

The mill operator should report all toll syrup taken by him regardless of whether the producer had any exemption syrup or not.

CLYDE OATES DIED

The death angel visited our home on Sunday, October 14, 1934, and bore away the loving spirit of our beloved son, Clyde.

He was sick only one week with scarlet fever and diphtheria. He suffered so much, but bore his suffering well. He leaves to mourn his loss a father and mother, D. M. and Inez Oates; one grandfather, Henry Oates; one grandmother, Celestia Ward; one brother, Raymond and one sister, Bettie Sue.

We know that he is resting
In paradise above.
We hope some day to meet him,
In that heavenly home of love.

A precious one from us has gone,
His voice we love is still.
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.

Written by his mother.

Mr. and Mrs. John Newell and children, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bridges and family of Birmingham were here on Sunday to celebrate the birthday of Judge L. H. Reynolds.

"This year's convention is of outstanding importance in view of the fact that approximately 4,000,000 farmers have participated in the program of the A. A. A.," commented President Oneal, who pointed out that larger problem of long-range planning for agriculture this year commands unusual national interest, and a record attendance of organized farmers from Maine to California and from New Hampshire to Texas is assured. The voice of all farmers, from those active in country Farm Bureaus on thourgh their state organizations, will find expression in thos great national forum where the convictions of representative farmers from all sections of the United States will be crystallized into a consistant national program behind which the entire force of the national organization is modilized and the agricultural policy of the nation is developed.

Governor Myers was deputy governor under Henry Morganthau, Jr., when the Farm Credit Administration was organized, and participated in the consolidation under one administrative agency all the credit facilities set up by the federal government to extend credit to agriculture. Since the resignation of Governor Morganthau, who was appointed Secretary of the Treasury, Dr. Myers has directed the administration of the vast program under which more than one and a half billion dollars have been loaned to farmers and farmer organizations, a billion dollars of which having been loaned to refinance farm mortgages.

Dr. Myers has frequently consulted with leaders of the Farm Bureau and other farm organizations, both in the formulation of the administration's rural credit program and in its administration. The American Farm Bureau Federation for many years has played a leading part in formulating constructive measures to develop an adequate system of rural credit, farmer and owner and farmer controlled. It has sponsored sevreal national committees to study form credit problems and as a result of their work, a broad, constructive program for rural credit has been evolved, much of which has already been written into law. Just what additional steps are necessary to provide agriculture with an adequate system of credit to finance the production and marketing of farm crops at reasonable rates of interest and on equitable terms, will be one of the most important topics of consideration at this year's annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

U.S. Farm Bureau Meet In Nashville

Chicago, Illinois — The Southland will be host to this year's most important assembly of organized American farmers when the sixteenth annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation will convene in Nashville, Tennessee, on December 10, 11 and 12.

At this nation-wide convention, national policies for agriculture will be determined. One of the vitally important questions for discussion is what additional steps are necessary to provide American agriculture with an adequate system of credit to finance the production and marketing of farm crops at reasonable rates of interest and on epuitable terms.

Dr. W. I. Myers, Governor of the Farm Credit Administration, who played a large part in the drafting of the administration's two and one half billion dallar program for rural credit, and who has directed this gigantic program the past year, has accepted an invitation to be one of the featured speakers. Other invited speakers include cabinet members, high officials in the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, and Farm Bureau leaders from every section of the country, it was announced by Edward A. Oneal president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, yesterday.

Is the New Deal going Hoover? This question is not as goofy as it sounds, and it has been asked by more then one student of current politics during the past week or so. The immediate inspiration for the question was the proposal made by President Roosevelt to capital and labor for an industrial peace during the next few months. It is being pointed out that when the 1929 crash came to the nation so unexpectedly, one of President Hoover's first acts was the calling together of national leaders, both employers and employes, to arrange for an industrial truce during the depression. So successful was this arrangement that the Hoover administration was surprisingly free from labor disturbances. Now the present administration is trying the same thing in an effort to rebuild an industrial peace that has been shattered during the past few months, shattered in large measure because of disagreements as to interpretations of certain provisions of the NRA.

It is being pointed out too, that another creation of the Hoover administration has been going along pretty well by comparison with other innivations and is used freely and continuously by the present administration. That bit of machinery is the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, concerning which Oliver McKee, Jr., noted Washington correspondent, wrote recently in the Boston Transcript:

"The success of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has been the subject of much favorable comment recently. Not only has the RFC done a good job in assisting American business and industry, but it is assumed a steadily increasing importance in the recovery program, a success that shines brightly in comparison with the fading beacons of the AAA and NRA. But the RFC, in origin, and in its conception, goes back to the Hoover era, and constituted the spearhead of the Hoover administration's drive to win back national prosperity. Unlike some of the New Deal's experiments—whose economic soundness has been sharply challenged—practically all authorities agree that the RFC represented a sound method to reach the desired objective. And New Dealers, of course, cannot claim credit for the RFC. If credit belongs to them, it is because they have continued and expanded the RFC."

Another veering trend in current policies is being noted, and that is one having to do with relief. President Roosevelt has very properly called attention to the need for private charity and private relief work to supplement the work of the government, while Harry Hopkins, federal relief administrator, issued warning recently to some of the states that during the coming winter they would have to raise a goodly slice of their own relief money before the federal government would come to their assistance. All of which calls to mind the fact that President Hoover on more than one occasion insisted on the necessity and the duty of local communities and the various states to take care of their relief burdens so far as possible. It calls to mind also the terrific barrage of criticism which was directed against Mr. Hoover by the socialists and other paternalists who seem to think it is the duty of the federal government to take care of the entire population from Washington.

The fact that the present tendency seems to be toward placing some responsibility on the states and local communities for looking after their own, indicates that it is coming to be realized even by the younger statesmen at Washington that there is a bottom to Uncle Sam's bag of gold, that lavish spending cannot go on forever, and that the private citizen and the local community ought not depend entirely on the federal government for relief, but should assist its own unfortunates to the utmost of its abilities.

Another apparent indication of a change can be found in the address delivered recently at the National Press Club in Washington by Donald Richberg, the new head of the NRA machinery. Mr. Richberg indicated a modification of policy in the direction of eliminating federal price fixing and production control on the theory that reasonable competition might be a good thing. Only a few weeks ago we were hearing speeches from some of the New Dealers in which competition was termed the "law of the jungle" and the employment of the "tooth and the claw" in modern business. It is interesting to note, therefore, that some new statesmen seem to be coming to the old fashioned conclustion that "reasonable" competition is not a bad idea, and may be better than federal regimentation.

Uncle Tom Hubbard Says Vote The Ticket

Editor Union-Banner:

To my fellow Republicans. The election day draws near, and our votes will be for our friends, our children, and children's children, and good local government such as our county has enjoyed so long, or they will be cast for the vaunted New Deal, with its experimental, artificial program, that weighs down on us now, from which we long to be delivered.

We read the letter of Hon. W. A. Reynolds. It was sound and sensible, by a busines man. Read it again, and heed its wise counsel.

Why do Democratic papers keep telling us how prosperous we are under the New Deal? It does seem to us if we had reached such great prosperity we would know it and not need every Democratic sheet to be telling us we have gotten around the proverbial corner, and are now in clover.

But now times are hard and all this prosperity talk fades away. O. D. Street, National Republican Committeeman says, "If we are going right now under the New Deal, we have always been wrong in the past." Because the present plan is leading us away from American initiative and self dependence, and this course persisted in will bring decadence.

So I appeal to you, fellow Republicans, to stand loyally by your colors. Remember we all went into the primary pledged to our nominees. Otherwise, we would not have been invited in. Don't let anyone tell you that an election pledge can be broken any day and disregarded as a mere scrap of paper.

In our old age we desire to see our county continue prosperous as it has so long done. Just look at Alabama under Democratic rule. What a deplorable condition it has been in for some years. Can we forsake our first love and go with them? No. A thousand times no. Never, never.

This may be, and probably will be, my final appeal to you for the grand old party and party loyalty, because time is pointing to my inevitable departure and close of life. Therefore, hear me now. Vote for and with your friends, and as Hon. Frank Baltzell, of the old time Allegiance Herald said, "Never do what your enemy wants you to do." How humiliating it would be to see any of you go against your friends and party. And if the enemy should thereby win, then to read in big headlines, "A Great Democratic Victory," then will the Republicans get any credit for it?

Don't forget the Cleveland panic and the stormy days of R. F. Kolb. Can the Leopard change its spots? Don't forget, but follow such men as W. A. Reynolds, J. N. Dennis, Z. J. Jones, W. L. Sanders, M. D. Foshee, W. M. Wyatt and many others equally true. I have done my duty. Do yours. Then you can meet your friends and say I was true to the last. I leave it to you.

Yours first, last and forever for the Republican party, T. J. HUBBARD.

In the beginning of the New Deal they told us it was a non-partisan effort toward national recovery and that there was no politics in it. Now the politicians in the Democratic party are using the New Deal in an effort to stamp out every Republican in the land.

"EXCELLENT" AND THEN SOME

The esteemed Birmingham Age-Herald, in an editorial under the caption of "Excellent", Wednesday morning proceeded to discharge one of its big political guns in the direction of certain Republican counties of Alabama.

It makes us "hot under the collar" to read such "Excellent" stuff as the Age-Herald spouts forth, and we figure it will do the same to every other Republican. Therefore, we publish it below in full so that you may again enjoy the sometimes valuable sensation of having your dander raised a little bit:

Excellent

The Democratic invasion of Republican Counties in this state, with Senator Black as the speerhead of the attack, is a strategy of a high order. There is no reason in the world for citizens of these communities who have voted as Republicans in the past to continue doing so in the light of current realities—no reason, that is to say, except that they are loath to give up the habit. For if ever there was a party which stands at the present hour for nothing which can claim the support of clear-headed Alabamians, it is the G. O. P.

On the other hand, the Democratic program, whatever may be its defects, is affirmative, constructive and in the interest of the folks to whom Senator Black appealed at Odenville. Between such a bid for their suffrage and the tug of a loyalty which has lost all significance, intelligent men and women should find it easy to make their choice.

The aim of Democrats is to unseat the machines which in several counties usually put down as Republican have commanded the situation. By driving them out of power and by persuading the voters to cast sensible ballots, it is not at all impossible that something like a permanent political alteration will have been effected.

In any case, it is good that this effort is being put forth as part of the general drive to make the showing in November as overwhelming and clean-cut a demonstration of Mr. Roosevelt's strength in Alabama as can be contrived. The New Deal deserves this testimonal from our people.

Wouldn't it be "excellent" for the hopes of the Age-Herald to be realized, say here in Chilton County, for instance. Isn't the record of the Democratic party in Alabama so "excellent" as to make everybody melt into admiration before it?

Think of what the different factions of the Democrats call one another in the primary campaigns. Just rehearse some of the statements of Judge McCord, Frank Dixon, Bibb Graves, and other Democratic leaders when they were at each other's throats last spring. That is the Democratic party in Alabama which the Age-Herald contemplates as "excellent" for Republican counties.

"Excellent," the devil. It sounds like bosh to me.

REDISTRIBUTING WEALTH

Again, we ask, when the Roosevelt administration borrows eight thousand million dollars the country will owe it to somebody, won't it? To whom? To rich and well-to-do Americans. Nobody outside of the United States is lending money these days. The foreigners are borrowing—when they can. Mr. Roosevelt's government is increasing the debt of the country at an enormous rate by borrowing from the wealthy Americans (Wall Streeters) by selling them non-taxable bonds. The Roosevelt administration expects the borrowed money to be repaid—to say other than that would be to accuse it of entertaining a thieving design.

If the central aim of the New Dealers is to enlarge the creditor class, the wealthy class, by selling them bonds on which no taxes will be paid, how shall the poor profit by it?

If the country shall borrow enough the rich may in time convert all their properties into bonds, selling the mines, the railroads, power companies, to the public, leaving the public, as stockholders, to pay the taxes.

One suspects that this process is actually going on.—Charleston News and Courier.

A NEED FOR FAITH

The report that the number of active members of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Michigan has risen from 69,000 to 72,000 during the last twelve months is an increase of 4.4 per cent. It is an increas, moreover, that can be presumed to have occurred to some degree in many other denominations.

This tendency of people to turn to religion (to return, doubtless, in many instances) for guidance and comfort during troublous and bewildering times should be deeply gratifying to all who find material pre-occupations less than completely satisfying.

Agnosticism is, after all, a barren and cheerless state of mind for most of us. Indifference too often is mere dullness. But faith warms and strengthens faltering spirit, and gives point and purpose to our lives. If we have faith we can do great works.—Detroit Free Press.

LOYALTY TO LEADERS

In these days when we hear all too often of the penetration of our schools and colleges of teachers who place socialism, internationalism and anti-patriotism above loyalty to American traditions and American constitutional government, it is good to read the sound declaration of policy on the employment of teachers made recently by Dr. George J. Ryan, President of the New York City Board of Education.

Dr. Ryan in a statement sent to the Board of Examiners for the employment of instructors in the New York schools stated that positions in the schools will from this time on be closed to all those who hold disloyal or subversive views and that loyalty to country as well as personality and other phases of character will hereafter be considered in employing teachers.

In his letter to the Board of Examiners Dr. Ryan is quoted as stating in part:

"Let us close the door now against any who may seek a teaching position for the purpose of teaching American children un-American or subversive doctrines. * * * We do not want them in the public schools and I call upon the Board of Examiners to keep them out. You might very well serve notice now upon all would be candidates in the forthcoming examinations that loyalty to the country whose children they would teach is a fundamental eligibility requirement. * * *

"In so far as possible, I believe the Board of Examiners should interview personally every candidate and not delegate this all-important function.

"In brief, let me urge that, in considering candidates in your forthcoming examinations, you make personality and character your first consideration, and that under the head of character you consider loyalty and love of country."

The entire nation, as well as the city of New York owes Dr. Ryan an expression of thanks and appreciation for this sound and patriotic declaration. It is to be hoped that his example will be followed elsewhere. The old fashioned school teacher made loyalty to the nation and its constitutional government one of the prime assets in developing the character of the youth of America. We believe that the overwhelming majority of our teachers are still "old fashioned" in this respect. But examples to the contrary are coming all too frequently and the declaration of policy on the part of Dr. Ryan is timely, sound, and healthful.

GEORGIA AND THE NEW DEAL

While glowing reports are being issued by leaders of the majority party about the state of the nation from a political standpoint, it is apparent that all things are not well for the so-called disciples of Jefferson in the good old state of Georgia. In the state convention held at Macon several days ago by the Democrats, the New Deal was denounced and an attempt was made to dethrone Major John S. Cohen as national committeeman. While the platform extends "cordial greetings" to the President and asks him to visit the state frequently it also says:

"We condemn any policy of the government which dominates and competes with private business. We believe control of business by governmental bureaus acting in managerial capactities should be brought to an end.

"Particularly do we, through this convention, deplore the results of that experiment called the 'processing tax' which has been levied on the agricultural products of our country.

"We are of the firm conviction that practices of rigid economy in the national government should be applied vigorously. Therefore the Democrats of Georgia, speaking through their state convention, are of the opinion that an early—if possible immediate—cessation of the orgy of money spending should be effected."

Fortunately for the Democrats, however, Georgia is Gerogia, and always voted "regular" no matter how stormy the night may be. But it is interesting to note that there is still a great deal of conservative sentiment left in the old cotton and peach commonwealth.

JOB HOLDERS INCREASE

According to a statement issued recently by the Civil Service Commission at Washington there are about 82,000 more office holders in the civil service branch of the government than there were two years ago. This, of course, does not take into consideration those which have been put on outside the civil service. Thus, it can be seen, the number of job holders at Washington is steadily increasing, just as it has been increasing for years. Evidently bureaucracy is healthier today than it has ever been at any time in the past, and it has been pretty healthy for a long time. Little comment is necessary but it may be worth while, just for the record to quote from the platform which the successful party used in the 1932 polotical campaign, as follows:

"We advocate: One—An immediate and drastic reduction of government expenditures by abolishing useless commissions and offices, consolidation of departments and bureaus, and eliminating extravagance, to accomplish a saving of not less than 25 per cent of the cost in federal government, and we call upon the Democratic party in the states to make zealous effort to achieve proportionate results."

NRA COMES HIGH

Bureaucracy comes high under the NRA. The West Coast Lumberman's Association, code authority for that industry, reported at Seattle Thursday that the annual "budget for this district will be $532,800, of which supervision of logging camps and sawmills will require the expenditure of about $35,600 a month. Of the $35,600 monthly, $7,600 will be sent to Washington for the support of the national authority, $8,000 will be used by the Pacific Northwest Loggers' Association, and some $20,000 a month used to apply the code to the 562 registered sawmills in Western Oregon and Washington and Alaska."

In spite of all this costly upkeep, a recent official report from Washington said that about 90 per cent of the lumber output was being marketed at "chiselled" prices. Large groups of Western lumbermen have petitioned to be released from the NRA.—Spokane Spokesman-Review.

The one sensible and honest way of averting a tax rise is to cut budget expenses to the bone. Instead of taking the taxpayers up on the mountain again and fooling them with promises that can't be carried out, the budget-makers should appropriate for 1935 only such actual money as is definitely in sight—not mythical money that can be foreseen only by means of crystal-gazing—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Unlawful Use Made Of Absentee Ballots

There seems to have been quite a bit of importance attached to the voting of absentee ballots, or at least the signing of applications for absentee ballots in Chilton County for the past several days. We feel that the people of the county should be reminded a little regarding the law on this matter.

The law is very strict in that the voter must be absent from the county or state on the day of the election "by reason of his regular business and in the performance of his regular duties." In other words, a person who is going to remain in the county cannot legally obtain an absentee ballot and vote it in the election, neither can he or she do so without being absent by reason of his regular business and in the performance of his regular duties.

The following affidavit is attached to all absentee ballots, and in order to be legal must be properly signed before an officer authorized to take oaths:

Affidavit for Absent Voter

This affidavit to be sworn to before an officer authorized to take acknowledgments to deeds, and mailed to Probate Judge immediately. Ballot void if this affidavit is detached.

State of Alabama Chilton County:

Before me, ..., a ..... for said county and state, this day personally appeared ..... who is (made) known to me, and who, being duly sworn, deposes and says: That his name is ....., that he is a bona fide resident and qualified elector of precinct or district ..... County of ....., State of Alabama; that he has not voted in the election to be held on the 6th day of November, 1934, and is entitled to vote therein. That he will be absent from the state or from the county of his residence on the day of the election by reason of his regular business and in the performance of his regular duties. That if the election in which the ballot which accompanies this affidavit is cast is a primary election, that he subscribed to all the conditions and qualifications laid down by his party committee as a requisite for participation in said primary, and that he is familiar with such conditions and qualifications.

Signature of Affiant.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this the ..... day of ..... 1934.

The above named ..... appeared before me on the ..... day of ..... 1934, and being first duly sworn did subscribe to the above affidavit; I further certify that said applicant is know to me personally as being the identical party he claims to be.

It has come to light that some of the workers for the Democratic ticket in Chilton County are soliciting and offering to pay Republican voters to vote an absentee Democratic ballot and "go hunting" on election day.

As an instance of this kind we publish below an affidavit signed and sworn to by Curtis Giles and Simpson Kilgore, of Beat 11:

AFFIDAVIT

The State of Alabama, Chilton County:

Before me, M. D. Foshee, a Notary Public in and for said County in said State personally appeared Curtis Giles and Simpson Killgore, who being by me first duly sworn, deposes and says as follows:

That on Wednesday, October 17, 1934, a Democratic worker came to them in Beat 11, Chilton County, Alabama, and offered each of them $3.00 to vote an absentee vote for the Democratic ticket in Chilton County, Alabama, and then go hunting election day. Said worker informed them that they had a right to so cast their vote.

CURTIS GILES,
SIMPSON KILLGORE.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this the 24th day of October, 1934,

M. D. FOSHEE,
Notary Public.

MT. SPRINGS NEWS

Well, our day is over and what a glorious time was had by all. Everyone was here and I am sure they all enjoyed themselves. We had with us Dr. Ensminger from Birmingham. He preached the eleven o'clock sermon, which was enjoyed by all. The day was not complete without Mrs. Nelson. We tell her that we missed her.

I will say in behalf of the church that we appreciate the steadfastness and hearty cooperation of our members who live in Clanton. Also we appreciate the kindness of Mr. Johnnie Plier and Mr. Herman Lecroy in helping us out in our program.

Singing was the feature for the afternoon program. We had several good directors and some good quartets and duets rendered which were greatly enjoyed by all. We had visitors from Montgomery and Jemison that attended the services Sunday.

We will have Sunday school next Sunday morning and Christian Endeavor Sunday night. We are expecting a large crowd.

Unfair Charges Against Pitts

Editor Union-Banner:

I read with very much interest the unreasonableness of the argument set forth by Mr. G. W. Mims and Mr. G. S. Burnette in their letter in the Chilton County News of last week's issue, in which they try to prejudice some of the Republicans against the Republican ticket.

For illustration, they speak of the amount of money that was made by our representative, Mr. Percy M. Pitts, and the amount of money that he drew from the State of Alabama. I am reliably informed that there were in the last legislature three Republican members as compared to 103 Democrats of this legislature. I certainly think it would be fair and reasonable for Mr. Pitts to draw the same amount as those of different political faith, especially since the Democratic legislature passed the law.

Most everyone will recall that several years ago the State Democratic legislature attempted to pass a bill through that August body to abolish the Commissioners Court in this county and appoint a board of revenue to take the place of the Commissioners that had been elected by the people. Mr. Pitts was able to defeat this bill in the house of representatives and left our county government in the hands of the people and allowed us the right to further elect our Commissioners by popular vote. During the recent legislature he voted and worked against tax raising measures, including the sales tax and gasoline tax. I am of the opinion that we would make a mistake not to support one who had stood by his county as he has in the past.

Also I am unable to understand in the face of the examination of the gas records by a Democratic evaminer from the capitol, which was recently published in the Union-Banner, how these gentlemen can charge that there has been a shortage of 79,131 gallons when the final examination of these records, which were made on September 20, 1934, showed only 7,122 gallons by the auditor's examination. And this examination by the auditor covered the period of time extending from 1929 to May, 1934. Certainly these gentlemen do not mean to do anyone an injustice in the face of these facts which have been published in the Union-Banner over the signature of Mr. J. T. Carlton, auditor of the gasoline department.

Owing to the past and present action of both the national, state and county Democratic administration, I am unable to see how we could better our condition by voting a Democratic ticket.—E. E. Martin, Jemison, Ala., Route 3, October 22, 1934.

J. N. Scott Recalls Democrat Ruins And Urges Continued Republicanism

Editor Union-Banner:

It seems that you are left alone with this campaign on your hands. I have been reading your articles, and you have been telling us voters the real truth about politics and what the Democrats have always done for us people when they were in power in our county and in the country. We Republicans surely haven't forgot the debt Deason gave us, and that is the only debt we are owing now.

All of our people know how much Judge Reynolds has talked about this debt heretofore in every campaign since the debt was made and he got to be be judge; and also you know just how much he has been against the Democrats and how hard he has fought them heretofore in every campaign until this time. What reason he has for not saying something about it in this campaign I am unable to see.

Voters, the debt still remains to pay, and the Democrats are no better now than they were in Deason's administration, but worse as I see it. What are the state and national Democrats doing for us these days? They have got us to where we can sell only a limited amount of cotton unless we give them about half of the bale as taxes.

The Democrats, as you all know, believe in taxing people. Yes, Miller said he wasn't going to ask us for any more taxes while the campaign was on; but as soon as he got in office he wanted to tax us on every hand. Yes, sir, I want to say that the Democrats, if anything, are getting worse every day, and I want to say that the only sensible thing for us Republicans to do is to stay together and vote together; stand by our party and go to the polls on November the 6th and elect everyone of our nominees to office as we have done heretofore.

We have got just as good men to vote for this time as we ever had, or at least, I think so. We can't expect the Democrats to do better by us than our own people. Our nominees are out because the majority of the Republicans favored them and voted for them in the primary. Now I think we should stand by them and be loyal to our party. That is what Judge Reynolds has been saying and advising us to do for the past 24 years or more. But it looks like he has taken out on us this time, for some cause which I know not.

Someone told me he said down at the picnic it was because some of our Republicans had gone crooked and were defrauding the county. I can not believe that is the reason for the judge turning his back on his party which he claimed for 24 years, and which he has always told us he loved so well. No, I can't think that is the cause that prompted or caused the Judge to call in a few special friends and went in behind closed doors and there went into a caucus meeting to lay plans by which they might be able to defeat the good old party, which has done so much good in our county.

Dear voters, we can not afford to let our good old Republican party go down. What can we expect of the Democrats? They have given us the worst things we have ever had. Cleveland gave us a panic; Wilson gave us a war; and as to Mr. Roosevelt, I can't say, but some of the people say he is giving us hell. I only know he is doing things that we had not ever thought about, and we can't tell what the end may bring. But one thing I believe I can be safe in saying, and that is we can't expect the Democrats to give us anything like prosperity. That would be out of the ordinary for Democrats, and every one of us Republicans know it.

I ask you not to let someone who is not your friend deceive you. Everyone knows that they who leave our party and goes to recommending the Democratic party are not our friends. That kind of a man usually is one who has claimed to be a good Republican and run for office and was defeated, which kept him away from the pie counter. Or he is a man that has been in office and has been receiving the loaves and fishes for several years and has got knocked away from the pie counter. When men do that they are not your friend, except to get the loaves and fishes. Finally they will go like S. M. Adams, L. B. Pounds and others of Chilton County in the past.

So I appeal to you voters not to let any man deceive you. Think for yourselves and make up your minds as we have always done before. Go to the polls on November 6th and vote solid for our Republican candidates. Don't leave one out. They are all good men.

I was glad to see and read the letter of Mr. W. A. Reynolds in the paper a few weeks ago. Don't be deceived this time, as it is one of the most critical times just now that we have ever seen. If we make a mistake here it may bring hardships on us the balance of our lives. So I am standing for a solid front and asking that we do just what we agreed to do when we went into the primary election, and that was that we would support the ticket in November.

So I close, looking for the biggest Republican victory this time that we have ever had.—Yours truly, J. N. Scott, Jemison, Ala.

Rats Prove Comparative Values of COMMERCIAL FISH MEALS
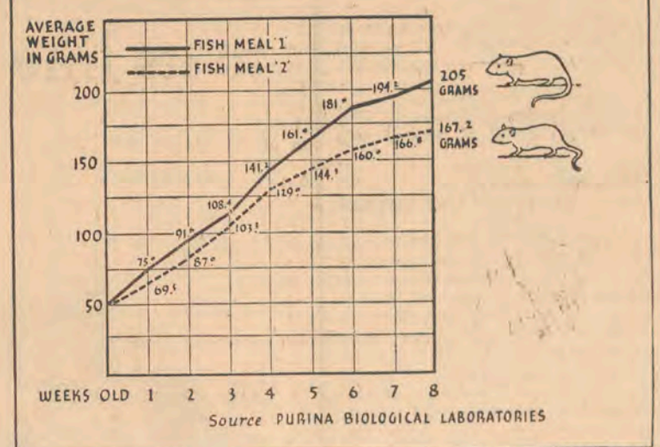
Same percent of Protein ··· Same Cost ···
Fed in same proportion with same basal Ration —
YET ONE WAS 32.5% BETTER THAN THE OTHER WHEN GROWTH TESTED!



Source PURINA BIOLOGICAL LABORATORIES

On every bag of chick feed there is a tag which shows the percent of protein, carbohydrates, fat, and fibre in the ration. That analysis tag is required by law to give the purchaser some indication of the feeding value of the contents of the bag. But the tag doesn't begin to tell the whole story of the quality of ingredients or the kind of results that will be obtained when the ration is fed, according to the confirmed experience and knowledge of feeding scientists. In striking evidence of that fact, the Purina Research Department tells of experimental tests with fish meal which is recognized as one of the richest and most valuable sources of protein for chick starting rations.

Samples of fish meal were being studied by Purina research men to determine their comparative feeding value. First to the chemical laboratory went the samples. Here the chemist made his analysis. "Both samples test the same," he reported. "Protein 60%, Fat 9%, and Ash 18%."

But the Biological Laboratory, after careful feeding tests with the two fish meals, had a startlingly different story to tell. They took two groups of white rats and to one group they fed a basic ration to which was added Fish Meal No. 1. The other group received the same basic ration combined with Fish Meal No. 2. And the result was that in spite of the fact that both Fish Meals had tested the same in protein, fat, and mineral analysis, the rats that received Fish Meal from the one source showed 32.5% better growth than the other. The accompanying illustration pictures graphically the difference in growth that the feeding tests revealed.

"Today's practical feeding knowledge and experience with chicks make it imperative that all ingredients be checked in the laboratory and confirmed by actual feeding experiments as described in the fish meal tests," says Dr. H. J. Smith, Director of Research for Purina Mills. "The chemical analysis alone does not give all the facts. Individually and in combination the ingredients should be laboratory tested and chick tested, as that method alone will reveal the true worth of the finished product in giving the poultry raiser the greatest chick growth at lowest feeding cost."

Says Save County From Indebtedn's

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper to say to the Republicans of Chilton County that I am standing by the entire Republican ticket.

I have watched the affairs of this county, state and nation and have never seen the county prosper under a Democratic administration. Twenty-four years ago some of the Republicans voted for Judge Deason and helped elect him on account of some prejudice that had arisen in our party. During his administration the county was put some two hundred and forty thousand dollars in debt, and we are being taxed now to pay the interest on part of this indebtedness.

The Democrats has made it a practice in this county to circulate all kinds of reports just before the election against our party and our candidates. Remember the charges they made against Judge Reynolds in 1916, and at various times since that time. Therefore, I appeal to each and every Republican in this county to lay down your prejudice and not be influenced by any false reports that may be issued by the Democrats at the last minute.

Let me appeal to you to go to the polls on November the 6th and vote the entire ticket and help save our county from further debts and tax burdens.—Respectfully, J. P. Rushing.

Mrs. A. Robinton of Mobile, who is Grand Chief of Pythian Sisters of Alabama, and now making official visits to Montgomery and Birmingham Temples, will spend a few days with her brother, H. Pinkerson, of Clanton. Mrs. Robinton is also very active in Eastern Star and other orders, and has served through its different chairs.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Waites and children were the guests of relatives and friends in Birmingham last week end.

A. J. Davis For Commissioner

To the Voters of Chilton County:

Only a few days will pass until you will go to the polls to elect the officers of our county who will serve for the next term. As one of the nominees on the Republican ticket, I am asking our voters to vote the entire ticket. I am asking you to do this because I conscientiously believe that we will have better government under Republican principles and leadership. The only way we have of judging the future is by examining the past. We know that every time we are under Democratic rule, debts are created that it takes years and years to pay, and in fact, we are still paying on a debt in our county now which was created by the last Democratic administration. I wish to ask them, why should anyone desire to elect another Democratic administration when we know that they will create new debts and add to the one which we are now paying which was created by them?

Chilton County is one of a few counties which operates on a cash basis. Mobile County's warrants are selling for 33 cents in the dollar and that county has always been under Democratic rule. Do you want our county to remain on a cash basis or do you want it to be like Mobile? Your vote on November 6th will answer that question.

You will also recall that the State of Alabama could not pay out one dollar cash for anything until bonds were issued, and its debts refinanced or "put off" and it has been under Democratic rule. In comparison to our state, you have found our little county of Chilton, under Republican rule, paying 100 per cent for every warrant that it issued, and I promise you that if I am elected Commissioner that I shall endeavor with my entire might to keep our county on this honor list and that I will recommend to the court that we save every penny we can to apply to the old debt and I also promise that at no time will I ever vote to exceed the income of the county.

It has not been possible for me to see all the voters as I have been busy with my farm work and I know that you have been busy with your daily work and I want to take this means of telling you that I shall certainly appreciate your vote and a vote for the Republican party and I assure you that we will do everything we can to prove worthy of the confidence you place in us.—Respectfully yours, A. J. DAVIS, Candidate Commissioner Second District, Chilton County, Ala.

JIM FOSHEE WRITES FORM TEXAS

Editor Union-Banner:

I lived in Chilton County last year, moving here to Uvalde, Texas, a few days ago. Many people asked me to write back to them there in Clanton, and as I haven't the time to write to all of them, one at a time, I want to write a few words to them all, through The Union-Banner.

We arrived here all safe and sound, and like the country fine. I used to wonder why people wanted so many good roads, but since making this trip out here, I have found out why. I want the good old Union-Banner to come to me every week, so that I can keep track of things back home.—Jim Foshee and family, 807 No. Getty St., Uvalde, Texas.

Mr. Foshee lived on the Jasper Dennis place, two miles southeast of Clanton during the past year. He left a few days ago for Uvalde, to care for a farm for Dr. S. C. Wood, formerly of Clanton, who now lives at that place.

WALKER'S WHEREABOUTS

Editor Union-Banner:

Likely C. T. Walker can be found in a county where there are 23,000 or more farmers financially broke, and likely he is surrounded by 23,000 milionaires and others who belong to some trust or combine, and where many farmers are limited to acreage to plant in cotton; and that country may be in debt nearly 32 billion dollars.

Daniel the prophet speaks of 23 hundred days and of a golden image and of three men cast in the fire. So Walker and all others may be living in the time of what was foreshadowed by the golden image.

The last I heard of C. T. Walker he was living on a hill near a spring, paying tax on all he owned and what he bought. I ask that a diligent search be made to find C. T. Walker. The true and best information as to his whereabouts will be found in the Bible. Today there are many people high minded lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God, and there is no manner of opposition and wickedness that will defeat the purposes of Jehovah.—J. C. Edwards.

NEW SALEM SOCIAL CLUB

The New Salem Social Club held its regular meeting the 18th of this month. The members of the church are piecing a quilt and on the first day of November we are to meet at the church and quilt it; so we invite all that will to come and help us.

Instead of meeting at the church for our next meeting, we are to meet at the home of Mrs. Texann Bussie and have our meeting there. We hold our meetings on Thursday before the third Sunday of each month.

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

When the writer was in Chicago sometime ago a friend put in his hand Elizabeth Dilling's book entitled, "The Red Network." the book is called "A Who's Who and Handbook of Radicalism for Patriots." There is listed in the book the names of organizations which are supposed to be working hand in hand with communism and the Soviet revolution. This book is an "eye-opener."

Mrs. Jones and my son were in Russia the past summer. They had as their guide a middle-aged woman who had lived for a number of years in Chicago. She was an intelligent Russian. She spoke English fluently. "Are you ever coming back to America?" Mrs. Jones asked the lady. "Yes, I am returning to America as soon as you have your revolution," she replied. The statement of this Russian woman is filled with meaning to every patriotic American citizen. This nation and most of the nations of the world are sleeping upon communistic volcanoes. There are scores of organizations in America working hand in hand with the communistic influence to wreck this nation.

Nothing has done more to pave the way for communism in this country than the modernistic educational leaders and preachers. They may not know it, but they have been preparing the hearts of the people for the seed of anarchy. I quote a stanza of a communistic poem which appeared recently:

"Goodbye,
Christ Jesus Lord God Jehovah,
Beat it on away from here now.
Make way for a new guy with no religion at all—
A real guy named
Marx Communist Lenin Peasant Stalin Worker ME—
I said, ME."

Comment on this stanza is unnecessary. God send America and the world an old time revival of the religion of the Lord Jesus Christ!

ALABAMA SINGING CONVENTION

The Alabama Singing Convention will be held in Birmingham on Saturday and Sunday, November 10 and 11 in the Municipal Auditorium. All singers and lovers of singing are invited to attend.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala., Oct. 23.—For the second consecutive time Mobile's Murphy High School "Mohian" won the contest for Alabama high school annuals sponsored by the Scholastic Press Service, Extension Division, University of Alabama. The prize was a handsome loving cup donated by friends of the University. The award was made for performances in the 1933-34 session.

"The Crucible" of Gadsden High and "The Coffee Pot" of Coffee High, Florence, tied for second honors. In third place were "Highlander" of Ramsey Tech, Birmingham, and "Black Warrior" of Tuscaloosa High. Honorable mention went to "The Sel-Ala" of Selma High; "The Etowahian" of Etowah County at Atalla, and "The Owl" of Shades-Cahaba at Homewood.

Prof. C. E. Cason, director of the Scholastic Press Service announces that the Extension Division is now ready to receive Alabama high school newspapers for entrance in its third annual contest. Three different issues of the paper printed this fall should be submitted to Prof. Cason before November 15. No fees whatever are charged in connection with this contest and critical service. The winner will receive a suitable trophy.

Mrs. Bibb Graves, wife of Alabama's Democratic Governor-designate, will be the principal speaker before a convocation of women students and alumnae of the University of Alabama at Homecoming exercises on November 10, Dean Agnes Ellen Harris announces.

The University of Alabama's debating team has won the distinction, together with Auburn, of having one of its debates rated as one of the best ten intercollegiate word-battles engaged in throughout the country. Alabama's radio debate with the University of Virginia, together with briefs, rebuttals and bibliography, appears verbatim in the newest edition of "University Debators, Annual" the ony annual collection of collegiate debates published.

It will be "Irish" versus "Irish" next Saturday, October 27, as Alabama's Crimson Tide goes up against the first Notre Dame opponents of the season at Birmingham. The Red Regiment will renew football relations with University of Georgia's Bulldogs after a lapse of four years. Not since 1930 when Alabama's last Rose Bowl team defeated Georgia 13 to 0 at Legion Field has Alabama tackled the team of a thousand backs.

Alabama and Georgia have met 24 times on the gridiron. The Crimsons won 11 and lost ten. Three were tie games.

Georgia is coached by Harry Mehre, under whom Coach Frank Thomas of Alabama served before coming to Alabama. Alabama will play one other team employing the Notre Dame system when Kentucky is played at Lexington on November 3.

For the benefit of E. Cody Hall of the Alexander City Outlook we present the correct pronunciation of the name of Alabama's fullback Demyanovich. "Dem" as in "Democrat;" "yan" as in "yannigan"; "o" as in "oh;" pronounce the "ich in "vich" as the word "iche." The accent goes on the "yan" syllable. In other words, it is pronounced AS SPELLED.

CARD OF THANKS

TEN MILLION VISITORS TO FORD EXPOSITION

It was announced yesterday that visitors to the Ford Exposition, century of progress, World's Fair, Chicago, have reached a total of 10,181,256. One of the most popular exhibits at the Fair, the huge Ford Building houses a story of transportation from its earliest history to the modern motor car. Millions of visitors who saw the Ford V-8 built from the ground up were deeply impressed with the high quality of materials entering into its manufacture.

Leading all makes of automobiles in sales this year, the Ford V-8 has accounted for over 80 per cent of the total increase in automobile sales for the first nine months of 1934 as compared with the same period for 1933.

Safety Glass

Eight states now have passed laws requiring safety glass in motor vehicles, some of them requiring all glass throughout the cars to be of that type. This was pointed out yesterday by the local Ford dealer.

"The states that now require safety glass throughout, or have passed laws requiring it next year, include, Iowa, Michigan, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and Virginia," he said. "And in Massachusetts it is required in all windshields.

"Ford is in particularly advantageous position in this respect, for more than six years ago the company began equipping every car with a safety glass windshield. In the de luxe models safety glass is used all around. And to make it possible for motorists to have this safety features throughout the entire car at only a moderate additional investment, the Ford Motor Company recently announced a drastic reduction of the cost of equipping the standard models with safety glass throughout.

"The trend toward the use of safety glass undoubtedly will greatly reduce automobile injuries, for authoritative surveys have shown that 45 per cent of injuries in motor vehicle accidents have come from glass.

"The safety glass now used on Ford cars is an improved quality. It has a film of cellulose acetate between two shets of glass—a more expensive product that formerly used, but it retains it original transparancy for years."

LESSONS FOR TEACHERS

I will give a free lesson demonstration Friday evening, October 26th, at 7:30 at the courthouse, in Clanton. In this lesson I will give correct articulation of each consonant and connect some of the vocal sounds of short "e" and short "i" and also give distinct pronunciation of the following words which are different words with different meaning with the average speaker: ten, tin, pen, pin, ben, bin, mint, ment, sinned send, since, sense, cents, and will touch also short "o" and "n" in accented and unaccented sylables, also give distinction of voice in the words on, own, of, off, want, wont. All teachers have a special invitation to this meeting others are welcome.—F. Iven Popwell.

Mr. and Mrs. Reedie Taylor and Miss Doris Lawrence of Lafayette were the week end guests of relatives here.

Hughes Declares For New Deputies In Sheriff's Office

To the Voters of Chilton County:

I wish to make this statement to you through The Union-Banner that if elected Sheriff I positively will not use as deputies anyone now connected with or that has been in the past connected with the sheriff's office in Chilton County. I make this statement without any reflection on anyone that is serving now or that has served in the past with the sheriff's office. I trust that should any of my friends in the future hear of any statements being made to the contrary, or where I have made any promises or agreements with anyone that you will kindly refer them to the above statement.

I certainly appreciate the vote of confidence that I received in the Republican primary and I want your continued support. To those who saw fit to vote for either of my opponents, I want you to know that your help will be appreciated, as much as those who stood by me all the way through.

Assuring you of my appreciation of your support in the coming election and looking forward to the success of our entire ticket nominated, I am

Respectfully yours,
DEWEY HUGHES.

ENTERPRISE NEWS

"What I sold, I had
What I gave, I have
What I kept, I lost."

How strange it is that the whole progress of so many lives can be summed up in a few simple words. Since the days that Esau sold his birthright to Jacob for a mess of pottage, man has continually seen the fallacy of selling to another what he has.

Three weeks ago near three hundred children, a large group of parents, visitors from the state and county departments of education, and the teachers of Enterprise school met with their hearts and lives full of enthusiasm for the year's work. Not of selling but of giving, in order that each may contribute to the development of every individual who meets together five days during the week.

"Enterprise" realizes that such a spirit of enthusiasm, of cooperation is necessary if it is to be worthy of its name—Enterprise, a bold attempt for something lofty.

We feel that heretofore the adventures which this school set out to meet were accomplished. Last year a large auditorium was built and four hundred seats placed in it. Now we need lights, a curtain, and heaters for that auditorium. Also we need a more sanitary drinking system, a library, two more class rooms, and a number of other things. Is that not an enterprise? In time that enterprise must be stamped with a mark of success and it is dependent on every individual if it is done. If you are willing to help us in such an enterprise, come to our fiddlers convention at the Enterprise school building, Saturday night, October 27. Many of the best fiddlers of this section of Alabama will be present to furnish you music which you will enjoy. The admission is fifteen cents or two for twenty-five cents.

WHAT NEGROES ARE DOING

Through the kindness of our Superintendent Mr. Little, the people of Clanton have been given a specialist who will teach special subjects to adults, especially to maids. The main purpose of the adult school is to teach the young women how to make applications for jobs, how to approach people, home-making, personal cleanliness, economy and the like. It is believed that this special instructor will not only be helpful to our people, but invaluable to the white people of Clanton as well.

H. E. Girls Operate Cafeteria

The Home Economics girls are operating a cafeteria at the County Training School for a period of a few weeks. The girls are being given instruction in foods and on a survey they found that some students brought only sweets or meat and bread only. They also found some lunches were not properly packed.

The purpose of the cafeteria is to inform the students as to the best type of lunches to bring to school.

TERRACING DEMONSTRATIONS

The teacher of agriculture is starting demonstrations in terracing next week in the Morning Star community. It is hoped that a large number or persons will attend all demonstrations. Special care will be exercised in teaching those persons who are interestd in the steps and rules or terracing. A survey of the community shows that terraces are badly needed on sixty per-cent of the farms. It is the business of all persons concerned to make good of this opportunity.

COTTON FACTS

In connection with an evening school, a series of talks and demonstrations will be given at the Lutheran School on Monday and Wednesday nights of next week. If you have not learned the facts of the Bankhead Act, it will be well for you to be present for this and other information that will be of great help to you. Come out and learn more about your own business as farmers.

REVIVAL AT OAK HILL

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper to announce a revival which will begin on Saturday night before the first Sunday in November at Oak Hill church, two miles north of Jemison. Everybody is invited to attend regardless of denomination. The services will be conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. N. Green.—Yours truly, Jas. A. Campbell.

Mr. W. A. Cone of Montgomery spent Friday in Clanton with friends.

East View News

Remember Sunday school next Sunday at 10 a.m. Be sure to be on time.

The wedding bells rang in our community last Saturday afternoon when Mr. Milton Coggins and Miss Alma Upton were united in bonds of holy matrimony at the parsonage. Rev. A. C. Nelson officiated. Mr. Coggins is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Coggins of Shiloh community. Miss Upton is a native of Jasper, Ala., but at the time of the marriage was staying with Rev. and Mrs. A. C. Nelson at East View.

Rev. A. C. Nelson, Mr. Silas Nelson and Mr. and Mrs. Milton Coggins attended the home-coming services at Mt. Springs Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Nelson visited Mr. and Mrs. Sam Gray Sunday.

Mr. Levis Strength, who has been in Detroit, Mich., for several months has returned home. We welcome him back in our midst.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lett of Verbena were visiting here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ottis Coggins were the week end guests of Rev. and Mrs. A. C. Nelson.

Mrs. A. C. Nelson, who has been sick for about three weeks, is still confined to her bed.

The C. E. took Mr. Ottis Coggins on surprise last Friday night and gave him a birthday party. Hot chocolate and cake were served, and many interesting games were played.

Mr. and Mrs. Lesley Smith spent the week end in Elmore County visiting the latter's mother, Mrs. Susie Moore.

Come to C. E. next Sunday night and worship with us.

There will be a chicken supper at this place next Saturday night, October 27, and a quilt to go to the lucky number. This is sponsored by the ladies of the W. M. U. of this place. The proceeds will go to the church. Be sure and come and bring your friends, and have a good time.

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. Hugh Foshee was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scott of Huntsville several days last week.

Miss Myra Johnson, a student at the University of Alabama, was in Clanton last week end visiting her homefolks.

Little Miss Sue Mullins Entertains at Birthday Party

On last Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock Mrs. J. E. Edgar entertained at a lovely birthday party honoring her little niece, Sue Mullins, who was ten years old.

The home for the occasion was decorated in a profusion of fall flowers. During the afternoon the little guests played games on the lawn. A prize was awarded Jean Waites, who won the potato race.

At a late hour a delicious ice course was served to the following guests: the Stanleys and Bettie Hollis of Mitchell Dam; Jean Waite, Hazel McNair, Jean Atkinson, Mary Frances Atkinson, Mae Anice Polk, Bess Hayes, Alene Popwell, Mary Agness McNair, Sarah Nell Sessions, Melrose Wyatt, Mary Roberts and Anne Glasscock.

Dr. and Mrs. Edgar Entertain At Informal Reception

Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Edgar entertained a large group of friends at their lovely home last Saturday night. The occasion was an informal reception in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Mullins, whose marriage was an interesting event recently in Tuscaloosa.

Mrs. Sophia Jones met the guests at the door. In the receiving line were Mrs. Edgar, Dr. Edgar, Mr. W. L. Mullins, Mrs. W. L. Mullins, Mrs. Annie Mullins, mother of the groom, Mr. B. M. Connatser, Mrs. B. M. Connatser, Mrs. Ruth Kate Shepherd.

Presiding at the punch bowl were the lovely Misses Hilda Hart, Frances Davis and Nell Ross Mullins. Miss Elizabeth Gragg rendered a beautiful reading of "That Old Sweetheart of Mine."

The guest list included the following: Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Pipes, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. White, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Hart, Eric Hart, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. W. H Lanier, Hayden Lanier, of Montgomery, Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Jones, Miss Nell Ross Mullins, and Oscar Jones, Jr., of Florence, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Wyatt, Mr. and Mrs. Kin Vinson, Mr. and Mrs. John Deramus, Mr. Ed Mullins, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Smith, Mr. J. B. Varnell, Rev. and Mrs. R. P. Cochran, Mr. J. B. Atkinson, Miss Sue Mullins, Miss Carrie Foshee, Mr. Arthur Burnett, Dr. and Mrs. V. J. Gragg.

Miscellaneous Shower

Mrs. Tom Taylor was a delightful hostess on Friday afternoon, October 12th when she entertained at a miscellaneous shower at her lovely home in South Clanton, honoring Mrs. Odean Deloach (Marie Fraser), a bride of recent date. The home was attractively decorated with fall flowers. Receiving with the hostess was the honoree, her mother, Mrs. A. G. Fraser and Mrs. R. W. Lowe. Delicious punch was served to the guests as they arrived by Mrs. Luther Culpepper. Presiding over the bride's book was Mrs. Lonnie Richardson, where about fifty guests were registered during the afternoon. Many useful and beautiful gifts were displayed in the lovely bed room. A delicious ice course was served to the guests.

Dr. Ward and Mr. Howard Maddox took in the circus in Montgomery on Saturday night.

Remember next Sunday afternoon is our regular singing evening. Come and bring your books and help us. —Reporter.

PLEASANT HILL NEWS

Last Saturday night and Sunday night were our regular preaching times. Our pastor, W. E. Robinson, was with us, and did some good preaching. We feel sure that Bro. Robinson is going to help us wake up our church, however, there is only a few in our community that do not go to church regular. Neverthless, we are glad to say we have Sunday school every Sunday morning, preaching on the third Saturday night, Sunday and Sunday night. We also have singing on the first Sunday afternoon of each month. We invite the singers from other communities to come and be with us. Listen, if you are a member of Pleasant Hill church, we invite you to be present on the third Saturday night in November, as we are going to call the roll for Pleasant Hill and we would be glad to see every member present. Don't forget the date and try to be with us.—Sec'y.

IN MEMORY OF OSCAR BENNETT

On Sunday morning, October 21, at three o'clock the death angel quietly bore away the spirit of Oscar Bennett, the 15-year-old son of Mr. O. C. Bennett of South Clanton.

Oscar was working on his father's car and had gotten gas on his clothing, when a match was struck and flames enveloped him. He was carried to Central Alabama Hospital, where he died a few hours later.

Oscar was a member of the Methodist church at Haleyville but since he moved to Clanton he has been a faithful member of the Baptist Sunday school at Samaria.

It is with sorrow that we have said goodbye to Oscar, but we know that God in His almighty wisdom knows best and that some day we will understand it all.

The funeral was held at Clanton Methodist church Sunday afternoon at 3:30. The Rev. J. W. Jones officiated, with Martin and Sons in charge. The Intermediate Sunday school class of Samaria, of which he was a member was the honorary pallbearers. He leaves to mourn his loss a father, mother, two sisters, a brother and a host of friends.—Mrs. Arrie Bell Fraser.

Concord - Billingsley

We are sorry to report that there are several on the sick list in our community. We wish them a speedy recovery.

Miss Rosanna Surles spent Saturday night with Miss Mae Lawrence of New Cedron.

Mr. J. P. Williams and son, Mr. Clarence Williams, and Misses Bessie and Jettie Williams visited relatives in Stanton Sunday.

Miss Elsie Herrod of Haynes spent the week end with relatives here.

Mrs. Horace Williams and little son, Alton Earl, spent Saturday with Mrs. W. H. Little.

The last quarterly conference was held at this place Saturday. All the churches were represented. A very nice time was reported by those attending.

Misses Bessie and Jettie Williams spent Thursday afternoon with Miss Esten Brown.

Mr. and Mrs. Teman Cowart visited Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Shaw, Sunday.

Mr. Jack Hayes spent last week end in Birmingham with friends.

REFUGE NEWS

Editor Union-Banner:

Last Saturday and Sunday were our regular preaching days. Our pastor delivered three wonderful messages. There was good attendance at each service. Some visitors were here. We were glad to have them. Visitors Sunday night were Mr. and Mrs. Lester Powell and children. We welcome you and others back at any and all times. Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Easteraling were also visitors, whom we were glad to have. Mr. Elijah Mims was here Sunday to attend services. Let's all come back next Sunday with a well prepared lesson.

Easterling-Easterling

There was a wedding here of much interest Saturday night, at the home of Mr. Cary Easterling. Mr. Leemon Easterling and Miss Cleetie Easterling were united at the bride's home. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Lockhart. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Crawford Easterling. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cary Easterling. The writer wishes them many happy years together.

Our singing Sunday was greatly enjoyed by all present. There were but few directors, but some good songs were sung. Directors were C. H. Robinson, Marion Mims, Delene Robinson, Lavolia Mims, Velma Easterling and M. Lockhart.

We are looking forward to our next regular meeting day as a special oportunity to present our birthday offering. We are varying a bit from our usual way of dropping in our birthday offering as our birthday comes, and expecting the suggestion of our pastor to present the offering for the birthday for the next year on our next meeting day, to get our apportionment extended to us for the purpose of defraying the transportation of Bro, and Sister Woodward and children back to China. We are hoping that everyone interested in this special offering will come prepared to put in your birthday offering for next year, even though your birthday is far away.

COOPER SINGING

The singing at Cooper Sunday was attended by a very large crowd of people. The opening song was sung by Mr. I. D. Huett, followed by prayer.

Many directors were present and may we name a few who had time to take part in our program? W. M. Devaughn elected as chairman. A. H. Glasscock, E. L. Glasscock, C. F. Hull, Floy Devaughn, I. D. Huett, Jesse Jones, Edward Taylor, L. T. Grant, A. O. Boswell, Lee J. Grant, Jean Wyatt, Herman Dubose, O. L. Devaughn and Mr. Yates from Sylacauga.

A spiritual was enjoyed, which was rendered by Mr. W. M. Devaughn and children, Floy, Archie and Lena.

We also had the Rainbow Qaurtet from Sylacauga, composed of Archie Devaughn, Mr. Painter, Mr. Yates and Newton Gilliland, and the Quartet from Prattville, composed of Mr. Taylor, Edward Jones, Mr. Durden, and Miss Taylor.

We appreciate their presence and the part they took on the program. I am sure everyone enjoyed the pretty bass solo rendered by Mr. Melton Hughes.

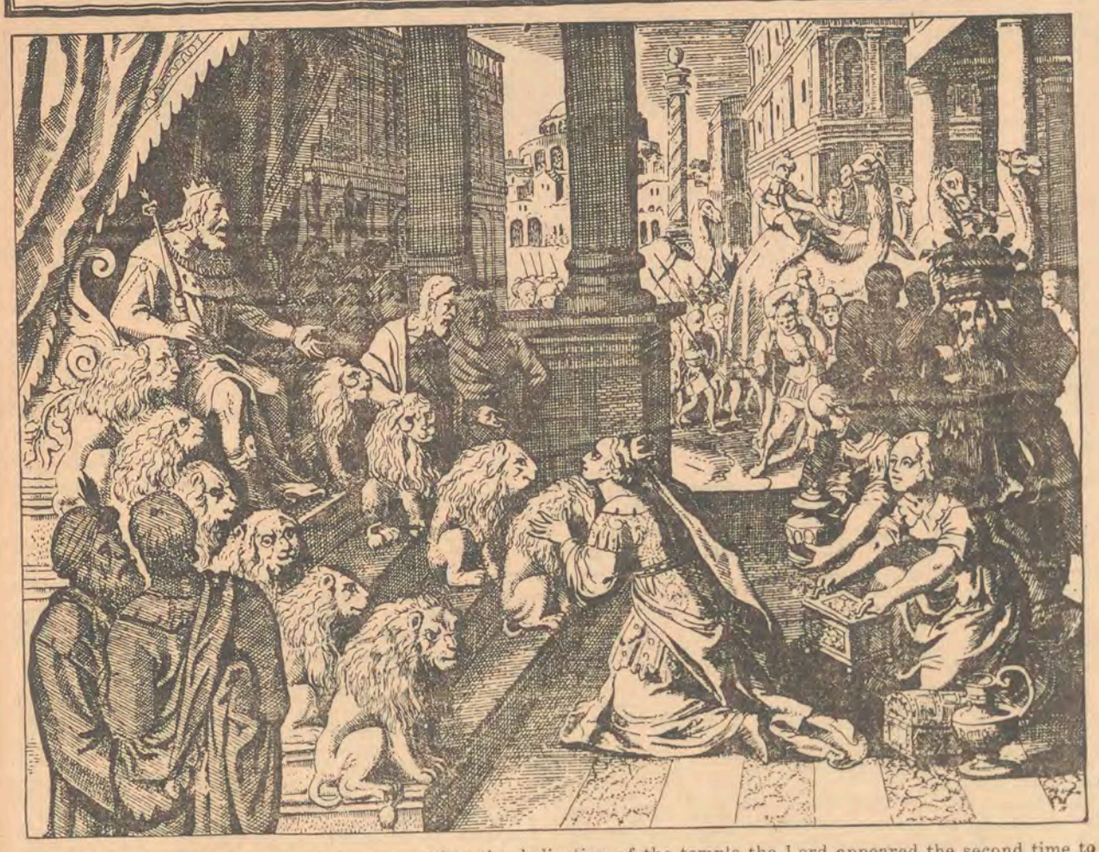
The singing closed about two o'clock, and a large host of friends and relatives were present at the funeral of C. A. Johnson, which was held there Sunday afternoon, conducted by the pastor, Bro. J. W. Jones.—Mrs. Percy Minor, Secretary.

CARD OF THANKS

Dear Editor:

We take this means of expressing our heartfelt thanks to the many friends for the kindness shown us during the death of Rip, Bobbie, and Eleanor Northcutt. Their presence at a time of sorrow like ours was dear to us all. We want to thank Martin and Sons for their kindness. May God's richest blessings rest upon each one.—Glass and Northcutt Families.

The Story of the Bible Told in Pictures



The Queen of Sheba Visits Solomon.—After the dedication of the temple the Lord appeared the second time to Solomon and covenanted with him, promising to uphold the Israelites so long as they obeyed His commandments. "And when the queen of Sheba heard of the fame of Solomon concerning the name of the Lord, she came to Jerusalem with a very great train, with camels that bare spices, and very much gold, and precious stones and when she was come to Solomon, she communed with him of all that was in her heart. And Solomon told her all her questions: there was not anything hid from the king, which he told her not. And when the queen of Sheba had seen all Solomon's wisdom, and the house that he had built, there was no more spirit in her. And she said to the king, It was a true report that I heard in mine own land of thy acts and of thy wisdom. Howbeit I believed not the words, until I came, and mine eyes had seen it; and, behold, the half was not told me: thy wisdom and prosperity exceedeth the fame which I heard."—I Kings 10: 1-7. This illustration is from Merian's story of the Bible in pictures, engraved in 1625.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Growing Like Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Learning to Rule Ourselves.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Evils to Be Avoided.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Evils to Be Overcome.

In order effectively to teach this lesson, the book of Ephesians as a whole must be apprehended. The first three chapters are devoted to the setting forth of the high calling of the believer in Christ. The last three chapters set forth the worthy walk of the believer, in the light of the high calling.

I. The Believer Does Not Walk as the Heathen Do (4:17-19). The believer is a partaker of the new humanity in Christ. Being such, he is no longer to follow after the "old man." It should be observed that the believer in Christ is in conflict with his broken human nature called the "old man." In order to see the walk of the believer in contrast with that of the world, we should see what the walk of the heathen involved.

1. The mind (v. 17). The unregenerate have no clear or settled principle or sound theory of life. No man of a sound mind will worship idols, or practice vices which are odious and ruinous.

2. The spiritual nature (v. 18). Paul says they were "alienated from the life of God." They were indeed ignorant of God.

3. Their moral nature (v. 19). Paul says they were "past feeling." Because of this, they could neither love God nor hate sin, therefore gave themselves over to shameless profligacy.

II. The Believer's Walk as Taught by Christ (4:20-24).

Christ is the pattern of holiness and unselfishness for the believer.

a. The "old man" is to be put off (v. 22). The habits and deeds of the old nature, which are grossly corrupt, are to be put away.

b. The "new man" is to be put on (vv. 23, 24). The "new man" lives a life of righteousness and holiness—the unmistakable signs of a new nature.

III. The Vices Which the New Man Discards (4:25-5:6).

1. Falsehood (v. 25). The renewed man puts off lying. He tells the truth instead. Soundness of faith makes an honest tongue.

2. Anger (vv. 26, 27). By anger is meant not burning indignation against sin, but personal bitterness, which means giving place to the devil.

3. Theft (v. 28). The new man will not steal. He will render honest toil instead. It should be borne in mind that there are other ways of stealing than rifling a cash drawer or seizing another's pocketbook. Taking what does not belong to you, not making proper change in a business transaction, riding on a car and not paying your fare, are stealing.

4. Idle and corrupt speech (vv. 29, 30). Pure conversation is the sure sign of regeneration. Corrupt speech grieves the Holy Spirit.

5. Malice (4:31-5:2). This means badness of disposition expressing itself in bitterness, clamor, and railing. This is to be supplanted with kindness and tender-heartedness.

6. Impurity (vv. 3, 4). Uncleanness of life is peculiarly common among the heathen.

7. Covetousnes or greed (v. 5). Whenever business is allowed to crowd out our spiritual interests we are brought under the control of the flesh or the "old man."

IV. The Walk of the Believer as Filled With the Spirit (5:15-21).

1. His life in relation to the world about him (vv. 15-18).

a. Circumspectly (v. 15). This means to walk with one's eyes open. Every step is to be thoughtfully and prayerfully taken.

b. Diligent to seize every opportunity (v. 16). It means watching the time, that is, bringing it under personal control.

c. He abstains from the intoxicating cup (v. 18). The believer is a total abstainer. This obligation is incumbent upon him today as perhaps in no other day.

2. The inner life or personal state of the believer (vv. 18-21). The one who is filled with the Spirit has an exhilaration from within which expresses itself

a. In supreme joyousness.

b. In thanking God at all times for all things (v. 20).

c. In lowliness of mind (v. 21).

Life's Problems

The problems of life are not solved mainly by those who sit idly under the trees mooning over the ills of existence—they are solved mainly by those who eat and sleep, look up at the stars and down at the flowers, trust in God and in the goodness of their fellows, and steadily accomplish their appointed tasks.

Not That Way

We do not often draw people close to us by telling them what is wrong with them.

Miss Alice Reynolds and daughters of Greenville were the recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Reynolds.

BAKER SCHOOL

We are all back in school and almost ready for the first month's test.

Everyone seems to have a real school spirit this time, and I believe we are going to have a better school than we have had in a long time. We hope so, any way.

We are going to elect who's who in the Junior room, taking one grade each week until we have finished. We are beginning this week with the Jr. III class:

Who's who in Jr. III class: Most studious girl, Gladys Wyatt; neatest girl, Minnie Lee Lockhart; most attracitve girl, Annie Lee Bates; best sport, Claudell Chapman; most dignified girl, Minnie Lee Lockhart; prettiest girl, Annie Lee Bates; most popular girl, Minnie Lee Lockhart; best all round girl, Gladys Wyatt; most dignified boy, Clemon Henley; best looking boy, Willie Blackwell; most popular boy, Willie Blackwell; neatest boy, Clemon Henley; best sport, Zane Lowery; most studious boy, Clyde Bradberry; best all round boy, Willie Blackwell.

The Jr. II class is going to put on a play some time in the near future. So, folks, save up your nickels, dimes and quarters and be ready to come when you see the announcement in the school news.

The girls of this school have organized a glee club and we are expecting to put on some real interesting programs throughout the school year. We hope everyone will take enough interest in us this year to make us have a success in everything we undertake.

Ben Goltsman of Birmingham was here Sunday.

J. N. Dennis Warns Republicans Against Being Misled In Voting

To the Republicans of Chilton County:

As we come close to the general election on the 6th of November, I feel it my duty to urge upon every Republican voter the importance of actively and loyally supporting the Republican ticket in this election.

It appears that there is more than usual of disturbance and dissatisfaction among our people. My careful analysis of the situation brings me to the conclusion that this dissatisfaction is altogether uncalled for, and is being agitated by our political enemies solely for the purpose of disrupting the power and influence of the Republican party.

Let me warn you that defeat at this time means the destruction of the Republican party in Chilton County. I sincerely hope that the people of Chilton County will not surrender to the forces which have been the ancient enemies of our government in this county throughout the past.

As chairman of the Republican Executive Committee, I invite the counsel and advice of every Republican voter and citizen. I urge you to think soberly and seriously over the political situation. Do not be misled by those who would destroy our party.

We have a good ticket nominated. I believe the election of this ticket is the best guaranty for good government in Chilton County in the future. There is no danger of Republican defeat if the Republicans will stand by their party.

To follow those who would lead you away from your party is to walk blindly into the worst political situation that can be imagined for the future.

Regardless of how well we have been served by any of our past officers we have always drawn the line when an effort is being made to deliver us into the hands of our enemies. Those who are not fighting with and for us are no longer our friends, and Republicans can not afford to follow them.

As long as the Republican voters use their own judgment and vote their own convictions they will control this county. But if we allow would-be leaders to dictate, we and our children will suffer.

I believe you will do your duty,

J. N. DENNIS,
Chairman Republican Executive Committee.

SURPRISE BIRTHDAY

On Friday, October 19, a surprise birthday celebration was enjoyed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Easterling, of Beat 16, celebrating the 61st birthday of Mrs. Mahalia Easterling.

Mrs. Easterling knew nothing of plans for the celebration, until friends and members of her family began arriving, laden with gifts and good things to eat. The gifts were many and varied, and the eats were plentiful.

An enjoyable day was spent by all present, and many were the expressions of hope for many more happy birthdays for the honoree.

Those present were Mrs. Euell Johnson and children; Mrs. Minnie P. Mims; Mrs. Paul C. Mims; Mrs. Lula Hardy; Mrs. A. J. Jones; Calvin Jones, from Maxwell Field; Mrs. Kemmie Easterling and children; Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Easterling; Mrs. C. P. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Grady Adams; Mrs. V. M. Mims and children; Mrs. Allie Easterling; Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Easterling and children; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Blalock and children; Mrs. Alice Caton; Judson Easterling; Ethie Easterling.

Mrs. Easterling has 10 children. At the beginning of the celebration she had 23 grandchildren; but before the day was over word came that one other grandchild had been added to the number—a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Judson Easterling.

Mrs. Easterling has five sisters living, three of whom were present.

SCHOOL GIRL IS STRUCK BY CAR AND KILLED

An 11-year-old school girl of Autauga County, Aver Lue Blackmon, was fatally injured Monday afternoon near her home when she was struck by an automobile traveling north on the Birmingham Highway. The child was reported to have died while en route to a Montgomery hospital in the car which had struck her to the pavement.

Parker Masingill, Montgomery County sheriff's deputy, was told that the child was walking northward on the highway toward her home when the accident occurred. Hand-in-hand with two other girls who had just stepped from a school bus with her, the child was said to have been swung suddenly into the road by one of her companions.

Seeing the child move into the road Howard E. Knepp, of Chicago, was said to have swerved his machine to the other side of the highway. A rear fender, however, caught the girl's body and threw her to the pavement.

Knepp placed the girl in his car, went for her parents, and then raced to the Maxwell Field Hospital. Upon arriving the child was examined and pronounced dead.

C. L. Kyser, of Birmingham, who was driving a truck toward Montgomery, and who witnessed the accident, told Coroner John Diffly, that it was unavoidable.

DO YOU GET UP NIGHTS?

ARE YOU OVER 40?

If so, nature is warning you of danger ahead. Get rid of your trouble early. Make this 25c test. Get Juniper Oil, Buchu leaves, etc., in green tablets. Ask for BUKETS, the bladder laxative. Take 12 of them in four days; if not pleased go back and get your money. BUKETS work on the bladder similar to castor oil on the bowels. Flushes out excess acids and other impurities which cause getting up nights, frequent desire, scanty flow, burning, backache or leg pains. You are bound to feel better after this flushing and you get your regular sleep. Guaranteed by Aired Drug Co., and Upchurch Drug Co.

Club Women Hold Meeting

On Thursday, October 18, fifty-two leaders of club women in the county met in Clanton to attend a leadership school conducted by Miss Ruth Pardue, County Home Agent, and Miss Dorothy Dean, clothing specialist, of Auburn.

In the morning a demonstration was given on home-made Christmas ideas. Various toys and gifts were on exhibit, and the leaders gathered many new ideas for Christmas. These will be carried by the leaders back to the club members in their various communities.

During the lunch hou ra nice plate was served by the leaders to sixty-two people. Mr. J. W. Fant, county agent, made a most interesting talk on the Farm Bureau and Co-operative Marketing. We hope to have a large organization in this county.

A handicraft demonstration was given in the afternoon. Many articles were made.

After the leadership meeting was concluded there was a brief business session of the Chilton County Council of Women's Clubs. The following chairmen were selected for three objectives in the county:

Mrs. Chas. Howard, scholarship; Mrs. W. B. Strock, the education of rural women in responsibility of citizenship; Miss Lena Downs, the spread of information about the farm bureau and cooperative marketing.

The Home Agent, Miss Ruth Pardue, and eight council members, will attend a district council meeting on October 27 and 29 at Camp Grandview. This promises to be a very profitable and enjoyable trip. The Elmore Council will be hostess at this meeting.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 28TH IS THE WORLD'S TEMPERANCE SUNDAY

We, representing the Temperance organibzations of Alabama, call this to the attention of the Ministers of Alabama and ask them to bring a message on Temperance and the evils of Alcohol to their respective congregations on this date.

We urge every Sunday school teacher to observe World's Temperance Sunday by teaching the Temperance lesson as set forth in our Sunday school literature on that date.

We also request our preachers, Christian laymen and women to organize a Temperance Society in every church in Alabama.

MONTGOMERY FIRM CLOSES AFTER N. R. A. DEMAND

Montgomery, Ala., Oct 22. — The Dixie Broom Company plant, 412 Montgomery St. Monday suspended operations for in indefinite period, following an order by H. T. Fitzpatrick, field adjuster for the NRA, for the payment of code wages to machine operators in the plant.

The order for payment of code wages and back pay over a period of several months, however, according to Samuel Helburn, president of the company, was not responsible for the closing of the plant.

The plant, he said, had recently been operating at a loss because of the advance in raw material, despite the fact that less than code wages were being paid. He said there was no dishpute regarding the code wage nor regarding the amount of back pay due the employees. When raw material costs have decreased sufficiently to warrant operation of the plant at a profit, he said, the plant will be reopened and code wages will be paid. Mr. Helburn said he hoped to reopen the factory within the next week or two.

TRAVELING SALESMAN HURT IN AUTOMOBILE WRECK SAT.

Mr. H. E. Dryden, traveling salesman, of Montgomery, was severely injured about 11:30 last Saturday morning in an automobile wreck two miles north of Jemison.

Mr. Dryden was going toward Birmingham traveling alone in his car. He lost control of the car and it crashed through the guard rail and down an embankment. The driver was pinned beneath the car.

The injured man was brought to Central Alabama Hospital by Martin's ambulance.

FARM PROGRAM NOW UNDER WAY

Plans Announced For Rehabilitation Program Beginning November 1

The rural rehabilitation program in Chilton County is well under way with the classification of the 300 farm families removed from relief in September being done by the Rural Rehabilitation committee. Only families with a farming background who were on relief during the month of September, and farmers who were on the Rehabilitation program the past season will be considered. No relief will be given these families until they are approved by the state director of rural rehabilitation.

The purposes of the rehabilitation program are: To enable a farm family dislocated by the depression to make a new start in the production of the major portion of their livelihood from farming operations, to train and educate such families in the best accepted methods of cultivation and farm management and to assist those families who have shown themselves adapted to land ownership to obtain a chance to purchase a farm home. Recommendations of families for the purchase of land to Credit agencies will not be made, however, until they have demonstrated their sincerity of purpose and have first produced a year's subsistence for themselves and their livestock.

It is planned to use steers almost entirely for the rehabilitation program and in no instance will the purchase of mules be approved where feed must also be purchased.

This year definite rental agreements will be made by the rural subscribers in group I. The following agreements may be accepted:

1. If a share of the crop is paid by the subscriber to the landlord, the land should be obtained for a period of more than one year with the option to purchase at any time during the period of this lease, or at its expiration, at a specified price.

2. The rural rehabilitation corporation will furnish all fertilizer and supervision and one-fourth or one-fifth of the cash crops such as corn, cotton and peanuts will be the consideration. Any necessary repairs under this agreement are done by the landlord. If land embraced in this contract are lands already rented to the government they should have a much lower value.

3. Where cash rent is the consideration, rentals should not be considered unless cotton right accompany the land. On land having cotton rights, where a portion of the total acreage is offered for rural rehabilitation, such acreage should carry its pro rata part of such cotton rights. The option to purchase is desirable in all rental agreements.

4. Where improvements are the consideration for rent a lease for a term of years commensurate with the appraised value of such improvements will be expected.

5. All rental agreements must be approved by the director of work, and will be subject to further approval by the state office before family is accepted as a subscriber.

Subscribers in group 1 are expected to make their own arrangements in regard to securing land. The relief administration will endeavor to help the applicant find such location, but the burden of obtaining land will rest with the applicant. Inability on the part of the applicant to secure land may mean that he will be dropped from group 1 into group 2.

Subscribers in group 2 will be concentrated on farms under supervision. Work stock and equipment belonging to the rural rehabilitation corporation will be used for the cultivation of these subsistence farms. Local representatives of the rural rehabilitation corporation will undertake to obtain private employment for members of this group. This will be done by arranging with farmers to hire this labor at the local wage rate, to build terraces, dig ditches, etc. The rehabilitation corporation will furnish the necessary engineering work. Crops grown on this farm will be stored for their future use, and the plan is to make this group self-sustaining so far as food is concerned. They will be furnished necessary food and will receive as additional compensation a share of the farm products in proportion to the amount of work they have performed.

COOKING SCHOOL BY W. M. U.

Circles 2 and 5 of the Baptist W. M. U. will give cooking demonstrations in conjunction with the Alabama Power Company in the basement of the Clanton Baptist church next Tuesday and Wednesday, November 13 and 14.

Prizes will pe given by business firms of Clanton. Full details will be given in next week's paper.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Easterling, last Saturday night, October 27, a son, whom they have named James Clarence. Mother and babe are both doing well.

BOOKS AND CLOTHING WANTED

One of the outstanding problems confronting the local child welfare workers is the problem of securing books and clothing for children whose parents are unable to provide these necessities and who are unable to attend school because of this. The county welfare superintendent and the county attendance officer are visiting each school in the county this week and they are asking that the school children who have good clothing that they have outgrown or no longer need, contribute these clothes and books to the less fortunate children of the county.

They are asking that these books and articles of clothing be brought to the local schoolhouses on Friday, November 9, or to the office of the child welfare superintendent in Clanton on or before that date. It is hoped that in this way sufficient clothing and books will be secured to place and keep all of Chilton County's underprivileged children in school this winter.

New Rules For Relief Workers

Changes In Regulations Begin With New Program Today

The following letter has been sent to all persons on work relief in Chilton County:

"We are in receipt of the following bulletin from Mr. Thad Holt, director Alabama Relief Administration, Montgomery, Ala:

"Effective November 2nd, the following regulations will apply to persons assigned to approved work projects. All persons assigned to work projects should be notified in writing immediately of these regulations.

"1. Any person failing to report to a work project on any day and at the hour assigned will be automatically removed from the relief and cannot be reinstated within thirty days. The only exception to this ruling may be made by the Director of Work personally upon satisfactory evidence furnished by worker.

"2. Any worker, supervisory or otherwise, who fails to accomplish amount of work considered by Work Director as a normal performance shall be removed from relief, and cannot be reinstated within thirty days.

"3. All persons on work projects must maintain active application for other work at the local office of the National Reemployment Service, if open. Proof of this must be available at all times by possession of a white re-registeration slip (Form 69-M) showing reporting date, which must be later than current date.

"4. Failure to report for a job assignment from the National Reemployment Service will be cause for immediate removal from relief."

These regulations are intended to insure an honest day's work for an honest day's pay for all persons coming to public relief as a last resort."

The rules and regulations as set forth above will be strictly enforced in all coses.—Chilton County Child Welfare Board, Floyd Smith Director of Work.

PASTORS CONFERENCE TO MEET

The Pastors Conference of the Chilton-Unity Associations will meet Monday of next week at the Clanton Baptist church at 10 a.m. A cordial invitation is extended to any other person who wishes to attend.—S. J. Ezell, president; J. W. Jones, secretary.

COTTON REPORT

Prior to October 18, this year there were 10,564 bales of cotton ginned in Chilton County compared to 10,349 prior to the same date last year. These figures are from the official report of B. L. Vance, cotton census enumerator for Chilton County, and given out for publication Monday of this week.

GENTRY-CULVER

The following announcement appeared in last Suday's Birmingham News:

Mrs. Henry Gentry, of Mountain Creek, announces the engagement of her daughter, Florence Alma, of Clanton, to Clayton A. Culver, of Selma, the wedding to take place at an early date.

MRS. RENIE ELLISON DIED

The death angel visited the home of Mrs. Renie Ellison on September 28. leaving a host of friends and relatives to mourn her loss. Mrs. Ellison was 58 years old, a member of the Baptist church, a good neighbor and loving friend. She was the mother of thirteen living children and twenty six grandchildren. Mr. Ellison died several years ago, leaving his wife with a large responsibility. Mrs. Ellison had typhoid fever, and lived only a month. Mrs. Ellison's house was in the path of the terrible storm in March three years ago. The storm found Mrs. Ellison on her knees in prayer and she and her family were protected by God, who she put her trust in. And I feel sure that this same God is still protecting her and she is sweetly sleeping in Paradise.

She was laid to rest in Union church cemetery.

Mrs. J. Q. Wade and Mr. Jack Wade spent Monday in Montgomery.

Republican Ticket Deserves To Win

[AN EDITORIAL]

This is the last editorial the Union-Banner will have an opportunity to write before the election which comes next Tuesday. We want to use this opportunity to impress on the Republicans of the county as forcibly as possible the great importance of supporting and electing the Republican ticket. We would like to completely summarize the issues of the present campaign in this final message, but space and time will not permit. However, there are a few outstanding points of the campaign that we will touch upon in this final statement to the voters.

We will refer first to the report of examiners which came out last week charging Mr. J. Z. Mims with a shortage in the accounts of his office. In explanation of those charges Mr. Mims has in this paper a complete diagnosis of the case, and we believe he presents facts that will convince any reasonable and thinking person that the report on his office was for the purpose of hurting him politically; and further, we believe he shows conclusively, as far as he has had time to compare his records, that the charges made against him have already been paid and properly discharged by his office. Mr. Mims invites all who may be interested to come to his office, where he is prepared to show the records that will prove that the money charged to him has already been paid. We urge the Republicans of Chilton County to fully and fairly consider this matter in justice to Mr. Mims, in doing which we believe you can do nothing but admit that the whole matter is a political move, pure and simple, for the deliberate purpose of seeking to defeat the Republican candidate for Probate Judge.

Much has been said about the gasoline business in this campaign, by those who sought to use it for political effect to hurt the Republican ticket. Again, we would insist, in fairness to all, that the gasoline business is not a responsibility of those who are on the Republican ticket in this election. Further, the gasoline business has been fully investigated by the grand jury, and no action was therein taken against those who rumor had said were so crooked. It appears that the gasoline argument, like Charlie Cooper's turtle, has shrunk up a whole lot since folks began to see into it.

Our Republican voters should beware of the high-pressure methods of some of the opposition. It has been openly charged that the purpose of the Democrats is to gain this election, even if they have to buy it or steal it. The Union-Banner is not in position to say whether they have such plans or not. But we do know that the rumor constitutes one of the most important phases of the campaign. The whole structure of our social and political order rests upon the rights of the people to go into elections and cast their ballots free from influence of lawlessness and money. The Republican party does not have a pile of money with which to influence mercenary voters. We would not endorse such methods if it did have it. We warn our people to be careful of such methods, as it is dangerous.

Further, we would remind those who talk about buying or stealing this election that it is a federal election, in which Uncle Sam has an interest, and therefore it is a dangerous thing to talk about matters that will lead one into conflict with the federal laws of this country.

The absentee ballott seems to be a popular item of conjecture. Reports are rife that crookedness is being practiced in this connection. Our Republican voters should be on guard to see that their rights and privileges are recognized by those in authority in this matter.

The question of law enforcement in the county is one that is important in this campaign. You will elect officials who will be responsible for this important duty in future years. We would remind you that you have before you the life and record of the men who are asking for office. You know what they will be confronted with when they get into office. Some of them have already been in public office, and you have had a chance to observe them. We need officials who will enforce the laws of our country and preserve the rights of our citizens. There can be no question but that the men on the Republican ticket can be depended upon in this important matter if they are elected to public office.

In conclusion, we appeal to the reason, common sense and sound judgment of the voters of Chilton County, and ask that you make an honest effort to properly weigh all of the many issues that are represented in this campaign. Somebody will fool you if you don't be careful. In all the maze of uncertainty and conflicting argument, there is a ground of reason and justice upon which all good citizens may stand. We hope every voter may be wise in finding such ground and proceeding from there to exercise his franchise accordingly.

Despite the claims of the opposition, we firmly believe the Republican ticket will win in Chilton County next Tuesday. We believe it will win, because it deserves to win.

MR. W. H. WILSON IS FOR THE WHOLE REPUBLICAN TICKET

Editor Union-Banner:

I hear it has been stated by somebody that I am not supporting the Republican ticket in Chilton County. I want to say that such a report is false.

I am heartily in favor of the election of every man on the Republican ticket, and am giving my full support to each and every one of them.

Let me urge all Republicans in the county to stand firm by our ticket on election day. We are in a critical time in this county, and if we fail to elect our Republican ticket, we will live to see the day we will be sorry of it.—Respectfully, W. H. Wilson.

A. H. GLASSCOCK NOW RETIRED

Wednesday was the last day for A. H. Glasscock to carry the mail on Jemison Route 2, as that finished up his 30 years as a rural letter carrier, and with that date he was retired on pension.

In a very striking manner Mr. Glassbid his patrons farewell by presenting to all of them a card, very fittingly worded for his parting message.

JACK HAYES HAS BOUGHT OUT REID MOTOR COMPANY

Last week Mr. Jack Hayes purchased the Reid Motor Company, Chevrolet Dealers, in Montevallo, Ala. In the future Mr. Hayes will spend part of his time at Montevallo, but the business over there will be under the direct management of Mr. Barney Burnett.

Mr. Clarence "Chick" Fiquette has gone to Montevallo to handle the salesmanship of Chevrolets for that territory.

All three of these young men are hustlers, and it is predicted that they will make a stupendous success of their new enterprise.

WILL OBSERVE WEEK OF PRAYER

The W. M. S. ladies of the Clanton Methodist church will observe week of prayer next week, beginning Monday and continuing through Friday. Meetings will be held at the Methodist church each afternoon at 3 o'clock. All ladies of the town and community are invited to attend and especially the Methodist ladies. Mrs. Omar Reynolds is president of the society.

WOODWARDS LEAVE FOR CHINA

Dr. and Mrs. Frank T. Woodward left Birmingham Wednesday on their long journey back to China, where they will spend seven more years as missionaries to that far eatsern land. They have already spent six years in China, immediately preceding the three years they have been in Birmingham.

The Woodwards, with their three children, Adelle, Betty and Glenna, will visit friends in Texas, thence to San Francisco, to get on the boat, President Cleveland, on November 16. They will land in Hong Kong around December 1st.

These missionaries are being sent to this foreign land jointly by the Birmingham Baptist Association and Yadkin Association in North Carolina. Their support was pledged by Baptist churches in Chilton County and Cleburne and Ataska, Texas.

Dr. and Mrs. Woodward closed a series of meetings in Clanton two weeks ago, and while here made many friends. Mrs. Woodward is a native of Chilton County, the sister of Rev. Grady Williams.

Program Sponsored By Parent-Teacher Association of Grammar School

Arrangements are going forward for a mammoth occasion at the courthouse Friday night, November 9th, when the Parent-Teacher Association of Clanton Grammar school will sponsor an old time fiddlers convention and musical entertainment.

As stated heretofore the merchants of Clanton have been requested to donate articles of merchandise to be given as prizes to those who take part on the program. After solicitation of the merchants the following list of things are announced:

Taylor Dry Goods Co., a pair of overalls; Upchurch Drug Co., Gem Razor and blades; Farmers Hardware Co., flash light; A. & P. Tea Co., one sack of Sunnyfield Flour; Southern Seed and Plant Co., one pound turnip seed; Tom Kemp, one work shirt; The Fair Store, one bandana handkerchief; Service Barber Shop, one shampoo and tonic; Ben's one pair of socks; Clanton Building Supply Co., one pocket knife.

Calloway Drug Co., one hair brush; Dixie Cafe, one regular dinner; The Leader, one dress shirt; Clanton Jr. Department Store, one necktie; Hill Grocery Co., five prizes of one pound of Royal Cup Coffe, each; Wingard Bros., one pair of socks; Alred Drug Co., one spot light; J. R. Mullins Co., one pair dress socks; Clanton Cash Store, one sack flour; Clanton Wholesale Grocery Co., one 12-pound sack of flour; The Dollar Store, sterling silver belt buckle; Wade Grocery Co., 20 pounds of sugar; E. L. Klinner Furniture Co., one set of four mixing bowls; Tiffin-Klinner Furniture Co., 26-piece silver set.

All fiddlers, musicians and entertainers in this section are invited to come and take part in the program. The above items will be listed as prizes in the order of their estimated value, and awarded according to the rating of the judges of the contest.

The Parent-Teacher Association of Clanton Grammar School will sponso a fiddlers convention at the court house in Clanton Friday night, November 9th.

About thirty prizes will be given by the merchants and business men of Clanton. List of the prizes donated will be published next week.

All fiddlers and musicians who wish to enter the contest are requested to see or notify W. M. Wyatt at The Union-Banner, as early as possible.

LEO ALRED SALESMAN FOR HAYES CHEVROLET COMPANY

Mr. Leo Alred, popular and prominent young business man of Clanton, announces this week that he has formed a conection with Hayes Chevrolet Company, of Clanton, as salesman for Chevrolet in this territory.

Mr. Alred will be glad of an opportunity to show the Chevrolet to any of his friends who may be prospects for an automobile.

INEZ WYATT WON MENTION NATION PHOTO CONTEST

It was announced in The Montgomery Advertiser Sunday that little Inez Wyatt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Wyatt, had won honorable mention in the National Photographic contest held during August and September. A neatly framed certificate was issued to eight children over the state by Nachman & Meertief, Montgomery photographers, all of whom received honorable mention in the contest.

Little Inez Wyatt won a similar honor in a photographic contest put on by Paulger's Studio in Montgomery two years ago.

Mr. N. C. Cady, manager of the Western Newspaper Union office, in Birmingham, was a business visitor to Clanton Tuesday. Mr. Cady makes occasional visits to newspaper offices all over Alabama, and is considered one of the best friends of the country editors.

J. Z. MIMS SAYS REPORT UNFAIR

Voters Invited to Come to His Office and See Proof of His Claims

To the People of Chilton County:

It has been impossible for me to see personally every voter in the county and I am taking this method of making a final appeal to every voter in the county for their vote and influence in support of my candidacy for Probate Judge of Chilton County. By reason of the fact that circuit court is in session this week, I will be prevented from making this appeal in person.

I have pitched my campaign upon a high plane and I have the satisfaction of knowing that I have conducted my campaign on that line and have struck no blow below the belt, notwithstanding the unfair, foul and slanderous attack that has been made on me. In another letter to the people I have fully, honestly and completely refuted the charges made against me in the report of my office as circuit clerk by the examiners who have recently investigated my office. I here repeat with all the emphasis at my command that the charges in that report are untrue and without any basis of fact. The circumstances in which this investigation was made, and the late hour in which the report was rendered, are sufficient to convince every fair-minded man and woman that the diabolical plot was conceived not for the public good, but to satisfy the spleen and venom of certain individuals who have sought to encompass the defeat of the Republican ticket and the destruction of the Republican party in Chilton County.

Not only are these enemies trying to encompass my defeat and the defeat of the Republican ticket, but to rob me of my good name and to take from me the very home that I live in away from me by a charge of shortage against me which is untrue and which the records of my office show I have already paid. I invite and hereby insist that as many as can come in and look at the records in my office. You do not have to be an accountant but if you can read I can show you in two minutes the falsity of the report and can convince you of the great harm it intended to do me.

The principles that will perpetuate such a scheme is dangerous to a free people. I am calling upon the good people of Chilton County to denounce to the death any such spirit at the polls on November 6.

Should they succeed in defeating me and the Republican party they would laugh in their sleeves and say, "Didn't we fool those ignorant people." My friends it would not mean so much to defeat me but it does mean much to the people of this county to destroy the very foundation of the good government we have enjoyed for twenty years or more and to destroy the party that has brought it for us. I do not believe you are going to do it. We can least afford it at this time.

My faith in the inetlligence, the fairness and patriotism of the people of Chilton County is undiminished and I feel justified in asking their support in this election.

I wish to impress Republicans with the fact that the Democrats of the state are making a concerted drive against our party in this county in the hope that if they do defeat our ticket in this election they will place Chilton County safely and permanently with the Democratic column. It is highly important that every Republican in the county vote in this election, and I earnestly desire the success of our entire ticket.

At this time I wish to state that many charges have been whispered in this campaign as to what promises I have made and what policies I will adopt. I have made no promises of employment to any man. I belong to no ring or clique and neither am I under obligations to any such, and the only policy that I am committed to is the program for an honest, sound, economical administration of the county's affairs and to endeavor to so operate our county government as to best serve our entire people and give them honest value for every dollar of their tax money.

Reared as I have been, amongst the farmers of this county, I have locked in my heart the incidents and traditions of the common people and they are mine forever. Every heartbeat of my life is in sympathy with the people of this county. I feel and believe that I know their need and if I am elected Probate Judge I pledge to the people that I will dedicate myself and all my efforts to the service of their best and highest interest.

Assuring the people of my heartfelt gratitude for their vote and influence, and again urging the election of the entire Republican ticket, I am, Yours Faithfully, J. Z. MIMS.

(Paid Pol. Adv.)

Work on building a new church for the Foursquare people of Clanton and immediate territory was begun this week on their newly purchased lot on First Avenue and Third Street. The structure will be of brick, and promises to be a neat, up-to-date little building in every respect.

J. N. Scott Urges Full Rep. Support

Editor Union-Banner:

Please give me another space for a few more words to the Republican votrs of Chilton County. I want to warn you again to look out and do not be deceived. If we turn in and elect some of the Democrats and leave out some of our Republicans and give up our two higest officers who hold the greatest power of the county, the Probate Judge and Sheriff, they will have enough to ruin our county.

I know you have not forgotten the time when the people of Chilton county elected the last Democratic Probate Judge and Sheriff. What did they do for us? During their time in office they ran our county into debt two hundred and forty thousand dollars, and the county could not get a piece of lumber to build a water box across a ditch. You all know that you had to take script for your county claims which you could not sell for 50 cents in the dollar.

Don't forget those conditions. It can happen again, and most likely will if we make a mistake. Why should we desert any of our nominees? How can any Republican expect more out of a Democrat than a Republican? Why should we get stampeded at this time and elect some Democrats to office that will tear down and destroy in the next six years what we have worked hard to build for the past 24 years. What will that pay us, I ask the thinking Republicans of this county.

Just look what the Democratic party has done for us in this cotton business and a lot of other things. Should we turn over the affairs of our county to them to be messed up in the same way?

I hear quite a bit of rumor about some efforts that the Democrats are making to pull off some tricks about absent voters. I want to warn our Republicans to be on guard and let us see that our ballots are cast fair and square, as the Republican party has always above all else, stood for fair and honest elections.

Let us stand in a solid front and go to the polls and vote a straight Republican ticket. Oh yes, they are hollering Mims is short. Why did they hold this report back until the last days of the campaign? It is a low down trick to do a thing like that. I will think more of a man and vote for him quicker when the other side uses such things to defeat our ticket. It is only an evidence that the person so attacked is of good character.

Let us not make a mistake just because one man is not satisfied and is going back to the old mire. Let us think well of the past and continue like we have done before, stay together, vote together, be of the same kind, and elect our Republican ticket. —Respectfully, J. N. Scott, Jemison, Ala.

IN LOVING MEMORY

On Thursday night, October 25, 1934 the death angel came into Vermont community and took from us a darling school mate, Clara Turner, who was only 19 years of age.

She was a member of the Antioch church.

She was dearly loved by all who knew her. Only confined to her bed for one month before her death.

She leaves to mourn her loss a host of school mates and four broken hearted teachers of Vermont Junior High school. She was laid to rest in Sardis cemetery Friday afternoon.—A friend, Lizzie Mae Lewis.

DON'T GET UP NIGHTS

If You Are Over 40.

If so, nature is warning you of danger ahead. Get rid of your trouble early. Make this 25c test. Get Juniper Oil, Buchu leaves, etc., in green tablets. Ask for BUKETS, the bladder laxative. Take 12 of them in four days; if not pleased go back and get your money. BUKETS work on the bladder similar to castor oil on the bowels. Flushes out excess acids and other impurities which cause getting up nights, frequent desire, scanty flow, burning, backache or leg pains. You are bound to feel better after this flushing and you get your regular sleep. Guaranteed by Alred Drug Co., and Upchurch Drug Co.

WHAT IS THE RED CROSS DOING IN ALABAMA NOW?

Alabama has a local unit of the American Red Cross in every county in the state ready to respond to calls for aid in emergencies.

This past year the Red Cross answered the call for aid in two tornadoes in the state. (Since 1926 the National Red Cross has spent more money in Alabama than has been contributed by the people of Alabama in Red Cross memberships and donations to disaster relief funds; during that period there have been 21 disasters in Alabama severe enough to need Red Cross aid.)

This year the National Red Cross held a disaster relief institute in Birmingham which public officials and Red Cross chapter officials attended, studying the methods of giving relief to disaster sufferers from the experience gained by the Red Cross in handling over 1,000 disasters since 1881.

Alabama nurses belong to the Red Cross Nursing Reserve, ready to respond to calls from the Army, Navy or the Red Cross disaster service. Red Cross nurses are teaching classes of women and girls home hygiene and home care of the sick.

The National Red Cross maintains at the veterans facility at Tuscaloosa expert claims service to assist the county chapters in aiding disabled ex-service men. Red Cross volunteers in Tuscaloosa visit the veterans hospital there carrying cheer and aid to the sick men. The Red Crsos has a representative at the Army Camps to assist when in trouble. The same service is given the coast guard.

This year nearly every Alabama chapter has cooperated in teaching first aid to the CWA workers. At present many chapters are conducting first aid classes for anyone who wishes to enter. Also the national Red Cross is cooperating with all the CCC camps in Alabama in the teaching of first aid to the men in the CCC camps.

Two chapters maintain four highway first aid stations on U. S. 31 and 11, to give aid to victims of automobile accidents.

There are 100 Red Cross Life Saving instructors in Alabama and this past year 5,287 men, women and children were taught swimming, life saving and water safety methods. These classes are being taught every week of the year. This summer the Red Cross held a special school of life saving for leaders from Alabama CCC camps.

The national Red Cross is supplying local chapters with yeast for pellagra victims to help Alabama Health Officers fight this dread disease.

In almost every county Alabama Red Cross chapters are giving emergency aid to unfortunate people who for some reason or other need relief and cannot be aided through the relief administration.

The junior Red Cross is organized in many of the Alabama schools, giving the juniors an opportunity of learning early in life the joy of giving service to others. There are 59,733 children in Alabama schools who have taken the junior Red Cross motto "I Serve" as their personal motto.

President Roosevelt says "I can be counted on to foster and aid in every way in my power the great work your organization (The American Red Cross) must carry on." Can you be counted on too?

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

Last Sunday morning found a number of relatives and friends on their way to the home of Rev. P. G. Johnson of Columbiana, Alabama, to celebrate his forty-fifth birthday. The living room and dining room of the spacious home were attractively decorated for the occasion. Punch was served the guests as they arrived, from a table beautifully decorated with cut flowers. Fifty-three guests registered during the day.

At noon the guests were invited into the living room. Pot plants furnished the decoration for the dining room. In the center of the table was a huge birthday cake with forty-five candles aglow. Pink and white was the color scheme and was delightfully carried out.

Those enjoying this wonderful hospitality of Mr. Johnson were: Brothers, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Johnson, Clanton; Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Johnson, Maplesville; Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Johnson, Pine Hill; one sister, Mrs. Hannah Taylor, of Clanton; other relatives were Mr. and Mrs. Ruby Argo and children, Bessie Mae, James Lee, Joseph, Eloise and Mary Frances, of Calera; Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Johnson and family, J. W., Osmond, Myrtice, Audrey and Lois Fay; Mrs. W. M. Nelson and four children, Earlston, Ausley, Jean and Lamar; Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Scott and little daughter, Arrita; Mr. and Mrs. Bernie Johnson and son, James Edwin; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Johnson and baby, Carroll Lanier, all of Clanton.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Johnson and children, Betty Jean, and Preston Odean; Mrs. H. A. Milstead and baby Billie, and Miss Louise Johnson, all of Maplesville; Miss Jessie Johnson, of Pine Hill; Mr. J. B. Cummings; Mrs. Lester Coe and baby; Dorothy Dean, of Gurnee Junction.

Others were, Mr. E. W. Atchison, Mr. Meadow Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Joe M. Hollidays, Mr. Luther Folwer, Mr. E. L. Barber and Mr. W. W. Carter, all of Columbiana; and Mr. T. W. Bryan, of Clanton.

Mrs. J. L. Malone and children, Azile, Yvonne and Joe Max, also Miss Faye Edwards of Selma, were visitors of D. F. Goff and family and Miss Cleo Broadhead Sunday.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

This is being dictated aboard the steamship "City of Hamburg" of the Baltimore Mail Line en route to Europe. By the way, if you are planning a trip to Europe, I should like to recommend the Baltimore Mail Line. The ships are not large, but they are most comfortable. The food is delightful and the rooms are luxurious. Best of all, the price is most reasonable.

In our party we have Mrs. Jones, Miss Margaret Parker, national secretary of the Young People's Fellowship Clubs, James Zellner, Jimmie Johnson and Fred Brown. It is like a family of six. Marjorie and the three boys are graduates of the Bob Jones College and they all seem like my own children. Marjorie has been my secretary for several years. All but Jimmie Johnson and James Zellner have been a little seasick, but nobody was seriously ill. I know of no rest quite as satisfying as a sea voyage. You can't worry about anything when you are aboard a ship out on the ocean. I didn't know how tired I was until I sat down on deck and felt a breath from the ocean blowing on my cheek. For eight years I have not for a single moment been free from strain or from burden of responsibility. We have been out only three days and I begin to feel rested.

In crossing the Atlantic a few years ago I heard a man ask a ship officer, "How far is it to land?" About four miles straight down," the officer replied. The ocean is mighty deep in some places, but I remember in the Bible something about our sins being buried in the depths of the sea. I hope mine have been put in the deepest part of the deepest ocean. It is a great joy to know that our sins are remembered against us no more forever. God forgives and He forgets all of our sins.

When we did not sail at Norfolk at 3:00 o'clock on the minute as scheduled, I asked a ship officer why the delay. "We are waiting for clearance papers." he replied. Then he explained to me that since the "City of Hamburg" would land at French and German ports it was necessary for the ship to receive clearance papers from the German and French consuls. In other words, if we land in these foreign ports, the representatives of these governments are responsible to see to it we have nothin gon the ship in the way of disease or contagion which might do injury to their countries. It occurred to me that if a representative of a foreign government must "O.K." a ship before it can land in his port, that God has a right to say the conditions under which we are to land in the heavenly port. Jesus, the representative of that heavenly city, came down to earth and died on the cross bearing our sins in His body. We must be cleansed from all sin if we are to land some day in the port of the city whence He came and to which He has gone to prepare a place for us.

Sitting on deck today one of the crew came near me and unscrewed a little brass door on the floor near my feet. I asked him what he was doing. "I will show you," he replied. He let a rope with a piece of iron attached to it down the hole and then took it up and felt of the iron to see if it was wet. He said, "I am sounding to find out if there is a leak anyhwere in the boat. I do this every day. If there is a small leak we want to know it so we can mend it." It occurred to me that it is important for us to sound our lives day by day with the Word of God to see if there are any leaks in our character; and if leaks are found, by the grace of God we should mend them before they become big and sink the ship of character in the sea of life. A little sin in our character neglected by us becomes by the very act of our neglect a big sin.

In the dining room of our ship there are six gentlemen at a table near ours. They speak of it as the "International Group." It so happens that all of these gentlemen were born in different countries. One is German, one is English, one is French, one is Swiss, one is American, and one is from Holland. They are an interesting group and seem to be above the average in intelligence. They have a lot of fun. What a great pity nations can't get along like that. The table is a good place to get together. We are all so human. It doesn't matter where we were born or where we were reared, we have the same heart longings. As a minister of the Gospel, it is wonderful for me to know that Jesus Christ, my Lord, can satisfy the longing of every human heart.

Fewer Aches and Pains More Health and Pleasure

PAIN drags you down—physically, mentally, morally.

Why continue to endure it? Try Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills for Headache, Neuralgia, Muscular, Rheumatic, Sciatic, and Periodic Pains. They seldom fail.

Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills are pleasant to take and prompt to act. They do not upset the stomach, cause constipation or leave you with a dull, depressed feeling.

Ask your druggist or any of the hundreds of thousands enthusiastic users. Probably you too can find relief.

I think all Dr. Miles medicines are wonderful, but Anti-Pain Pills are my favorite.
Mrs. Doc Blankenship, Stamford, Texas

I have used your Anti-Pain Pills only a short time, but they have given me prompt relief. They did for me in a week more than any other medicine I had taken for a year. Phil Goller,
Milwaukee, Wisconsin

I am never without Anti-Pain Pills. I think they are much better than anything else I have ever used. Sometimes when I am tired and nervous, and feel like I would go under, I take two Anti-Pain Pills and in a sort time I feel like a different person.
Mrs. S. Tidabach,

Hughes Wants Sheriff's Place

To the Voters of Chilton County:

I am making this last appeal to you through the Union-Banner for your vote and influence for the Republican nominees next Tuesday, November 6th, as I feel this the best thing for us to do, considering the financial condition of our county compared to other adjoining counties.

I have made a clean fight for the election of sherrif of this county and certainly appreciate the confidence the voters had in giving me the nomination in the primary, and I want you to vote your convictions next Tuesday, and if elected, I will do my best to serve the public as a whole to the very best of my ability, regardless of how you voted.—Respectfully yours, Dewey Hughes.

H. A. HARRIS, REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE, CIRCUIT CLERK

To the Voters of Chilton County:

As we come close to the general election I want to again thank you and express my appreciation for your support and influence which enabled me to win the Republican nomination for Clerk of the Circuit Court.

Your vote and influence in the general election on next Tuesday will be fully appreciated, and I pledge to the people of Chilton County, if elected as Circuit Clerk, I will render a fair, honest and impartial administration of the affairs of the office.

My policy in life has always been to be courteous and to manifest kindness toward everyone. I have been in public life heretofore, and have always tried to serve my fellow citizens in a manner that would be pleasing and satisfactory to them, always having due regard for the right in every relationship.

I appeal to all Republicans to be loyal and stand by the Republican ticket next Tuesday in order that we may sustain our party by a substantial majority. I appeal to all good citizens to give fair consideration to the things the Republican party stands for, and assure everyone that your support will be appreciated.

Again thanking you for your past support, and pledging you the best service that I can give in the future, I am, respectfully, H. A. Harris. (Paid Pol. Adv.)

J. Z. Mims Explains Examiner Charges

To the People of Chilton County:

I promised the voters of this county in last week's issue of the papers that I would make a full and complete answer to the charges appearing in the Montgomery Advertiser in the issue last week and to which there was not sufficient time to reply then.

While this matter is not included in those charges, I want to answer it now. A charge was made in a letter recently written by Mr. G. S. Burnette and G. W. Mims, and appearing in the Chilton County News, in which they made a charge that I was short in my acounts in 1929 in a sum of $3,000.00. This charge is absolutely false and untrue, and I wish to say that during the recent primary campaign this charge was whispered, but no one ever dared to openly make it. I think that a conclusive answer, besides my word, to this is a telegram that I received on June 4th of this year from Mr. Alto D. Teel, who was the state examiner, who made examination of my office in 1929, and which telegram was sent me volnntarily by Mr. Teel, and which shows that this charge referred to by Mr. Burnette and Mr. Mims is entirely without foundation. This is the telegram:

"J. Z. Mims, Circuit Crek, Clanton, Ala. Dear Mr. Mims: Was greatly surprised when informed that certain parties in your county were charging directly or indirectly that my examination as assistant examiner of accounts for the State of Albama reflected in any manner upon your handling of your office. I was sent to Clanton in the regular course of examinations made by the chief examiner of accounts and made an examination of your office covering a period of about five years. I found the affairs of your office well conducted. You accounted for all monies collected. There was no evidence to indicate any crookedness or corruption therein.—Alto D. Teel, Auditor and Accountant."

Now taking up this last made charge that appeared in the Advertiser last week, I wish to state that it is absolutely untrue and that I am not short in my accounts to the state, county or individuals, and am not due to pay any of these charges made. I am familiar with the affairs of my office and know its condition. This is a full answer to the charge, but, of course, it is nothing but my word and what a man's word is worth is the character he has built and lived among his fellow men. I am glad to say, however, that I don't have to ask you simply to take my word about this matter as I think I have sufficient proof in addition to that to show that this report is false and untrue and should not receive any consideration made of any honest man.

(1) To show the falsity of these charges, I want to say that in the total charged against me is the sum of about $1,000 for witness fees that have been paid to me more than two years ago, it being my duty to pay such fees over to the county if they are uncalled for that long, and there is also an item of nearly $1,000.00 more for witness fees paid me within two years, making $2,000.00 in these two items. My answer to this charge specificially is that the fees paid over two years ago have all been paid by me to the proper persons and that the fees two years old have either been paid to the proper persons or the money is on hand to pay them when their certificate is presented.

Specific in that report is a list showing each witness certificate involed with the name of the witness. It would take far too much space to attempt to set out all of them, but I wish to say that the following witnesses of our county have had witness certificates that were in this number and have received their pay and have receipted for the same in their own handwriting on my books:

D. S. Robinson, A. B. Jones, Akins Collins, Frank Higgins, C. Reese Mullins, F. A. Gulledge, Jim Plott, Dr. J. P. Hayes, C. F. Jones, O. R. Robinson, Ed Miner, W. H. Sartor. H. M. Simpson, John C. Page, J. L. Ruffin, John Browder, B. J. Sessions, J. M. Webb, B. Lawrence, H. Grady Heflin, Albert Davis, Jim Plott, Roland W. Taylor, J. D. Collins, G. W. Murrah, R. W. Lowe, Walter M. Poole, O. L. Devaughn, W. G. Conway, Dr. S. J. Ezell.

The following named persons have received other witness certificate pay and receipted my books for it but the amount is charged to me:

J. R. Mullins, M. A. Gore and J. H. Popwell.

This is a matter of record and may be inspected by any citizen of the county.

In addition to this, while the examiners don't seem to think it is evidence, I want to say that the other certificates involved in this report are all receipted for on my fee books by the proper parties.

(2) That a charge is made against me for $570 to W. H. Gillespie, sheriff of Chilton County, whom you all know. This charge is untrue and I have received the following letter from Mr. Gillespie, which speaks for itself.

Clanton, Alabama, Oct. 19, 1934.

Hon. J. Z. Mims, Clanton, Ala.

Dear Sir: Referring to our conversation and to the report recently appearing in the Montgomery Advertiser that examination of your office showed that you owed me $570, as clerk of the circuit court, I wish to state that this is not correct and that you do not owe me any sum.

You are at liberty to use this letter in any manner you see fit.—Yours truly, W. H. Gillespie, sherfif.

(3) As to the balance of the items, the facts are, instead of me being due to pay back money, Chilton County is due me over $600.00 in fees on account of the conduct of my office, for which I now hold warrants, which are a matter of record against the fine and forfeiture fund, and as proof of this condition, in referring to this examination, I wish to say that on the 28 day of September, 1935, Mr. W. C. Wills, Jr., the state examiner who makes these charges against me, and he it was who examined my office, wrote the following letter to Mrs. Gertrude Calloway, County Treasurer of Chilton County:

September 28, 1934.

Mrs. Gertrude Calloway,
Treasurer of Chilton County:

This is to certify that in an examination of the records of Hon. J. Z. Mims, circuit court clerk, Chilton County, Alabama, I have found that Mr. Mims through oversight paid the following fines twice on the report of remittances shown below.

6-28-30 No. 3161, Fate Downing, $50.
10-24-30 No. 3161, Fate Downing, $50.
11-9-31 No. 4737, Henry Green, $50.
Jan., 1932, No. 4737, Henry Green, $50.

As above shown these were duplicate payments and Mr. Mims is justly due a refund from the fine and forfeiture fund in the amount of $100, less his commission of 5 per cent, which amounts to $5.00, leaving a net refund due of $95.00.

This may be used as your authority for making the refund to Mr. Mims. —W. C. Wills, Jr., assistant examiner of accounts.

You can judge for yourself what the truth and purpose of this controversy is and whether or not they would order her to pay me money when at the same time they charged me as being short or owing $3,600.

(4). Besides all of the above and besides the fact that a public official is entitled to secure an honest examination by the state examiners, I have gone to the trouble and expense to secure a competent examiner and auditor to check this report and to show the truth of affairs, and secured the services of Mr. A. D. Teel, who examined my office in 1929, and at that time he was assistant examiner of accounts for the state and had been for several years. He has had seventeen years experience in this line of work in Alabama and is now engaged in this line of work as a private auditor and accountant for different counties, and one of the outstanding accountants in the state. Mr. Teel, upon starting his check on this report, immediately found a great number of errors which these examiners had made in their report against me, but was unable in the limited time to make a complete report on this matter. I have received the following letter from Mr. Teel which fully explains this, and is further proof that this report is entirely unwarranted and unfair.

Clanton, Ala., Oct. 30th, 1934.

Hon. J. Z. Mims, Clerk Circuit Court:

Dear Mr. Mims: At your request, I have made a partial check of the report filed on your office by the state comptroller's office at Montgomery and find that numerous errors exist in said report, involvihg quite a large sum of money.

It would be impossible for me or any auditor to re-check this entire report in time for you to show the true results of the affairs of your office before November 6th.

I am writing the Hon. James H. Hard, Jr., state comptroller, in Montgomery, asking that he name a date for me to meet the examiners who made this audit on your office in order that these may be corrected.

You certainly cannot afford to pay the amounts shown in this report. They are not correct and no one has any right to demand payment of something you do not owe.

As soon as I am favored with a reply to my letter to Mr. Hard I will communicate with you further and arrange to meet them in your office at the date to be fixed by them.—Yours very truly, A. D. Teal, accountant, auditor.

I wish to say in this connection that two state examiners have spent the period of time since July making their check so it is easy to see that I have no reasonable opportunity to make a complete check of their report in the time I have. I believe that the above is a full and complete answer to these charges and ought to satisfy any reasonable man, not only that the charges made are untrue, but that the purpose of this report is purely political.

I now wish to say that as long as six or eight months ago it was current gossip in Clanton that the arrangement had been made, in the event I was nominated, to procure an examination of my office by state examiners, and that such an examination would be a reflection on me. It has even been stated that my opponents had the promise of an unfavorable report, this being after the examiners had come here, but long before they had finished a check on my office. I do not think there is any question about the fact that this examination was requested by my enemies in Chilton County and procured by them at this time because they believed they could get the kind of report they wanted.

This is the explanation of these charges. When these things can be handled by officials in their public life it is time for a change, and I just want to remind you that the citizens of Chilton County have had plenty of evidence that auditors' reports are many times not what they seem to be.

I have lived all my life in Chilton County and my life may act as an open book. I am now submitting the record that I have made as a citizen and as a public official to your judgment and against contemptible, malicious last minute charges made by my political enemies, seeking not only to defeat me in this campaign, but to take away from me my materail possession and that possession that every honest man prizes above everything else in this world, his good name.

In the short time I have had I have checked over as much of this report as I could and have found over $2,000 unjustly charged to me by the examiners. My books show that I have paid these amounts to the people entitled to receive them.

If you want to see my records and verify the fact that the charges are unjust, I invite you to come to my office and I will prove to any fair-minded person that I do not owe the money that was charged against me in this examination.

This is my answer as fully and completely as I have been able to make it in the short time I have had. I submit it to the people of Chilton County in the hope and faith that you will give a full and fair consideration to all facts.

Respectfully,
J. Z. MIMS.

CARD OF THANKS

We, thirteen children of Mrs. Aremie Ellison, want to thank our friends and loved ones for the kindness and help during the sickness and death of our dear mother. We feel like our loss is heaven's gain.

We want to thank the doctors and nurse; also we want to thank Bro. W. T. Davis for his words of kindness. May God's richest blessings rest upon everyone, is our prayer.—Written by her daughter, Mrs. Sallie Martin.

WHAT NEGROES ARE DOING

Perfect Attendance Report

Last Friday ended our first month's work at the training school. Realizing the importance of attendance, a number of teachers are putting on drives for more perfect attendance records. The checkup at the close of the first month shows the following persons as having been neither absent nor tardy: Wilbur Gordon, Mitchell Gordon, Ruth Oden, E. W. Bethel, Samuel Bryant, Annie Averette, Hattie Averette, Maggie Averette, Wilson McKinney, G. W. Oden, Dotha Mae Bryant, Elzenia Darby, Walter Oden, Marshall Gordon, George Calloway, C. A. McKinney, Jessie Benjamin, R. D. Oden, Thelma Baker, Marie Bell, Nancy Goodwin, Lucile Hughley, Edna Wilson, Anna R. Rouse, Addie Smith, Archie Hall, Jerry Hardy, Ernestine Burt, Odessa Hardy, Luvera Dukes, Nina Mae Peoples, Thelma Robinson, Marilyn Williams, Jimmie Mae Williams, Clinton Calloway, John Dickerson, Learl Oden, Emma Wilson, Isaac Craig, Esther Davis, Warrena Turpin, Charles Calloway, Trizzell McKinney, James Beigler, Walter McBracy and Geneva Turpin. Prizes are being offered as an incentive for a perfect attendance record.

Singing Contest and Weiner Roast

On Halloween night there will be a singing contest at the County Training School. A large number of quartets and glee clubs are expected from all over the county. Prizes will be offered to the winning quartet or glee club. Come out and sing with us.

Following the singing contest there will be an out-door weiner roast. There will be plenty of fun for both young and old. Admission is 5 and 10 cents. Come one, come all and enjoy this two-fold program designed especially for your entertainment.

Candy Contest Ends

The candy selling contest came to a close Monday with the following persons winning prizes: Lillie Mae Burns, first prize, a wrist watch; Learl Oden, second prize, a fountain pen and pencil set; Clinton Calloway, third prize, a pen and pencil set.

I take this method of thanking all persons who made an effort in this contest, even though they won no prizes.

P.-T. A. Meets Friday

The County Training School P.-T. A. will hold its second meeting for the present school term Friday at three o'clock. A special drive of two weeks duration has been launched for increased membership. If you have not been asked by any of the members of the P.-T. A. accept this as your invitation and come out Friday. Be on time. Bring with you a saucer, a spoon and your nearest neighbor. We are going to have a big time at this meeting and we are expecting you to be there.—Benjamin Anderson.

The editor of The Gazette was taking a large copy of the Constitution of the United States up State Street yesterday to place in in a window. A sudden blast of wind whisked the document from his hands and he had to chase it. "What's that you're chasing?" inquired a by stander. "The Constitution of the United States," shouted the editor. "Guess we'd both better try to save that one before the boys in Washington get hold of it!" exclaimed the bystander as he retrieved the document before it went in the gutter.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

Each week there is increasing testimony by prominent students of economic affairs to question the theory that the way to create prosperity is to make prices higher by artificial means. Among the latest to give such testimony, it is worthy of note, are two men who were formerly with the national administration although not exactly affiliated with the so-called Brain Trust. The two men referred to are Prof. O. M. W. Sprague, who severed connections with the official financial advisers in the New Deal, and General Hugh Johnson, until recently head of the NRA.

Prof. Sprague in an address delivered recently to the Boston Club of the Harvard Business School Alumni, declared that we are "putting the cart before the horse" in our unorthodox recovery methods, in which the prices are being raised artificially. Dr. Sprague does not blame it all on the government, but says that business is equally at fault, stating that it "fell for" the NRA because business men were anxious to stabilize prices. Dr. Sprague added:

"We are putting the cart before the horse in trying to raise the prices and then make the people buy as in the new Home Loan program. The thing to do is to put the prices at a level where people can buy; then, when the demand increases, raise prices, thus creating more earnings and more jobs."

Both Dr. Sprague and General Johnson believe that the proposed thirty-hour week in industry will defeat its own purpose. Dr. Sprague declared in his address that the result of the thirty-hour week program will be that prices will rise, demand for the goods will go down, and there will be more unemployment in the country than ever. He continued that what business activity we now have is due to government spending. There will be a limit to spending for relief. Dr. Sprague stated, because certain sums will be allocated to various programs, but if there is spending for restoration of trade there will be no limit, "the theory being the more you spend the more you get in profits—eventually."

General Johnson was even more terse in his comments. He declared that the thiry-hour week was unconstitutional and that, if put in effect, it "would cause another depression that would turn your hair gray." Along this line it may be pointed out that the greatest stagnation now is in the heavy industries and these industries certainly cannot stand an increase in the cost of production at a time when people are curtailing their buying because they feel that prices are already too high.

A great many economists are coming to the conclusion that we have "put the cart before the horse" in attempting to raise the prices before the increase in business demanded such a rise. The first effect is not to give him a potentially greater purchasing power, but to increase the cost of the finished product to such an extent that the public quits buying. Therefore instead of the workers having greater employment and more money to spend, there is a decrease in the number of jobs, and in the purchasing power of wages. Certainly prosperity cannot be brought about in such fashion. When a merchant seeks to move a surplus stock of goods he does it by cutting the price so that the people will buy. To destroy one-third of his stock and raise the price on the balance would increase neither his customers nor his profits. The same is true of industry and business as a whole. Attractive prices which stimulate buying will eventually set the wheels of industry in motion, and this in turn will bring more work at higher wages, and ultimate prosperity.

EVERY MAN A MILLIONAIRE

The newest plan expected to sweep the country is the EMAM program of Professor Elmer Z. Blather. EMAM means "Every Man A Millionaire." Dr. Blather has gone a bit farther than Messrs. Tugwell, Sinclair, Bilbo, Huey Long and other friends of the forgotten men.

The professor advocates a two-hour work week with three beautiful stenographers for every workingman. Free beer and cocktails would be served at frequent intervals. Pensions of $500 a week for every man reaching the age of 30 would knock hollow the trifling plan of giving a miserly $50 a week only to those over 60. It seems that it is all done with stamps.

Professor Blanther will be glad to explain to anyone who sends in $100 to cover mailing charges the details of his Revolving Wealth Distribution plan (the RWDP), by which the government will be able to give everybody a millionaire's income, a private yacht and two seats in the first row center for the Ziegfeld Follies without anyone's paying a cent in taxes. The abolition of all taxes is one of the nicest features of Professor Blather's scheme.

"Roosevelt has got only 20,000,000 Americans on relief after all his recovery efforts," shouted the professor in a recent speech before an uproarious audience of three persons at Main and South Water Streets very late last night. "Elect me President, and in a year I'll have 120,000,000 Americans supported by the government!" As the professor puts it, "The Constitution can be stretched! The dollar can be stretched! Even the truth can be stretched!"

Dr. Blather is organizing a young Purple Shirt movement. The uniformed boys will go about destroying parked automobiles and burning houses in order to bring about a boom for the motor industry and the building trades. Not content with paying bounties to farmers for not raising hogs, the Purple Shirts propose to pay baseball players for not hitting homeruns, people who "want to write" for the unwritten books they are always talking about, artists for unpainted pictures and tailors for imaginary pants.

The professor who sometimes refers to himself as the One-man Brain Trust, goes farther than Mr. Roosevelt—instead of devaluating the dollar to only 59 cents, he has a scheme beautifully worked out by Professor Alonza G. Rubber, fertilizer expert at Yale, in which the dollar is to be devalued minus 34 cents. No one had thought of getting the dollar down to a negative number until these expert mathematicians came along.

Reduced to the simplest terms, the scheme of Professor Blather is to give everything to everybody. He doesn't stop with money and property, but includes love and beauty. As he so well puts it, his opponents (who include practically everybody — people who disagree with him and all eminent Americans from Benjamin Franklin to Carter Glass he dismisses with engaging candor, as "pirates" and crooks") put property rights above human rights."

Dr. Blather thinks this is a good time for the idealists like himself to get into politics. He says he is for everybody all the time. He'll try anything. He hates Wall Street and loves the people.—Monroe Co. (N. Y.) Republican.

THE LEOPARD'S SPOTS

Can a leopard change his spots? Anyone can answer that. He can not. No more, it seems, can Democrats change their tactics in their political fights. Ever since I have known anything about politics in Chilton County, the Democrats have always tried to spring some kind of last-minute scare, or "exposure" of some kind. They will stop at nothing. No one's honor nor reputation is sacred, once these scandal-mongers get on the trail, to "pin something" on somebody. If it be personal, good; if it be official, good again; and if they can get something of both, still better. A man might live a perfect life until old enough to get into politics, then come to Chilton County and get in the swim, and they would paint him black and red, tie a forked tail to him, place a forked tongue in his mouth, and then proclaim to the world that old Nick, himself, was born twins and the other twin had shown up, and was running on the Republican ticket.

The strange part of it all is that none of these scare head tactics have ever gotten them anything, yet they keep on pulling them. And here's one for Ripley. The only time I can remember when the Democrats didn't spring some kind of last-minute sensation was in the Messer-Reynolds campaign, and at that particular time they came closer to winning than they have at any other time. In the face of this, it seems that they would call a halt in such practices. But I suppose it is just in the blood to try to "pull something," and they can't get away from it.

Whatever have been our personal feelings toward individual candidates so far, no full blooded Republican can overlook the slur that was cast at us by the tactics employed in the recent "exposure" the Democrats made in the circuit clerk's office, and no full-blooded Republican can fail to register his indignation and resentment of such tactics. The best and ONLY way to do this is to vote squarely under the big elephant next Tuesday.

Not many weeks ago the Chilton County News stated several reasons why our people should go Democratic this time. A reply to them was made in this column. The next week, although they did not deny one single statement I made, the News came forth with a personal dig at me. I answered that, too, and last week, strange to say, the News had nothing to say about me nor my article. Why? Maybe they were waiting until the last issue before the campaign closed to have their say, so that I could have no chance to reply to them. If that was the case, it was a cowardly act. Why not fight openly and above-board—clean and square? And then again, maybe the News editor didn't have a reply handy. Could that be it? Too, in that article, it will be remembered, I asked the News to state the name of the author of their "pot of gold at the foot of the rainbow" editorials. Maybe didn't want to divulge that big secret. What's the matter? Is he ashamed of them? True, they were too preposterious for any thinking person to swallow, but they were his—his own brain-children—and he should not be ashamed of them. Again, maybe the News editor is whipped out. Which is it, Mr. Editor?

Enough for that. Last Friday, Clanton was showered with copies of the "Alabama Herald" spreading to the four winds the news that Col. Bibb Graves would speak at the courthouse the following day. There were quite a few interesting things mentioned in that sheet—a few of which I would like to refer to. One big head read: "Ten Reasons Why County Should Go Democratic." Here they are:

1. "Chilton County should be in line with the National Administration."

We would like to know just why Chilton should be "in line." We have been Republican for years, and are rated around the top as Alabama's counties go. Then why change now? Is it to be with the biggest crowd? We are told that, in the end, hell will be much larger than heaven, and will have more boarders—will have the biggest crowd—but I don't think any of us are over-anxious to get there. There is just as much reason in asking a man to make sure of a ticket to hell, because the biggest crowd is going there, as there is in asking Chilton's voters to go Democratic just because the biggest crowd went that way two years ago.

2. Franklin D. Roosevelt wants Chilton County to go Democratic."

Now, isn't that strange? I just wonder if there are any more Democrats who would like to see this county go Democratic. If you ask us, that's one more heck of a reason why we should go hay-wire—just because somebody would like for us to—and that somebody a Democrat.

3. "Bibb Graves wants Chilton County to go Democratic."

That's not news. It has been said that "If a dog bites a man, that isn't news; but if a man bites a dog, that's news." Now, if Graves, being a Democrat, should suddenly decide that he wanted Chilton to stay Republican, that certainly would be news. But the fact that he wants it to go Democratic is just as certainly no good reason why it should.

4. "The people of Chilton County will be in a better position to obtain their share of state and national appropriations." I just wonder who the Democrats think is appropriating all this money—the government, or the Democrats. The above is a hint that the spoils system will be used, and that Chilton will be punished for not supporting the Democrats. Only a few days ago, President Roosevelt denied that any appropriations were being made to further the Democratic cause, but stated that they were made "in a genuine attempt to relieve suffering humanity, regardless of their political affiliations." If the president's wishes are carried out to the letter (and it seems that they will be, from past experience), then this fourth reason can not be true. If these appropriations are being made in the same ratio as loyalty to the Democratic cause has been demonstrated, then we might profit by turning Democratic, but inasmuch as this is denied by the President himself, we can't see that the two views jibe very closely. Further, a check-up will show that Chilton got more than her share last year—more in proportion than several other counties, and it was Republican then. We confess, we can't make sense of this reason.

5. "It will place this county in a better position to cooperate with neighboring counties."

We would like to have someone versed on the subject to explain why this is true. We invite the News to tell us why.

6. "It will place Chilton County squarely in line with Southern traditions."

This argument holds no consistency. For the past two years the Democrats have been telling us that what we wanted to get away from was tradition. Maybe it was a national tendency to go Republican, rather than tradition, that they wanted to get away from. However, if going Democratic means that we must go back to intersectional hatred, and the old argument of the "empty sleeve," with its inborn hatred of our fellow-countrymen, then we beg to be excused. We've had too much of that, already.

7. "It will be an indorsement of a national program to remember the average man in government."

Who is the average man? Is he a farmer? Is he a merchant? Is he a manufacturer? Lets see how all these have fared under this new program. The farmer has had so many restrictions laid on his back, until he doesn't know exactly who he is, what he is doing, or why. The merchant must sell his goods at a price someone else sets for him. The manufacturer has someone else tell him how to run his business. Wage scales are drawn up to be applied to all industries, without due cognizance of the extent of the enterprise. Different conditions exist in different sections, but the program takes no account of this—therefore, the program favors one group, at the expense of the other. "Robbing Peter to pay Paul."

8. "It will place in office a local ticket sincerely interested in serving all the people."

Since when have the Democrats shown that they were ready to "do and die" for the "dear people" any more than Republicans have? Don't be deceived. What our Democratic friends want is official power. Their hearts are not melting. Can a weed bear a rose? Neither can a power-seeking band of Democrats bear more than their share of the milk of human kindness.

9. "The Democratic party stands for the fundamental principles of liberty and fair consideration of the rights of all men."

Liberty! That's an oily subject for Democrats to tackle, considering the record they have made during the past two years. The Democrats can point to no period in the history of the nation when American liberty has been so cramped as during this time. Ask yourself this question: "Have I as much liberty now as I had two years ago? No one can answer that question any better than you—every man for himself.

10. "It will place in office men who want to give the county a full dollar's worth of good for every dollar spent."

Let's look around us a bit. Alabama has been under Democratic rule for decades. What is Alabama's financial status? We are broke! And as for the nation—we tried to keep track of the figures of indebtedness the Democrats are running us into, but when it began to run into billions of dollars per year we gave up. Remember the days of Deason, in Chilton County? Did the Democrats practice economy then? You know they didn't, and there is no good reason to believe they will be different now. During the past state Democratic campaign, the Democratic candidates hurled charges of all kinds of fraud, graft, and every kind of crookedness under the sun at each other. Were they true? Some of them must have been, for I have not heard of any libel suits. And now, if the big Democrats can't run the nation and the state economically, how can we believe that they can make a better job of it in Chilton County?

Now, let's all ask ourselves this simple question: "Can we better the county's condition by electing Democrats? Have they shown any over-aptitude for handling public affairs, that merits our endorsement? Do we want the extravagance that has been practiced in the nation and state under Democratic rule to have full sway here in Chilton County?" Ask yourselves these questions, and see if you can answer them affirmtively.

Everywhere you go you find Democrats asking Republicans for their support. You never see them asking Democrats—they know they will have theirs. The majority of Chilton's voters are Republicans, and the Democrats concede that unless they can pull over enough Republican votes, they are sunk. They concede, too, that if they fail to elect their candidates THIS time, they had might as well quit trying. Why should a Republican "jump the fence" any more than a Democrat? You don't hear any Democrats talking of jumping. You can rest assured—Democrats will back their candidates to the limit. None of THEM are sore. Good Republicans—those who look into the future for the well-being of their party and their county will do just as the Democrats will do—STICK TIGHT!

Don't be a traitor! Don't let your personal feelings blind you to your duty to your party and your county! You can not afford to allow Democratic trickery to sway you from your true course, and you cannot afford to let a Democrat prove more loyal than you. If any Democrats want to come with us, they are welcome, but we are not drumming for Democratic votes. ALL WE WANT OR NEED IS OUR OWN REPUBLICAN VOTE! Be loyal and true. Stick with your family!

BUSINESS WAITING

All sorts of reasons are given for the fact that business in the United States, using indices generally employed for the purpose, is now below where it was a year ago, to which is generally added the fact that Great Britain and Canada are climbing out of the trenches of depression faster than we are.

Nearly everybody admits that the trouble is lack of confidence. Some go further and say that it is lack of confidence in the heavy industries—that prosperity will not return until these so-called heavy industries, like building, get back to normal.

Various causes are given for the lack of confidence, some of which are purely political and others economic. It is pointed out that the banks have not been lending money to industry. But it is just as plain that industry, that is, sound industry, has not been in the market for money. This can be evidenced by the fact that the money which the RFC has for lending to industry goes begging just as the money in the banks goes begging. It cannot therefore be the fault of the banks. Just why is it, then, that business does not expand, and does not borrow money for expansion? A prominent industralist the other day summed it up by saying:

"When business has some assurance as to what the dollar may be expected to be worth a year from now then business may venture to plan ahead. But until that time it will make no commitments except for immediate needs."

That, to use a homely old expression, seems to tell the story in a nutshell. Lack of confidence is due in major part at least to lack of confidence in the future of our dollar. Whether such lack is justified or not, remains to be seen. Every day or so we get a rumor about some proposed devaluation of the dollar, either in the immediate future or next year. No sooner is the rumor denied until a fresh crop appears. The dollar has already been devalued from 100 cents to sixty cents, and the rumor manufacturers evidently see no reason why it may not be devalued further.

Now it is easy to see what effect this uncertainty has on the so-called heavy industrise. No man wants to borrow sixty-cent dollars, either from the banks or the government, to build a house, or enlarge his business, when he doesn't know what kind of dollars he will have to pay back to liquidate the loan when it becomes due. Therefore he puts off expansion from day to day, hoping that the atmosphere will clear. Up to this time, however, he finds that the fog is still with him. Speaking of the uncertain financial situation the Providence Journal well sums up in these words:

"Men who have any pratcical knowledge of industry know that the margin of profit is never so large, even in normal times, that it can withstand indefinitely in addition to the ordinary risks of business enterprise, the assaults of new uncertainties concocted by outsiders. As long as the government threatens to use its power without warning to change the value of the dollar so that net profits on a business operation that may have been maturing over months may be wiped out overnight, logically there can be no real incentive to make business commitments very far ahead.

"Next to the depression itself, the most tragic fact in the economic experience of this nation during the past year and more is that no man could be sure that he would be doing business tomorrow with the same kind of dollar that he used today. Yet a stable monetary unit whose value no one questions and whose integrity is taken for granted is an absolute necessity if there is to be any solid basis for planning ahead. Furthermore, unless there is to be planning for the future of business by men who actually know how to make intelligent business commitments, the government can spend endless billions trying to prime the pump and still leave the nation with nothing but shattered dreams."

PITTS FOR REPRESENTATIVE

To the Voters of Chilton County:

On the eve of the General Election to be held next Tuesday, November the sixth, as Republican candidate to succeed myself as your representative in the next legislature, I desire to call your attention to my past record as your representative. As to the statement made recently pertaining to the amount of money that I had drawn and the number of days that I had worked, I desire to state that the author of this statement was certainly misinformed and beg to advise that I drew the same pay for the same number of days as all other members of the legislature and senate drew, and as I recall I have never missed a roll call but on one occasion. Remember a great majority of the representatives are Democrats and passed the law under which we were paid.

(1) To those interested in education I have always voted for those measures which would give every boy and girl an equal opportunity to get an elementary school education and will continue to work for a free, full term school for our youth.

(2) Taxes. I was one of the three speakers on the floor of the house in the last legislature that led the scrap on five or six occasions that defeated the sales tax, which is of record. Also I worked against and voted against the aditional one cent gasoline tax, which is of record. Believing that the income tax was the fairest and most equitable form of taxation I did not vote this tax on the people; however, voted to submit the income tax to the voters which you will recall was carried both in this county and state by a large majority.

As your representative during the last legislature and in 1932 I introduced and passed a law that provides "that the Commissioners court of our county make appropriation out of the county treasury to take care of the sick and wounded who are financially unable to provide for their hospital treatment." I am advised by the superintendent of the Central Alabama hospital that between fifty and one hundred people of Chilton County's citizens have been either operated upon or treated here locally and possibly lives and health saved by reason of this law, at a minimum expense to the county.

Local self government. As your representative I have always strived to keep our government in the hands of the people and allow our people to select those officers who serve by a popular vote. This has been demonstrated by the defeat of the local bill that passed the senate and failed to pass the house that most of you will remember, that came up a few years ago when some of our Democratic friends sought to abolish the Commissioners Court and create a board of revenue. The members of same to be appointed. As you recall prior to my becoming your representative our county court was abolished and an attempt to abolish the Commissioners Court was defeated at the next session by me with the help of my Democratic friends in the legislature who believed in local self government. I also worked and passed through the house a measure giving the people a right to elect their county superintendent of education by popular vote.

May I mention in this short space that I will continue to attempt to carry out the wishes of the masses of Chilton County if I am again honored on November 6, and I will work for and vote for the following: (1) Homestead exemption for advalorem tax up to two thousand dollars. (2) A three dollar minimum automobile license tag. (3) Economy in government. (4) Placing all county and state officers on a reasonable salary and abolishment of the fee system. (5) A full free term school. Space precludes me from mentioning other matters that would likely come up.

By reason of my experience and the contacts I have made as your representative in the past I believe I am better fitted than ever to accomplish more both for my county and state than I have in the past by reason of this experience. I will appreciate your vote and influence on next Tuesday.—Respectfully yours, Percy M. Pitts.

HARD TIMES

It is silly for a nation to have hard times when it is able to produce enough necessities and luxuries to give every citizen all he needs.

The United States can produce more food than we can eat. It can build homes for all. It can, with the aid of labor-saving machinery, create luxuries for everybody.

We have ten million unemployed anxious to create these luxuries. Why can we not aid them to do so?

Seventy-five billion dollars of labor has been allowed to go to waste in the past five years and these workers and the nation are $75,000,000,000 poorer than need be. That means $600 to everyone of us.

Meanwhile we have been running around in circles, pegging the price of wheat, killing unborn pigs, paying for plowing cotton under, thus ruining our greatest export market and listening to college professors, who never made a dollar in their lives except by telling others how to do something that they could not do themselves.

We had been "soaking the rich" to feed the poor which "soaking" must end when the rich are all soaked out of existance (they are half "soaked" already) and we have killed the incentive to promote business.—Frank A. Garbutt in Los Angeles Times.

Republican Campaign Committee Submits Case To County Voters

The Republican Campaign Committee of Chilton County comes to the end of the present political contest, feeling that it has waged a battle in behalf of the Republican nominees that has been open, clean, fair and reasonable from every standpoint of politics and human relationships.

We have appealed to the reason and sound judgment of the Republicans of Chilton County to support their party nominees, believing that there has never been a time in the history of the party when Republicans had more valid reasons to strengthen them in their party loyalty.

There has been much said about Republicans failing to support some of the nominees because they were not their particular choice in the primary. This argument has been met by the campaign committee with the conviction that all such matters were settled by the voters in the primary. The majority of Republicans determined who the nominees of the party would be, and that should be accepted as a mandate to every true and loyal Republican to set his course in support of those nominees in the November election.

It is accepted and promulgated as a principle of honor and of obligation by all political parties that a voter, when participating in a party primary, either as a candidate or elector, thereby obligates himself to abide by the results of such primary and support the nominees thereof. Your campaign committee has not compromised on this principle of party and personal obligation.

Some have advanced the argument that certain conditions in the Republican party so greatly demand a change that the proper thing to do is to defeat certain Republicans now and then set about making necessary corrections. Your campaign committee has sought to prove the fallacy of such procedure on the grounds that once the Republican party in Chilton County is defeated, it will then be too late to make any kind of party changes. It is a matter of history in recent years that Republican counties, once turned into the Democratic column, remain Democratic. This is proven by the experience in our neighbor county of Shelby. It will be true in Chilton County if we lose control of county affairs.

If you have ever had reason to be a Republican and support the Republican party (and we maintain that you have) that reason is increased now to greater proportions than ever before. If you feel that there is anything wrong with the Republican party and that corrections should be made, you are reminded that the only chance you will ever have to correct those wrongs is to remain in the party and support it, and at the proper time let your voices be raised in behalf of the principles and policies which you think ought to be followed by your party.

Whatever of personal enmity and bitterness toward one another may have developed in this campaign is regretted by your campaign committee. We appeal to you in this closing message, as we have done throughout the campaign, to use your coolest and soundest judgment in politics. Think for yourselves and think soberly. Do not be misled by those who may not be of the right motive or the right purpose.

We hope that all Republicans will go to the polls on next Tuesday and exercise the rights which are theirs for a free and untramelled expression of their wishes at the ballot box. We have fought the fight as fairly and as honestly as we knew how. The verdict is now in the hands of the people of Chilton County.

Respectfully,

REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE
M. D. FOSHEE, Chairman.
W. M. WYATT, Secretary.

W. L. Sanders Explodes Myth

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your columns to express my views in regard to politics in the county, state and nation.

First, I want to say that I am a Republican. I am not a Republican because I have certain Republican friends I want to elect to office, but I am a Republican because history has proven that the Republican form of government is the best government ever instituted by man. A government for the people, of the people and by the people, is the form of government for which I stand. Some people vote a Republican or a Democratic ticket becase their fathers vote that certain ticket. This should not be true, but we should vote strictly from a principle standpoint. My father voted a Democratic ticket practically all of his life, but after he analyzed the principles and practices of both parties he admitted that times had always been better under Republican leadership than under Democratic rule so for the last few years he has cast his ballot for the Republicans.

The action of every voter should be governed by reason and not by prejudice. To vote for prejudice, principles must be left out; to vote for principles, prejudice must be left out. Let me ask every Republican voter who has been solicited to vote the Democratic ticket if they did not appeal to you to vote through prejudice instead of your reason? This appeal is to your reason and not to your pre judices, let us go back and honestly delve into the promises and practices of both parties, and see when and how the trouble arose. We also wish to analyze the methods being used to bring back normal times. Let us look back to 1916., This was a national Democratic administration and at a time when President Wilson was seeking reelection. The following slogan was used by his forces: "A vote for Hughes means a vote for war; a vote for Wilson means a vote for peace." Mr. Wilson was reelected on the promise that he would keep us out of war but he did not keep his promise for soon after his reelection the declaration of war called hundreds of thousands of laborers to the battlefield. The great demand for war supplies raised the price of everything, consequently the nation's debt soared to above twenty-five billion dollars.

After the American people had sacrificed the lives of their sons upon the battlefields of the foreign countries, they still had the enormous debt upon their shoulders. That was a debt that had to be paid. History has always shown that the liquidation of all wars means hard times. This great national debt was created under a Democratic administration from 1916 to 1920. In 1920 the Republicans took over the administration and began paying the debts created by the Democrats in the previous administration. By the time the Republicans had lowered the debt from twenty-five billion dollars to sixteen billion dollars, the American people began to feel the depression that aways follows expensive wars. As an individual suffers more when he is trying to pay his debts, so does the nation; therefore, we can readily see the Republicans are not responsible for the depression but the Democrats are the ones who created the debts which had to be paid and thereby caused the depression.

In the campaign of 1931, President Roosevelt and the Democratic party charged the Republicans with the depression and said to the American people, "If you will turn the government over to the Democratic party, we will cut the government expenses, balance the budget, relieve the farmer and bring back good old whiskey." There were several other promises which I do not recall, but we will see how many of the above ones he has fulfilled. Let us first see how they have cut government expenses. They have put more people on the government payroll than have ever been on in the history of America. They have men on the payroll to plow the bulls, men to measure your land and to tell you how much cotton to plant; men to tell you how much cotton you can sell and men and women hired to sell your cotton for you. In fact, they have so many employees in every phase of industry until every stranger I see I presume he is a government agent of some kind.

That is the way they have "cut" government expenses. The promise to balance the budget is like the promise Woodrow Wilson made to keep us out of war, it has gone in the opposite direction.

The national debt this year will possibly reach thirty-two billion dollars, around seven billion more than the debt created during the war. When the liquidation of the present time brings hard times and depressions, who will be to blame, the one who created it, or the ones who have to pay it?

The promise to relieve the farmer has been carried out, but not in the way he expected it. They have relieved him of his privileges and not his burdens. They asked the farmer to destory his corn and wheat so that he might not go hungry and so that the starving people could have plenty of bread; they told him that if he would destroy a part of his cattle that the people would have plenty of beef and pork to eat. They have told the poor old farmer so many inconsistent things until he has found himself in the "lost ads" column trying to find out where he is, who he is and where they want him to go from here.

The New Deal or "farm relief" has also placed a tax on what the farmer has to sell, a tax on what he has to buy and then they will not let him produce enough to pay his tax. The little farmer, who has always needed help is the one hardest hit. Some farmers with a family of eight or ten are allowed to sell only one or two light bales of cotton, while other families of only two are allowed to sell four, five and six bales of cotton. I suppose they were trying to make an equal distribution of wealth, but they got the bridle on the wrong end of the horse.

Fellow citizens, this is what they call "Democracy." This is what they call filling the promise of the New Deal, and on the merits of the New Deal some of the Democrats of Chilton County are asking the Republicans for their support. They are not asking you for your support on the merits of the Democratic candidates and it is not on their efficiency that they hope to win the election, if it were, they would be boosting their candidates' efficiency. The blind side of the New Deal and the creating of prejudice among Republicans are the only hopes the Democrats have and this should not mean much. Since the merits of the New Deal do not warrant the support of the Republicans, let us turn to the merits and qualifications of both the Democratic and Republican candidates and see which deserves the most consideration.

Mr. J. Z. Mims, the Republican candidate for Probate Judge, is a citizen who has a record behind him that is outstanding. He is of the common people. He has never been too proud to speak or to stop and to talk to the common people. There is nothing haughty about him. He has been sober and upright and we surely need a sober man to fill the probate office. Mr. Mims, as an official, has rendered efficient services. His election twice to the circuit clerk's office and his nomination for probate judge is proof that his services have been satisfactory.

Mr. Dewey Hughes, our Republican nominee for sheriff is a truthful, honest and upright citizen. He is law abiding and if he is elected to the sheriff's office he promises to execute the law as it is written. He promises that with the help of the people he will do all he can to help curb the drunkenness, thievery and all other crimes that endanger our safety. I believe Mr. Hughes is a man that cannot be bribed or bought over in order to get him to let the crimes go unmolested and I believe that if he is elected that he will make a sheriff that all law abiding citizens will be proud of.

I do not see how Mr. Cox can ask the people of the county for the office of representative, as his record in the past proves that he has stood for taking the privileges of our people to vote for certain officers away from them, as is shown by a copy of the telegram which was signed by Mr. Cox to the house of representatives on July 1, 1927, which is as follows:

"We are requested by entire membership of Democratic Executive Committee to wire you the future of the Democratic party in Chilton County is vitally concerned in the passage of Senate Bill No. 183. You are earnestly requested to support the motion of representative Darden to require local Legislation Committee to report this bill to the house. The Democrats of Chilton are looking to the Democratic legislature for relief from Republican domination and this will give us relief."

Bill No. 183 was a abolish the Commissioners Court; therefore you may see from the above that Mr. Cox was in favor of legislating out of office officials who had been elected by the same people that he is now asking to support him. I consider it an insult to our intelligence to try to legislate out of office men who had been elected by the people and have some appointed to serve in their place by some person who knows nothing about our local affairs. Our Representative, Mr. Pitts, was successful in defeating that bill and now if we are not pleased with our Commissioners or officers of the county, we still have the pleasure and privilege of casting our ballot against their reelection. I would like to know if Mr. Cox still desires to take this privilege away from us? Is that the reason that he is asking our Republicans to split their ticket and vote for him? Be careful, Republicans, and think well before you split your ticket for any one.

In thinking over our Republican candidates let us not forget Mr. W. T. Bean. He raised our school term from four and one-half months to seven months and he filled the superintendent's office without a criticism so far as I have heard.

Mr. Archie Harris, while serving as sheriff of Chilton County, established himself in the hearts of our people. His services were efficient and we have every reason to believe that if he is elected to the clerk's office he will render the same kind of service.

Mr. Culp, our candidate for Tax Collector, and Mr. Collins, our candidate for Tax Assessor, are both good men. The vote they got in the primary shows the confidence the people have in their ability.

Our two candidates for commissioners, Mr. Davis and Mr. Bean, and the two candidates for members of the school board, Messrs. Robinson and Martin, are all good men. I know them personally and I believe they deserve the vote of every Republican in Chilton County. It is my honest conviction that the Republican nominees are far more qualified and will render us better service than the Democratic candidates.

Look at our Democratic state, a deficit of around eighty-five million dollars. Our county is still drudging along under a part of the debt created by the last Democratic administration. The records show that it was a debt of about two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, but our Republican officers have paid it down to only eighty-three thousand dollars; however this debt must be paid. It is a debt that was placed on us and if we should fail to pay it, our children or grandchildren will have to pay it. Are you going to vote yourself deeper and deeper into debt by voting for Democratic nominees or are you going to vote to stay out of debt by voting for the Republican nominee?

The County Board of Education does not owe a dollar. It has been held in the hands of the Republicans. If the commissioners court had not had a Democratic chairman from 1912 to 1918 it would not have owed a dollar.

Voters, let us think for ourselves. Let us not be influenced by prejudice. Let's vote for safety and local self government and to keep our county's business on a cash basis.

Yours for the Republican form of government, and for the election of every Republican candidate.— W. L. Sanders.

THE LEADER
MANAGER, M. LANDE

Our two candidates for commissioners, Mr. Davis and Mr. Bean, and the two candidates for members of the school board, Messrs. Robinson and Martin, are all good men. I know them personally and I believe they deserve the vote of every Republican in Chilton County. It is my honest conviction that the Republican nominees are far more qualified and will render us better service than the Democratic candidates.

Look at our Democratic state, a deficit of around eighty-five million dollars. Our county is still drudging along under a part of the debt created by the last Democratic administration. The records show that it was a debt of about two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, but our Republican officers have paid it down to only eighty-three thousand dollars; however this debt must be paid. It is a debt that was placed on us and if we should fail to pay it, our children or grandchildren will have to pay it. Are you going to vote yourself deeper and deeper into debt by voting for Democratic nominees or are you going to vote to stay out of debt by voting for the Republican nominee?

The County Board of Education does not owe a dollar. It has been held in the hands of the Republicans. If the commissioners court had not had a Democratic chairman from 1912 to 1918 it would not have owed a dollar.

Voters, let us think for ourselves. Let us not be influenced by prejudice. Let's vote for safety and local self government and to keep our county's business on a cash basis.

Yours for the Republican form of government, and for the election of every Republican candidate.— W. L. Sanders.

All the teachers have finished giving tests for this month and most all the pupils made very good grades. Altho it seems that we should have made better, we are hoping to do better next month.

Our attendance was very good this past month. We want to urge all the pupils to come to school regular.

Those on honor roll for this month are as follows:

Jr. III—Caudell Chapman, Annie Lee Bates, Gladys Wyatt, Willie Blackwell, Clyde Bradbery.

Jr. II—Evion Littlejohn, Ruby Foshee, Kenneth Durbin, Gertice Riggins, Mary Culver, Willie Merle Lockhart.

Jr. I—Elizabeth Culp.

Sixth grade—Catherine Coe.

Fourth grade—Georgia Nell Foshee, Julia Thornton, Ethel Culp, Helen Cox, Mary Jo Clayton, Victoria Williams, Tressie Lee Culpepper.

Third grade—Bobby Nell Culpepper, Jearldean Thornton, Gloria Mae Williams, Gertie Mae Lee, J. B. Coe, Lecie Hamilton.

We have elected who's who in the Jr. II this week and will do the same by the Jr. I's next week.

Who's Who in Jr. II—Most dignified girl, Ruby Foshee; most popular girl, Evion Littlejohn; most attractive girl, Gertice Riggins; best sport, Gertice Riggins; neatest girl, Nellie Mae Williams; best all-round girl, Willie Merle Lockhart; most studious girl, Gertice Riggins; prettiest girl, Willie Merle Lockhart. Best all-round boy, Kenneth Durbin; best looking boy, Clyde Headley; most studious boy, Kenneth Durbin; most attractive boy, Clyde Headley; most handsome boy, Clyde Headley; most dignified boy, A. J. Chasteen.

The P.-T. A. is having shrubbery put around the school building and we hope to finish soon.

The P.-T. A. is also sponsoring the "Hope Chest" to be sold by chances and will be given away about Christmas.

E. H. Littlejohn Wants All Win

Editor Union-Banner:

During this campaign I have been wondering what is wrong. I very well remember tha tin days gone by certain of our leaders sold out to the opposite party and tried to wreck us, but our people have weathered the storm and with few exceptions, have kept the party in power. As a result of this we are today in better shape than any other county in the state and in far better shape than the State of Alabama, which has been in the hands of the Democrats for all these years. Now are we going to turn our affairs over to them in this county to wreck us and build up an indebtedness our children will have to pay?

The only indebtedness we now have is that created by a Democratic administration.

Let me appeal to you people of the county to stand by the party that has meant so much to the people of the county. We stand for law enforcement in this county and I believe that Mr. Hughes is a man of good common sense and one who believes in good order in the county and will do all in his power to enforce the laws and equal justice to all. He was reared by one of the oldest and best preachers of this county and I know something about the training he has had. He is a fair man of good character and one that we can be proud of.

Let me appeal to every Republican to remain true to the Republican party, and let us elect the entire ticket. —E. H. Littlejohn, Lawley, Ala.

W. G. Culp Asks For Re-Election

To the Editor of The Union-Banner:

As this will be the last issue of your paper before the voters of the county will go to the polls and cast their vote for the various county officials for another term, I will thank you if you will allow me space to make a statement to the voters as the Republican nominee for the office of Tax Collector of Chilton County.

The unusual amount of work in my office has made it impossible for me to make a house to house canvass therefore, I am making this a personal appeal to you for your vote and influence in the coming election.

I have served you one term as collector and have given you the best service in every way that I could, making it as easy and convenient for you to pay your tax as possible. I believe if you will give my administration a careful consideration that you will agree with me that I have tried to do so much or more for you than any of my predecessors have eyer done and in so doing it has added considerable expense to me personally.

When you honored me with this office four years ago, I made you this promise that I would keep you and your interests foremost in my mind and I feel that I have lived up to this promise for I have tried to keep this your interests foremost in my mind, that I was and am your servant. Now, I am asking you to give me your endorsement of my administration and let me succeed myself, renewing my peldge to you, that the same policies will continue should I be re-elected. My idea of a public official is that the best service he can give is none too good for his constituents.

My closing remark to you is to again appeal to you to give my administration a fair and impartial consideration and if you feel that my efforts to give you good service merits your support, I will ever be grateful for whatever you may do for me.—Yours very truly, W. G. CULP.

J. H. POPWELL STANDS TRUE TO THE REPUBLICAN PARTY

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper to re-affirm my loyalty and support of the Republican party and its candidates.

I have been a Republican in the past, and it appears to me that present conditions and circumstances make it more important than ever before that the Republicans remain true to their party, both in Chilton County and throughout the country.

We have seen the Democrats advance every campaign argument from the negro to the New Deal, and I want to say that I have not yet seen them put forth anything that could cause me for one minute to think of departing from the Republican party.

I urge the Republicans of Chilton County to stand by our nominees next Tuesday, as I firmly believe the election of the Republican ticket is the best guarantee of the future government in our county.—Respectfully, J. H. Popwell.

CARD OF THANKS FROM BEN DUKE AND HIS FAMILY

Mr. Ben Duke, of Mt. Pleasant community, was in Clanton Monday, declaring that he lives in the best community in the world. This opinion in Mr. Duke was established by the action of his neighbors and friends in helping him and his family to re-establish their home after all they had was destroyed by fire a little over a week ago.

"All of our neighborse have been good to us," said Mr. Duke, "dividing their means with us and greatly helping us to regain that which we lost. I can not name all who have helped us, but I want to specially mention the help of the Mt. Pleasant Sunday School and the Mt. Pleasant Sewing Club.

"The members of my family join me in expressing our most sincere appreciation of every act of kindness and assistance that has been rendered by each and every one."

SINGING AT BETHANY

Quite a large crowd gathered at Bethany church on last Sunday afternoon and organized a singing society. Mr. J. W. Devaughn was elected chariman and Mr. J. M. Williams, clerk, of the society.

We decided to meet on the first Sunday afternoon in each month for our singing instead of the fourth Sunday.

After the business was attended to, we had some real good singing. Directors for the afternoon were: J. W. Devaughn, L. T. Grant, J. M. Williams, J. W. Cagle, S. J. Williams, D. H. Towns, Clifton Deloach, Marvin Huett, Lorenza Williams, Arthur Williams and Mrs. Lorenza Williams. Organists for the afternoon were: Mrs. C. M. Billingsley and Mrs. J. M. Williams.

We wish to thank each and everyone for their presence and help, and we cordially invite everyone to come back and help us with our singing.

ALABAMA SINGING CONVENTION

The Alabama Singing Convention will be held in Birmingham on Saturday and Sunday, November 10 and 11 in the Municipal Auditorium. All singers and lovers of singing are invited to attend.

Lesson for November 4

CHRISTIAN GROWTH

LESSON TEXT—Luke 2:42-52; II Peter 1:5-8.

GOLDEN TEXT—But grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. To him be glory both now and forever. Amen.—II Peter 3:18.

PRIMARY TOPIC—When Jesus Was a Boy.

JUNIOR TOPIC—When Jesus Was a Junior.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How a Christian Grows.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Making Progress in Christian Living.

I. Jesus Christ Growing (Luke 2:42-52).

While Christ was indeed divine, his deity did not interfere with his development as a normal human being.

1. Jesus tarrying behind at Jerusalem (vv. 42-43).

At the age of twelve a Jewish child took his place in the temple as a worshiper. He was considered a "child of the law." Being conscious of his mission, when Joseph and his mother were returning from attendance at the Passover, he tarried behind to enter the temple and inquire into the meaning of the ordinances of God's house. He had an alert and eager mind which inquired after the truth.

2. Jesus found in the temple (vv. 44-50).

When Joseph and Jesus' mother had gone some distance on their return journey they discovered that Jesus was missing, and therefore sought him among their kinsfolk and acquaintance. Not finding him, they turned back to Jerusalem, where they found him in the temple.

a. He was "sitting" (v. 46), was perfectly at home in his Father's house.

b. He was "hearing" the teachers of God's word (v. 47), was eager to learn God's will.

c. He asked questions (v. 46). The growing mind is inquisitive. It more than merely receives that which is taught; it goes out toward, it inquires after.

d. He answered questions (v. 46). His answers showed great wisdom, such as to astonish those who heard him. It was not an exhibition of his divine wisdom, but an expression of the workings of a perfect human mind suffused by the Holy Spirit.

3. Mary's complaint (vv. 48-50).

She remonstrated with him for his behavior. While he replied with dignity and tenderness, he made no apology, showing that he was more than the son of Mary—that God was his Father.

4. Jesus' obedience (v. 51).

Though he was conscious of his divine being and mission, he lived a life of filial obedience.

5. Jesus' development (v. 52).

a. Mental—"increased in wisdom."

b. Physical—"in stature."

c. Spiritual—"in favor with God and man."

II. Growing in Grace (II Pet. 1:5-8).

This is not growth into grace, but growth in grace. We get into grace by the new birth. This new nature which has its source in God must be developed in order that our lives may be fruitful for God (v. 8), that they bear testimony to the cleansing power of Christ's blood (v. 9), and that we may have assurance of salvation (v. 10). The following lines of growth are indicated:

1. Virtue (v. 5) here means energy and courage. This is not "added," as in the Authorized Version, but "supplied," as in the Revised Version—"in your faith supply virtue." It means increase by growth, not by external junction. The graces named develop out of each other from the root of faith. Manly courage is the first virtue which must be supplied in order to grow stronger.

2. Knowledge (v. 5) means a right understanding. It means, therefore, a practical knowledge.

3. Temperance (v. 6) means self-control. Practical knowledge will supply to itself the government of all appetites.

4. Patience (v. 6) means endurance, having control of self within. Endurance of that without will follow.

5. Godliness (v. 6) means piety, reverence for God, the submission of the human will to the will of God. This is a part of that practical knowledge which must be supplied.

6. Brotherly kindness (v. 7). Love of the brethren must be developed in godliness. The proof that one is godly is that he loves the brethren (1 John 5:1).

7. Charity (v. 7) means love. Peter's climax is reached in love. Out of faith, which is the root, springs this sevenfold fruit. In order to prevent apostasy, Peter calls all to be diligent in the development of these graces.

Humility of Heart

Wait on the Lord in humility of heart, that thou mayest daily feel the change which is wrought in the heart and conscience by the holy, eternal, ever-living Power; and so thou mayest witness, "that which is born of the Spirit, is spirit."

An Absurd Thing

What an absurd thing it is to pass over all the valuable parts of a man, and fix our attention on his infirmities.—Addison.

Luther E. Little

Democratic Candidate for

County Superintendent of Education

To the Citizens of Chilton County:

I wish to take this opportunity of making a few statements to the citizens of Chilton County regarding my candidacy for the office of County Superintendent of Education of this county.

I believe that I can be justified in calling your attention to the fact that during the school year of 1932-1933 the schools of this county were operated for only one-half term. During the school year of 1931-1932 the teachers of the county carried the burden on their shoulders and taught the full term but they were paid for only one-half year's work. These conditions were by no means inviting to a new superintendent on July 1, 1933, the date upon which I assumed the duties of this office.

Many of the building hazards have been corrected or eliminated entirely since I came into the office in July of last year. This work has been done without creating any indebtedness against the county board of education or against the communities in which the work has been done. The $32,000, which amount was due the teachers for their services in 1931-1932, has all been paid. At the close of the fiscal year, September 30, 1934, the board of education was clear of all indebtedness and ready to start the new year not owing one dime.

All schools in the county were operated for a full term last year. The teachers and truck drivers received their full salaries on time for their services. The transportation system of the county has been improved as far as finances would permit. This year we have managed to furnish the schools of the county the necessary incidental needs of the school and thus eliminated incidental fees for the county.

The above facts, briefly stated, are sufficient to indicate the program which I should like to continue for a period of four years. The building and repair program of this county was about one-third completed during the past year. I feel that if the citizens of this county permit me to continue in this office for a full term of four years that our county school system will continue in a progressive way as it has since July 1, 1933.

I conscientiously feel that a worthy servant is worthy of his hire and that if I have in one year's time demonstrated to the people of this county my ability to handle the affairs of this office that I should be given an opportunity to continue my services for the next four years.

Respectfully yours,

LUTHER E. LITTLE County Superintendent.

(Piad political adv., by Luther E. Little, Clanton, Ala.)

ISABELLA NEWS

The senior class of Isabella High School held a class meeting recently with Clifford Manning, class president, presiding. A number of mottos were discussed and the following was selected: "We finish, to begin." The class colors are pink and white and the pink rose was chosen as class flower.

The officers of the Senior class are as follows: Clifford Manning, president; Ruth Martin, vice president; Will L. Martin, secretary and treasurer; Mittie Faye Jones, reporter. The social committee is composed of Lucille Edwards, chairman; Edna Durbin and Mittie Faye Jones were appointed by the president.

The F. H. A. Club

The F. H. Club of Isabella High school met Wednesday, October 17. The meeting was called to order by the president, Avolene Jones. The program, as stated below, was rendered:

Devotional, Margaret Owen, "The Woman Citizen," Frances Sexton. "What the Community Does For Us," Avolene Jones. "What We Give our Community," Willie Nell Owen. Roll call and approval of minutes. After discussing plans of the club for the coming year, the meeting was adjourned.

The Home Economics club girls have organized into the Future Home Makers of America, a state organization. The following officers are serving in the club. President, Avolene Jones; vice president, Lora Dean Chambers; secretary, Mary Carr Mims; treasurer, Frances Sexton; program committee, Lora Dean Chambers, chairman; Maxine Oden and Sallie Jo Cox; Social Committee, Ruth Martin, chairman; Edna Durbin, and Margaret Owen; reporter, Sallie Jo Cox.

The club will hold two regular meetings each month. We are striving toward a successful year, with Miss Mandeline Heflin as sponsor of the club.

The Sr. II and Sr. I classes have elected their class officers:

Senior II class, president, James Veazey; vice president, Carson Williams; secretry-treasurer, Willo Dean Collins; social committee, Carson Williams, chairman; Willie Nell Owen, Woodrow Durbin and Lora Dean Chambers; reporter, Lora Dean Chambers.

Senior I class — President, J. C. Jones; vice president, Frances Sexton; secretary-treasurer, Margie Crowson; reporter, Mary Carr Mims; historian, Edna Sims; social committee, Sallie Joe Cox, Harvey Fox, and Gladys Gaydon.

Who's who in Jr. III class—Cutest girl, Hazel Jones; most handsome boy, Bob Calfee; neatest girl, Gladys Turner; neatest boy, Bob Calfee; most studious girl, Mary Charles Jones; best boy athlete, Winifred Lecroy; best all round girl, Mary Charles Jones; best all round boy, Winifred Lecroy; most popular girl, Gladys Turner; most popular boy, Winifred Lecroy; most conceited girl, Esther Owen; most conceited boy, Zolen Broadhead.

Our football team played West Blocton at West Blocton last Friday and was defeated by the score of 25 to 2. It was a case of too much power with our boys badly crippled on account of Martin's bad arm. His is the first defeat of the season and this is the fourth game.

Demo. Nominee Seeks Election

To the Voters of Chilton County:

As I find it impossible to see all of you personally, I am taking this method of asking your support of my candidacy for the office of clerk of the Circuit Court.

Although I have been a life-long resident of Chilton County, I have never sought any important office, and for that reason I am probably not very well know to many of you. However, I feel I am well qualified for the office. I have had many years experience as bookkeeper for large advancing merchants; I have had long practice in the making and examining of all kinds of legal papers; I have served my beat for eight years as Justice of the Peace. The nature of these experiences, I believe, has given me the qualifications which fit me for the office I seek .

You are invited to make a searching investigation of my record. This record will be found to be one of honesty, integrity and courteous dealing with the many citizens with whom my business relations have caused me to deal. If in this investigation you find anything which, in your opinion, renders me undesirable as a holder of this office, then do not vote for me.

Accept my promise, if elected, to do everything in my power to give courteous, efficient service to every person with whom I have to deal, and to be as liberal with the fees which support this office as the law will allow. I have no desire to get rich by the office, and as I have always done, I shall practice a live and let live policy.

I have conducted my campaign in a friendly spirit. I have had nothing to say against the character or politics of my opponent or any candidate of his party. I deplore the fact that some politicians, as well as candidates, refer to the opposing party or candidate as their enemies. I call no man my enemy; I am the friend of all humanity, regardless of political, church or lodge affiliation and I desire only to give the best service to all.

If you believe it to the better interest of all the people to elect my opponent, I shall humbly submit to your will. But if you can believe it will be to the interest of all the people of Chilton County to elect me to fill the office of clerk of the circuit court, I shall be profoundly grateful. I am leaving it with you and I shall continue to love you every one in any event.—J. C. Pattillo, Verbena, Ala.

Zac J. Jones Still Same Republican

Editor Union-Banner:

Our only way to judge the future is by the past. Look at America; the greatest and richest nation on earth. The Republican party has largely made it so. We have had a few Democratic administration since the Civil War, and at the close of each one of them the people, in great numbers, have flocked to the Republican party. Hence America is normally Republican.

Look at Chilton County. One of the best governed and one of the most prosperous counties in the State, if not in the south, who has made it so? The Republican party. We have in this county now, some officials that are nowhere excelled for kindness, efficiency, courtesy, and devotion to the people. What more do we want?

We hear of no party or candidate offering us better service than we have had from the Republican party. Then why look elsewhere?

We have been highly favored with temperate officials, and none of us want intemperate ones, and the present Republican nominees, as far as we know, are all temperate people. Then judging the future by the past, where can we do better than in the Republican party? And as the old adage says, "Let well enough alone."—Zac J. Jones.

KELLY GENTRY URGES ALL REPUBLICANS TO SUPPORT THE TICKET

Editor Union-Banner:

I wish to say just a word about the election to be held next week. I can see no reason why the people of Chilton County should depart from the principles they have so long held to. It is a pleasure to me to be known in Montgomery as one from Chilton County, because the county has the name of being in the best financial condition of any county in the state.

Let me appeal to the voters of Chilton County to stay by the Republican party which has placed Chilton County in this position. Remember some of the experiences you have had in the past when certain leaders deserted you. I am for the entire Republican ticket, and I hope every Republican voter in the county will be also.

I wish I had the space to tell you about some conditions down here. Stay by your nominees of the Republican party and you will have cause to be glad of it in the future.—Sincerely yours, Kelly Gentry, Secretary Montgomery County Republican Committee.

Akins Collins For Assessor

To the Voters of Chilton County:

In the past three years of service as Tax Assessor I have endeavored with pleasure to accommodate everybody alike, regardless of party, and to grant you every favor within my power. This was only my duty and you know whether or not my service has been satisfactory, and if it has I will greatly appreciate your support.

Now, friends, I feel like everybody knows that I have done my very best in every way to give perfect satisfaction and if you feel like I have, let me say again, that I will appreciate anything that anyone might be able to do for me in the coming election.

Let me insist that every voter go to the polls and vote his or her conviction on November 6th.

Yours for a great Republican victory.—AKINS I. COLLINS.

We open this week's school news by announcing that work began last week on the school well. Tiling has been purchased and delivered. The pump is to be ordered soon and thus we are on our way to a long sought-for water supply adequate to our needs. All parents were assessed a small fee to defray the expense of securing an expert to control and supervise the work of digging the well, setting in the tile and installing the pump. This assures us the satisfaction of knowing that we have a first class job which will stand many years. A number of the men are assisting in this work.

Work will begin soon in preparation of staging another snappy comedy-drama play similar to that of last school session. A select group of young people will be chosen to perform the character parts. This play has been given in numerous schools and lodge functions and has merited wide approval at all times. The title of it will be announced later. This entertainment will be given about two weeks following the Thanksgiving program. Be sure and read the Vermont school news if you are interested in knowing the details of the above announcement.

Our attendance for the first month was 94.5 per cent which is somewhat of an enviable record considering the fact that it was during the first month which in rural sections is ordinarily a busy season for the farm family, harvesting the fruits of their labor, etc.

The deepest sympathy of our entire faculty and student body is extended to the family of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Headley and Mr. Billie Turner through the loss of their beloved daughter and wife, and our esteemed friend, Clara. She was a loyal student of Vermont Jr. High last year, and a faithful friend at all times to those who knew her. The influence of the sweet character of her young life will continue to shed its halo of charm and fullness around those intimately associated with her.

Monthly tests were completed last Friday. Report cards were distributed last Tuesday. We wonder if our grades measure up to the acid test of our fond parents expectatons? Let's resolve to add an additional half-hour to our night study period at home during November and watch for the apparent magical results of improved report cards.

Remember, Vermont parents, our P.-T. A. meets at its regular session on next Thursday night, November 8th, at 7 o'clock. We are expecting several new members to join our happy band. Then, too, we plan to have the Pilgrim Rest P.-T. A. to bring us a charming program. Let's all be there to give them a rousing reception.

The honor roll for the first month is not complete at this writing. It will be given in the school news in next week's paper.

Mr. Johnson and Mr. Traywick made a business trip to Clanton on last Monday afternoon, October 22.

The P.-T. A. is sponsoring a community wide drive in their efforts to fit out the four classrooms with shades. Have you pledged your part? Have you responded to this worthy cause to the best of your interest? If not, may we count on you soon? We count your kind cooperation, because this is your school and it can be no better or stronger than the parents and teachers and children make it. In unity there is strength—while a house divided against itself cannot stand. These two familiar axioms convey an unending truth and our trust is that you will break away from the shackles of indifference or misguided opinions and link yourself into this chain of happy workers who have a goal in front of them, who with a firm determination in their minds, and a staunch resolve in their hearts beat back those barriers which resists all forms of progress and head right on to that coveted mark of advancement.

Basket ball practice for both boys and girls has begun but as yet no games are scheduled. The teams this year will be entirely new, composed generally of small players.

OSCAR BEAN SAYS HE IS STILL LOYAL TO REPUBLICAN PARTY

Editor Union-Banner:

Please give me a short space in your paper to say that I am still a loyal and faithful supporter of the Republican party, and am supporting the entire Republican ticket in the present campaign in Chilton County.

I understand that it has been reported that I, along with some others of the Bean family, have gone to the Democrats this time. I want to correct this rumor and say that, so far as I am concerned, it is not true. I have never supported a Democrat ticket, and am not doing it this time. I don't think I ever will go to the Democrats unless I lose my right mind.

In the light of what I have seen of political performances by the Democrats, I want to say that there are things too numerous to mention which would keep me from giving my support to that party.

While it is true that I did not get all the candidates nominated which I voted for in the primary, nevertheless, I am still loyal to the party, and believe I am doing my duty and following the right course to support and vote for those who are the nominees of my party.

Yours for the success of the entire Republican ticket on the 6th of November.—H. O. Bean, Beat 9.

Comm. Cobb For All Of Nominees

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me to express through your paper my thoughts on the coming election. We realize the time is near at hand to elect our county officers, and we hope that each and every individual will realize the responsilbity that rests on him or her when they go to the polls on November the 6th. Due to the present slump in business and everything in general, every Republican should be more interested in the coming election than ever before. He should feel proud of our county government and its Republican reign, and the only way to hold our own and maintain our high standard of government is to go to the polls and cost a straight Republican ticket.

When we begin to check back on our county we can see what has already been done by the Democrats, not only in our county but in our neighbor counties and state as well. This should be enough to convince every Republican voter that it wont do to experiment now.

Let's take a look at our nominees on the Republican ticket. I am sure we have a better, more capable ticket than the Democrats, Then why should anyone vote the Democrat ticket, or even split the ticket. The thing to do is support the ticket from top to bottom. If the Democrats elect a single man some Republican voters are going to help do it.

It is being rumored over the county that the present board of county commissioners are wasting the peoples' money and draining the county treasury, but I think the following will prove that the county is in better shape now than it was two years ago. In 1932, November 15, when Mr. Burnett and Mr. Vinson were members of the county board of commissioners the county borrowed $10,000 dollars. This was to be paid December 15, 1932, but due to tax money coming in slow it was not paid until January 11, 1933. We have not borrowed any money since then and as every one knows, have paid hundreds of dollars to keep the relief program going. Besides all the other county expenses. If any one doubts these statements you can see for yourself by going to the Peoples' Savings Bank and the county treasurer's office. If we will look closely we can see through these political smoke screens which are hovering over us today.

Now let's open our eyes and be wide awake so we can see the great responsibility that rests on every Republican voter. Go to the polls. See that your neighbor goes and supports our ticket, and see our grand old party go over in a big way.

Yours for the betterment of the county and the Republican party.—J. E. Cobb.

SARAH REBECCA LOGAN DIED

Mrs. Sarah Rebecca Logan, affectionately known to hundreds of friends as "Aunt Becky," died Monday morning at her home in the Bethel community, at the age of eighty years. She was the widow of the late Henry Logan.

Burial was at Bethel Tuesday with Martin in charge. Officiating at the funeral services were Rev. J. D. Hughes, Rev. Davis and Rev. J. W. Jones. Pallbearers were six grandsons, Henry, Leslie and Harmon Logan, Lois Dozier, Odis Vance, and Ernest Culver.

Mrs. Sallye Rudolph and children of Birmingham were visitors in Clanton during the week end.

Mrs. Doub Huddleston Hostess

One of the prettiest parties of the season was that given by Mrs. Doub Huddleston on last Friday afternoon at her home at 3 o'clock. About twenty guests were present and enjoyed a delightful afternoon of bridge. The Halloween idea was carried out in the decorations and refreshments. Beautiful baskets of yellow Chrysanthemums and dahlias were used to decorate the dining room and living room in which five tables were arranged for bridge. After a series of games Mrs. James Wade was awarded a pretty cream and sugar set for high score prize. Cut prize, pretty potted plant fell to Mrs. John Deramus.

The Halloween covers, napkins, plates and favors added to the attractiveness of the party. A salad plate with hot coffee was served by Mrs. Huddleston, Mrs. Wade and Mrs. Hayes.

Those enjoying this affair were: Mrs. J. C. Page, Mrs. J. Hance Alred. Mrs. L. F. Gerald, Mrs. James Wade, Mrs. Dick Hayes, Mrs. J. P. Hayes, Mrs. Hugh Jones, Mrs. Billy Smith, Mrs. Jack Davis, Mrs. John Deramus, Mrs. Otto Jones, Mrs. Hugh Simpson, Mrs. N. S. Johnson, Mrs. Frank Callen, Mrs. Arthur Johnson, Mrs. John Armstrong, Mrs. Grady Reynolds, Mrs. Julius Burnett, Mrs. John Durwood Mullins, Mrs. Barney Burnett.

Chas. Cooper And The Big Turtle

To the Republican Voters of Chilton County:

Several years ago I visited the State Fair in Montgomery, and while attnding this fair I saw many things that attracted my attention. The thing that attracted my attention most and made a lasting impression in my gourd, was a picture on the tent of a side-show, of a two-headed turtle. This picture was about twelve feet in diameter. It was hard for me to believe that turtle could be twelve feet wide. A man was standing at the front of this tent yelling to the people to see the "two-headed turtle." I like several others, bit at his bait and sunk the cork. I went in to look at this turtle. It was about the size of a half dollar. This turtle sure did draw up in size from the picture on the front canvas.

This big two hundred thousand gallon gasoline tale seems to have drawn up about as much as the turtle did. And so I am thinking that this big shortage tale that is being told on Mr. Zeb Mims will draw up more than the turtle did. In the final analysis I do not believe there will be a thin dime short.

All this bally-hoo is for no other purpose than to mislead the people and try to down the Republican party of Chilton County. So let me insist that each of you Republicans remain loyal to the party that has made Chilton County the banner county of the State.

Judge Reynold's name was on the first ballot I cast, and I voted for him almost every time that he has run, but I am not a Republican because Judge Reynolds use to be, or perhaps is still a Republican. Judge Reynolds has not said one word to me about switching to the "Demmies," but several people have told me that he was boosting J. Lee Smith, but I do not know whether it is true or not. I hope it is not true. I would regret to know that I had been voting for a man thirty years that would turn his back on the party that has done so much for him.

I have supported the Judge through thick and thin. But goodness knows I cannot follow him if he has gone to the Democratic den. I happen to be among those who failed to ring the bell in the past primary, but I am not the least bit sore over it. I feel very thankful and grateful for the handsome vote that I received. I would not have gotten in the race for Representative except for the fact that I felt confident that I could do something for the working people of Chilton County. It was not for the money that was in the job, as I usually make more money in the contracting business than that job would have paid. Right at this time I have three building contracts. One, a forty thousand dollar job at Tallassee; one, a high school job at Marbury; and one, a ten thousand dollar job over at Montevallo. I make more money in one week on these jobs than I would have cleared for the entire term as a member of the Legislature. In addition to the work we now have under course of construction, we have a large school building in Wetumpka to begin in about ten days.

I am not writing this letter at the request or knowledge of any candidate. I am writing it because I want to see our party successful next Tuesday. Let me ask that you voters remember the story about the spider and the fly, and for goodness sake, do not park in that Democratic parlor.

Ask yourself the question, "What has the Democratic party ever done that would induce one Republican to join them?"

In concluding these remarks let me again ask and insist that you "Stick to the party." Do not do like Mr. A. A. Jackson did, flop over to the Democrats because you failed to win in a race, or because someone whom you voted for failed to ring the bell. To all of the several hundred who voted for me in the recent primary I am especially requesting that you remain loyal to the party. Thank you. —CHAS. COOPER.

W. A. Reynolds On Co. Politics

Mr. Editor:

I want to beg your pardon for again asking a short space in your paper so soon. My attention has been called to a letter in the Chilton County News by Mr. G. W. Mims and G. S. Burnette criticizing to some extent the letter I had in your paper. I want to say to begin with that I would not say anything that would offend my lifelong friends, Mr. Burnette and Mr. Mims. I have known these men all of my life to be the best of citizens and good Republicans. They refer to Mr. Pitts being my son-in-law and it seems that they are holding him responsible for all the bad laws that were passed in an almost solid Democratic Legislature. I feel like that Mr. Pitts is perfectly able to take care of himself against these charges.

In refernce to what they have said in regard to Judge Reynolds in the primary, there is no one regrets Judge Reynold's defeat more than I do, and I am sure that those who have known me all my life know that I would not condone or indorse any wrong doings in our party, or anyone else's party. I believe in a fair and square deal. I will say frankly, I seriously doubt that our county will maintain its high standard it now occupies regardless of who is elected. I know there are a great number of old line Republicans that sincerely are grieved that Judge Reynolds was defeated. But are you going to sink the ship because we have lost our captain?

No doubt that a great number of you have received a copy of the Alabama Herald, which is said to be a mouth-piece of Colonel Graves, that has been so profusely delivered to all parts of the county, and especially, so well distributed last Saturday in Clanton. I especially call your attention to the article on the front page, which I presume is an editorial, which he states that if you do not support the Democratic ticket that you are jeopardizing your chance to fully participate in benefits being doled out by the Federal Government. Now I wonder if we have reached the place where we have got be a Democrat to have an equal chance as a citizen? I have been thinking that this administration would lead us into that, but it seems that it has arrived much sooner than I had expected.

As it now stands there are about seven hundred more Republicans in this county than there are Democrats. If the Democratic nomineees are elected it will have to be done by some of you Republicans. And I want to warn you, if you do, you may surrender a right that you will be a long time recovering. This county stands near the top. You have sixty-five chances to lose and only one chance to win if you vote the Democratic ticket. You have sixty-five chances to win and only one chance to lose if you vote the Republican ticket.

With best wishes to all concerned,
W. A. REYNOLDS.

CENTER HILL NEWS

The crowd at Sunday school was small last Sunday.

The singing Sunday afternoon was said to have been good considering everybody having bad colds and using the new books part of the time. Directors were B. L. Cobb, Lloyd Edwards, Velpo Mims, Ellis Martin, Buster Lowery, Cobern Cofer, Burl Martin, Houston Melton, Lonie Cobb and Mr. Melton. Organists were Mesdames Madge Howard, Howard Roper, Velpo Mims and Misses Violet Martin and Ruby Smith.

The sick folks are all better. Mrs. V. T. Cobb was able to be at the singing Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Francis Matthews was taken worse early Friday morning and was rushed to the hospital in Clanton, where she is reported to be lots better.

W. T. BEAN

REPUBLICAN NOMINEE FOR

County Superintendent Of Education

To the Voters of Chilton County:

In my last appeal to you for your support in the general election on November 6th, I wish to say that I would like to have seen and talked with every one, but I have been busy teaching since the campaign has really opened and it has been almost impossible for me to see but few. I wish that time and space would permit me stating my full policies as to the operating of the schools. But this would take too much space in the paper. However, if elected, I will exert every effort to give an impartial, honest and fair administration of the schools, placing due emphasis on the importance of seeing that every white child has an equal opportunity to obtain an education. I believe that my record as a teacher and superintendent of schools bespeaks that I will make the schools just as progressive as the money available and good judgment will justify.

I want to ask that no voter be swayed from your conviction by any desceptive campaign propaganda, such as circulated against me in the election in June of last year, when there were certain people who went from community to community telling school patrons that if I were elected the very type of school that they then had and wanted would be abolished by me just as soon as I went into office. If they found a community where they had an unconsolidated school, they would try to assure the patrons that I would consolidate that school with some of the town schools. If they found a consolidated school and the patrons satisfied with it, they would try to assure the patrons that if I were elected that I would immediately abolish their consolidated school and establish one teacher schools in the place of it. In other words every effort was made to make the people believe that I would do just exactly the opposite to what they wanted. The reason that I am now calling attention to this is because I am reliably informed that the same unprincipled tactics are starting again. As to my policies relative to the consolidating of the schools, I wish to say that I stand just where I stood before the primary, in which I stated that I believe in every school having a voice in its management. If a community wants consolidation, let it have consolidation; and if any school wants to retain it one or two teacher school, let it do so, as long as a majority of town schools. If they found a consolidated school and

I hear just a few people who are favoring my opponent because the schools ran a full term last year and because there are no incidental fees to be paid this year. I want my opponent to have full credit for every thing that he is justly entitled to, but the schools would have run a full term last year regardless of who had been superintendent, for the state paid its money regularly and the Federal Government made a donation of several thousand dollars to every county of this and all other states with which to run the schools. The state and nation were responsible for the operation of the school full term last year. As to the incidental expenses being paid by public funds, this just meant the shortening of every ment was initiated, so I am reliably informed, by a member of the school board and backed by the rest of the members of the board; so the school board is entitled to this credit and not the superintendent.

I am now asking every voter who will participate in the approaching election to give my record as a citizen, as a business man, and as a teacher and superintendent of schools, a fair consideration before casting your vote. Upon my life's record I am standing for election to the office of County Superintendent of Education, and if you find that I am competent to fill this office and if I am found worthy, I most earnestly solicit your vote and influence in next Tuesday's election.

I hope every Republican will make a strenuous effort to go to the polls in November 6th and help hold up the hands of the Republican party.

Very sincerely,
W. T. BEAN.

(Paid Political Adv. by W. T. Bean, Clanton, Ala).

Mr. and Mrs. J. Renfro Mullins and little daughter, Jean, John Deramus, Edwin Mullins and Mrs. W. I. Mullins motored to Mobile Saturday and spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mullins and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Mullins. Mrs. W. I. Mullins remained to visit her son, Frank, who has been ill for several weeks.

SERVICES AT POPLAR SPRINGS

Rev. Paul Oden, Chilton County Association evangelist, will preach at Poplar Springs November 4 at eleven o'clock. Everybody is invited.—J. E. McDowell.

Johnnie Plier And Politics

To the Citizens of Chilton County:

I had never thought that I would write to the public about a matter, which may seem to be a personal affair. which some may say is a personal grudge of mine, but, when I see a crowd of unscrupulous politicians, who respect no man's good name, character, reputation or rights if that stands in their selfish way, trying to destroy as good a citizen as we have in Chilton County, I can no longer hold my peace — I must speak—though I believe that hundreds of people in this county know my story already. I have been a Democrat all my life. I would vote that ticket straight now, could I do so and believe that I could support all of its candidates and do my duty as a citizen of this county, and I am not making a last minute charge. My story is ten months and more old, and written on the records of our circuit court.

In September of 1930 I was city clerk of the Town of Clanton, and had the nerve to oppose J. Lee Smith in his race for mayor of Clanton. Immediately after he took office he made his boast that he would send Johnnie Plier to the penitentiary. What happened? He spent nearly one thousand dollars of the money of the town of Clanton trying to hire accountants who would swear me into the penitentiary. WHY? No reason has ever been advanced except his undying vindictiveness and hatred for any man who dares to oppose him. What did the record show? That a competent public accountant had been employed by the Town of Clanton; had audited my books and reported that they were in proper condition. This audit is a matter of record on file in the office of the town today. Nevertheless he employed H. C. Crane and Co., of Montgomery, who spent months checking my books and then a public accountant files a report, or rather two of them, charging that Johnnie Plier was short $2.709.79 and was due the Town of Clanton that amount. For the period of time from the fall of 1930 and until February 1st, 1934, I was kept under this charge and during that time J. Lee Smith and his henchmen caused my indictment by the grand jury. I was tried before a jury in our circuit court for four long days and promptly acquitted. I think that every man who heard the trial was convinced beyond a reasonable doubt not only that I was not guilty, but that on the other hand the Town of Clanton owed me money. This trial cost Chilton County approximately $750.00 of the taxpayers' money for the operation of the court, besides the salaries of the judge, two solicitors and other court officials and added to this was the item of costs incurred in over a hundred criminal cases which were continued, which will run probably to $1,500 and will ultimately have to be paid by the parties or the county—a total fairly stated of something like $3,250 to the citizens of the town and county, all to satisfy the spleen of J. Lee Smith.

Now these facts are matters of record; facts that no man can deny, as they are written on the records of our court, written by the citizens of Chilton County in the form of law that protects our peace and security.

I wish to say one more thing of a personal nature about this matter. I want to tell you that it was not an easy matter for me to vindicate myself. I had to be able to employ good attorneys and competent accountants to show the truth about the maze of records covering a long period of time I was clerk. I was fortunate enough to be able to borrow this money on the Adjusted Service Certificate issued to me by the United States as a veteran. I want to remind you how I earned that money. I earned it not with a white collar job, but I earned it at the rate of ONE dollar to a dollar and a quarter a day fighting for the United States in the mud and trenches in France.. What a reward for that service, I ask you?

Now this same J. Lee Smith, now a candidate for Probate Judge of Chilton County, with the assistance in his campaign of the same attorneys who assisted him as city attorneys in my troubles, is at the last minute trying to ruin J. Z. Mims, his opponent, in this race by a last minute charge, by public accountants, that he is also short. He evidently does not learn, but I ask you not to forget you have one case of this character written on the records of your county at a terrible cost. The answer as to whether you approve of this sort of men for your public officials, is in your hands. —J. H. PLIER.

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION TO NON-RESIDENT

The State of Alabama, Chilton County; Circuit Court, in Equity. Pearlie Peterson, Complainant; vs. Elbert Peterson, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of A. B. Foshee, Solicitor for Complainant, that the defendant is a non-resident, and that his place of residence and post office address is unknown, and that such address cannot be ascertained after reasonable effort; and, further, that, in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is over the age of twenty-one years:

It is, therefore, ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Union-Banner, a newspaper published in the County of Chilton, once a week for four consecutive weeks requiring him, the said Elbert Peterson, to plead, answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 13 day of November, 1934, or, in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against him.

Done at office in Clanton, this 12th day of October, 1934.

Why Doctors Favor a Liquid Laxative

A doctor will tell you that the careless use of strong laxatives may do more harm than good.

Harsh laxatives often drain the system, weaken the bowel muscles, and even affect the liver and kidneys.

Fortunately, the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be regulated to suit individual need. It forms no habit; you needn't take a "double dose" a day or two later.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin gently helps the average person's bowels while nature is restoring their regularity. Why not try it? Some pill or tablet may be more convenient to carry. But there is little "convenience" in any cathartic which is taken so frequently, you must carry it with you, wherever you go!

Its very taste tells you Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is wholesome. A delightful taste, and delightful action. Safe for expectant mothers, and children. At all druggists, ready for use, in big bottles.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

PROPER HOG FEEDING WILL SAVE $970,000

Auburn, Ala.—Almost $1,000,000 can be saved this fall and winter by Alabama farmers properly feeding their fattening hogs, according to Dean M. J. Funchess, director of the state experiment station, who advises farmers to feed their fattening hogs a mixture of charcoal, lime and salt in addition to corn, peanuts and other feeds commonly fed to hogs.

"The feeds commonly used for fattening hogs in Alabama such as corn, peanuts, etc., are deficient in certain mineral elements required by hogs," says Dean Funchess. "A two-year experiment conducted in this state showed that hogs fed on corn and peanut meal required 97 pounds or 24 per cent more feed to make 100 pounds of pork than hogs fed a similar ration plus a mixture of charcoal, lime, and salt.

"According to statistics, there are approximately one million hogs sold and slaughtered by Alabama farmers annually. It is safe to assume that these hogs be fed to an average weight of 200 pounds each and that at least one-half million of these hogs receive a ration which is deficient in mineral elements. On this basis the saving to Alabama farmers would be $970,000 annually if they would all adopt the practice."

CORNSTALK DESTRUCTION HELPS CONTROL INSECTS

Auburn, Ala.—Destruction of cornstalks and fall and winter plowing are the most important steps to take in the control of insect pests attacking corn, according to Prof. J. M. Robinson, entomologist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Both the larger cornstalk borer and the lesser cornstalk borer frequently do considerable damage to corn in most parts of the state Mr. Robinson reports. Another insect which often damages corn is the sugar cane beetle, he said.

HIGHER LIVESTOCK PRICES PREDICTED

Auburn, Ala.—Based on a survey of drouth areas, feed conditions, and the decrease in numbers of cattle, hogs and sheep, 1935 livestock prices promise to be the highest since 1930 predicts C. A. Burmeister, senior economist of the bureau of agricultural economics.

The number of meat animals at the end of the present year promises to be the smallest in 35 years with little or no prospects for increased numbers expected before the end of 1935, he says.

CERTIFICATES POOL WILL CLOSE NOVEMBER 10

Farmers with surplus tax certificates which they expect to dispose of through the federal certificate pool in Washington should do so immediately as the Agricultural Adjustment Administration has announced that the pool will close on November 10.

In making the announcement, E. L. Deal, manager of the pool, said:

"Because we have tentatively selected a final date for receiving surplus certificates, it is now more urgent than ever that producers speed up the surrender of any certificates they wish to offer for sale through the pool."

PROCESSING TAX FARMERS' TARIFF

Auburn, Ala.—The cotton processing tax is farmers' tariff and it has not had a depressing effect on the price of cotton, says Cull A. Cobb, chief of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration's cotton section. The cotton processing tax is paid by the consumer who buys articles manufactured from cotton, not by the producer or the processor.

Mt. Pisgah

We have been requested to announce that on next Sunday, November 4th, the singing society will meet at this place at 2 p.m., and will have representatives from Bethsalem, Pleasant Grove, Liberty, Highland, Bethany and Chestnut Creek.

We are very glad to have the promise of these other singing societies to meet with us, and are expecting a fine singing. Each and everyone is cordially invited. We are expecting you to come.

SIDE CAMP APPROVED FOR BUTLER COUNTY

Montgomery, Ala.—With the assistance and cooperation of Col. A. L. Fuller, district commander, district "G" Civilian Conservation Corps, Ft. Barrancas, Fla., a side camp of thirty men has been approved for Butler County, according to a statement issued by the Alabama Commission of Forestry. The side camp will be attached to Baldwin County Camp No. P-61, Bay Minette, Alabama. Ordinarily side camps at distances greater than twenty-five miles from the base camp are not approved, but the merits of the case warranted a favorable decision.

The schedule of CCC camps for the fourth work period, as planned by the commission of forestry, included a full strength camp for Butler County. Unfortunately the recommendations of the state agency were not followed to any considerable extent with the result that many worthwhile projects will have to be held in abeyance for the present.

The work to be accomplished from the side camp consists of the erection of a 100 foot steel lookout tower, the construction of three one-room fireman's dwellings, thirty-three miles of telephone line, fifteen miles of truck trails and fifteen miles of firebreaks.

The site of the side camp which will be located in the vicinity of Chapman has already been approved by the army inspectors. The buildings necessary for the sanitary and efficient messing and housing of thirty men and a foreman will be placed under construction within the next few days.

TO ORGANIZE FARMERS UNION

H. D. Edwards and W. H. Alexander, president and secretary-treasurer of Valley Grove local, will be at Minooka schoolhouse Wednesday night November 7th, 1934, at 7 o'clock to organize a farmers union. They will be at Providence school house on Thursday night, November 8th, at 7 o'clock. All the farmers are requested to be there and the ladies are especially invited.—Signed, W. H. Alexander, secretary-treasurer.

ROYAL COGGINS WRITES

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me a few words through the paper as it is drawing near the close of the campaign. I want to appeal to the Republicans to guard our rights on the 6th of November.

As you know, every effort is being made to mislead our people. To heed to the plea of the opposition is nonsense, for they haven't anything to offer us; they haven't had and never will have.

I ask you to stop with me long enough to think. If you do not stand by the Republican ticket in Chilton County, fathers and mothers, your boys have just begun being slaughtered and killed and placed on railroad tracks to be mangled. Could you turn your backs on your children for someone who cares nothing for you, only seeking your vote?

Under the little Democratic power we have in the city of Clanton the sidewalks are being crowded at times by drunkards and cursers. It seems that they are going to take possession over the men, women and children who stand for soberness, fellowship and good-will, and nothing being done by the authorities to put a halt to it.

Governor Graves, in his speech Saturday, told us all the good things but left off the bad. Figures show that two-thirds of the farmers are in a worse condition now than they were two years ago. I ask you Republicans if you are satisfied with the AAA. This is what the Democrats offer us, and Col. Graves told us about that wonderful, hopeful platform, last but not least, put the women and children first. It has taken the Democrats 1934 years to find out this ought to be done; but that don't fill the bill unless you put Jesus first of all.

REPORT ON PAROLES, PARDONS

Hon. B. M. Miller:

I beg leave to report on paroles and pardons granted by you from the beginning of your administration, January 19th, 1931 to date.

The records show that you have granted 4,960 permanent paroles pending good behavior; that you have granted 352 full pardons with restoration of civil and political rights, and that you have restored citizenship in 76 cases where the person had been convicted of crime in the federal court.

The records further show that of the 4,960 permanent paroles granted by you, that you have revoked only 167 of them.

The records further show that 52 persons were sentenced to death in the electric chair and that you have commuted 25 of them from the death sentence to life imprisonment. You have denied commutation of death sentence in 16 cases. One prisoner under sentence of death died in prison hospital before date set for his execution.

You have remitted forfeitures in 81 cases, and have remitted fines in 36 cases.

Twenty-nine convicts have been transferred to the hospitals for the insane and 3 have been transferred to the U. S. Government hospitals for treatment.

Seven convicts have been transferred to the Reform school.—W. F. Covington, Jr., recording secretary.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala., Oct. 30.—Speaking at the monthly fireside meeting of Mortar Board, national honor society for senior women at the University of Alabama, on the subject "The Consumer in the New Economic Order," Mrs. H. G. Dowling of Tuscaloosa declared that two outstanding needs of the consumer are graded canned goods and properly graded dry goods, especially silk materials. Mrs. Dowling is the wife of the Tuscaloosa County Superintendent of Education and president of the Alabama Education Association.

Mrs. Dowling stated that there are several organizations whose work benefits the consumer. The American Medical Association, she said, by the fighting of quack remedies and by approving certain foods and soaps, is of great service. She also mentioned the work of the American Dental Association, the American Home Economics Association, the American Association of University Women, and the League of Women Voters.

"The condition which those interested in the conumers' welfare need to bring about," the speaker declared, "is that of grading products in such simple terms that the ultimate consumer can understand all of them."

The speaker said that 85 times out of a hundred the consumer in the new economic order is a woman. She said that the United States government, in buying goods, can make specifications as to the quality of the product it purchases but that the small consumer has no such method of securing reliable goods. The housekeeper must depend upon trademarks, brands and advertisements as her guides. Because of the confusion which arises from having many brands to choose from and from reading misleading advertisements, she must do her buying almost exclusively in an experimental manner.

"There are, however, a few standards by which the consumer may be guided. Butter is graded by the department of agriculture so that the purchaser can be certain of the quality she is buying. Milk is graded. Quart cartons are standardized. Also blankets are graded as to the amount of wool they contain."

Declaring that the production of cotton in Brazil is rapidly increasing, Dr. P. H. Rolfs of Gainesville, Fla., agricultural expert who established an agricultural college in the largest state in Brazil, predicted that that South American nation is becoming an important competition of the United States. Dr. Rolfs was a visitor at the University of Alabama, where he renewed old acquaintanceship with Dr. J. J. Doster, Dean Agnes Ellen Harris and Dr. Roland Harper.

Dr. Rolfs said that the cotton crop of Brazil is being hauled to seaports by motor trucks over new paved highways running back into the interior where transportation facilities have been very limited until recently.

The real old-timy negro folksongs are becoming increasingly difficult to find in this country of ours because the modern negro is becoming too cultivated to be proud of the older ballads, according to John A. Lomax of the library of congress. Lomax was at the University of Alabama the past week after spending several days in Alabama seeking negro ballads for victrola recordings to be placed in the library of congress.

Lomax said that he secured the best songs in penitentiaries and chain gangs. The negroes are usually sad and lonesome and sing from the very depths of their hearts, he said.

With him he brought Ledbetter who composed a song addressed to the governor of Louisiana. Lomax heard it; had it recorded, and took to Baton Rouge. The song had the desired effect. Today the black is traveling with Lomax about the south. He is said to be an expert player of the guitar and the possessor of a beautiful voice.

DANGER FROM SCREW WORM

Warning is issued to farmers to make inspection of their stock, relative to screw-worm.

Farmers should inspect animals for any break in the skin, as it is here the worms begin their work.

Particular warning is issued in the case of new-born calves, as the worm is exceptionally quick to take its place in the calf.

A preventive of a mixture of lard and tar is prescribed, after which a veterinarian should be consulted.

Hughes Declares For New Deputies In Sheriff's Office

To the Voters of Chilton County:

I wish to make this statement to you through The Union-Banner that if elected Sheriff I positively will not use as deputies anyone now connected with or that has been in the past connected with the sheriff's office in Chilton County. I make this statement without any reflection on anyone that is serving now or that has served in the past with the sheriff's office. I trust that should any of my friends in the future hear of any statements being made to the contrary, or where I have made any promises or agreements with anyone that you will kindly refer them to the above statement.

I certainly appreciate the vote of confidence that I received in the Republican primary and I want your continued support. To those who saw fit to vote for either of my opponents, I want you to know that your help will be appreciated, as much as those who stood by me all the way through.

Assuring you of my appreciation of your support in the coming election and looking forward to the success of our entire ticket nominated, I am

Respectfully yours,
DEWEY HUGHES.

The Story of the Bible Told in Pictures

Elijah Fed by the Ravens.—Following the death by fire of Zimri the kingdom of Israel was divided and Omri prevailed against Tibni. He built the city of Samaria. He was a wicked ruler and his son, Ahab, who succeeded him, was even more wicked than his father, doing more to provoke the anger of the Lord against Israel than all the kings of Israel that were before him. "And Elijah, the Tishbite, who was of the inhabitants of Gilead, said unto Ahab, As the Lord God of Israel liveth, before whom I stand, there shall not be dew or rain these years, but according to my word. And the word of the Lord came unto him, saying, get thee hence, and turn thee eastward, and hide thyself by the brook Cherith, that is before Jordan. And it shall be, that thou shalt drink of the brook; and I have commanded the ravens to feed thee there. So he went and did according unto the word of the Lord: for he went and dwelt by the brook Cherith, that is before Jordan. And the ravens brought him bread and flesh in the morning and bread and flesh in the evening; and he drank of the brook."—I Kings 17: 1-6. Red Cross Roll Call Opens Armistice Day

J. Mell Martin Is Roll Call Chairman for Chilton County

Organization plans for Chilton County Chapter of the American Red Cross are now being made for the annual Roll Call Membership campaign which opens on Armistice Day, Sunday, November 11, according to a statement given out by J. Mell Martin, Roll Call Chairman. The quota assigned to this chapter is 500, and Mr. Martin says there is every indication that the goal will be reached if not passed, during the roll call campaign.

Further outlining the plans Mr. Martin states that he expects to organize a corps of volunteer workers to solicit memberships in every community of Chilton County. Several enthusiastic persons have already signified their willingness to accept a place among these workers, and others will be drafted into the cause.

About the first of November Mr. Martin will have the list of volunteer workers completed, at which time he will invite them to come to Clanton for a meeting. At this meeting full instruction will be given the workers and all plans for carry the roll call over the top will be thoroughly outlined.

"Red Cross services to the public must be continued at their present high peak," Mr. Martin concluded. "The organization must stand ready at all times to answer calls for relief in catastrophes, great and small; it must be ready for any sort of governmental cooperation that may be needed. An increased membership will provide the means through which the needs of the coming year can be met. Chilton County Chapter will ask all our citizens to remember the fine work of disaster relief which the Red Cross rendered our suffering citizens in 1932, and join the Red Cross again this year during the Roll Call from Armistice to Thanksgiving."

CHANGES IN MAIL ROUTES

The Union-Banner:

The change in rural routes at Clanton which was scheduled to become effective November 1st, has been postponed for thirty days and is now scheduled to take effect December 1, 1934, unless ordered to the contrary. Mr. Miller will continue as carrier on Rte. 4, and Mr. Easterling on Number 6, until December 1st.

There is also a slight change in the arrangements at Jemison on the routes but I am not in position to give that exactly. — Billy Smith, acting postmaster.

SAM PATE FOR REPUBLICANS

Mr. Sam Pate, of Thorsby, former Tax Assessor of Chilton County, was in Clanton Monday.

While here Mr. Pate called at The Banner office to talk politics a while.

For many years Mr. Pate has been one of the leading Republicans of the county, having held the office of Tax Assessor for ten years as a Republican official.

Mr. Pate said Monday: "I want you to say to my friends throughout the county that I am supporting the Republican ticket one hundred per cent in this campangn. The Republican party has done so much for me in the past that it would be ungrateful for me to withhold my support from the party in its general election campaign. I am for the ticket from top to bottom."

NOTED SINGER IN CONCERT HERE

It is with justifiable pride that the Music Appreciation Club of Clanton announces an engagement made for Edward Kane, nationally famous tenor, to sing in concert at Clanton on Friday night of this week. Mr. Kane will be accompanied by Elizabeth Causey at the piano.

This will be a rare opportunity for the people of Clanton to enjoy an artist of such outstanding note and ability as Mr. Kane and his equally distinguished accompanist.

Date of the concert is announced for Friday night of this week, at the high school auditorium, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. Tickets are on sale now at 25 cents for students and 35 cents for adults. It is ponited out that a special concession has been made in order to give the people of Clanton an orrortunity to hear these wonderful artists. Their concerts all over the country have drawn capacity audiences at the price of one dolar for admission.

This will be a most notable event, and the sponsors of the program appeal to the people of Clanton to show their appreciation by a hearty response in attendance.

OBITUARIES — IN MEMORY

It becomes necessary for us again to call attention to the fact that we make a charge of one cent per word for all obituaries over 150 words published in The Union-Banner. So, if you want an obituary, or in memory article, published about a departed friend or relative, it must be confined to not over 150 words, or else money order for the remainder should be included if sent by mail, as outlined above.

If obituaries are sent in containing over 150 words and no money accompanies same, it will be either omitted entirely or, if possible, condensed to come within the requirement, and published.

Mrs. Calloway Is Pulling For All

Dear Friends:

I wish to appeal to every Republican voter of Chilton County to go to the polls on next Tuesday and vote for our nominees. We are all proud of the financial condition of our county. Since I have been treasurer not a single warrant has been refused because a lack of funds, while in contrast to that, the treasurers of adjoining counties frequently have to put off the payment of their warrants for several months and the owners are compelled to carry their warrants back time and again before there is money with which they can be paid.

It has been said that our county is "bankrupt" but I wish to state that there is over $17,000 in the county treasury and the county also owns a $2,000 state bond which is drawing interest but which the state cannot pay. We all know the state has always been controlled by Democrats, and yet it owes the greatest debt it has ever owed. We cannot say that it is caused by the depression because our county has gone through the same depression that every person has endured. Neither can you say that the contrast is because our county's taxes have been increased for the income of our county is practically one-third less than it was in 1929 due to the fact that the Alabama Power Company's taxes have been reduced in the county to about that amount. To make up for the reduction of these taxes to the state an income tax has been levied which goes wholly to the state while Chilton County has had nothing to replace its loss, and yet, as I said, our county has remained on a cash basis and has $17,000 to carry over into the next year, while the state owes more and has an income greater than it has ever had before.

It seems that a concerted effort is especially being made to defeat Mr. Mims and Mr. Hughes. I believe that we should select people for officers whom we would be pleased for the young people to model their lives after. I believe that both of these men are ideal citizens and that they are Christians. If a had a child I would be happy to know that it would live as good a life as I believe both of these men are. Our idea of life should not be to have money alone but to live a life that will help our fellowman to be a better citizen, and it is for this reason that I am appealing to the women of the county to especially vote for these men.

It seems to be some people's idea to vote against some of our candidates to penalize certain officers who are now serving. I believe that "every tub should stand on its own bottom," and that each individual is responsible for his actions. I would never leave the party because there is an officer that I did not like but I would stay on and exercise my ballot at the next primary in helping to vote that officer or officers out.

As a citizen, a county officer, and a Republican voter, I wish to denounce the dirty last minute campaign "mud" used by the Democrats in this campaign. Two examiners, Mr. Wills and Mr. Mullins, started examining the tax offices. They quit in the middle of the examination of Mr. Culp's office and went to Mr. Mims's office. On September 28th Mr. Wills who had charge of the examination, came to my office and told me that the county owed Mr. Mims around $100 that he had overpayed the county about that much and asked if there was $100 in the fine and forfeiture fund. I told him I thought there was but to please give me a letter in writing showing exactly what I should pay him. On October 1, he came to my office and gave me a letter asking me to pay Mr. Mims $95.00. The letter is signed by Mr. Wills, examiner of accounts, and even after that he went and reported that Mr. Mims owed the county. If Mr. Mims owes the county I do not see why he did not tell me to collect from him instead of paying him. Could you believe any report made by any man who writes one thing and talks another?

I am pleading with the women of this county to vote for the men whom they would like for their brothers, husbands and sons to follow. If that is done, I believe we will have our Republican nominees elected and that we will have officers whom we will be proud of.—Respectfully yours, Gertrude P. Calloway.

Gerald Hubbard

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me a few words to the Republican voters relative to the coming election. Like most of you I did not get several of those I voted for in the primaries, but the people have made their choice and their choice is my choice now.

It is my opinion that we are confronted with the gravest problem since Judge Adams made an effort to deliver our county government into the hands of the Democratic party.

Remember those days and look at Shelby County and I am sure that you will not be led away by those we have been favoring for many years.

Remember that we are now and that our children will be paying the debts created by the Deason administration for many years to come. Let's not step into the same trap again. It has been truly said that the common sense of our citizens and not the advice of our office holders and defeated candidates has been responsible for our condition and control of our own affairs.

It we still use ur common sense and vote for what we know is right, success will crown our efforts again.

Yours for the success of the Republican party on November 6, 1934. —Gerald Hubbard.

From John Bean

To the Voters of Chilton County:

I want to take this means of urging every Republican in Chilton County to consider well before voting, what is the best interest of the people of the county. Then without prejudice go to the polls and vote the Republican ticket straight.

Sincerely, I believe that to vote the entire Republican ticket is to the best interest of the county in general. I am very glad that in my recent canvass of different parts of the county I find that the people are becoming more reconciled over the political situation than some had predicted. I hope all the uneven places will become smooth by election day, and that the entire Republican ticket may be elected by the biggest majority in its history.

Thanking you for any consideration you may give me and the Republican ticket, I remain, yours very truly.—J. P. Bean.

IN MEMORY OF C. A. JOHNSON

God has called from the walks of men a friend, who was a dear comrade to me and many others. The accident that my friend met with was deplorable and regretable. His life and companionship held in high esteem by his many friends and loved ones.

At the age of 23, our friend was in the bloom of youth and manhood. However, God in His infinite wisdom, and love, doeth all things well. It is my hope that His comforting love and blessing may abide with his parents and friends.

The fitting tribute that Rev. J. W. Jones paid concerning the young man was heartily endorsed by those who knew him. Left to mourn his death are his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Johnson, two brothers, four sisters, and a host of relatives and friends.—Barney Adams.

If A Majority of Farmers Express Favor for Bankhead Control Act

The secretary of agriculture announced that the cotton adjustment program would continue into the 1935 season. This announcement was made in order that the more than one million cotton farmers who signed 1934 and 1935 cotton contract can proceed with their farming plans for the next season with full assurance that the voluntary cotton adjustment program will be made effective for 1935 under the terms of the two-year contracts.

It was emphasized by officials of the Agriculutral Adjustment Administration that the secretary's announcement did not constitute the formal proclamation which the cotton contract required. It is assurance that by December 1 such a proclamation will be issued. The cotton section of the administration is engaged in developing the details of the 1935 program. These include the amount of reduction in acreage to be required and the amount and manner of rental and parity payments to be made.

The complete details will be announced as soon as they are completed and approved. It was stated that an important phase of the 1935 program would be to offer cotton producers who did not sign a 1934-1935 contract covering the 1935 season. In addition to enabling farmers who are cooperating in program to make their cropping plans for 1935, the preliminary announcement that adjustments would continue was made in order to prevent any misunderstanding of the relationship between the voluntary cotton adjustment program and the Bankhead Cotton Marketing Act.

The Bankhead act will become effective for its second year if the president finds and proclaims that the cotton production and marketing emergency continues or is likely to continue, and if the secretary of agriculture determines that two-thirds of the cotton producers favor the continuance of the act. Any expression of producers' opinion which may be asked in connection with the Bankhead act will not affect the Agricultural Adjustment Administration's obligations under the adjustment contract. Plans are under way to give the producers an opprtunity to express their opinion on the Bankhead Act for 1935, but, it was emphasized regardless of the decision of producers as to that supplementary form of control, the voluntary adjustment program will be continued into 1935.

Mrs. D. W. Haskew Killed In Wreck

Wife of Former Methodist Pastor Here Victim of Accident

Evergreen, Ala., Nov. 1—Mrs. D. W. Haskew, wife of the pastor of La-Fayette Street Methodist Church at Dothan, was instantly killed this afternoon when the automobile in which she was riding with her husband overturned after striking a cow on Highway No. 44 about three miles from Repton in Conecuh County.

The minister's wife died of a broken neck when she was hurled from the front seat to the rear seat of the automobile which turned over twice. The Rev. Haskew suffered shock and minor injuries.

The couple were returning to Dothan from attending the funeral of Mr. Haskew's brother, Matthew W. Haskew, at Bethel Church, in Clarke County, when the accident occurred. As they approached a man leading a cow, the animal attempted to cross in front of the car. The impact caused the machine to turn over.

An ambulance from Rutland's at Evergreen brought the body of Mrs. Haskew here where it will remain until Friday morning. Dothan undertakers will take the body probably to Panama City, Fla., for burial. Definite arrangements had not been completed this afternoon.

Mrs. Haskew is survived by her husband and one son, Lawrence Haskew, of Monroe, Ga. The Rev. Haskew is farmer pastor of the Methodist church here.

SMITH LEADS MIMS BY 378 MAJORITY

Republicans Go Down In Rapid Fire Order Under Crossfire of Votes that Upset Party Lines of Many Years Standing

Unofficial returns from Tuesday's election showed that the Democrats had captured ten of the eleven county offices. The only Republican candidate to win was J. P. Bean, candidate for commissioner in the first district.

These returns were as follows:

Representative—Cox, 2,629; Pitts, 2,111 — majority, 518.

Judge of Probate—Smith, 2,657; Mims, 2,279—Majority, 378.

Clerk of Circuit Court—Pattillo, 2,504; Harris, 2,314—majority, 190.

Sheriff—Hardy, 2,771; Hughes, 2,166—majority, 605.

Tax Collector—McKee, 2,452; Culp, 2,413—majority, 39.

Tax Assessor—Martin, 2,473; Collins, 2,377—majority, 96.

Superintendent of Education—Little, 2,591; W. T. Bean, 2,282—majority, 309.

Commissioner, 2nd District—Oden, 2,509; Davis, 2,283 majority, 226.

Board of Education—Nelson, 2,309; Payne, 2,317; Martin, 2,187; Robinson, 2,186.

The absentee ballot box held something over 400 votes, the majority of which, it is reported, were challenged. This box alone gave the Democratic candidates leads approximating 300.

Hardy led the Democratic force with 2,771 votes, and J. P. Bean led for the Republicans with 2,478.

Clements was low man for the Democrats with 2,296, and Pitts was low for the Republicans, with 2,111.

The Sheriff's race drew the most votes, 4,937.

Below we give tabulation of unofficial returns as they were brought in by the returning officers Tuesday night:

Roll Call Workers Meet Here Friday

Will Be Instructed In Plans for Membership in Red Cross

Selection of persons to compose the county-wide Red Cross Roll Call membership campaign in Chilton County has been completed by J. Mell Martin, roll call chairman, and all those so selected have been called to a meeting at the courthouse Friday afternoon of this week at 2 o'clock.

Mr. Martin has sent a letter to each of the persons selected on the roll call committee, advising them of their selection, and urging attendance at the meeting Friday. This is very important, as definite plans will be made at the meeting for carrying the Red Cross membership appeal into every community of Chilton County.

Below we give the list of persons selected on the roll call committee, and urge their attendance at the meeting Friday:

Baker school, Mrs. S. L. Thornton and Mrs. E. P. Littlejohn; Isabella, Mrs. S. E. Porch and Mrs. Clay Turner; Maplesville, Mrs. F. A. Shanks; County Line, Mrs. Norman Smith; Vermont, Mrs. Claud C. Klinner; Pilgrim's Rest, Mr. Claude Traywick; Culp, A. B. Culp; Fairview, Mrs. Alma Headley; Shiloh, L. C. Keen; Enterprise, W. Y. Keel; New Cedron, Miss Audrey Johnson and Miss Pauline Collins.

Popwell, Mrs. Ben Deason; Morganville, Mrs. Charlie Cooper; Cooper, Mrs. Percy Minor and Miss Inez Vance; Thomas Jr., Miss Lena Downs; Concord, A. Ollie McDowell; Providence A, Mrs. Irene Mims; Pinedale, Mrs. Naomi Heflin; Union Grove, Mrs. Carrie Shaw; Minooka, Mr. R. L. Merrill; Providence B, Mr. W. G. Shaw; Chestnut Grove, J. R. Hall; Cane Creek, Mrs. Irvin Williamson.

Flint Hill, Mrs. Tom McKee and Mrs. Mat Mahan; Mullins, J. E. Padgett and Mat Vines; Smith, Kanie Lowery; Mineral Springs, W. U. Ashcraft; Collins Chapel, Glenn Sessions, Thorsby, Mrs. R. R. Franklin; Mt. Pleasant, Mrs. Kate Eiland; Verbena, S. L. Gibson; Clanton, Mrs. W. M. Wyatt; Jemison, J. P. Montgomery; Lay Dam, R. D. Woodson; Mitchell Dam, John Hollis; Mill Village, Homer Roberts.

The roll call membership campaign begins Sunday, November 11, Armistice Day, and continues through Thursday, November 29, Thanksgiving Day. The quota assigned to Chilton County this year is 500 members.

Mr. Martin, the roll call chairman, has set out with the determination that we shall go over the top with our quota. It is hoped that all members of the committee will come to the meeting Friday, get their plans for working, and present the opportunity for Red Cross membership to every person in their respective communities.

Drunk Man Shot Into Automobile

Five Occupants Receive Slight Injuries From Scattering Shots

A car bearing Mr. and Mrs. Evie Dennis, of Cooper and Mr. and Mrs. Commodore Dennis, of Clanton, and Calvin McGowan, was fired on shortly after six o'clock last Saturday afternoon, near Floyd church, about six miles west of Cooper.

The man reported to have fired the shot is Jim Driver, who lives near East View church.

Mr. Evie Dennis was driving the car. The whole charge of the shot passed through the left door of the car, and every occupant was struck, most of the shot entering Mrs. Evie Dennis's leg.

Deputies James Gillespie and Ellis Ellison were called, and a call for blood hounds was sent to Kilby Prison. When Mr. Glenn Jones arrived with the dogs, Mr. Driver was found near the scene of the shooting. He is reported to have been in a drunken condition, had a pint of whiskey, and said that he knew nothing of the affair. The shell was found at the scene of the shooting. The gun, a 20-gauge single barrel, was also found there, with both ends of the barrel chocked with mud, and the gun breech closed.

It is reported that a charge of assault with intent to murder was lodged against Driver.

Reading Fun In Store For Boys

Here's important news for the boys of America. The American Boy — Youth's Companion, the nation's quality magazine for boys, has been reduced from $2.00 a year to $1.00. The three-year-rate, formerly $3.50, has been reduced to $2.00.

"For a long time we have been seeking a way to reduce the cost of the American Boy to readers," states Griffith Ogden Ellis, editor. "Recently we have effected savings that make the cut possible, and we think boys will agree that the new prcie is big news on the reading front. We hope boys will help us to spread the good news by telling their friends."

Along with the cut in cost, the magazine's publishers are planning a magazine that will continue to set the pace in fiction, articles, and departments. The favorite characters of millions of boys will parade through The American Boy in the new stories. Douglas Renfrew of the Royal Canadian Mounted, Hide-rack, the red-and-gold collie, Bonehead Jim Tierney, the detective, will give the reader many exciting hours in the months to come.

William Heyliger, whose true-to-life, gripping vocational stories have won him wide acclaim from parents and librarians, as well as the hearty approval of boys, is working on new stories. Staff writers are interviewing famous coaches and athletes and world-renowned explorers, to bring boys the color and fun of sports and travel.

In short, The American Boy, under its new price, will continue to give boys a magazine that measures up to the best standards set by adult magazines. Send your subscription to The American Boy, 7430 Second Blvd., Detroit, Michigan. Enclose your name and address and the proper amount of money, and The American Boy will soon be headed your way, loaded with reading thrills.

Mr. A. A. Jackson Discusses Cotton

Editor Union-Banner:

Will you please give me space in your paper to show the defect in the cotton production control act and the Bankhead law as I see it, and the remedy as I see it. Here it is:

A and B. have a 40-acre farm each, with 30 acres in cultivation each. A, during the 5 year average, could not see much in the production of cotton and therefore planted a small acreage in cotton with a small amount of fertilizer used. The Bankhead law is giving A only 8 acres to plant in cotton with a yield of 150 pounds per acre.

B, during the 5 years average, planted a large acreage to cotton and used a lot of fertilizer. The Bankhead law gives B 16 acres to plant in cotton with a yield of 300 pounds per acre.

Thus we see A is allowed to sell 1,200 pounds tax free at 12 cents per pound and gets $144. B is allowed to sell 4,800 pounds tax free at 12c and gets $576.00. So we see the law discriminates against A in favor of B to the amount of $432.00.

We ask that Mr. Bankhead as soon as congress meets, have his law amended so that it will take A's eight acres and B's 16 acres and add them together, which would be 24 acres, divide the 24 by two and that would give A and B 12 acres each.

Take A's 150 pounds and B's 300 pounds per acre and add them together; that would give A and B 225 pounds each or 2,70 pounds of lint each, tax free, at 12 cents per pound; would give both A and B $324.00. As the law stands now A gets $144 and B gets $576.

We do not want the law repealed, but want it amended according to the above principle and take that ungodly discrimination out. Also let any farmer produce as much as 1,500 pounds of lint cotton tax free.—Respectfully, A. A. Jackson.

MAPLE SPRINGS

BOX SUPPER AT UNION SPRINGS

There will be a box supper at Union Springs church Saturday night, November 10th, beginning at 7 o'clock. It is put on by the Sunday school and benefits will go to the fund for purchasing an organ for the church.—W. T. Robinson.

PLEASANT HILL

Last Sunday being our regular singing afternoon, we had a good singing, and a large crowd to help carry it on. We appreciate and feel thankful to you for the cooperation from other churches.

Directors for the afternoon were: Mr. P. M. Cleckler, A. L. Blow, Mr. Little, Mr. Wilson, Mr. Parrish, Mr. W. L. Sanders, Jessie Driver, Miss Lillie Mae Weldon, Mrs. J. D. Collins, Mrs. Delene Willis. Organists were Mrs. O. L. Martin, Mrs. James Gillespie, Miss Weldon.

We invite everybody who wants to hear some real good singing to visit us at either place, Pleasant Hill, Mineral Springs, Cane Creek and Friendship as these four churches have organized a singing society, and we are going to make it one of the best.

We want to say also that our Sunday school is getting better every Sunday.

Miss Jessie Cleckler spent Sunday with Miss Elizabeth Martin.

Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Cleckler had dinner Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Williams.

Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Cleckler visited their daughter, Mrs. Howard Robinson, Sunday night.

Visitors are always welcome to our church.—Reporter.

Farm Meetings Will Be Held

A few days ago I sent a schedule of meetings to every farmer in the county. This schedule covered a period of about 4 weeks and 28 different places in the county. At most of the places two meetings were scheduled.

Mr. Earle Thomas, teacher of vocational agriculture in Isabella community, is helping me with these meetings in the southern part of the county, and Mr. J. P. Montgomery, vocational teacher at Jemison, is helping me in the northern part of the county.

We have had fine attendance at most of these meetings. To date we have had 1,100 farmers to attend. The purpose of these meetings is to discuss the cotton program. We are delighted with the response so far.

We are still holding meetings. One of the three of us will be at the following places on the dates listed below:

Friday, November 9th; Mt. Pleasant, 3:30 p.m.; Thorsby, 7:00 p.m.

Monday, November 11th, Providence, Beat 16, 3:30 p.m.; Concord, Beat 4, 7:00 p.m.; Baker school, 3:30 p.m.; Thomas, Jr., 7:00 p.m.

Tuesday, November 13th: Providence, (Beat 13), 7:00 p.m.

Wednesday, November 14th: Baker school, 3:30 p.m.; Thomas Jr. 7:00 p.m.

Friday, November 16th: Mullins school, 3:30 p.m.; Cane Creek, 7 p.m.

Monday, November 19th: Macedonia, 7:00 p.m.

Wednesday, November 21st: Macedonia, 7:00 p.m.

We will be glad for every farmer to attend the meetings nearest him.

Help Offered On Public Projects

To all County and Municipal Authorities:

In an attempt to reduce relief further in Alabama by providing worthwhile constructive employment, the Alabama Relief Administration is now in position to make the following proposal, within the limits of funds available:

1. To any public agency which will employ on approved public projects qualified able-bodied persons who were on local relief rolls October 31, at local prevailing rates for work done, (but not less than $1.00 for an 8 hour day), offering such workers at least $20.00 employment during the month, the Alabama Relief Administration will make available for said project $20.00 per month per worker to be expended for materials, supervision, or equipment rental.

Actual operation and supervision of the project will be entirely in the hands of the local public agency, guarantee of efficient operation being subject to approval of the state engineer of the Alabama Relief Administration.

2. To any county governing body which assumes $4,000.00 toward the cost of relief to persons who were on relief rolls October 31st, the Alabama Relief Administration will donate Free (by agreement) terracing equipment to the amount of $4,000.00 to become the property of proper agency designated by the Alabama extension service, and to be used for farm terracing operations in employment of persons selected from those certified as eligible by the local director of relief.

All net income derived from operating terracing equipment will return to proper county agency.

The two proposals above are separate and will be in addition to present local participation agreed to.

Proposals should be submitted by proper local public body through the county work director to Mr. Ray Crow, state engineer of the Alabama Relief Administration.

Expenditure of all funds made available by the Alabama Relief Administration will be subject at all times to rules and regulations governing same.

It is understood that no labor, supervision or equipment now employed will be displaced by any proposal.

Persons employed in such projects will be dropped from relief rolls and their cases closed.

Reliefs will be continued for the time being to those families now on relief rolls who are not affected by such approved projects.—Yours very truly, Alabama Relief Administration, By Thad Holt, director.

HARDIMAN CEMETERY CLEANING

There will be a working at the Hardiman cemetery November 27. This is one among the oldest cemeteries in the county, and is located about ½ mile south of the double bridges near the poor house. Many of Chilton County's oldest settlers are buried there. This cemetery has been greatly neglected and many of the graves are unmarked. Others will be in the same condition if something is not done soon.

Everybody that has people buried there are requested to come on the above date with lunch and sufficient tools to clean off same.—P. C. Weldon.

CARD OF THANKS

Appetite gone?

A simple thing, perhaps...yet a very serious one, resulting in loss of strength...body weakness... and possibly many other ills. So why not check-up and snap back to the zest of eating and well being. You will find S.S.S. a great, scientifically-tested tonic—not just a so-called tonic, but one specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood to enable you to "carry on." Do try it. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon enjoy again the satisfaction of appetizing food and good digestion...sound sleep...and renewed strength. Remember, "S.S.S. makes you feel like yourself again."

Do not be blinded by the efforts of a few unethical dealers who may suggest substitutes. You have a right to insist that S.S.S. be supplied you on request. Its long years of preference is your guarantee of satisfaction.

Girls Smoking Tickles Boy 84

Dear Mr. Editor:

I am writing to compliment you on your clean paper—no nude women, and no girls lighting their boy friends' or sweetheart's cigarettes from their own, and bragging about how good "Lucky Strikes" are.

Of course the women have as much right to smoke as we men, but it is so modern that it tickles us boys of 84 years old. We just can't help but wish that we had been 21 years old in 1934. And then to see our grand daughters sending to France to get the modern style hats and when the new style hat arrives, it reminds us of a terrapin shell pasted on one side of a beautiful girl's head.

Of course my two grandmothers used to sit at one side of the fire place and smoke a pipe, but they were about 75 years old, and were kind of lonesome, not able to go about much.

I also enjoy the articles in your paper about the singing schools and all day singings and the fiddlers conventions, and the visitors to different families, their names, etc.

I also enjoy reading some criticisms of the "Blockhead" cotton reduction plans. Why some of my poor neighbor farmers are only allowed to plant about as much acreage as this letter would cover, and the certificates and tags to gin, store and market a bale of cotton, weighs most as much as the bale. And we need a good saddle horse to caper over from one to three counties to get it all fixed up. So, as Thomas E. Watson would say "Things are in a Mell of a Hess." Let us pray for peace and plenty. — W. T. Pierson, Sr., Plantersville, Ala.

Farmer Writes Of Cotton Meeting

Editor Union-Banner:

Please give me space in your paper to write a few lines in regard to the meeting that was held at the courthouse Saturday, October 20th.

We notice the Chilton County News come out the last week and said that less than a dozen farmers expressed themselves against the law. If that is true it was because they didn't have the chance. The time was taken up by those that were satisfied, and people who do not farm. We regret very much to take the stand in this matter that we have, although we feel that we ought to stand for our rights.

We had some folks there that afternoon to get up and tell us what we farmers need and what we didn't need. This fellow draws a big salary, probably three thousand dollars per year. He doesn't work any, much less farm. Now we don't think that was fair to us. This fellow must think he needs lots more than we do. Now, so far as the law or the program is concerned, we feel that it is unfair to lots of us.

To prove it we will say I am going to farm thirty acres. I plant twelve of it in cotton. My neighbor farms the same amount of land. He can't plant but four acres to cotton. We don't think anyone honestly thinks that is fair. I had one old fellow to tell me while he was growing six-cent cotton I was growing other stuff and making good. Of course he was mistaken—but say it was true. While me and others were growing other stuff, it was only giving him a chance to get six cents for his cotton. Suppose we were all growing lots of cotton at that time. He would have gotten three cents for his cotton.

Now we will come on down to our county. We believe it has been unfair there too. We don't think any man should have been allowed more than three hundred pounds of lint per acre, then we all could have made some cotton. Now if this program had been fair and managed right, we don't believe the first man would have objected. But we have some things to object to, and we are going to give you some of them.

First, we have some places growing more cotton this year than they have ever grown during those five years that we get our average from. We have two places here in our neighborhood with just a line fence between them. One of these farms possibly has a little above thirty acres of land. To farm this year this little farm is allowed to grow under two contracts, 4,220 pounds of lint cotton. Right by the side of this line this farm was allowed 275 pounds of lint per acre. On the other side of the line this farm has at least one hundred acres in it. This farm only allowed 4,620 pounds of lint, farmed under one contract by three different crops. The man that owns the larger farm didn't know that you could write the farm under two contracts and grow so much more cotton. This farm is allowed 210 pounds of lint per acre. If this larger farm won't grow more cotton per acre, I will sign a lie bill and leave the county. This larger farm crosses the road and joins another farm.

Now the land on each side of the line here is about the same. Now the farm that joins this larger farm on this side of the road, I under stand, is allowed 400 pounds per acre.

Now this is somewhat embarrasing and we regret very much that this is the case. Neither have we fully intended to show anyone up bad. If it is bad he has showed himself up. These things are being discussed by almost everyone you meet with every day. We don't think that is worth so much if it will ever be worth anything. We are going to have to come out before the public, and before those that are in authority. We say frankly that we think these things are unfair. We feel like we should take a stand for the things that are just and fair to all.

Now, if we have made any mistakes, whatever, we are perfectly willing to correct them.—J. W. Devaughn.

Miscellaneous Shower

A miscellaneous shower was given at the home of Mrs. Will Tippett last Friday afternoon, November 2nd, in honor of Mrs. Herman Littlejohn. For the occasion the home was decorated with vases of beautiful cut fall flowers. Twenty--three guests were present and enjoyed a delightful afternoon of various games and contests. Prizes were awarded some of the guests, after which Mrs. Herman Littlejohn was seated in the center of the room and thirty nice gifts were brought in to her by little Willene Smith. Gifts were sent in by some who could not be present which were: Mrs. Zackie Lowery, Mrs. Reedie Jones and Mrs. Marvin Lowery.

Refreshments were served about 4 o'clock by Mrs. Will Tippett, Mrs. S. E. Morris, Mrs. John Cost and Mrs. Elijah Turner.

Those enjoying this affair were Mrs. Gladys Chambers, Mrs. Gussie Williams, Mrs. Kermit Lowery, Mrs. Nell Littlejohn, Mrs. J. W. Tippett, Mrs. J. W. Lowery, Mrs. Lula Littlejohn, Mrs. Sallie Rollins, Mrs. Nathan Tippitt, Mrs. Hubert Devaughn, Miss Nellie Rollins, Mrs. S. E. Morris, Mrs. Inez Smith, Mrs. Annie Littlejohn, Mrs. Grace Turner, Mrs. John Cost, Mrs. Nettie Melton, Mrs. Lillian Lowery, Mrs. J. W. Chambers, Mrs. B. C. UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala.—Joseph B. Eastman, federal coordinator of transportation and one of the most important factors in the New Deal, was guest speaker before an assembly of the school of commerce, University of Alabama, Monday, November 5. His topic was "Transportation."

University of Alabama will celebrate their annual homecoming on Saturday, November 10. Features of the day include the Alabama-Clemson football game at 2 o'clock in Denny Stadium; an address by Mrs. Bibb Graves, wife of Alabama's next governor before women students of the University; and an R. O. T. C. parade for Governor Miller, Governor-Elect Graves, and general Van Horn Moseley, commanding the fourth corps area. University officials will entertain General Mosley at a luncheon at noon Saturday. Members of the administrative staff, Board of Trustees, Alumni Council, and military faculty will attend.

Dr. Anna Church, assistant professor of home economics and chemistry, addressed the meeting of the Alabama Dietetics Association in session at the University November 3, on recent research which she has been carrying on in the field of nutrition.

A state-wide meeting of the Methodist Student Conference will be held at the University of Alabama November 16, 17 and 18. The general theme of the conferences is to be ""Dare We Be Christians in Our Economic Order?" The sessions will be featured by forums, interest groups, addresses and discussion. Its purpose is inspiration, fellowship, worship, facing personal, social economic and international problems.

Have You The Body Beautiful?

Silver Springs, Fla.—Have you the body beautiful? If you think so, by all means enter the physical culture contest sponsored by Physical Culture magazine, to be held in connection with the statewide Armistice day observance of the American Legion at Silver Springs, Fla., Monday, November 12. Winners in men's and women's divisions will each be awarded the McFadden trophy by Benarr MacFadden, the world's most famous advocate of the body beautiful, publisher of Physical Culture magazine and other widely circulated periodicals.

In addition, Physical Culture magazine will publish the picture of the two champions and carry a brief account of the contest. The MacFadden trophy consists of silver cups bearing an appropriate inscription. Latest advice from Mr. McFadden's office in New York indicates that he will attend the contest and personally award the trophies to the two winners.

The contest is open to entrants from the three states of Alabama, Georgia and Florida. To qualify, entrants must pass the athletic badge test of the U. S. bureau of education and each qualifier will receive the athletic badge. Winners will be judged according to the standards and rules of the national 4-H clubs.

Ralph Carter, regional director of recreation for the FERA, will be director of the contest, assisted by Newton Perry, director of Silver River camp. County FERA units, schools and 4-H clubs from all over the state, as well as Georgia and Alabama, will be represented among the contestants.

Other features of the day will include an exhibition of fancy and comic diving by Silver Springs divers and a fire dive from the 25-foot tower and alligator wrestling act under water by Ross Allen, Silver Springs naturalist.

Mt. Pisgah News

The singing at this place met at 2 p.m. last Sunday and was called to order by the chairman, Cecil Yeargan, with one song and prayer by S. N. Davis.

The following sang from one to two songs each: Cornelius Hand, G. C. Weldon, Sr., Leonard Culp, Fonza Coe, Sovereign Dickey, John Devaughn, George Chambers, Jake Henley, Prof. C. M. Billingsley, Gladys Wyatt, Carson Boockholdt and E. J. Williams.

The Liberty quartet gave several fine selections, which were enjoyed by all.

Bethsalem, Liberty Hill, Maple Springs, Bethany, Pleasant Valley, Highland and Poplar Springs were represented. We were sure glad to have these societies to meet with us, and welcome you again on next 1st Sunday in December.

Organists for the afternoon were Dessie Wyatt, Leonard Culp, and Prof. Billingsley. On next Sunday this class will meet with Liberty Hill at 2 p.m.

Mr. Leonard Culp sang a solo which was enjoyed by all. The closing song was sung by the chairman and all were dismissed in prayer by Mr. John Devaughn.—Secretary.

Mrs. Billy Smith Hostess At Bridge

A pretty party of the fall season was that given by Mrs. Billy Smith at her home on Tuesday afternoon. Four tables were arranged in the living room, which were decorated in a profusion of bright fall flowers. After a series of bridge games Mrs. W. E. Bachelor was awarded high score prize, a pretty bowl and to Mrs. L. F. Gerald fell cut prize, a wall flower container.

A delicious salad plate was served to the following guests: Mesdames John D. Mullins, Hugh Simpson, Frank Callen, Hugh Jones, L. F. Gerald, James Wade, Omar Reynolds, Hance Alred, Jack Davis, W. E. Huddleston, Barney Burnett, Norman Roberts, Dick Hayes, Mrs. Elery Hansen of Lay Dam, Miss Lucille Sherwood, Mrs. Joe Sanford, and Mrs. W. E. Bachelor of Wetumpka.

VERMONT SCHOOL

Practice began this week on the Thanksgiving program which will be given on Tuesday night, November 28. Poems, drills, recitations, songs, dialogues, etc., will make up the program.

Remember, parents and friends of Vermont School, our P.-T. A. meets tonight at 7:00. We are expecting a large group out, as we have our neighbor school, Pilgrim Rest, presenting a program of real worthwhile interest. Our membership committee has been busy in their drive for new members. If they have not yet approached you, do not wait, just fall in line. We need your cooperation.

hTe boys' new basketball arrived this week. We hope to purchase both boys and girls new uniforms by the time basket ball season rolls around.

At this writing our P.-T. A. drive for funds on school shades has produced 33 hens, 4 dozen eggs and $9 in cash. Several other donations have been promised. Our goal is $30.00 by the 15th of this month. We'll reach it too, if just a few more steady hands will join the cause and give it one healthy and encouraging boost. Vermont school has not yet failed on a single issue it undertook to add to its security and welfare. We are not failing in this. Come out and visit our next P.-T. A. meeting and you will understand just why we will not falter.

Work is moving along nicely on our school well. We hope to be using water from it by the time you read these school items.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Johnson motored to Birmingham last week end. Misses Dorothy Manning and Ethel Cagle spent the week end at their respective homes.

Miss Meroney, child welfare worker, and Miss Cobern, child attendance officer, visited our school last week. Miss Meroney made a fervent appeal for all books, clothing, etc., which anyone might not be using but which could be used by someone less fortunate. If you have anything of the above which you can very well dispose of, we want you to save it, for Miss Meroney will be out to gather them up and pass them on to someone whose needs are acute. The date of her arrival will be announced later. Miss Cobern spoke about five minutes to each room, placing special emphasis on the value of regular attendance.

Miss Manning conducted a very interesting, yet unique, program at chapel period last Tuesday morning. A number of odd, yet everyday questions were given to the Jr. High School pupils who gleaned their answers from Thompson's book of knowledge. The questions were gathered from a number of different subjects, such as: Why do we cry; why do boys and girls play; what is it like above the clouds; does a bridge shrink in the sun; does rain melt rock; what is a nightmare; why is the sun brighter at noon than earlier or later in the day; why is a fire hot; what happens if an irrestable cannon ball hits an immovable post; why does oil float on water?

Honor roll for the month of October as follows:

First Honor Roll

All Jr. High school students whose average is A:

Jr. I—Earl Clenner.
Jr. II—Thurman Milford, Lavern Crane.
Jr. III—Francis Kendrick.

Second honor roll. All students whose average is B:

Jr. 1—Audra Ratliff, Minnie Turner, Gertrude Carter.
Jr. II—J. D. Minor, Andrew Turner, Pauline Smith, Damarias Smith.
Jr. III — Adell Scott, Madge Williams.

Third honor roll. All students with perfect attendance:

Jr. High—Francis Kendrick, R. P. Kendrick, Adell Scott, Gladys Sansom, Madge Williams, Robert Traywick, Josie Mae Deason, Audra Ratliff, Thurman Milford.

3rd grade—Joseph Giles, Chas. Klinner, Ruby Lewis, Annie Mae Deason, Bessie Scott, J. B. Smith.

4th grade—Van Buxton, R. T. Carter, Lavern Klinner, Ishmael Ratliff, Leonard Turner, Louise Sansom.

5th grade—Ottis Giles, Sarah Traywick, Jack Deason.

6th grade—Aulston Clenner, Tommie Lou Klinner, Myrtle Lee Smith, Harvie Sansom, Willie Dean Ratliff, Vernon Sansom.

1st and 2nd grade—Thomas Deason, Cecil Deavers, H. Earnest Gandy, J. E. Scott, Johnnie Smith, Marcelle Deavers, Georgia Gandy, Jannie Ruth Lewis, Elsie Sansom, Jessie Lee Sansom, Billie Carter, Luther Crane, Hardy Giles, Willie Clyde Sansom, Francis Chandler, Mildred Chandler, Francis Sansom, Odell Headley, Clint Ratliff.

Another new member was added to our Jr. I. class this week. We are proud to announce this addition of little Nell Chandler, who has been attending the Billingsley High School.

Philathia Class Has Meeting With Mrs. A. S. Prince.

Members of the Methodist Philathia Class held their regular monthly business and social meeting at the home of Mrs. A. S. Prince on last Tuesday afternoon.

A Halloween program with a contest was enjoyed. Delicious refreshments were served at a late hour to Mesdames L. E. Diefenderfer, Macy Jones; T. C. McSwain, Earl Gore, Thigpin, Jones, Alexander and Misses Marie Powers and Sue Morris.

14 EARS IN ONE SHUCK

General F. M. Easterling of Concord-Refuge community brought in a wad of corn the other day. There was one ordinary small ear with thirteen smaller ears clustered around it. All were in one shuck, and this was all one stalk had on it.

Just a word about the SERVICE at the
MOLTON HOTEL
FIFTH AVENUE AND TWENTIETH STREET

THERE'S a pleasant, friendly atmosphere about the Hotel Molton—a delightful informality and unobtrusively efficient service that appeals to discriminating guests. While Molton service is punctilious, it is entirely lacking in that stiff formality one often finds in larger metropolitan hotels. That's why the guests who stop here once, feel like they're coming home when they return to see us.

MIDDLE OF THE ROAD

In assessing the reasons for Canada's lead over the United States in the extent of its economic recovery, Financial Counsel, a Montreal publication names the "Middle-of-the-Road" policy pursued by the Canadian government as one of the chief factors. "Holding the strongest goodwill towards a favorable outcome of some of the amazing experiments being conducted under president Roosevelt, Canada, wisely, under the federal leadership of Mr. Bennett, has held its hand from any drastic meddling with the conduct of any individual business or of any industry. A large measure of political unrest prevails in Canada as all over the world, and will continue to make its presence felt in a demand for the relief of abuses whose existence became intensified in the distressing conditions of widespread unemployment. That social conditions will make imperative some broader system of control of industry the prime minister has already indicated. Progress in the removal of abuses in the industrial, however, would seem quite possible without any extreme shacking of industrial freedom. The 'Middle Road' still appears to be the soundest course for Canada; still following the innate British instinct of 'compromise' as between conflicting interests in the state; still holding to a moderate political policy in order to maintain and develop the recovery that has been so substantial—with the reasonable guarantee of a more hopeful future for every citizen of Canada." The government has turned neither to the right hand nor to the left. It has simply concentrated on sound measures for the salvation of the country, and these have brought, and are bringing, wholesome results in their train. —Toronto Mail and Empire.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

Alexander Hamilton, one of the great Federalists of the early days of our republic, once said:

"The states can never lose their powers till the whole people of America are robbed of their liberties. These must go together; they must support each other or meet one common fate."

Surprising words, some of us may think, coming from a man who was next to Washington, the leading exponent of nationalism in his time. Yet those who take a moment off occasionally to study the trend of the times will find these words of Hamilton worth pondering.

The powers formerly reserved to the states have been taken over rather rapidly during the past two or three decades, and the tide toward complete federal control is now running swifter than at any time in our history. Every year we see the federal government assuming more and more of the rights of the states. Those who favor greater federal control tell us our economic system has grown so complicated in these modern times that greater federal control is necessary. This may be true to a certain extent, but there are still thousands of serious minded Americans who will be inclined to agree with Hamilton that there is a close connection between the liberty of the American people and the rights of the American states. Certainly the complete absorption of the functions of the states by our federal government will upset the intent of its fine constitutional system with its fine arrangement of checks and balances made in a sincere effort to preserve the rights of the individual.

Assuredly, regimentation, bureaucratic control, the regulation of the economic life of the individual by the central authority, is not compatible with state rights and state authority. The state indeed is, or should be, a bulwark of defense for the individual against paternalistic federal control. Just how long this bulwark is to remain with us is a doubtful question. Certainly, we are now getting more and more under federal control at Washington. Most of our economic machinery is directed from the nation's capital. The business control is there, and it reaches down into every little village and hamlet in the United States. The relief control is there, too. One of the most disconcerting phases of this is that the communities and the individuals as well as the state, are now getting into the habit of depending on Uncle Sam for everything—even charity.

There are some political thinkers who believe that the issues of the next campaign will center around still greater federal control. Among the proposals mentioned for the noteral railway and power ownership, the collection of all taxes including those on real distant future are a central national bank, fedestate by the federal government with apportionment to the state for their needs; one system of courts under federal management, with a limitation or elimination of state courts, and last, but not least, a national police force. These are questions which may be under serious discussion from one end of the land to the other in the not distant future. Some of them may sound visionary at present, but not more visionary that the NRA and the AAA would have sounded four or five years ago. We are traveling fast along the road to complete federalism. As we go along on this national joyride let us repeat again and again those words of Alexander Hamilton: "The states can never lose their powers till the whole people of America are robbed of their liberties. These must go together; they must support each other or meet one common fate."

AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK

Now that the schools and colleges are reopened, it is an appropriate moment to observe that public interest in education is placing the emphasis these days upon a reexamination of the whole postulate and premise of the educational structure.

There is, of course, a mean criticism of the schools and colleges which has always existed, but which appears to have gained momentum during the past few years, due, no doubt to the impingement which the school program has made upon the public purse.

Not only does this criticism array itself against the current practices of teaching, but in many cases, it dares attack the principles upon which these teaching methods are predicated.

The democracy of our educational democracy is being assailed. What's the good of it all, anyway? How are the schools and colleges justifying their existence from the standpoint of the money they are requiring? Such is the questioning attitude of an impressively large sector of current thought.

That is an historical and unvarying attitude of human society when it swings from high to low in its economic levels of life. It prides itself then in the virtue of attacking its virtues, it gets mad with itself because of its holy fervor and high and noble dreams and unreaching aspirations.

Aggravated and outraged today because the glittering mountain of our fictitious gold has slipped out into the sea, our banking structure has collapsed, our homes and farms, never paid for and many of them never to be paid for under the best conditions, await the auctioneer's hammer, our clothes are a little frazzled and our limousines are now cheap flivvers, if that, disappointed and despairing over losses of values that we never had to lose, we have turned upon ourselves not to question our horrible material mistakes as that to rail at high-mindedness to which we once ascended.

So we release our biting tongues upon such noble enterprises as public schools and glibly charge that they never were worth what they cost in the first place: and against colleges and universities that they are producing no better than sheiks and flappers; and against education as an institution, that it never did contribute to the fitness of a man for making a living; and upon the libraries that they never were meant for others than bookworms and effeminates; and upon the church that it never has contributed anything to the moral worth of the world and upon religion that it was rather much of a matter of shadowy emotion.

The volume, therefore, of the criticism that issues from thoughtless lips today against all the traditions and institutions that stand in the lines of our noblest succession, is merely moodish—a simple product of the mind, that because it has been forced to disillusion itself as to the value of the temporal and the material is feigning disillusionment as to the value of the durable and the immutable.

From such criticism, one may well afford to walk away with as good grace and in as fair a temper as can be manufactured for an emergency as irritating as this. One need not pause to dignify such dribble with so much as a light answer.

But there is yet another type of criticism, not so much criticism, as intelligent examination into this issue of education and its institutonal agences, very well worth our time and patience to make with proper purpose and for constructive ends, and from which it is not wise to run away, either those serving or those being served thereby and therewith.

This form of criticism, this examination of education, is being frankly and intelligently made by educators themselves. Perhaps, there are no more severe critics of the colleges than the colleges themselves, their instructors and their instructed. Some of them more often ask what is wrong than what is right with the institution of higher learning. They betray their own lack of satisfaction with what in the modern mechanisms of their profession they are concretely able to do in the way of creating a finer and a higher intellectual nobility.

From this form of criticism being indulged today, good will come and the whole educational enterprise will profit.

It will see to it that education will adjust itself to the demands of a world that is not static, but dynamic and ever developing, and that the school house and the college, in response to this trend of growth and progression, will gear themselves up toward providing training that is essential for new needs presented by society.—Charlotte, N. C. Observer.

IDEALISM AND TARIFFS

Secretary of State Cordell Hull has evidently made a great discovery—European nations are not as idealistic as is the United States in the matter of tariffs. In a recent statement Secretary Hull, without mentioning any names, accused certain nations of "chiselling" when it comes to the matter of making tariff agreements. The term chiselling evidently covers a multitude of sins, international as well as domestic.

The thing which disturbs Mr. Hull is the knowledge that certain nations with whom Uncle Sam hopes to make mutual tariff agreements are actually now raising their rates in advance, so that when it comes to making bargains with Uncle Sam a little later they can reduce rates and still be as well off as tfley were.

Certainly Mr. Hull has been a little late in discovering this unidealistic attitude of European nations. The plan has been worked in the past every time a mutual tariff conference was proposed and it will be worked again. European nations have been playing diplomatic poker with one another for a thousand years, and the tariff has always been an ace up the sleeve. The gentlemen who do the poker playing are practical men, not idealists, and if Mr. Hull uses ideals for trumps the representatives are apt to come home minus not only their trumps and their sleeves, but their athletic underwear.

Mr. Hull denounces the policy of any country in seeking to increase its exports and decreasing its imports. That is what most nations have been doing for years. Even the free trader, John Bull, joined the procession a year or two ago and has found it very useful in helping him out of the depression.

What the United States needs is a tariff which will equalize the cost of production at home and abroad. No bargaining agreements should go below that level. If they do Uncle Sam is going to get badly "stuck."

The Republican and Democratic National Committees both have deficits, but it ought to be some consolation to them to know that Uncle Sam has a lot bigger one.

RED CROSS ROLL CALL

The annual roll call for membership in the American National Red Cross starts Sunday, November 11, and will continue through Thanksgiving Day.

The roll call will be brought to the attention of the people of Chilton County by a county-wide organization of appeal workers, set up and directed by J. Mell Martin, who has been assigned to this important work.

Mr. Martin has called the Roll Call workers from all parts of the county to attend a meeting in Clanton Friday afternoon of this week, for planning and outlining the work of soliciting members.

This group of workers will be ready to start pinning Red Cross buttons on the populace next Monday morning in all towns and communities of the county.

Our quota for Chilton County is 500 members this year. Mr. Martin and his staff of workers expect to put the job over the top in the first week of the Roll Call.

It goes without saying that the people of Chilton County will be as liberal in supporting the Red Cross as their means will permit. We know what the Red Cross will do and can do in its field of endeavor. We have had it demonstrated right here in our own county, and we all know that the Red Cross can be depended upon to respond to the needs of any disaster or emergency.

Mr. Martin wishes it requested of all pastors, church and Sunday School workers in the county, that they give a brief mention of the Roll Call in their services next Sunday, calling the matter to the attention of the people, and reminding them of our duty to respond to the Red Cross appeal for memberships as liberally as we can.

Mayor C. Fenn Jones, of Clanton, has proclaimed his interest in and support of the Roll Call, and has urged in his proclamation a full and hearty response of all citizens.

In this paper this week we print an appeal from President Franklin D. Roosevelt, giving his approval and endorsement to the work of the Red Cross, and asking the people of the United States to support it by their memberships again this year.

A WORLD PLAN

Prof. Tugwell, one of the chief Brain Trusters of the agricultural industry, is in Rome to attend the International Institute of Agriculture. It is not to be taken, however, that Prof. Tugwell is there merely as an observer. He is there as a planner, and this time he has a plan which will regiment the agriculture, not of the United States, but of the entire world. According to cable dispatches from Italy the plan is one designed to induce nations to grow or make almost exclusively "the products they can grow or make best and cheapest and import from other countries the products those other countries make or grow best and cheapest."

There is nothing modest about this plan. It seems to take in everything, and theoretically is water tight—we almost said airtight. The trouble is that most nations will disagree about the number and classes of things which they think they can grow or make "best and cheapest." The countries of Europe think they can manufacture nearly everything best or cheapest and certainly countries like Russia, Argentina, and Australia have no doubts about the quality and cheapness of their own agricultural products.

Now we don't know so much about where things can be made best but we do know where they can NOT be made cheapest and that is in the United States. With our higher standard of living both in the city and the country, with our higher wages and production costs, certainly Europe can manufacture most things cheaper than we can and the other great agricultural nations of the world can produce cheaper than we.

It would seem, therefore, that for Uncle Sam to get anywhere in this Tugwellian plan it would be necessary for our farmers to get into the peasant or Russian serf class, and our workmen to descend to the European or Asiatic level, with no automobiles or radios, and no meat except on holidays. Either that or we will have to get used to the habit of importing most everything and exporting little or nothing.

Fortunately for us however, there is little chance that the Tugwellian theory will be carried out. It is too Utopian even for this age of communism and Fascism in Europe and regimentation in America.

NO REGIMENTATION NEEDED

Some time ago the New York newspapers carried notices of the death of Franklin Simon, well known merchant of the nation's metropolis, and founder of one of the city's big department stores. Mr. Simon, according to the dispatches, was a man of vision. He was credited with having been the first of the New York business men to visualize the future and to perceive that Fifth Avenue, above 34th Street, would become the city's fashionable shopping district. He acted accordingly, built his business there, began offering fashionable styles at what were considered reasonable prices, and became one of New York's merchant princes.

All of which led the New York Times to state: "One thought forces itself to the front of the mind in surveying the rise of a business like that built by Mr. Simon. It would have been impossible had he been hampered at every step by government regulation and meddlesomeness. What need of imposing a 'code' on a man like him? He was his own code, always one of hohor and humanity."

Of course the regimenters, who like to talk about the age of competition without government interference as the day when we were ruled by the law of the jungle, would say that Mr. Simon's case was the exception which proves the rule. But this is not true. Greed and graft in business are exceptions and not the rule. There are thousands of business men of real integrity all over this nation. They gain success not by using the tooth and claw, and not by leaning on the government for support. They work long and patiently without watching the clock, practice the rules of honesty and fair dealing, and do not waste their time and money in the fond belief that in the long run Uncle Sam will take care of them anyhow.

Maybe the Brain Trust at Washington would get along better if it should adopt the policy of ploughing under every third idea.

While Prof. Tugwell is in Rome he ought to get Mussolini to show him how to do a real job of regimenting.

VOTE ON CORN-HOG

We have heard a great deal of noise from Washington about the endorsement which the corn and hog farmers have made, through their referendum, of the plan to renew or continue the corn and hog contract next year. It is true that about 345,000 farmers voted to continue the contracts, the total number voting being 500,000.

But there is some significance in the fact that nearly sixty per cent of the farmers eligible to vote on the proposition did not show enough interest to vote at all on whether or not these contracts should be continued. It is to be remembered that there were 1,200,000 contract signers this year and that only about 500,000, or a little more than 40 per cent, voted in the referendum. This means that out of a total of 1,200,000 contract signers, only 345,000 voted to continue the contracts next year.

For example, in Indiana there were 85,000 contract signers. Of this number, 27,000 voted for rental next year and 17,000 voted against it. The remainder did not vote at all. So only about 50 per cent of those eligible voted at all and a mere 28 per cent of the total voted yes.

It is true, of course, that only about 155,000 out of 1,200,000 voted against continuing the contract, but the 700,000 who did not vote at all cast at least a half ballot against the proposal. At any rate they didn't show enough interest in the plan to vote. So the 345,000 aye votes are not so imposing as they seem to be when the facts and figures are analyzed. It cannot be said that a majority of the hog and corn contract signers of 1934 voted to continue the plan next year. A little less than thirty per cent did so. The rest voted "No." or didn't take the trouble to vote at all. No wonder Secretary Wallace is dissatisfied with the result.

Now that the supreme court has refused to recognize a Mexican divorce which a woman obtained by telephone, all that remains is for the woman to try to get her nickel back.

A funny thing about these people who risk their lives going up into the stratosphere, or down for half a mile or so into the depths of the ocean, not that it means anything in particular, but most of them are married men.

Small wonder that the Democratic rooster is now crowing loud and lusty. It has long been feeding on corn in the public crib.

The modern girl may not be able to make the jam that mother used to make but she knows how to get into one.

What is there about a baseball game which will make even the most reserved of men shed their dignity with their coat and yell useless advice and senseless insults at players and umpires who don't hear them and would not pay any attention to them even if they did?

Maybe the administration expects to get rid of the biggest deficit in history by ploughing it under.

CONSTITUTION VS. SUBVERSION

Never was it more important that the sound American make a stand for constitutional principles than at present, when the indifference of many citizens to the responsibilities of citizenship are undermining our institutions, according to James E. VanZant, Commander-in-chief of the Veterans of the Foreign Wars of the United States, in a stirring article in the current issue of the National Republic, under the caption "Constitution versus Subversion." In part Commander VanZant says:

"Down through the years the lofty principles embodied in the Constitution have been upheld by an overwhelming majority of determined, patriotic Americans. The milestones of glorious history which mark the path of our progress, always toward a better, stronger America have been kept clean and bright that they may serve more fully to guide aright the footsteps of posterity. It has taken long years, high vision, abounding faith, and often agonizing labor and sacrifice to build and preserve this empire of our republic. The cost has been great in the blood, the broken bodies and twisted minds which have been sacrificed not so much to the God of War as to the fetish of unpreparedness. Thus we are all living today upon the unearned increment of the heroism of other days, and gratitude unending should not be a strain on any decent human being's soul. We must realize the paramount duty of every American citizen is to make certain that the great basic principles of the Constitution will be perpetuated as intended and hoped for by its founders.

"America is as much endangered today by the indifference of millions of people, inheritors of the traditions and opportunities of this great naton, to their duties and responsibilities of citizenship, as it is by the activities of the open and secret enemies of our institutions. Half of our citizens do not even take the trouble to vote, and most of the remainder take no further thought of the national welfare after they have cast their ballots.

"Elements antagonistic to American institutions are not so indifferent, nor are they idle. They are forever at work, in the open or under cover, undermining the faith of the people in their country, spreading unrest, arousing suspicion, discontent, envy and hatred. These are the passions which breed violent revolutions. It is well to remember that the government does not preserve itself. Government can give to the people only what the people give to the government. We accomplish a government of the people, by the people, for the people only to the extent that our energy, spirit and purpose as citizens are invested in public activities.

"These facts and the conditions which confront our country today, serve to remind us rather forcefully that largely upon the whims of men, upon the fickleness or instability of human nature and upon the character of mass emotion which can be caused to well up in the breasts of a nation's people, depend the destiny of governments. These thoughts were in the minds of the pioneers and the founders of our republic, and every page of our nation's history shows the truth of the statement. Through the years, our leaders have attempted to make our government one of laws and not of men.

" 'Governments,' said William Penn, 'like clocks, go from the motion men give them; and as governments are made and moved by men, so by them they are ruined, too. Therefore, governments rather depend upon men, than men upon governments.' Years later, after the grave and faithful band of thirty-nine patriots had completed its great work and the Constitution had been ratified, Franklin echoed the thought of William Penn, when he said: 'Our Constitution is in actual operation; everything appears to promise it will last; but in this world nothing is certain but death and taxes.'"

25 YEARS AGO

News Items as Published in The Union and in The Banner, Issues of November 4, 1909

Miss Bessie Strock, 14 year old daughter of John A. Strock of Verbena, died Saturday morning. Sunday Mr. Logan Strock passed away. He was 25 years of age.

Miss Bettie Green of near Prattville was married to Mr. Ed Mims, also of Autauga County last week. Mr. Jim Robinson and Miss Leila Smith of Autauga County were married recently.

Bill Mullins is home from school at College Park, Ga.

Mr. Obie Mahan is visiting his mother in Texas.

Married this week—J. R. Parnell and Miss M. M. Martin, D. J. Coggins and Miss Matilda Culp.

A negro house belonging to Capt. Middleton was destroyed by fire Saturday night.

TWO THINGS WE NEED

Two things which would go further than any other two which can be mentioned toward placing the country on the road to economic recovery are sound money and a balanced national budget. Just at present neither of these desirable conditions seem to be in the offing, but it is encouraging to note the increasing demand that is being made for them by leaders in the business world, and the increasing space that is being devoted to their discussion in the newspapers.

Col. Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, well summed the situation recently in an address at Philadelphia when he said:

"Yet we are spending $7 for every $3 we take in and there is no prospect of an end of that. Our whole system of budget control has been destroyed. Yet if we should make an effort to curb expenditures nothing would be more potent to restore public confidence.

"Stabilization of the dollar is another of the essential bases for recovery. Money is piling up in the banks. Before they will lend they want assurance regarding what kind of a dollar they will get back. It is alleged we can't stabilize gold. Yet agreement between England and the United States would stabilize international exchange."

Nearly everyone admits that the nation needs most of all a restoration of confidence. What would go further toward restoring confidence than sound money and a balanced budget?

A JOB TREE

No less than 25,000 jobs are to be handed out to Democratic workers in the near future. Their business is to take a farm census. Director of the Census Austin announces that the supervisors and enumerators will be selected "after consultation with Democratic representatives." It is true that appointments will not be made until nine days after the election. But, as is slyly remarked in Washington, there is nothing to prevent a congressman from promising these jobs to his political supporters. Never since the days of Andrew Jackson, the father of all spoilsmen, has there been such a wholesale use of political and other kinds of patronage as under this administration. Relief money, AAA funds, federal crop control checks and jobs have been used for the undisguised purpose of influencing the November election. Parceling 25,000 more jobs to deserving Democrats is merely in line with all the other bounties doled out by the administration.

PIGS, POLITICAL GHOSTS

The ghosts of those millions of little pigs, slaughtered by the New Deal's gross blunder, are returning to haunt the Democratic politicians. Like Banquo's classic specter, they will not down. Instead they will rise throughout the land to confound the spell-binders frantically endeavoring to excuse one of the most indefensible programs ever launched by responsible national leaders. That error cannot be rectified and its memory lingers. It will influence many urban and rural voters as they go to the polls next month. Deliberate destruction of valuable food supplies when many are in want is never the proper method of improving conditions.

Having exposed themselves to criticism for their blunder, the Democratic orators are making a futile effort to minimize its results. A Democratic speaker in an address at Warren referred to the "false impression" the Republican press sought to convey in attacking the New Deal policy. He added that "every ounce of the carcasses of the 6,000,000 little pigs which was fit for human food was saved and used by the Red Cross and other relief agencies. Such portions as were not fit for food were used for digestor and fertilizer tankage." Evidently he had no personal knowledge of the facts known to the many Hoosier citizens who saw pigs destroyed without salvaging an ounce from tankage.

Any attempt to explain the pig-killing program only intensifies the original blunder. The brain trusters accepted the fallacious theory that prices could be raised by reducing supplies. They destroyed needed food when many citizens were hungry, endeavoring to increase prices before incomes could meet a higher cost of living. That error will not be forgotten by citizens urged to extend a vote of confioence to the New Dealers on November 6.

AN ODE TO TAXES

They tax our bread, tax our meat,
They tax our head, tax our feet,
They tax our gas, tax our oil.
They tax our beer, tax our dope,
They tax our candy, tax our soap.
They tax our pills, tax our car,
They tax our mills, tax our bar.
They tax our gun, tax our smokes
They tax our cotton, tax our jokes.
They tax us here, tax us there.
They tax our regulars, tax our spare.
They tax us living, tax us dead.
They tax the blanket on our bed.
They tax us often, they tax us well—
Betcha $5 they'll tax us in—hades.

Wonder how the people used to keep well in the old days without orange juice for breakfast, salad for lunch and spinach for dinner.

No matter how you explain the fact that Great Britain is going ahead of the United States in recovering from the depression, you have to admit that John Bull turned the trick without the aid of Prof. Tugwell and Prof. Mordecai Ezekiel, to say nothing of Henry Wallace.

Baptist - Methodist Debt Campaign

Beginning November 12th and continuing through November 22nd, the Baptist and Methodist churches will join on a joint Catch-Up-Debt-Paying Campaign. It is hoped in this campaign to clear up all indebtedness on both churches, and start the new financial year with a clean slate. Both Dr. Ezell and Dr. Cochran expressed their desire and expectations that the campaign will succeed and free the churches to do their work unhampered with debts.

It is understood that the Baptists need $750 to clear up all their accounts, and the Methodists need $750 to put them in the clear. Both churches will put committees to work November 12th, and these will continue until all the members are seen and the debts raised.

It is hoped that the members and friends of the two churches will not only greet the committees with a smile but will also greet them with substantial checks or cash. This is a good and needed work and should meet with the hearty cooperation of all concerned. Let us DO this job.

Mrs. Hugh Foshee returned from a visit to Huntsville last week. Mrs. Foshee spent several weeks as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scott.

Mr. Tisdale Brooks of Andalusia, spent the week end with his sister, Miss Alice Brooks.

Mr. J. R. Oglesby of Prattville spent Sunday in Clanton with friends and relatives.

Dr. Lamar Callaway and Dr. Sam Upchurch of Duke University, Durham, N. C., spent last week end with relatives here.

Miss Nell Ross Mullins of Florence, Ala., will be with her aunt, Mrs. J. C. Jones, for the remainder of the school season. She will attend the Chilton County High School.

PATES CHAPEL

Everybody remember that the second Sunday in every month is our regular preaching day. This time it will be the 9th and 10th of November. Saturday night at 7:00 o'clock and Sunday at 11, with Sunday school at 10. Everybody has an invitation.

The many friends of Mrs. Archie Cleckler regret that she isn't any better. We hope that she will soon be well and able to come back to church. Many relatives and friends visited her Sunday.

We were very glad to have with us Sunday night the Rev. Dewey Robinson of Thorsby. His message was enjoyed by all. We cordially invite him to come back and be with us again some time.

Our W. M. U. meets Saturday evening at 2 o'clock. Those that are interested are urged to come.

Miss Ruby Maddox spent the night with Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hayes Friday night.

Clanton Study Club Meets with Mrs. Grady Heflin

Mrs. Grady Heflin was hostess to members of the Clanton Study Club last Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

For the occasion the house was decorated in a profusion of fall flowers. The subject of the program was "The American Indian." Roll Call was answered with current events of the Red Man.

Mrs. J. P. Hayes gave a most interesting paper. Her subject was "A Brief History of the Indian." Mrs. Norman Roberts gave a reading from "Hiawatha." Mrs. Mason F. Jones spoke most interestingly on what our government is doing for the Indians. Mrs. L. C. Ross sang "Pale Hands," accompanied by Mrs. Doub Huddleston.

After a 30 minute busness meeting Mrs. Heflin served delicious refreshments to the following guests: Mrs. J. E. Gowan, Mrs. J. P. Hayes, Mrs. J. W. Hayes, Mrs. N. S. Johnson, Mrs. Hugh Jones, Mrs. Mason F. Jones, Mrs. T. C. McSwain, Mrs. P. D. Wilson, Mrs. J. Watts Moore, Mrs. J. D. Mullins, Mrs. Omar Reynolds, Mrs. Norman Roberts, Mrs. L. C. Ross, Mrs. J. M. VanDerveer, Mrs. L. C. Warr, Mrs. Horsley White.

Mrs. James Wade Entertains the Thursday Contract Club

Members of the Thursday contract club were delightfully entertained on last Friday afternoon by Mrs. James Wade. Three tables were arranged for bridge. The home was beautifully decorated in baskets of cut flowers. Bridge was enjoyed until a late hour. Mrs. J. C. Page held high score and was awarded a most useful bowl. Mrs. Billy Smith received the guest prize.

At a late hour a tempting salad plate with hot coffee was served the following: Mrs. Billy Smith, Mrs. John D. Mullins, Mrs. John Deramus, Mrs. J. Hance Alred, Mrs. Doub Huddleston, Mrs. J. P. Hayes, Mrs. J. C. Page, Mrs. Arthur Johnson, Mrs. Hugh Jones, Mrs. Grady Reynolds, Mrs. Jack Davis.

As You Like It Club

Members of the As You Like It club met last Thursday at the home of Mrs. V. J. Gragg. After a most interesting meeting, delicious refreshments were served to the following: Mesdames L. H. Reynolds, M. A. Gore, J. B. Atkinson, C. O. Lawrence, Flem Higgins, D. Hogan, W. A. Reynolds, P. M. Pitts.

Mrs. Ruphus Brown spent the week end in Birmingham with friends.

Misses Alice Brooks, Virginia Cook, Sara Colley and Margaret Kendrick spent Saturday in Montgomery.

Miscellaneous Shower Given Miss Alma Gentry

The lovely country home of Mrs. Tom Kemp was the scene of a beautiful party on Thursday afternoon when she was hostess at a miscellaneous shower for Miss Alma Gentry, whose marriage is to be at an early date.

Guests were met at the door by Mrs. Grady Heflin and in the receiving line were Mrs. Tom Kemp, Miss Alma Gentry, Mrs. L. H. Gentry, mother of the bride-to-be, and Mrs. A. A. Culver, mother of the groom-to-be.

From the dining table, which was beautiful in the decoration of yellow and white dwarf Chrysanthemums and on which burned two large yellow candles, Miss Carrie Foshee and Mrs. Dick Kemp served dainty sandwiches, mints and coffee. The color motif of yellow and white was also tastefully carried out in the decrorations of the other rooms.

From the dining room the guests were invited into the gift rooms where the many lovely and useful gifts were displayed by Mrs. P. A. Taylor and Mrs. Horace Davis.

During the calling hours of two-thirty and six o'clock, about one-hundred guests registered in the pretty bride's book where Miss Euna Powell presided.

ARMISTICE PROGRAM AT THORSBY SCHOOL

Members of the Chilton County Post of the American Legion will join with the Parent Teacher Association of Thorsby in a patriotic program on Armistice Day, next Sunday afternoon at 2:30, at Thorsby Public School.

Mrs. Billingsley, principal of the school, is arranging the program, which will include several very interesting numbers presented by the school.

A representative of the Legion Post will present to two students of the school the Americanism award of the Legion which was to have been given out at the close of the school term last year.

The Legion has extended to Secretary of State, Pete B. Jarman, an invitation to attend and make the principal address of the occasion.

Everybody is invited to attend, especially the patrons of Thorsby school and ex-soldiers and their wives and families.

JAMES LEONARD MIMS

Funeral for James Leonard Mims, age 38, who died Saturday afternoon, in a Birmingham Hospital, was held Sunday at eleven o'clock at Concord church, with Rev. G. G. Williams officiating and Spigener Funeral Home in charge.

He is survived by his father, E. P. Mims, Clanton Route 2; his wife, Mrs. Edna Mims, and four children, Mrs. Pearl Wyatt, Clanton Route 2, Acia, Erskin and Edna Mims; four sisters, Mrs. Minnie Armstrong, Clanton R. 7; Mrs. Grady Taylor, Clanton Route 2, Mrs. Arthur Maddox, and Mrs. Judson Easterling, Clanton Route 2; six brothers, Ollie Mims, of Birmingham; Enoch Mims, of Montgomery; Willie, Virgil, Clyde and Melvin Mims, of Clanton.

Pallbearers were: Arthur Tippett, Dalton Bice, Cecil and Mallie Armstrong, Jack Mims and Albert Davis.

He was a native of Chilton County and a member of the Concord Baptist church.

Mr. Joe Franklin of Montgomery was a visitor here Monday.

CLOSING DATE SET FOR TAX CERTIFICATE POOL

Tentative plans for closing the surplus cotton tax-exemption certificate pool to further receipt of surplus certificates on November 10 were announced by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Purchase of certificates from the pool, it was emphasized, would continue as long as the pool had certificates on hand. State allotment boards have been urged to assist producers who wish to turn in surplus certificates to the pool. The pool now has on hand orders for more certificates than it is able to fill. Orders received by the pool up to October 15 for surplus certificates are equivalent to 638,260 bales of cotton, with indications that the total demand may be equivalent to as much as 750,000 bales. On all these orders, the purchasers expect to pay four cents a pound, the rate fixed by the secretary of Agriculture as the standard selling price for surplus certificates purchased through the national pool.

Producers who turn certificates in will be paid approximately $20 a bale for all certificates sold through the pool. When the pool is liquidated, each producer will be returned his share of any unsold certificates. These may be used next year if the Bankhead Act is effective for 1935.

All farmers who have surplus gin certificates in Chilton County should bring these certificates to the County Agent's office before Saturday, November 10, if they want them sent to the National Pool for sale.—J. W. Fant, County Agent.

MAPLESVILLE BITS

MAPLESVILLE SCHOOL NEWS
Sixth Grade

Our school is progressing nicely this year under the principalship of Prof. J. E. Daniel. We have the largest enrollment that we have ever had. There are one hundred and fifteen pupils in the high school and one hundred ninety-five in the grammar grades.

Mrs. Floyd Dorsey, our music teacher, is doing some excellent work with the music pupils this year. We have an orchestra, a high school glee club and a glee chub in the lower grades. We have the kiddie's band also.

We are proud of our football team. They play well for their first year. They played Autaugaville last Friday and won, the score being 6 to 0. They are playing Columbiana next Friday, and we hope they win.

We hope to be ready to play a game of basketball soon. The boys are getting the goals and courts in readiness.

Our P.-T. A. is doing many worthwhile things for our school this year. They are buying some new window sashes for the first grade room right away, we hope before the weather gets cold. They gave $2.00 to Miss Hayes's room because they secured more members than any other room in school.

We postponed our Hallowe'en party for last Saturday night because the weather was so unfavorable.

Miss Nolan Meroney, child welfare worker of Chilton County, spent Sunday in Montevallo with her sister, Miss Mamie Meroney.

Mechanical Non-Electric Refrigerator On Market

The Home Appliance Company of Montevallo is eagerly awaiting its first shipment of merchandise, following its appointment as distributor in Shelby, Bibb and Chilton counties for an unusual type of mechanical refrigerator. This product is especially for use in homes where electricity is not available. The refrigerator generates cold and makes large sized ice cubes with the heat from kerosene burners, like those used on oil cook stoves with that of modern electric refrigerators.

The first shipment of these Superfex Oil burning refrigerators, which are manufactured by one of the best known oil stove manufacturers, the Perfection Stove Company, is expected so Mr. Craig reports, on about November 10th, at which time it will be placed on display in Montevallo.

Mayor C. Fenn Jones Proclaims Red Cross Roll Call

"As Mayor of Clanton, I hereby designate the period from November 11 to November 29 as a time given to a review of the work of the American Red Cross and its value to the community; and I also set it aside as a time for the annual enrollment of members for the coming year.

"This office is in touch with the needs of those who have been affected by the depression of the last few years, and we have seen the ready response of the Red Cross to meet those needs. The organization's program is so flexible that it meets emergencies and disasters of all kinds; it has also a permanent structure that is being built up year by year, to study means through which epidemics and disasters may be prevented. This community needs the permanent structure of the Red Cross as it needs the expert service which is at our command to meet whatever emergencies the coming year may bring.

"I therefore call upon former members of the Red Cross to renew their memberships during the roll call this year, and urge those who have never hitherto been members to enroll their names with those who are fighting disease and need under the banner of the American Red Cross."

C. FENN JONES,
Mayor of Clanton.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

FARMERS ADVISED TO FIGHT FOR PROGRAM

Auburn, Ala.—Farmers should beware of "the eternal and everlasting enemies of agriculture" who "do not want the farmers to have an equal opportunity for success and happiness," writes Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the state extension service.

"Beware of them and above all be actively on your guard lest what you have gained be lost," he advises.

Dr. Duncan congratulated the farmers on the progress they have made but warned that "in order to hold our gains, defend what we have and improve our program, it is necessary for you to join with your fellow farmers and become thoroughly and efficiently organized.

"After a long, hard, bitter struggle of our farm leaders, working with President Roosevelt and our governmental officails, we have a sound, wise agricultural program.

"As a result of this plan our cotton crop this fall is worth far more than twice what it was in 1932. In addition to this we have been blessed with abundant harvests of corn, hay, potatoes, syrup, vegetables, and other food and feed crops," says Dr. Duncan.

My earnest prayer is that you take out a membership in your county organization and become an active worker in this great cause of giving the farmers a just and fair opportunity," he concludes.

ISABELLA DEMONSTRATION CLUB

Our home demonstration club met at the schoolhouse Thursday afternoon, November 1st, with eight members present and two visitors. Three new members were enrolled. The demonstration given was on homemade gifts for Christmas.

Our next meeting will be December 6th and the project will be on handicraft. All members are urged to be present and visitors are welcome.—Reported.

ALABAMA LEADS NATION SOIL EROSION PROGRAM

Auburn, Ala.—Alabama has launched the nation's greatest soil conservation program. Seventeen counties in the state have purchased 27 modern terracing equipments for terracing the farm lands on a cooperative basis and other counties are expected to make similar arrangements soon.

Over 600 farmers, farm leaders, probate judges and county commissioners recently met with representatives of the state extension service and the TVA at Athens and launched a terracing program in all ten Tennessee Valley counties.

The plan contemplates the purchase of several Deisel type tractors and the latest improved terracing machines with which to do the terracing. Competent men will be placed in charge of the equipment in each county and will go from farm to farm laying off and building such terraces as the farmers desire.

The cost to the farmer will be on the basis of so much per hour to cover the cost of man labor, oil, and fuel, and a reasonable depreciation charge. "In this way the farmer will get his land terraced at much less cost than he could ordinarily do it," declares L. N. Duncan, director of the state extension service.

CCC camps are cooperating in building outlets to the terraces, in order to conserve the land to keep the water from damaging the roads.

WOMEN SAVE 8,000,000 CANS FOOD

Farm women of Alabama this year preserved 8,000,000 cans of fruits, vegetables, and meats, says Miss Margaret Garrett, specialist in food preservation.

Everyone of the 67 counties in the state has taken a part in the canning program either through the Relief Administration or through the home demonstration agents, she said. Last year 10 of the counties did not take part.

Tables of farm families in Alabama this winter will be better supplied with foods to provide a balanced diet than ever before, explained Miss Garrett. "The food preservation program has been designed to fit into the Farm-Home-Living-Program and the thousands upon thousands of dollars worth of food will be available to the farm people at a minimum cost of production and preservation."

Miss Garrett says that there has been this year a greatly increased interest in canning food in sufficient amounts to permit the farm families to "really live at home." The quality of canned products is also improving, she added.

ADMISSION 10c and 25c

GAME AND FISH NEWS

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 1.—November ushers in the biggest hunting month of the year in Alabama.

At one time or another during the month the bans are lifted on Bobwhite quail, ducks, doves, pheasants, deer and bear. The squirrel season also will open in the 25 counties that did not open with the rest of the state in October.

I. T. Quinn, commissioner of game and fisheries, says game is plentiful in the state. Conservative hunting last season and fine breeding and rearing conditions during the past year have combined to give Alabama another abundant supply of wildlife.

Last fall Commissioner Quinn's department undertook to keep a close chceck on hunting accidents in the hope wide publicity given these accidents would help in reducing carelessness in the handling of firearms.

The department's record for the year showed there were 31 hunting accidents, of which 17 proved fatal. Of the 17 fatalities, nine resulted from self-inflicted wounds while six of the other 14 wounded were victims of their own carelessness.

Nine of the fatalities occurred among huntsmen under 20, a number of the victims being small boys unskilled in handling a gun. The accidents occurred in 26 different counties, Winston heading the list with three. Jackson, Cullman and Butler each reported two.

The 1934-35 hunting season has hardly begun, but already three fatal accidents have been reported by game wardens. Commissioner Quinn reminds hunters that firearms are deadly weapons and appeals to them to co-operate with him in an effort to lesson the number of fatalities and injuries caused by careless use of firearms.

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 6.—A statewide conservation council meeting, sponsored by the Conservation Division of the Alabama Federation of Women's Clubs will be held at the Thomas Jefferson hotel in Birmingham, November 27.

Leaders in every branch of conservation in Alabama will speak at the meeting which has been called by Mrs. Clarence L. Moss, chairman of the division, to acquanit club women of the state with Alabama's natural resources an denlist their aid in protecting and developing them.

Speakers scheduled to appear on the program include I. T. Quinn, state commissioner of game and fisheries; Dr. L. N. Duncan, chairman of the state planning board; Col. Page S. Bunker, state forester; R. D. Jordan, state highway engineer; J. A. Rountree, director of the U. S. Good Roads Association; Dr. Walter B. Jones, state geologist, and a number of others.

Emphasis will be placed on wildlife conservation, which will be discussed by Commissioner Quinn, and moving pictures of the state's wildlife will be shown at the meeting. The division's conservation program for the year includes a contest in which the district establishing the greatest number of wildlife refuges will receive a generous supply of fish from one of the state's fish hatcheries to be used in restocking streams in that district.

In addition to this contest the district organizing the largest number Audubon societies will be awarded a set of nature books while the district sending in the best display of birds, made in soap sculpture, will be awarded a bird bath. The division also is sponsoring a series of radio programs over station WSGN in Birmingham.

"The conservation of the natural resources of Alabama is one of the great unfinished tasks that confront the club women of the state," said Mrs. Moss. "No movement will develop greater state and civic pride nor more adequately bring to life common interests which bind all citizens together.

Get Ready For Winter Driving

Motor cars will function at peak efficiency in the coldest weather, if the necessary steps are taken now to prepare them for winter driving, according to a bulletin issued by the Ford Motor Company.

Engine oil and transmission and rear axle lubricants should be changed to lubricants of the proper viscosity for winter operation; engines should be tuned up and put in shape for quick starting, anti-freeze added to the cooling system, batteries checked and a car heater installed to insure utmost comfort in winter driving.

Beyond all this tires should be carefully inspected, and if treads are worn new tires should be mounted so that proper traction and braking is assured on slippery roads.

The cooling system should be well flushed to remove sediment before the anti-freeze is added. In most cases it is considered better to prepare against engine and radiator damage by freezing by adding anti-freeze in advance of cold weather.

Ford dealers usually advise flushing the engine before winter-grade oil is added. Transmissions and rear axles also should be drained and flushed before filling with the new gear lubricant. Checking the batteries is necessary to insure ample reserve power for cold weather starting.

The engine tune-up is considered most essential. Spark plugs, distributor and carbureator all must be functioning at peak efficiency for quick starting in cold weather. Most garage operators are now featuring special bargain rates for such winter service operations.

Henry B. Carter, World War veteran, of Pletcher, was in Clanton Saturday. Mr. Carter is now a member of the CCC camp at Hacoda, in Geneva County.

Lesson for November 11

THE CHRISTIAN CITIZEN

LESSON TEXT—Galatians 5:13-26.
GOLDEN TEXT—Then said Jesus unto him, Put up again thy sword into his place: for all they that take the sword shall perish with the sword.—Matthew 26:52.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Law in One Word.
JUNIOR TOPIC—God's One Law.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Be a Peacemaker.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Thinking Peace Instead of War.

Doubtless the thought of the lesson committee was to take advantage of this memorial occasion to inculcate in the hearts of the youth the spirit of peace which grows out of a heart of love. It should be borne in mind that this value can only be a practical reality as the people are brought into a saving knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ. Love is the fruit of the Spirit made operative in the heart of the regenerate.

Paul, having shown in chapters three and four of this epistle that the believer is free from the law as a means of justification, in our present lesson makes the practical application of the doctrine. The divine method of doing away with war is to secure the regeneration of individuals.

I. Christian Freedom (vv. 13-15).

1. It is not an occasion to the flesh (v. 13). Liberty is not license. The notion that when one is free from the law he is free from constraint is wickedly erroneous. License of the flesh means not merely the indulgence of the flesh in actual sinning, but in the expression of a self-centered life.

2. By love serve one another (vv. 13a-15).

Freedom from the Mosaic law means slavery to the law of love. Love thus becomes the fulfillment of the law.

II. Walking in the Spirit (vv. 16-18).

This discloses the secret of how a life of service to another can be lived. Walking in the Spirit results in

1. Loving service to others (v. 13)
2. Victory over the flesh (vv. 16, 17).

By flesh is meant the corrupt nature of man expressing itself in the realm of sense and self. The renewed man has two natures, between which is going on a mortal conflict. The Christian must choose between good and evil. Notwithstanding the reality of this deadly conflict, victory is sure if one chooses the good.

III. The Works of the Flesh (vv. 19-21).

By the works of the flesh is meant the operation of the carnal nature. The one who chooses to live according to the impulses and desires of his natural heart will be practising the following sins:

1. Sensuality (v. 19).

The sins enumerated here are practiced in the body, and are a. Fornication (the word adultery is omitted from the best manuscripts). Fornication includes all sexual sins in the married and unmarried state. b. Uncleanness, which includes all sensual sins, open or secret, in thought or deed. c. Lasciviousness, which means the wanton, reckless indulgence in the shameful practices of the flesh.

2. Irreligion (v. 20). These acts take place in the realm of the spirit, and are a. Idolatry, the worshiping of idols. b. Witchcraft or sorcery, all dealing with the occult, such as magical arts, spiritism, necromancy.

3. Sins of the temper (vv. 20-21). These take place in the sphere of the mind, and are a. Hatred. b. Variance, including all strife and contentions. c. Emulations, including all types of jealousy. d. Wrath, meaning bursts of passion. e. Seditions, which mean factions in the state. f. Heresies, meaning factions in the church. g. Envyings. h. Murders.

4. Sins of excess (v. 21). a. Drunkenness, indulgence in intoxicating liquors. b. Revellings. Acts of dissipation under the influence of liquor.

All who practice such sins shall be excluded from the Kingdom of God (I Cor. 6:10).

IV. The Fruit of the Spirit (vv. 22-24).

This indicates action in the realm of life. It is the product of the Holy Spirit indwelling the believer.

1. Love to God and Man.
2. Joy—glad-heartedness because of what God has done.
3. Peace with God and Man.
4. Longsuffering, taking insult and injury without murmuring.
5. Gentleness, meaning kindness to others.
6. Goodness, doing good to others.
7. Faith, believing God and committing everything to him.
8. Meekness, which essentially means submission to God.
9. Temperance, self-control in all things.

Against those who thus live, there is no law.

ARBOR DAY IS PROCLAIMED BY GOVERNOR B. M. MILLER

Montgomery, Ala.—Alabama in common with the other states, annually observes Arbor Day, a day set aside to advance forestry and tree planting as an aid to the economic and cultural development of the state and nation. Governor Miller has designated Friday, December 7, as Arbor Day in Alabama for 1934. The governors proclamation is as follows:

Whereas, although approximately two-thirds of the land surface of Alabama is more valuable for the growth of trees and the production of forest materials than for any other purposes, many thousands of acres of such land are lying idle or are being put to unsuitable and unprofitable use; and

Whereas, tree growth on lands that otherwise may lie waste serves to enhance the valuable and usefulness of the property through increase of soil fertility, stabilization of water runoff and yields of essential products; and

Whereas, the presence of trees and forests lends beauty and attractiveness to the landscape and to the home and environment of our people, and contributes many elements to the culture of our commonwealth; and

Whereas, the restoration to normal productivity of unused lands tends to stimulate individual and community prosperity, encouraging all citizens to renewed efforts in bringing about solutions of many of our economic and social problems; and

Whereas, during recent decades nation wide interest has been aroused to the seriousness of the steady depletion of the country's available timber supply, and plans have been initiated in most sections of the Untied States for a renewal of the forest resources through planting and other reforestation procedures; and

Whereas, through the recovery program inaugurated by the president, the federal government is furnishing substantial aid in advancing forest, park and tree development in connection with proper land use, now

Therefore, I, B. M. Miller, governor of the state of Alabama, do hereby designate and set apart the day of Friday, December 7, 1934, as Arbor Day, and do earnestly recommend that all citizens, individual and in association, and the pupils of all schools in the state, by the planting of trees in suitable locations and by other appropriate exercises give due observance to the occasion.

The State Commission of Forestry, according to custom, has published a pamphlet of suggestions for Arbor Day programs for the use of teachers, clubs and other organizations interested in promoting the public welfare. It is very hard to estimate the number of such publications that will be desired by the various groups, and in order to eliminate waste caused by oversupply, or inconvenience on account of too few being printed, it is hoped that all individuals who wish to use the 1934 booklet will write to the state forester, 500 Dexter Avenue, Montgomery, Alabama, by or before November 10, stating the number desired.

Roscoe Rawlinson, World War Veteran, of Pletcher, has been assigned to duty in the CCC camp at Hacoda, in Geneva County. He was at home on leave with his family this week, and spent Friday in Clanton. He says he likes the CCC work fine, and hopes he can stay in it.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Harton and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Barnett of Montgomery spent the past week end with friends in Clanton.

STEVENS BIRTHDAY DINNER

Mrs. Mattie Stevens was given a surprise birthday dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Smitherman Sunday. She is the mother of W. S. Stevens and is 78 years of age and has never lost a member of her family except her husband, seven years ago. We had a good dinner and all enjoyed the day. Those present were as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Smitherman and Children, James, Mary Nell and J. W., Mr. and Mrs. Jean Smitherman and children, Cecil, Ray and little Jeff, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Stevens and little W. C. There are 3 grandchildren and 7 great grandchildren. All were present and hope we are all together again one year from now.

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION TO NON-RESIDENT

The State of Alabama, Chilton County; Circuit Court, in Equity. Pearlie Peterson, Complainant; vs. Elbert Peterson, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of A. B. Foshee, Solicitor for Complainant, that the defendant is a non-resident, and that his place of residence and post office address is unknown, and that such address cannot be ascertained after reasonable effort; and, further, that, in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is over the age of twenty-one years:

It is, therefore, ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Union-Banner, a newspaper published in the County of Chilton, once a week for four consecutive weeks requiring him, the said Elbert Peterson, to plead, answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 13 day of November, 1934, or, in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against him.

Done at office in Clanton, this 12th day of October, 1934.

W. D. SPIGENER,

Why Liquid Laxatives Do You No Harm

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be regulated to suit individual need. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The right liquid laxative will bring a more natural movement, and with no discomfort at the time, or afterward.

The wrong cathartic may often do more harm than good.

An approved liquid laxative (one which is most widely used for both adults and children) is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a prescription. It is perfectly safe. Its laxative action is based on senna—a natural laxative. The bowels will not become dependent on this form of help, as they may do in the case of cathartics containing mineral drugs. Ask your druggist for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

IN MEMORY

On last Wednesday morning, October 31, a mantle of sorrow was cast over Concord community, especially the student body of the Concord Jr. High School, when it was learned that little Kathryn Baker had passed on to the great beyond. She was sick only a few days.

God saw fit to pluck this beautiful little rose bud and transplant it from earth to heaven where it might shed forth its fragrance and blossom in all its beauty, making heaven sweeter to those left behind. It was so hard for parents, teachers, schoolmates and loved ones to give little Kathryn up. But we must look to the father for comfort and solace. It was God's way.

His will be done.
Her little form was so dear,
To friends so fond and true.
We all loved her
But God loved her too.

The entire faculty and students join in sympathy with the parents and relatives. She was laid to rest in Temple cemetery Thursday afternoon. Bro. A. T. Hickman spoke many words of comfort. Martin was in charge of burial.

The many beautiful floral offerings given by relatives, friends and school children attested the great love and esteem in which she was held by all who knew her, and to know little Kathryn was to love her.—Her teacher. Mrs. Everie Tippett.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our many friends for their kindness, assistance and comforting words; also for the beautiful floral offerings at the funeral of our beloved son and brother, Oscar, Jr. Especially do we appreciate the kindness of our neighbors in South Clanton.—O. C. Bennett and Family.

PARDON NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned, Milford Smith, who was convicted in the Circuit Court of Chilton County on May 15, 1934, for manufacturing whiskey and possessing still, and sentenced to a term of 1 year and 1 day to 19 months and 1 day to the penitentiary, will make application to the Hon. State Board of Pardons for pardon or parole. (Signed)—Milford Smith. 11-1-2t-p.

The Story of the Bible Told in Pictures

Elijah Is Taken Into Heaven by a Fiery Chariot.—After Ahab's death his son, Ahaziah, reigned, and led the children of Israel into idolatry. But Jehoshaphat, who ruled the tribe of Judah, served the Lord. Ahaziah fell through his chamber lattice and was injured. He sent to Baal-zebub to inquire if he would recover, and for this idolatry Elijah prophesied that he would die. Ahaziah sent men to take Elijah, but twice the prophet brought fire from heaven upon them. And the time came for Elijah to leave his prophet's duties to Elisha. The latter refusing to leave the older prophet, accompanied him to the river Jordan. "And Elijah took his mantle, and wrapped it together, and smote the waters, and they were divided hither and thither, so that they two went over on dry ground. And it came to pass, when they were gone over there appeared a chariot of fire, and horses of fire, and parted them both asunder; and Elijah went up by a whirlwind into heaven."—II Kings 2: 8-14. This illustration is from Merian's story of the Bible in pictures, engraved in 1625.

THIS AND THAT

By W. J. Baldwin

Opposition to the State Insurance Fund found little of a comforting nature in the Annual Report just issued by William F. Feagin, Director of State Board of Administration. An annual saving to the taxpayers during these trying times of more than $100,000 is not calculated to lend much encouragement to that selfish group which seeks in vain to have the legislature abolish the fund. The report just from the press shows a total saving since 1923, the year the fund was set up, of exactly $1,258,000.65. It is not any wonder that the legislature has refused to deny the people the advantage of this saving. And, it goes without saying, that no future legislature, if in it's right mind, will abolish the fund, if the administration of it continues as ably as it has during Mr. Feagin's regime.

Not one penny of the original appropriation of $1,000,000 has been touched. The saving effected the first year thereafter made it possible for Mr. Feagin to insure more than 4,000 pieces of State property against fire and tornado at not one penny of expense to the people and at the end of the eleventh year to show a saving of more than one and a quarter million dollars. If the opposition has been a plan to offer, the day of miracles has not passed.

Dr. Duncan has bought Auburn a new pair of shoes. The first campus street to be paved looks like new shoes on a dashing young debutante rearing to go. If the doctor can locate the funds, he expects to buy her some new stockings, a dress and a Mae West hat and send her galloping along among the finest of them. Auburn has been the Cinderella of State educational institutions long enough, opines the genial doctor. "The old gal is going to have her deserts if I have to sell the bell in the belfry to buy them," he declares with a snap of the finger, just like that.

It is said that the snakes in a recent circus parade up Commerce Street stood up and made low bows as they passed certain emporiums along the thoroughfare.

A correspondent who signs herself "Mary," takes this columnist to task for stating that he would run two miles for a cup of Gay-Teague coffee. She thinks, and so expresses herself, that a two-mile run entitles the runner to two cups. If "Mary" knew her coffee as this columnist knows his, she'd probably take on a dozen cups at one sitting.

Mere man has it. In fact, he has the lion's share of buttons. Count 'em.

When man dresses for an evening of bridge with the Smiths, he discloses the fact that he is a glutton for buttons. The man who dresses in ordinary clothing has to push 36 button holes and there are no less than 66 different operations required to get dressed, to say nothing of the effort he exerts to locate the button that rolled under the bureau. If he is the least bit old fashioned—and most men are—he puts himself into a union-suit. That's usually the first operation. He fastens it about him with six buttons. Donning the suit and buttoning the buttons require 7 operations.

That's 6 buttons and 7 operations.

Next, he puts on two socks. That's two more operations.

Total: six buttons; 9 operations.

He attaches two sock-supporters to the two socks. That's 2 more operations. He then fastens a supporter about the calf of each leg. That's two more operations.

Total: 6 buttons; 13 operations.

Next, he puts on two shoes requiring 2 operations. He then laces the 2 shoes in 2 operations.

Total: 6 buttons; 17 operations.

His trousers, with 5 buttons, are next. Then the shirt, with 6 buttons. He sticks the shirt into trousers. He then fastens the shirt to his body by buttoning six buttons down the front. That's 13 more operations.

Total: 17 buttons; 30 operations.

The next move is to put a collar-button in the back of the collar band.

Total: 18 buttons; 31 operations.

Then a longer collar-button in two buttonholes in the front of the band.

Total: 19 buttons; 33 operations.

Two cuff-buttons are inserted, requiring 4 buttonholes and 2 operations.

Total: 21 buttons; 35 operations.

(Note to tailor: Fourten buttonholes are required for two collar-buttons and two cuff-buttons. Shame on you).

His trousers are then held up by pushing a belt through seven belt-bands and shoving the end of the belt through a buckle.

Total: 21 buttons; 43 operations.

He inserts his tie in his collar.

Total: 21 buttons; 44 operations.

He then fastens the collar to the button in the back, brings the two ends of the collar to the front and fastens them to the front button through two button-holes, all of which require three operations.

Total: 21 buttons; 47 operations.

He next ties his tie, bringing the total operations to 48.

The vest is next. Six more buttons, seven operations.

Total: 27 buttons; 55 operations.

Then the top-coat. Three buttons and four operations.

Total: 30 buttons; 59 operations.

If he is a pessimist and wears both belt and suspenders—as many do—more buttons and seven operations are required.

Total: 36 buttons; 66 operations.

A woman, dressing for the same occasion, steps in and slips on three or four flimsy garments without the use of a single button. And she often wonders why "papa" can't be a bit more patient when she keeps him waiting thirty minutes over-time, and greets him with the time-worn exclamation, "I haven't a thing to wear."

SINGING AT LIBERTY HILL

The Liberty Hill Singing society meets next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. We are expecting several visiting societies and hope to have the best singing of the year. All singers and lovers of music have a special invitation to attend.—Marvin Lowery, secretary.

MIDWAY-MT. CREEK CLUB

The Midway-Mt. Creek club met on October 31st at 2 p.m. in the club house at the soldiers home. There were a large number of members present. Two new members were added to our club. Miss Ruth Pardue gave a demonstration on cheese making, which was very interesting.

Our next meeting will be on November 14 at our club house. The project will be making Christmas gifts and toys.—Reporter.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

Last Sunday morning found a number of relatives and friends on their way to the home of Mrs. L. H. Wright of the Shiloh community to celebrate her 44th birthday. Thirty guests registered during the day. At noon the guests were invited to the dining room and enjoyed a bountiful dinner.

Those enjoying this wonderful hospitality of Mrs. Wright's were: Mr. and Mrs. Rollin and children, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wright and baby, Mr. and Mrs. Auklee Baker and children, Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Wright and baby, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Wright. All the children were present except one, Mrs. Howard Mims, of Mineral Springs. Others were Mrs. J. H. Wright, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Devaughn, and baby, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Devaughn and baby and Agnes Mims.

CANE CREEK

Next Saturday and Sunday are our regular preaching days. We will have four sermons delivered by Bro. W. E. Robinson, and will have Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. as well. Everyone si invited to come and worship at all services.

We have a good Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. We are doing some good work right at this time. Everybody is staying on their job fine, and we are having cooperation in every way. Let us be prompt at 10 o'clock next Sunday morning for Sunday school service, and get through for preach- at 11 o'clock.

A large crowd went from here to Blow Graveyard last Sunday afternoon and enjoyed the singing fine. We surely invite them to our singing the second Sunday afternoon in December. We won't have Sunday school next Sunday afternoon because our B. Y. P. U. convention meets at New Salem, and we are hoping to go over there. We were glad to have with us last Sunday, Uncle Pete Weldon. It always makes us feel good to see him fill his place in Sunday school, as he cannot come regular; so we are hoping he can come more often.

Now don't forget all announcements and remember we want you and need you, so come one and all. We believe in working, and with free will. No selfishness about God's work and He doesn't approve of any. Come and feel at home.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

Still on the Atlantic—six days out from Norfolk. Yesterday the sea was rough. Today there is a beautiful calm. How like the ocean of life. Some days the storms break in their fury, and the next day the clouds clear; the sun shines and we forget the storm.

There were no services aboard the Ship Sunday (October 7). The sea was too rough and most of the passengers were sick. On deck Sunday evening our little group of six sang many of the old hymns which we sing at the Bob Jones College. Nothing can soothe the heart so much as the good old hymns, "Rock of Ages," "How Firm a Foundation," "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," "There's a Wideness in God's Mercy Like the Wideness of the Sea." One of our group suggested that we sing "Jesus Savior, Pilot Me." Some one raised the tune and memories came crowding into my mind. When I was seventeen years old in a little simple country home my father called me to his dying bed. "My son, I am going home," he said. "I want you to promise to meet me in heaven." He began to sing "Jesus Savior, pilot me over life's tempestuous sea." He sang until he heached those words, "When at last I near the shore and the fearful breakers roar 'twixt me and the peaceful rest." Then with the song trembling upon his lips he closed his eyes and went home.

"I am a rather formal Christian. I don't get excited very easily." A famous physician said that as he walked away from the bedside of a friend of mine who had just died. "But I don't see how a doctor could be a skeptic. I have seen too many people die. I have practiced medicine for twenty years. There is something about a Christian's death that you don't find in the death of a sinner. That something must be Jesus." The doctor wiped away a tear and went down the hall.

Telephone Users Consider Quality and Dependability of Service as Paramount

Telephone service is such an intimate, personal service that anything adversely affecting it at once becomes a subject of individual interest to the millions of users. Because this service has such an important part in your every day social and business life, its quality and dependability are matters of serious concern to you. Service inferior to the high standard to which you are accustomed would not be acceptable, even at a lower price.

Recognizing this fact, the Bell System has always so shaped its policy as to insure the best and most dependable service that science and careful, farsighted management could produce, at the lowest possible cost consistent with financial safety.

Due to this constructive policy, the telephone business has never earned speculative profits.

In the best years of the Southern Bell Telephone Company's history, and during a time when other businesses were earning large profits on soaring prices, the cost of the telephone service was kept at a level where the return on the investment was never more than 7%. In 1930, when the depression was first felt, these earnings declined rapidly, and in 1933 they shrank to about 4% on the investment.

It is obvious that further reductions of such already inadequate earnings would seriously endanger the financial soundness of the business, and be reflected in the quality and dependability of the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Robinson of Jemison were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Pate over the week end.

Mrs. Marie Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Nels Peterson and son, Norman, of Calera, visited Mr. and Mrs. Harry Peterson in Tuscaloosa Sunday.

Mrs. Howard Higdon, of Campbellsville, Ky., is here on account of the illness of her mother, Mrs. Ben Franklin.

A very pleasant occasion of last Sunday was the annual dinner of the A. T. Clark Bible Class of the Congregational church. It was held in the home of Mrs. J. E. Each. Each member of the class brought part of the banquet with them. Thirty-seven were present to enjoy the occasion. Small tables were set around through the rooms. The dining room table was bountifully spread with various dishes for the dinner, to be served in cafeteria style. Slips with numbers on them were passed around to the company, each two people having the same number being partners for the dinner. Then each couple took from the table what they wanted to eat, and found seats at the various tables, where coffee was served to them while they enjoyed the feast. When everyone had satisfied the "inner man" the tables were cleared away and "a feast of the soul" had been prepared by our most efficient hostess, Mrs. Each. A program of choice readings and music, hymns in which the whole company stood up and sang, led by Mr. Butler, who seems to know the words of all the hymns. After this there were a few speeches of congratulation and good will, but best of all was the spirit of friendliness and kindness which prevailed and the words of remembrance of former years and of the dear ones who have gone before. Such gatherings are well worth while and leave pleasant memories in the minds of all.

"Blest be the tide that binds our hearts in Christian Love. The followship of kindred of minds is like to that above."

Thorsby Institute News

Saturday night the second open meeting of the Helen Keller Literary Society was held. The first part of the program was devoted to the lives and works of two musicians and two writers, born in November. Several of the numbers were contested and the Philomatics won. The latter part of the program consisted of a song, "Would That I were a Tender Apple Blossom" by the girl's glee club, a dialogue "Norah Mixes a Cake" in which Louise Mims was the mistress of the home, and Berince Robinson the maid. The last number consisted of living pictures of "The Girls of Today."

The next public meeting of the literary society will be the Christmas program on December 15th.

Thorsby Institute Stunt night in which all the classes participate, will be on Saturday, November 24th. This is an annual affair. Everyone is invited. Admission will be ten cents.

This Saturday, November 10, the school will have one session, closing at 1:15.

THE ANNUAL ROLL CALL OF THE AMERICAN RED CROSS

Our people continue to look to the American Red Cross as the kindly and always helpful good neighbor to whom they turn for practical aid in emergency. They do so with the assurance that this national relief agency, with an organization in thirteen thousand American communities, has not and will not fail them.

In the difficult twelve months which have elapsed since last November, the Red Cross volunteers throughout the land have worked in close cooperation with the federal, state and local governments in their humanitarian labors. Their service has not been limited to aid in furnishing the actual necessities of life, but has extended to the equally important field of safeguarding public health and of training their neighbors in the proper methods of caring for the sick or the injured.

At the same time the organization has continued to fulfill its obligation as our agency of relief for every community visited by disaster.

The Red Cross is looked upon as the representative of all of our people in times of distress. In order that it may continue its service to humanity it is highly important that we lend our support through individual membership.

I hope everyone who possibly can do so will respond generously to the Red Cross appeal.—Franklin D. Roosevelt, President.

BANKERS PLAN TO HELP FARMERS

By Rendering Maximum Service To Improve Agriculture

Auburn, Ala. — The Agricultural Committee of the Alabama Bankers Association is making plans to render maximum service in improving agriculture of the state during the remainder of this year and throughout 1935.

To discuss ways and means by which the bankers may be of the greatest benefit to agriculture and farmers, the committee met here Monday with Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the state extension service, and Dean M. J. Funchess, director of the state experiment station, and members of their staffs. Members of the agricultural committee of the Bankers Association are: H. J. Whitfield, chairman, Demopolis; P. O. Thomas, Selma; Glen Foster, Tuscaloosa; Harry Herzfield, Alexander City; G. I. Weatherly, Fort Payne; and F. J. Callen, Clanton.

In addition to the members of the committee, Walter E. Henley, Birmingham, president of the Alabama Bankers Association, Dan H. Otis, of the American Bankers Association, M. A. Vincentelli, Montgomery, secretary of the state association, Dr. M. F. Jackson, farm produce agent, Birmingham, and Ashton B. Collins, secretary of associated industries of Alabama, and others attended the meeting.

Some of the projects the bankers plan to assist in promoting are winter and summer legume planting, soil erosion control and drainage, conservation of feed and food crops, forest protection, more and better livestock, and the making of farm inventories and financial statements.

Much Interest In Cooking School

Many Valuable Awards Given By the Merchants of Clanton

The cooking school sponsored by the ladies of the Baptist church Tuesday and Wednesday of this week drew a very unusual amount of interest. The attendance was good at all sessions of the course.

Miss Margaret Hill, representing the Alabama Power Company, was in charge of the school, and demonstrated many most popular ways of preparing different kinds of foods. Cooking appliances, as well as refrigerators, all electrical, were supplied for the school by the Alabama Power Company office in Clanton.

A very large list of prizes were given by the merchants and business houses of Clanton. Drawings for the award of these prizes were held at each session of the school. Every lady who attended had a ticket in the box, from which the winners were drawn.

At the Tuesday afternoon meeting of the school the following ladies were awarded prizes:

Mrs. Jo Each, Miss Grace Ezell, Mrs. Ben Sims, Mrs. W. J. Billingsley, Mrs. Ed Wagoner, Mrs. S. E. Bruce, Mrs. Bessie Fiquett, Mrs. W. Z. Hodges, Mrs. J. T. Ellis, Mrs. Sam Martin, Mrs. J. T. Rockett, Mrs. Barney Burnett, Mrs. Relius Franklin, Mrs. Esther Clark.

P. B. SHAW ELECTED PRESIDENT OF STATE SINGING CONVENTION

The many friends of P. B. Shaw, of Brookside, formerly of Shelby County, will be elated to learn of the election of Mr. Shaw Saturday to the chairmanship of the Alabama State singing convention.

Prof. Shaw is one of the foremost singers and composers in Alabama, and his friendliness has won for him numerous admirers in this as well as other counties of the state.

Van Smith has received his permanent discharge as a patient at Veterans Hospitel in Tuscaloosa, and returned home Tuesday night.

STATEMENT OF HON. FRANK N. BELGRANO TO ALL THE LEGION

The American Legion is always glad to lend its every support to the American Red Cross at the period of its annual Roll Call from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving. Our bonds of friendship and affection, dating to our common service together on the battlefields of the World War, are strengthened by the peacetime service our two national organizations are pledged to render our disabled veterans.

I know I need not remind Legion Posts throughout America that they should give their best cooperation to Red Cross chapters in their community work. I hope that all Legionnaires who are able to do so will also join the Red Cross as members during the Roll Call.

John O. Newell Killed Himself

Son-In-Law of Judge Reynolds Is Suicide In Ft. Payne, Alabama

John Otis Newell, age 46, traveling salesman, of Birmingham, killed himself last Thursday night in a hotel at Fort Payne. The weapon used was a pistol, the bullett passing through the brain.

It is said that the only cause attributable to this action of Mr. Newell was the fact that he had become despondent over ill health. He suffered with cancer of the stomach.

Hotel authorities at Fort Payne stated that Mr. Newell came in Thursday night in a very nervous and upset condition. He was assigned to a room and was assisted up the stairs by a fellow-traveling man, but no indication was given that he might be in a mood to kill himself.

Mr. Newell is survived by his widow, Mrs. Willie Reynolds Newell, and four daughters, Helen, Mary, Elizabeth and Catherine; 3 brothers, Carl, Kirk, and Olin; two sisters, Mrs. Henry O. Garrett, Mrs. A. M. Freeman.

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at 2:30 at the residence, 207 Poinciana Drive, Homewood. Interment at Elmwood cemetery, Ridout in charge.

Active pallbearers were Herbert J. Ward, Sam Box, Tom Robinson, Mr. Hunter, Mr. Beard, Jake Rowe, Harry Reynolds, W. R. Rush. Honorary pallbearers, B. F. Crabbe, Jr., W. M. Smith, H. McDermott, John McGeever, Lionel Kay, Thurman Berry, Robert Holcombe, Rufus Fell, Dr. Ralph Smith, Jim Monroe, John Williams, D. D. White of Goodwater, Cameron Faircloth, of Nashville, Mr. Middleton, Mr. Harvard, Mr. Walker. Dr. A. M. Freeman, of Florence, conducted the funeral services.

Many relatives and friends of Mr. Newell in Clanton, went to Birmingham to attend the funeral Saturday.

President F.D.R. Is Coming South

Chief Executive Will Take Vacation Tour of Several States

Washington, Nov. 11. — President Roosevelt will leave the capital this week to inspect the government's huge Tennessee Valley development project —one of the key ideas of the new deal's program.

He will go on to his "other home" at Warm Springs, Ga. In the seclusion of this quiet cottage atop a pine clad mountain, the president will formulate plans to be outlined to the nation in a talk on his return to the white house early in December.

Scores of his aides are nearing a conclusion of studies on vital relief, budget and social security problems, and during his stay in Georgia Mr. Roosevelt in all probability will act finally on these.

Maintaining strict silence on the overwhelming new deal election majority of last Tuesday, the president is believed in well informed circles to regard it is a mandate to go ahead with experiments designated to provide more jobs and greater economic security.

At Warm Springs he probably will begin conferences with congressional leaders. There is no doubt he is preparing for a short, active session.

On his trip into the South Mr. Roosevelt will go first to Harrodsburg, Ky., where Friday he will dedicate a manument to the pioneers of that state.

Mr. Aubrey Gore has opened up a new fruit and candy store in the Headley building, next to the Railroad. Mr. Gore invites his friends to come see him.

It Was A Good Fight In Spite of Defeat

[EDITORIAL]

The Republicans of Chilton County, though apparently defeated in the election of Tuesday, November 6, are to be congratulated for the manner in which so many of them stood firm for the Republican party in the face of the greatest political pressure that has ever been directed against them.

The Republican candidates deserve the commendation of all the people for the splendid manner in which they carried out their campaign in the interest of good government for our county.

In spite of all the pressure from the combined forces of the opposition, made up of the Democrats and some erstwhile Republicans, backed by all the power of money and influence from the State Democratic party organization, about twenty-five hundred Republicans in the county remained unshaken from their party and the men it had nominated for county offices.

The Republican party will continue as an active and aggressive political unit in Chilton County. It will not coil up in the face of its present defeat. Sails will be trimmed and things made ready to steer straight ahead in the future.

Dr. Gragg Suggests Plan For Group Hospitalization Here

Many of the large industrial concerns, like the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., The Standard Oil Co., The Tennessee Coal and Iron Co., the Endicott-Johnson Shoe Co., and many other corporations have arranged to furnish group medical and surgical care for their working people and their families, and find by that method such service costs them much less on the average, year in and year out, and that it relieves them of the financial strain that would be plunged on them at once and at the same time they were suffering from illness, accident and probable death.

Many hospitals in various parts of the United States have gathered around groups that are being taken care of on a somewhat like plan. You will find this the rule, rather than the exception, in Birmingham, New Orleans, and, practically all the larger cities, now. In fact, some such plan or arrangement whereby the people interested, while well, collectively, take care of their burdens, individually, while sick, is the rule generally everywhere there are large industrial centers.

Some of the larger insurance companies are now taking up this plan while giving their policy holders benefits enough to make it attractive, are reaping for themselves a rich harvest from the premiums over and above the expenses incurred in carrying out the plan.

I want to ask the public of Chilton County if it is interested in working out a similar group plan whereby money can be saved, time can be saved, life can be saved, and suffering and sickness can be greatly eliminated all in one and the same plan?

If such group care is found to be good, as is proven beyond doubt, for the workers for these big corporations already mentioned, then would it not be still better for the farmer and small town laborer whose income is less than the laborer of the large industries?

If the plan is good for the people living fifty miles away from the hospitals of large centers, would it not be much better to form a group in your own county and near your own home?

If these plans are good for Birmingham, New Orleans, and New York, and large cities in general where the wages are high, would they not be still better in the rural districts where the income is much less?

If it is necessary for the high paid industrial laborer to budget his income while well to take care of his expenses when sickness comes, is it not much more necessary for the farmer and rural laborer with a more meager income, to take advantage of the same safeguard?

If the Insurance companies are reaping profits, as they are doing, from such plan, after paying agents, executives, home office, branch office and field forces, in addition to meeting the real cost of the medical and surgical care of the insured, then why could not the farmer and laborer in the rural community set up a plan of their own that would be self-supporting without all the cost of high paid insurance centered in the home office of New York and dribbling down through branch and district offices to the rural communities with the extra expenses incidentally occurring all the way down?

Now, I want it thoroughly understood that I am not in the attitude of adversely criticizing the insurance company or the big industries for the step taken in furnishing this surgical

Mayor C. Fenn Jones Proclaims Red Cross Roll Call

"As Mayor of Clanton, I hereby designate the period from November 11 to November 29 as a time given to a review of the work of the American Red Cross and its value to the community; and I also set it aside as a time for the annual enrollment of members for the coming year.

"This office is in touch with the needs of those who have been affected by the depression of the last few years, and we have seen the ready response of the Red Cross to meet those needs. The organization's program is so flexible that it meets emergencies and disasters of all kinds; it has also a permanent structure that is being built up year by year, to study means through which epidemics and disasters may be prevented. This community needs the permanent structure of the Red Cross as it needs the expert service which is at our command to meet whatever emergencies the coming year may bring.

"I therefore call upon former members of the Red Cross to renew their memberships during the roll call this year, and urge those who have never hitherto been members to enroll their names with those who are fighting disease and disaster and need under the banner of the American Red Cross."

C. FENN JONES,
Mayor of Clanton.

Editor Union-Banner:

Please give me space in your paper for a few lines to my friends and relatives. I would be glad to write them all a personal letter but that would me impossible. So I am writing them all through the paper. I am here at Hot Springs again, not for pleasure and pastime but for my health. No one regrets being away from home more than I do, except under certain circumstances. I have a very nice place to stay, with Mr. and Mrs. L. Trumbull. If I have good luck I will be here at least three weeks. Luck to all, Wm. J. Headley, 823½ Central Ave., Hot Springs, Arkansas.

Moates & Taylor Buy Culver I.G.A.

Local Store Will Be Retail Distributors for New Wholesale House

A business transaction of interest and importance during the past week was consummated when Mr. Rudolph Moates and Mr. Roland W. Taylor bought out the grocery and meat market business of Mr. M. C. Culver and Bud Jones, formerly known as Culver & Jones I. G. A. Store.

The business will continue to operate under the new management at the same location on the highway across the street from Dixie Cafe. The new concern will be known as Moates and Taylor, and it is announced that the store will be remodeled and arranged to conform to the most modern equipment plans for a grocery store and meat market.

Mr. Moates and Mr. Taylor declare that they will offer to the buying public in this territory the very best service along with the most complete line of standard merchandise, including all food products and meat market specials.

The retail store of Moates and Taylor will be local distributors for merchandise handled through the Clanton Wholesale Grocery Company, operated by Mr. R. W. Taylor, in Clanton.

POWER COMPANY HELPS SCHOOLS

Advance Payment of Taxes Helps Schools To Meet Payroll

Continuing its policy of recent years in coming to the aid of the schools of Chilton County by the payment of its taxes at an early date, the Alabama Power Company this year deposited with the Tax Collector before November the first a check for $27,988.94, covering the amount of power company taxes that go to the schools of Chilton County.

County Superintendent, Luther Little, on October 25, sent the following letter to Mr. Thomas W. Martin, president of Alabama Power Co.:

"Dear Mr. Martin:

"Your company has for the past few years responded graciously to the emergencies in various counties with reference to making a partial payment of your taxes to enable those counties to meet their payrolls. This act on your part has always been highly appreciated by the general public.

"I trust that you will find it possible to forward your check to the Tax Collector of Chilton County by November 1, to enable us to meet our payroll due on that date.—Very truly yours, Luther E. Little, County Superintendent."

Under date of October 30, Superintendent Little received the following reply from Mr. Martin:

"Dear Mr. Little:

"Responding to your letter of October 25 to Mr. Thomas W. Martin, president of this company, asking that the company make an advance payment of school taxes in your county by November 1st, so that the teachers' pay roll may be met, we are today delivering to the Tax Collector of Chilton County our check to cover the county-wide school taxes and special school district taxes.

"Our ad valorem taxes in your county amount to approximately $95,000; and, of this amount over $40,000 goes directly into state and county school funds.

"Assuring you that we are glad to be of aid to the school authorities in this situation, I am, yours very truly, Lamar Aldridge, treasurer."

This generous action on the part of the Alabama Power Company in helping to meet the emergency of our county schools will be universally appreciated by the people of the county, as it has been in former years.

NEGRO DEMOCRAT SENT TO CONGRESS VISITS BIRMINGHAM

Thirty-four years ago Arthur W. Mitchell, a 14-year-old Negro farm youth, left his humble Randolph County home and walked the 66 miles to Tuskegee Institute.

Monday he came back home for a visit with his folks in Birmingham, bringing with him the distinction of being the first Negro elected to Congress by the Democratic party, and of being the representative-elect of the richest congressional district in the United States—the first Illinois District of Chicago.

To win this distinction he defeated the Republican Negro incumbent, Oscar De Priest, also a native Alabamian, in a bitter campaign in which De Priest charged him with being a tool of Congressman McDuffie and other "white bosses."

"My Chicago friends will say that immediately after election I rushed South to get orders from my white bosses," Congressman-elect Mitchell said in an interview in Birmingham Monday, "but I came to Birmingham to see my mother who is so seriously ill she will not recover. I also have some brothers and sisters here."

COTTON GIN REPORT

There were 11,541 bales of cotton ginned in Chilton County this year prior to November 1st, as compared with 11,579 ginned prior to the same date last year. These figures are given out by B. L. Vance, cotton census enumerator for Chilton County.

Sam Goodgame and wife from California are spending some time with relatives here. They will return home in a few days. They have not been here in eight years. Sam says he has sold seventy bales of cotton this fall, and has eight more to pick.

GOOD CROWD TO HEAR STAMPS AT CLANTON BAPTIST CHURCH

One of the largest crowds ever to gather at the Clanton Baptist church was there last Sunday night to hear V. O. Stamps and his quartet singers from Dallas and Chattanooga. Every bit of the sitting and standing room was taken. Mr. Stamps and his office quartet was assisted in putting on the program by Owens and Ellis quintet, one of the leading groups of singers traveling for the Stamps-Baxter company; also the Cobb sisters of Birmingham.

The program, consisting of only sacred numbers, lasted for about one and one-half hours. A free will offering was taken for the singers amounting to $10.73.

Both the Stamps quartet and the Owens-Ellis quintet put on a program jointly at Calera Monday night. The latter came back to Clanton and sang in a concert at the high school building last night, Wednesday.

OVERCOMES BAD BREATH

THIS AND THAT

By W. J. Baldwin
Montgomery, Ala.

Have you any rotten eggs for sale? The odoriferous proclivities of the decomposed hen fruit may be obnoxious to the sense of smell, but they proclaim to the world that a rotten egg has real commercial value, according to C. W. Ashcraft, executive vice president of Alabama Farm Bureau Federation.

Next time you walk down the street and you are given to observing the symmetry of a lady's lower limbs, and your eyes are struck with the dainty tints of her hosiery, say to yourself, in an undertone, "There goes a rotten egg" meaning of course, the hosiery, not the lady.

Next time you get a whiff of milady's perfumed handkerchief, you may say in all truthfulness that two of the most offensive odors known to human smell—the secretion of the musk-ox and skunk and a rotten egg—are commercially employed to add the attractiveness of a fair damsel.

And don't forget that the old custom of casting rotten eggs at a ham actor is no longer an inexpensive indoor sport, and that it is no longer the heighth of impoliteness to call a cad a rotten egg.

According to Mr. Ashcraft, many crates of rotten eggs, once considered as useless as a set of diseased adenoids, were shipped last year from Alabama to hosiery manufacturers in Cleveland, Ohio, and that shipments are expected to continue in growing quantities. So, cast about the old hen's haunts and in abandoned incubators and gather up the left-over viands of unknown vintage, notify Mr. Ashcraft and he will sell them for you.

Tannic acid contained in the yolk of aged eggs is ideal for producing the delicate tints the manufacturers put into fine hosiery, and therein lies the value of the Cinderella egg.

Going from the ridiculous to the sublime, from the bitter to the sweet, from the same source of information comes word that the farm bureau has just disposed of one lot of Alabama cane syrup, more than 80,000 gallon tins, at a price of 56c a gallon. The Alabama product was shipped to points in the east, where the joy of real sopping will add more fame to Alabama cane syrup. The bureau expects to make sales from 1934 crop amounting to more than 300,000 gallons. King cotton's throne totters.

Editor This and That:

Speaking of good coffee, the kind you say prevails at the Gay-Teague as it prevails nowhere else, on what grounds could a man sue his wife for a divorce if she insisted upon serving him bum coffee? — Yours truly, Mary.

Dear Mary:

If a wife persists in making her hubby drink bum coffee, the grounds on which he could sue for divorce would be coffee grounds.—Very truly, Editor.

Society demands that a criminal be rid of his criminal tendencies, if it is possible to do so. Treating a criminal as if he were a brute is not the way to do it. Humane treatment is the first step. Keeping a criminal surrounded by criminals accomplishes but little. When a man is convicted of a crime, petty or heinous, and his natural tendencies are to go straight, he should be given every opportunity to develop the finer side of himself. William F. Feagin, upon whom the job of solving Alabama's convict problems has fallen for many years, wants a real parole system inaugurated, so that the man who has the will to do, a heart that's not petrified, a soul that's worth saving, and his tendencies are not toward the ugly side of life, can be given the right kind of opportunity to go straight. Haphazard paroling of convicts, such as Alabama practices today, is contrary to every law of right and reason. It is not practicable. It is antiquated. Mr. Feagin wants a change and the legislature is liable to give it to him, if legislators know anything about criminology. And may it be said that Mr. Feagin will some day relinquish his public duties. What he seeks is not selfish — he is looking many years ahead, seeking something for posterity to enjoy.

BOB JONES

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

Still aboard the ship. We shall be in Hamburg where we are to land. We go to Berlin, and then on to Warsaw and up to the Russian border where I shall speak to a Missionary convention. I have heard so many wonderful things about the Russian and Polish Christians that I am eager to see conditions as they really are. In future articles I shall probably give a report.

I am thinking about modern comforts. Whitefield crossed the Atlantic Ocean thirteen times. It took him weeks to get across. Now it is possible to travel on ocean liners and to be as comfortable as one is in the best American hotels. How much safer it is, too! The radio and the wireless give constant contact with home.

I have just read the twenty-seventh chapter of the Acts of the Apostles. It is the story of the shipwreck. There were two hundred and seventy-six aboard the ship. They had not eaten for fourteen days. Paul, as prisoner, took charge of the situation. He urged the people to eat and he gave thanks in the presence of them all. He made no effort to conceal the fact that he was a minister of the Gospel of Christ. All signs pointed to destruction. Revelation said they would all be saved. The modern world, instead of taking God's revelation, usually watches for the signs of the times. Jesus said, "A wicked and adulterous generation seeketh after a sign."

The ship was wrecked. The people were saved. Human life is more valuable than ships and cargoes. When Jesus cast some demons out of a man and they went into swine and the swine ran over a precipice into the water and were drowned, the people besought Jesus to depart from their country. They thought more of swine than they did of men. Human nature hasn't changed. Selfish men still put material things above their interest in human life.

When the ship on which Paul was traveling was wrecked, we read that some came to land on broken pieces of the ship and some on boards. On the ocean of life many of our ships are wrecked. The ship of hope sometimes sinks. The ship of ambition is sometimes destroyed by storms. The real man doesn't go down with the ship. He rides some board or broken piece of timber to shore and to safety. The real test of character is the ability to keep going after the ship is wrecked.

L. E. LITTLE EXPRESSES THANKS

To the Citizens of Chilton County:

I wish to take this means of expressing to the people of this county my profound gratitude for their expression of confidence in me and my work. I shall at all times strive to serve you in such manner as will reflect credit on this office and the work of the educational department of the county.—Very truly yours, Luther E. Little.

LIBERTY HILL

Last Sunday was our regular preaching day here. Sunday school met at 10:00 o'clock and at the 11:00 o'clock service, our pastor, Rev. J. S. Holland, delivered a wonderful message, which was enjoyed by a large crowd.

At 2:00 o'clock our singing society met with one of the largest crowds of the year and the best singing of the year was held. After prayer by our chaplain the following directors sang one and two songs each: Leonard Culp, Cecil Yeargan, Mack Durbin, Jake Henley, William Cox, L. O. Hughes, John Devaughn, Houston Melton, D. T. Melton, Lorenza Williams, Clarence Billingsley, Dr. Williams, L. J. Crew, Orville Hughes, Cornelius Hand, Paul Hughes and sovereign Dickey.

The closing song was sung by S. J. M. Webb. Pianists for the afternoon were Olene Mims, Leonard Culp and Clarence Billingsley.

We appreciate the help from visiting societies and all are invited to attend our preaching and song services each second Sunday.—Marvin Lowery.

PLETCHER CLUB MEETS

Our club met last Friday afternoon at Pilgrim's Rest Schoolhouse, with thirteen members and five visitors present. Miss Ruth Pardue gave an interesting demonstration on Home-Made Christmas Gifts. The Story of the Bible Told in Pictures

The Fall of Jerusalem.—Josiah not only renewed the covenant of the Lord, but he destroyed idolatry in Judah and kept a most solemn passover. He put away witches and all abominations, that he might perform the words of the book of the law. "Notwithstanding, the Lord turned not from the fierceness of His great wrath, wherewith His anger was kindled against Judah, because of all the provocations that Manasseh had provoked Him withal. And the Lord said, I will remove Judah also out of my sight, as I have removed Israel, and will cast off this city Jerusalem which I have chosen, and the house of which I said, My name shall be there."—II Kings 23: 26-27. "And it came to pass in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, in the tenth day of the month, that Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, came, he, and all his host, against Jerusalem, and pitched against it; and they built forts against it round about."—II Kings 25: 1. Famine compelled the Israelites to surrender and Jerusalem fell, while the children of Israel were made captives. This illustration is from Matthew Merian's story of the Bible in pictures, engraved in 1625.

Appetite gone?

A simple thing, perhaps... yet a very serious one, resulting in loss of strength... body weakness... and possibly many other ills. So why not check-up and snap back to the zest of eating and well being. You will find S.S.S. a great, scientifically-tested tonic—not just a so-called tonic, but one specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood to enable you to "carry on." Do try it. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon enjoy again the satisfaction of appetizing food and good digestion... sound sleep... and renewed strength. Remember, "S.S.S. makes you feel like yourself again."

Do not be blinded by the efforts of a few unethical dealers who may suggest substitutes. You have a right to insist that S.S.S. be supplied you on request. Its long years of preference is your guarantee of satisfaction.

CORN-HOG PROGRAM TO BE OFFERED AGAIN

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration announced that approximately 69 per cent of all producers voting in the corn-hog referendum meetings favored continuing adjustment through 1935 and that, in view of this substantial majority, a new corn-hog program definitely will be formulated and offered to producers as soon as possible. The final official report of the outcome of the referendum in full detail will not be ready for about ten days. A group of corn-hog committeemen and extension workers from 18 states, who were in Washington during the past week for a conference on corn-hog administrative work and the 1935 outlook, unanimously recommended after studying the preliminary results of the referendum that the Administration offer a new adjustment contract. The development and offering of a program for 1935, on the basis of the referendum result, also was urged by representatives of the Farmers' Union, the American Farm Bureau Federation and the National Grange.

WHAT NEGROES ARE DOING

New Method Introduced

As old man winter begins to turn the corner, the NFA club boys are ready to take up where they left off last winter, killing, trimming and curing pork. During last winter the club boys assisted in introducing the new methods recommended by Mr. Sewell, of Auburn.

Along with their vocational instructor, they killed, trimmed and cured meat for many families in the training school community. Clinton Calloway is president of the club and will assist farmers who would like to use this excellent method. Let the club boys show you.

Why The Big Slump

During the past two years there has been a marked slump in the number of farmers who plant vetch, peas or oats in our community. There are many reasons given for this failure to plant. Most farmers say they are unable to buy seed—prices are too high, cannot get them on credit, reduced cotton acreage, etc. Nothing is more important than that a farmer increase the fertility of his soil.

It seems to me that there could be some legislative enactment that would permit farmers to buy peas and vetch in the fall and pay the following fall, which would be more beneficial than getting fertilizer in the spring, and paying the following fall. I believe that all farmers would soon have Alabama soils pregnant with increased fertility.

American Education Week

In accordance with American Education Week, which had as its theme character education, the chapel exercises of the week at the County Training School were given over principally for its observance. Activities relating to education were exhibited on various days. Extra effort was made to make this week's program inviting to patrons and friends of the school. A radio was secured for the week in order that we might enjoy the various lectures, etc., from all parts of the country.

Tuesday and Wednesday interesting radio programs were enjoyed, one of which was devoted entirely to Negro education, coming from the national capital, Washington, D. C.

Thursday, Miss Mitchell discussed in a brief way "How Rural Schools are Supported."

Friday, Junior III rendered an Armistice Day program which terminated the observance of American Education Week at the County Training School.

Mrs. Leola Wellborn and little daughter, Christine, of Birmingham, have been visiting her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Brand for a few days. They returned home Wednesday afternoon of last week.

CLANTON MUSIC CLUB

The Clanton Music club was well represented by Mrs. L. C. Ross, Mrs. W. A. Willis, Mrs. Barney Roberts, Mrs. Percy Pitts and Miss Della Latham. Following is a paper given by Mrs. Percy Pitts at the meeting which was highly complimented:

"Music in The Home"

"Music in the home. What a rush of tender memories those words bring to us who were blessed with singing mothers. We took our blessings for granted and little did those mothers dearm that in future years their daughters would organize to carry on this work for music in the home; to make our American homes of today centers of entertainment and culture.

"A love for music should be instilled into our children before they enter school. A little effort on our port brings forth such wonderful response. Youngsters of three and four delight in marching and singing, and may be taught to clap rhythms with an accuracy that will make their future music teachers bless us for the length of our days.

"A wealth of material is available for music in the home, for the younger children, for the older children, for singing, for playing. In short, for the asking, you may have suggestions for almost any combination of voices or instruments you desire.

"Your child may be inclined to monotone. Do not neglect him. Take him every day to the piano, sing the same two little tunes very slowly into his ear, with plenty of time for him to get the pitch of each note. You may have to continue this for two or three months. Do not be discouraged, for this method has been proven and the trouble entirely overcome.

"Look over your own stock of material. One mother was most successful with the old Gilbert and Sullivan operas. Her small son and daughter were thrilled to "Sail the Ocean Blue' on 'H. M. S. Pianofore.'

"Music in the home is a tie that binds the older and younger children no matter how wide apart their paths may be at school and in their social activities. There is no lovelier picture than a family grouped about the piano for a musical hour.

"School boards all over the country have been obliged to refinance budgets. In one of our small cities it was rumored that music might suffer a severe blow. A teacher of long experience in the grades was interviewed as to the wisdom of such procedure and she exclaimed, 'Never!' 'Music is the children's joy.' Don't ever take it away from them.'

"The interest of prominent educators, the cooperation of state presidents, the enthusiasm of our state chairman is most gratifying. Our united efforts should be a strong force for home music. There is such joy in music. Let us find a way to express it. 'Alas, for those who never sing, but die with all their music in them,."

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala., Nov. 13.—If there is to be a resumption of athletic relations between the University of Alabama and Auburn, the constituted authorities should, after full and free consideration of all factors involved, initiate and perfect the arrangements. This is the substance of a lenth resolution passed Saturday morning by the board of trustees of the University of Alabama in answer to a request by members of the American Legion that the two schools meet in sports after a break of 25 years.

The board went on record as opposed to an Alabama-Auburn game under duress or legislative threat.

"We hesitate to comment on the suggestion that legislative intervention might properly be invoked in this situation," the resolution stated. "From that suggestion we naturally dissent. Precisely as the end contemplated in the Legion resolution disregards approved procedures, so in like manner the suggested method of attaining that end is also in violation of approved procedures.

"Happily there has been nothing in the legislative history of Alabama within our memory indicating a disposition on the part of the legislature to deny to the trustees of the University and of our sister state college the free exercise of the duties and powers vested in these bodies by the Constitution. For that consideration we express due appreciation. The legislature has wisely assumed that bodies of men legally constituted and directly charged with serious and important responsibilities are entitled to exercise their best judgment after full investigation in the light of the facts and without undue interference. Indeed, this would seem essential, if sound processes are to prevail. It is, in fact, quite obvious that any reversal of this policy must result in an inevitable collapse of the established principles of institutional and governmental management."

The resolution was passed unanimously after a full hearing of the matter. In attendance were members of the American Legion committee and others. During the course of the discussion it developed that Dr. L. N. Duncan, Auburn regent, had told Judge L. L. Herzberg, trustee of the University, a week ago that he was opposed to an Alabama-Auburn football game played under the auspices of any agency other than the boards of trustees of the two institutions.

The board resolution also stated that the trustees are opposed to any game being played in time of depression from which athletic associations of the two schools would receive no revenues. The resolution called attention to the fact that in times of depression it is difficult to make ends meet; that football revenues must support all sports and intramural athletics; and that to replace a revenue-earning game by a game from which the athletic treasury is to derive no revenue would be unwise. The resolution also voiced the board's opposition to post-season games which are opposed by colleges throughout the country.

A Homecoming Day feature was the visit of General George Van Horne Mosley, commander of the Fourth Corps Area. As the general came upon the campus he was greeted by a 13-gun salute and a military escort composed of the company of Pershing Rifles and the R. O. T. C. band. After calling upon Dr. Denny, he reviewed troops and saw a parade.

Following the parade he was the honor guest at a luncheon given by University officials. In brief remarks Gen. Moseley stated that any young man is fortunate to be able to attend the University of Alabama because of the environment, the high scholarship, and the opportunity to come into close contact with administrative officials and fellow students. He complimented highly the corps of cadets commanded by Major E. H. Underwood.

Governor-elect Bibb Graves also spoke briefly and praised the work of the cadet corps. Congressman W. B. Oliver lauded the army and navy officers of the United States, declaring that they form a cross-section of the very finest blood in this nation.

At the giant pep meeting held on Friday night it was announced that James Whatley of Alexander City, Alabama three-letter man, had been awarded the C. B. Grimes trophy given to the outstanding athlete for the 1933-34 season. The pep meeting was the greatest in the history of the University with 7,500 people attending. Coach Frank Thomas in brief remarks said that he could truthfully say that he has never seen any football team or student body display so much spirit as those of the University of Alabama this year.

Activities came to a close with an "A" club banquet at which Congressman Olvier was the principal speaker. A smoker and dance followed. Members of the first Alabama term were present.

University, Ala.—The Crimson Tide of Alabama will sweep up to Atlanta this week end in an effort to outfox the golden tornado of Georgia Tech. The Crimsons are taking the techmen seriously. They can't forget what Coach Alexander's boys did to Duke last year, just when it appeared that Wallace Wade would go through an undefeated season. Nor will Alabama forget the difficulty she had last year in finally subduing Tech 12 to 9, coming from behind to win in the final period. Although the Atlantans have been licked time after time this season, they are dangerous. A win over Alabama would make an otherwise mediocre season a huge success.

Beverly Snow, assistant professor of military science and tactics at the University and head of the engineer unit, has been promoted to the rank of captain. The oath of office was administered Saturday, Homecoming Day.

A new course in meal planning and table service will be offered on the University of Alabama campus by the Extension Division. The organization meeting is scheduled for Saturday, November 17, at 8 a.m. The course will be a credit or non-credit one, as the student desires.

Dr. Carl Guthe, professor of archaeology at University of Michigan, spoke at the University of Alabama on November 9. He gave an interesting account of the history of North American archaeology. In his talk he denied that archaeologists are graverobbers. He said that they are not interested in relics as such but in their relation to one another as they lay in deposits.

POPLAR SPRINGS

On last Sunday a committee was appointed to take charge of anything that this church wants to send to the orphans home at Troy. A car will be at Clanton on Friday, November 23, to be loaded and we want to have a share in this worth while cause. The committee will take charge of anything you want to give at Sunday school next Sunday, or will come by your home for it if you will let them know where to come. Be sure and notify them before Thursday, November 22, so that they may have plenty of time to get everything to the car on Thursday or early Friday morning.

The Missionary Society quilted the quilt this week that they have been making for Miss Eunice Long, who is in school at Howard College.

Several from here went to the B. Y. P. U. Convention at New Salem last Sunday afternoon. They reported a nice time.

Don't forget that our singing society meets on the fourth Sunday at two o'clock. We are expecting a good singing.

Mr. W. M. Devaughn and son, Floy, spent Saturday and Sunday in Birmingham at the state singing convention.

We are very sorry that Mrs. W. F. Gilliland continues on the sick list.

HARDIMAN CEMETERY CLEANING

There will be a working at the Hardiman cemetery November 27. This is one among the oldest cemeteries in the county, and is located about ½ mile south of the double bridges near the poor house. Many of Chilton County's oldest settlers are buried there. This cemetery has been greatly neglected and many of the graves are unmarked. Others will be in the same condition if something is not done soon.

Everybody that has people buried there are requested to come on the above date with lunch and sufficient tools to clean off same.—P. C. Weldon.

In the old days when a boy started to college there was danger that he might get to running around with painted women and become a wastrel. Now the greatest danger is that he might turn out to be a crooner.

The fellow who refusse to take himself seriously may not be so dignified as the other fellow but he is apt to live a lot longer.

Remember the good old days when you were a boy and the biggest thing you had to worry about was how to raise a quarter so that you could go down to the opera house on Saturday night and see the "World's Greatest Magician?"

It is said that the unemployed and those who wish to avoid employment are rushing into California at the rate of 100 a day, attracted there by Mr. Sinclair's plan for making everybody rich. If this keeps up the scheme to "End Poverty in California" may end by getting all the poverty into California for the benefit of the other 47 states.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

There has been a great deal of discussion of motion pictures during the past few months and a general movement has been set in foot by church and civic organizations for better and cleaner motion picture entertainment. The movement seems already to have had considerable effect, and most of those who have been attending the motion pictures of late are of the opinion that the general run of motion pictures is of higher quality morally and artistically than was the case before the drive for cleaner movies was put under way. The industry itself is at work under the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors organization.

Up to this time the agencies of reform have had a strong backing of the public in their efforts for better motion pictures, and they should have such backing. The way to assure good picture entertainment is for the public to patronize the good pictures and stay away from those which are questionable. This is bound to have the proper effect. The producers themselves will be inclined to produce that which pays best, and the really effective way to get reform is to make the production and exhibition of clean motion pictures a paying business, and to prove to the producers and exhibitors that poor pictures will not pay.

But there has arisen a demand from certain reform elements that we have federal censorship of motion pictures. This is a phase of the reform program which will not have the solid support of the reformers themselves. In fact, a great many of those most sincere in the effort for motion picture reform believe that censorship of motion pictures through a federal board or commission would produce conditions worse than those which the advocates were seeking to remedy. The matter of proposed censorship was brought before the public again recently when the House of Deputies and House of Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States voted in their Atlantic City convention not only for a boycott of immoral motion pictures but for federal control of the motion picture industry.

The trouble with this proposal is that the judgment on what constituted a motion picture fit and proper to be shown would be in the keeping of a little group of federal appointees, who might have entirely different ideas on the subject than those of the general public. And the public, once a censorship was adopted, would come to the conclusion that everything was now all right with the movies, and would settle back to complacency, forgetting all about the drive for better motion pictures. After all, what is proper and what is improper in the motion pictures is, to an extent, a matter of opinion, and it is an opinion which could best be expressed by the public itself, through its own action, established by its own organizations created for the purpose.

And although the motion picture is primarily a vehicle of entertainment, it has considerable news and propaganda value. Giving it into the tender control of a federal board or commission would put one of our greatest agencies of propaganda and publicity into the hands of whatever administration might happen to be in power. In these days when everybody is so particular about freedom of the press, this might be worth thinking about.

One leader who has been very active in the move for motion picture reform stated the case very well the other day, after endorsing the aims and methods of the new League of Decency when he said: "The American people are very wary of censorship, and their instincts are sound. Consorship can be and has been used for very degrading and stupid purposes. But it is a far cry from what we are now asking of movie producers and a censorship of movies. We are asking a voluntary clean-up and we expect and will continue to demand it."

Everybody wants cleaner and better movies. There is, however, serious reason for doubting whether the movies would be helped a great deal by federal control of the industry or federal censorship of motion pictures.

LOOSENING UP THE BANKS

We have heard a great deal of late about how prosperity would return if the banks would only "loosen up" and lend some money. But it is a little difficult to follow this kind of reasoning to any sort of conclusion. The same people who tell us this also say that the only thing required to restore prosperity is a return of confidence. Now if there is to be any loosening up of the banks it will follow a return of confidence, not precede it.

The banks have come in for a lot of criticism during the past few years and a great deal of it may be deserved, in certain specific instances. But it will not be fair to blame the banks for the present frozen condition of credit. It is to be remembered that Congress at its last session appropriated a lot of money to the RFC to be loaned to deserving borrowers in an effort to stimulate business. Well, believe it or not, the RFC hasn't been putting out any more money than the banks have. Evidently the RFC heads know as well as the banks do, that something besides enthusiasm is needed to make a man a good borrower.

It is to be remembered that the money which the banks have on hand doesn't belong to the bankers, it belongs to the depositors. Just the same, the money which Congress appropriated to the RFC for lending purposes doesn't belong to the RFC or to Congress. It is owned by the people. No banker likes to lend his depositors' money to borrowers who may not be able to pay it back. The bankers still have unpleasant recollections of what happened during the credit boom days of a few years ago, and they have not forgotten who had to take most of the blame for what happened. Neither do they like to lend when the value of the dollar is subject to change.

The fact is that the fellow who is "good" can borrow of the bank but in most cases doesn't care to. What he wants is not more money to expand his plant but more business to keep running the plant capacity which he now possesses. And to lend to the fellow who had a wild scheme for making money would soon call down on the banker the wrath of the bank examiners.

It all goes back to the old tough and knotty problem of restoring national confidence. The bankers want to know where we are going as a nation before they start lending money right and left, and business wants to know where we are headed before it starts borrowing money to expand right and left.

Until we do know in which direction we are headed, and how soon our national budget is going to be balanced, we are apt to have the same sort of a credit situation we have today.

It was only a few days ago that Dr. Edwin W. Kemmerer, the Princeton authority on economics, declared in an address to the American Bankers Association that common stocks were now a better buy than high class bonds. He based this opinion on his belief that we might be headed for inflation, in which event equities would be better than fixed interest bearing statistics. Dr. Kemmerer may be unduly pessimistic, but until we do know more about our monetary future there will be no great return of confidence and no great loosening up on the part of the banks of America.

DICTATORS, HUMAN LIBERTY

An interesting series of articles on "Dictators vs Human Liberty," by Dr. Roscie J. C. Dorsey, professor of jurisprudence, Washington College of Law, is appearing in the National Republic. In the opening article in the current issue of the magazine, Dr. Dorsey says, in part:

"During the history of mankind, every possible form of government has been set up and tried. For the most part, these governments have been in the form of absolutisms, despotisms, tyrannies, monarchies, or dictatorships. Very few have been representative governments, where the individual enjoyed a voice in the selection of the ruler over him, or in the expenditures, taxing or legal operation of the government. It was not until after America had been settled by sturdy, religious, liberty-loving people, that a real representative form of government was conceived. Experiments, such as Christian communism, Marxian socialism, collective formations and even a monarchy, were tried on our territory, but it was not until after the signing of the Declaration of Independence and the adoption of the Constitution that a real representative form of government was created in the world.

"This representative form of government was conceived through our federal and state constitutions. Throughout the world governments have tottered, people have striven to wrest the yoke of imperialism from their throats, attempting to obtain liberty and freedom equal to that enjoyed in America. In these efforts many kingdoms and dictatorships have fallen before them only to be followed by a more ruthless form of government, until today almost the entire world is under the control of communism, fascism, nazism or some other mixture of socialistic dictatorship or monarchy. The United States is one of the few which has been steadfast in its fight to uphold its original form of government, for the most part putting up a militant resistance to any attempt to extend dictatorial powers or to relinquish its freedom. But it was General Washington who with his men fought, and suffered hardships in the frozen camp of Valley Forge, in a united effort to cast off the chains of monarchy and who guided our country during its infant trials, who predicted the attempts that would be made in the future to overthrow our government. He knew that there would be attempts at "innivation upon its principles.' He warned that there would be attempts at 'alterations of the Constitution' which would 'impair the energy of the system and thus undermine what cannot be directly overthrown.' He cautioned that 'in all the changes to which you may be invited, remember that time and habit are at least as necessary to fix the true character of governments as of other human institutions;' that 'experience (not experiments, or theories) is the surest standard by which to test the real tendency of the existing constitution of a country,' and that 'facility in changes, upon the credit of mere hypothesis and opinion, exposes to perpetual change from the endless variety of hypothesis and opinion.' Washington further called our attention the fact that 'Liberty itself will find in such a government, with powers properly distributed and adjusted, its surest guardian. It is indeed little else than a name, where the government is too feeble to withstand the enterprise of faction, to confine each member of the society within the limits prescribed by the laws, and to maintain all in the secure and tranquil enjoyment of the rights of person and property.'."

Maybe the reason George Washington took his little hatchet and chopped down that cherry tree was that he was trying to reduce the cherry wine surplus by cutting off every third tree.

Some writers bring up a serious question for settlement: When the home is broken up by divorce and the effects are divided, to whom goes the good old motto, that adorned the dining room wall, "God Bless Our Home."

NO PORK CHOPS

Mark Sullivan's absorbing saga of New Deal economics—the one about the man whom the government paid $1,240 for not raising hogs that he couldn't have raised anyhow—has a message and a lesson for every loyal citizen who hungers for an opportunity to bring home the bacon while performing, coincidentally, high patriotic service.

It appears that whereas last year Mr. Alex Badore gloried in the remunerative duties of garbage remover at Malone, New York, a heartless village council this year removed him from the payroll and to another awarded the serciveable if not redolent task. In connection with his profession, Mr. Badore last year maintained a fine styful of hogs. This year, with no entree to large sources of hog dietary requirements, Mr. Badore kept but few pigs. A thoughtful AAA, however, recompensed him on the basis of the number of pigs that he would have been permitted to keep had he been able to keep pigs on last year's scale.

Throughout this bright autumnal land there breathe countless zealots who yearn to assure a government fighting the terrior of too much food that, while able to raise a few pigs in their back yards, they gladly refrain from so doing to help their country. They will welcome, however, whatever financial reward a beneficient AAA accords them for not increasing the visible supply of pork chops. For all patriotic non-pig raisers, the proof of the pork pudding is in the payment—or is it all baloney?—Philedelphia Inquirer.

BEHIND THE CURTAIN

"Behind the Curtain" is a column written for Alabama daily papers by Fred H. Gormley, in which the author gives "Facts and gossip about politics, officials and legislation at the State Capitol."

Concering the result of the recent election, we quote the following interesting comment from "Behind the Curtain" in the Anniston Star:

Satisfaction—Democrats have got more satisfaction out of the election of their entire ticket in Chilton County than they have in the victory of any other county. Chilton has long been a Republican county and has consistently elected Republican officials. Reports indicate that every official who will go into office in January will be a Democrat. Many believe this election will mean the end of the Republican party in Chilton County and that Judge L. H. Reynolds, who has been the leader of the Republicans, will align himself with the Democratic party in the future.

Pitts—Many Democrats regret that the fortunes of politics will keep Percy Pitts out of the Legislature. Although a Republican, Pitts is one of the most popular men in the legislature and his political belief never prevented him from getting Democratic support for any local legislation for his county. Pitts had been told thousands of times that he ought to be a Democrat anyway. Another invitation will be tendered him to become a member of the Democratic party.

DeKalb—The close vote in DeKalb County was not surprising. Both sides made a bitter fight in that county. Democrats had one of the best organizations ever perfected for a county battle. They had work so assigned that they knew when every Democratic voter in the county would be at the polls to cast his ballot.

Many defections from the ranks of the Republican party gave Democrats the advantage in DeKalb. The Republican probate judge, Malone was defeated for renomination in the Republican primary and some of his followers preferred to support the Democratic ticket than to vote for the successful candidate against Malone.

Puzzle—DeKalb has been a political puzzle in Alabama for many years and developments in the grand jury investigation are certain to be interesting. DeKalb is the fourth largest voting county in Alabama, its vote being exceeded only by Jefferson, Mobile and Montgomery. Its large voting list was built up in 1920 when women were enfranchised. Women voters of DeKalb went on the registration list when they were not required to pay poll taxes and have voted ever since.

Absentees—Ballots cast by absentees will result in investigations in a number of counties. It's the same old story. Each side charges that fraudulent absentee ballots were cast. In DeKalb Democrats and Republicans have charged that their opponents resorted to illegal ballots. An investigation by John J. Haynes, assistant attorney-general, last week brought on by charges of Republicans resulted in the announcement that applications for absentee ballots had complied with the law and that evidence of fraud had not been found.

Law—The absentee voters' law is certain to be amended during the legislative session. Many think it ought to be repealed. Most of the state's election troubles recently have resulted from the absent voters' law. Chief complaint is that it provides an easy method for fraud in an election, such as permitting the purchase of votes, etc.

UNEMPLOYMENT STILL WITH US

A little over a year and a half ago, Fraklin Roosevelt became President of the United States. If at that time, you had asked a representative group of citizens what the most burning problem of the hour was, the chances are that eigth out of ten of them would have answered, "Unemployment." There were many other problems and issues—but the fact that some 10,000,000 men were unable to find jobs overshadowed them all.

During the past nineteen and a half months, the federal government, guided by Mr. Roosevelt, has spent billions of dollars, passed extraordinary and unprecedented laws, tried a series of daring experiments. Yet today, unemployment is still the most difficult problem the country faces, and no progress has been made in alleviating the plight of the jobless.

Best estimates say that the number now unemployed is considerably over thirteen million. That represents an increase of three million unemployed for the high touch in the early spring of 1933. This should convince anyone that the problem of unemployment has not been solved, but has increased approximately 25 per cent.

According to the best information obtainable, the unemployment situation is gradually getting worse instead of better. The federal government, discovering that it would not find jobs for the unemployed, turned to relief on a gigantic scale. Through the NRA, CWA, FERA and a number of other alphabetical agencies, the government is providing food, lodging, clothing and, in some cases, work for the unfortunate, but this can not go on forever. The expense is gigantic.

It will be recalled that in a recent speech, the President warned the country that local agencies must do their part, that the federal relief can not carry the entire burden, or even the bulk of it. So we would like to ask just how are local agencies going to carry this burden when the state, county and city have no way of remedying the cause of this unemployment, as the federal government has. It should stop importations of everything from counties that are in default on their war debts, and put an embargo on everything from all foreign countries that we do or can produce enough of in this country, thereby furnishing employment in productive industry. In this way unemployment can and will be solved, and in no other way. Local agencies can not do this. The President, with his unprecedented power granted him by Congress, can do this, but does not do it. State and local governments are helpless.

These are the facts about unemployment. When it comes to theories, there are unlimited numbers, most of them impractical, some of them impossible, all of them unproven. It is believed the President feels that a future step must be the 30-hour week, though he knows that business is finding the going hard and if this theory would be established it would benefit neither industry nor labor.—Carbon County, Mont., News.

HOW MUCH ARE YOUR TAXES?

If you have an annual income of $2,080 or less, how much of it goes for taxes?

There's a good chance that you will say, "none," inasmuch as your income is below the level reached by the income tax, and you may have little or no property on which taxes must be paid.

But according to an article by Royal F. Munger in the Chicago Daily News, your taxes come to some $480.00 a year. One hundred and twenty dollars of this represents taxes included in your rent—the landlord pays them and passes the cost on to you. Ninety-six dollars is included in the price of your family's food—the farmer, the processor, the distributor and retailer pay them, and they become part of the cost of everything in the grocery store. Twenty-four dollars is included in the clothing, furniture and similar items you and your dependents purchase—here again, manufacturers, middlemen and retailers are all heavily taxed and must pass their taxes on to the public.

This totals $240. Finally, says Mr. Munger, other indirect tax burdens that affect the cost of living are estimated to take $240 more out of your family's $2,080 annual income. On a percentage basis, as a result, you pay almost twenty per cent of all you earn to government.

Too many people have accepted the fanciful theory that the rich pay all the taxes while the rest of us get the benefits for nothing.

No one escapes taxes—no one ever will. And the average man, with a small or medium sized income, would gain most from retrenchment in tax levies, regardless of the guise under which they may be labeled.

We doubt whether all the rice in China would be enough to pay us for getting into a war with Japan over the open door to Manchuria.

Life is just like this: when you go out driving on Sunday afternoon you pass a filling station every 200 feet until you run out of gas and then you find that there isn't one within a mile and a half.

The Man on the Corner

Some Sights He Saw— and Some He Saw Not

The plan suggested by Dr. Gragg for a group hospitalization plan for our people in this week's paper is heartily commended to your consideration. We hope you will take him up on his invitation and express yourself about the workings of such a suggestion. We believe there is in the plan a possibility of great good to the people of a community like Chilton County.

Mayor C. Fenn Jones has removed one stumbling block from the pathway of pedestrians in Clanton. Rebuilding a portion of sidewalk in front of the stores of Bill Easterling and Marion Gore has eliminated a declivity that has existed for a long time and has caused injury and inconvenience to severtl persons. Mayor Jones was accorded the commendation of many citizens by the diligent manner in which he supervised the work and rushed it to completion.

Armistice Day brought forth two splendid programs in celebration of this great event in the world's history. The Thorsby Grammar School, together with the American Legion, put on a very interesting program at the school last Sunday afternoon. Secretary of State, Pete Jarman, was the speaker. His address was intensely interesting and inspiring with patriotic thoughts. A similar program was carried out Monday morning at the Chilton County High School in Clanton, by the school and representatives of the American Legion and Auxiliary.

With some politics out of our system we are glad to turn to more important things. The first big question that arises is the plight of Clanton's schools. We will never have that problem solved until we dig down deep in our pockets and provide liberally of the means necessary to furnish more and better building facilities for our school children. The Chilton County High School is full and running over with students. The Clanton Grammar School, part of it, is housed in a buliding that is a death trap pure and simple. I think we had better do something before we are sorry de didn't.

Again the Alabama Power Company commands the everlasting appreciation from the people of Chilton County by coming to the rescue of our schools by the advance payment of many thousands of dollars of the company's taxes in our county. As we have said many times before, the power company has done more for Chilton County than any agency or organization in our history. I am reminded that some of the politicians are given to brag a bit at times about the high standing of Chilton County among the counties of Alabama. I think a large portion of the credit for this high standing should be rightly attributed to the fact that our county happens to be the seat of operations of some of the heaviest units of the Alabama Power Company system, and the fine public spirit in the hearts of Power Company officials.

My good friend, Mr. J. H. Jackson, of Lomax, was here Tuesday. He displayed a big broad smile as I passed him on the corner, and inquired how I was getting along. I suspicioned that he must have been hinting that he expected me to be somewhat downcast about the outcome of the recent election. Well, I am, in a way, but I think I will be able to stand it. I know lots of folks who have had their political desires crushed in defeat for many years and they are still alive. I have long ago learned that there is much to live for besides politics.

OUR LIBERTIES AT STAKE

In one of his books, the late ex-President Wilson said: "I do not want to live under a philanthropy. I do not want to be taken care of by the government. . . I want only to have right and justice prevail so far as I am concerned. Give me right and justice and I will undertake to take care of myself. I will not live under trustees if I can help it. I do not care how wise, how patriotic, the trustees may be. I have never heard of any group of men in whose hands I am willing to trust the liberties of the American people."

THEY DON'T MIX

Whether you are a "wet" or a "dry", this fact will interest you: Repeal of prohibition has resulted in a tremendous increase in drunken driving, according to reports of police bureaus, safety departments and similar organizations. No one knows whether this is due to people drinking more now than during the prohibition era—but it is a fact that more people are taking drinks and then getting behind the wheels of their cars.

A driver does not even have to be noticeably drunk to be dangerous. Investigations show that very moderate doses of alcohol produce the following effects on the average driver: Slower reactions, less uniformity in responses, a narrowing of the field of attention, rise in self assurance which breeds recklessness, and a general decline in mechanical efficiency. The change occuring may be relatively slight—but when the driver is in sole charge of a hurtling mass of metal, it becomes important indeed. A man who shows few signs of his drinking, and is a pleasant and rational companion, may become a menace to the public in his car.

The Federal Surplus Relief Corporation has awarded contracts for 2,805,000 pounds of Swiss cheese for the unemployed, who will now loudly demand the traditional concommitants of rye bread and beer.—Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.

Can it be possible that when Mr. Roosevelt's tremendously sapient young pedagogues were concocting that alphabet soup, they neglected to stick in the vitamines?—Philadelphia Sunday Dispatch.

A British lecturer, traveling in the United States says that what we Americans need to fight the depression is more confidence. But we don't ever seem able to acquire any confidence by listening to lecturers from across the big pond.

Two prisoners are reported to have wed recently in a Mexican penial colony. Couldn't be done in the United States. It would come under the head of cruel and unusual punishment.

J. P. BEAN EXPRESSES THANKS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space to express my thanks to each and every voter who cast their vote for me. I pledge myself to do my best for my county and fellowman by helping each one alike and building better roads in our county. Should I make any mistake, as most of us do sometimes, I will thank anyone to come to me and tell me where I am wrong. I will do my best so far as possible, hoping each one will be satisfied and work together for the benefit of our county. Any problems that you may come to me with will have my honest consideration at all times. I remain, your friend, J. P. Bean.

THOMAS JR. 4-H CLUB

On Wednesday, November 7, Miss Pardue, home demonstration agent, came to our school and organized the Thomas Jr. 4-H Club. She first made a very interesting talk about the club.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Marjorie Aldridge, vice president, Mildred Popwell; secretary-treasurer, Alma Blalock; reporter, Claris Thornton; cheer leader, Mary Pearl Holley, song leader, Annie Laura Devaughn; local club leader, Miss Clara Vines; record bookkeeper, Ester Lee Dennis.

Miss Pardue selected clothing as the project for the coming year. The club will meet once each month at the school building. Our club was organized with 49 members. Each was given a record book to keep a report of the work during the year. There being no further business, the club was dismissed until the next meeting.

Alabama has produced 1,048,638 tons of pig iron, basic and foundry, so far this year as against 681,027 for the first 10 months of 1933 or 357,611 tons more in 1934.

Walter J. Knabe, of Montgomery, state president, announced the annual convention of the Alabama Junior Chamber of Commerce will be held here Nov. 16 and 17.

The State Highway Department has called for bids Nov. 16 on four highway projects to cost approximately $260,000, bringing the Nov. 16 letting to more than $400,000.

Friday, Dec. 7, has been designated by Gov. Miller as Arbor Day in Alabama in line with an annual custom as an aid to the economic and cultural development of the state.

OBITUARIES — IN MEMORY

It becomes necessary for us again to call attention to the fact that we make a charge of one cent per word for all obituaries over 150 words published in The Union-Banner. So, if you want an obituary, or in memory article, published about a departed friend or relative, it must be confined to not over 150 words, or else money order for the remainder should be included if sent by mail, as outlined above.

If obituaries are sent in containing over 150 words and no money accompanies same, it will be either omitted entirely or, if possible, condensed to come within the requirement, and published.

B. Y. P. U. CONVENTION WAS HELD AT NEW SALEM SUNDAY

The Chilton County B. Y. P. U. convention met with New Salem Sunday afternoon, November 11. One hundred and sixty-six representatives were there, with 9 unions represented and 17 not represented. The list gives the number present from each church: Center Hill, 17; Chestnut Creek, 4; Mineral Springs, 29; Oak Grove, 21; Pleasant Grove No. 1, 1; Pleasant Grove No. 2, 1; Poplar Springs, 11; Thorsby, 10; Friendship, 19; Cane Creek, 30; New Salem, 23.

After roll call, Mr. Lee Yates, president, called on the ones who had a part on the program. Mrs. Lucille Allen was on program for the devotional. She was absent and Bro. Fred Riggins, the young preacher, who is in Howard College, took her place Bro. Paul Oden, subject, "Christianity in the Home," and he ably discussed his subject.

Bro. Homer Carroll on subject, "Reflection on Family," was not present, and Bro. W. E. Robinson and J. W. Jones were called on to discuss the subject. Both made fine talks, which were very interesting.

Cane Creek having the largest number from one union present, were awarded the banner for the third time.

The next convention will be held with Oak Grove the first Sunday in January. — J. D. Collins, temporary clerk.

Mrs. John Durwood Mullins Entertains, Honoring Mary Frances Wymne

Miss Mary Frances Wymne, the attractive guest of Mrs. Renfro Mullins, was the inspiration for a lovely party on Tuesday morning when Mrs. John Durwood Mullins entertained at bridge. Two tables were arranged in the spacious living room, which was effectively decorated in baskets of fall flowers. After a series of games Mrs. Doub Huddleston held high score and was presented a dainty guest towel. Mrs. Dick Hayes received a pretty cup towel for cut prize. The honoree was presented a dainty handkerchief.

At the noon hour a most delicious luncheon was served. Enjoying this hospitality were Mrs. James Wade, Mrs. Julius Burnett, Mrs. Dick Hayes, Mrs. Billy Smith, Mrs. O. K. Welch, Mrs. Jim Roberts, Mrs. Otto Jones and Mrs. George McCain were luncheon guests.

Mrs. Julius Burnett Hostess

Members of the Wednesday card club met with Mrs. Julius Burnett last week. The home was decorated in baskets of fall flowers. Two tables were arranged for bridge. At the conclusion of a series of games Mrs. Hance Alred was awarded high score prize.

At a late hour a delicious salad plate plate was served to Mrs. Hance Alred, Mrs. John Armstrong, Mrs. Frank Callen, Mrs. John Deramus, Mrs. N. S. Johnson, Mrs. Arthur Johnson, Mrs. H. M. Simpson, Mrs. Grady Reynolds.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Bean and children and Mrs. Childress of Thorsby spent Monday in Birmingham.

PATES CHAPEL

Another week has passed and everybody is progressing fine except Mrs. Archie Cleckler. She is still on the sick list. We all hope and pray that she will soon be back on th eroad to recovery, if it be God's great and holy will.

Saturday and Sunday were our regular preaching days, and we had two wonderful sermons brought to us by our pastor, Rev. M. Lockhart.

Rev. M. Lockhart spent Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hayes and family and had dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Maddox.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Rainwater and son spent the week end in Bessemer with friends and relatives.

Mrs. Bernice Strength and son were week end visitors of her sister, Mrs. Vastine Hayes and family.

Messers. Eugene, Erastus and Cleckler and James Maddox spent the past week end in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Maddox and child spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Hayes.

We were very glad to have the visitors Saturday night and Sunday. We cordially invite them all back to be with us.

Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Gerald and Mrs. Arthur Johnson attended the homecoming game at Tuscaloosa Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Hance Alred were visitors in Birmingham Wednesday.

RADIO SERVICE MEN TO HOLD MEETING IN BIRMINGHAM SOON

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 12.—The Radio Service Men's Association will hold its first state convention November 24th and 25th in the Bankhead Hotel, Birmingham, to form a state wide organization.

At this convention there will be representation of the radio service men and dealers from all over the state and a definite program will be outlined regarding code of ethics and means of examining radio service men.

The code under which the government has placed the radio servicing industry will be explained in detail.

This organization sponsors local associations and will affiliate with the district and national organization. All service men and dealers are urged to be present.

CARD OF THANKS

We are thankful to have our loved one, Mrs. H. G. Robinson, back with us after undergoing a serious operation at St. Vincent hospital. She is improving nicely. We want to thank Dr. H. G. Franklin for what he has done for us this past year. We sure do appreciate it.

We want to thank Mrs. Robert Cost for announcing the box supper that was given for us and we also thank everyone for helping in the box supper, or helped us in any way.

We sepecially want to thank Mrs. Zilphia Martin for the gift of $5.00.—H. G. Robinson and Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Davis.

MINSTREL AT BILLINGSLEY

The senior class of the Billingsley High School presents "Black Diamond Minstrel", Saturday night, November 24, at 7:30, in the high school auditorium.

The minstrel will be composed of buck dancing, string music, singing, old time negro spirituals and vocal solos by good singers. Also six one-act cross fire fun makers, by the best characters. A "good for nuthin'" negro will preach an interesting sermon.

Watch next week's paper for further announcements.

S. S. CLASS MEETS FRIDAY

The Home Makers Sunday school class of the Clanton Baptist church meets at the home of Mrs. Jean Wyatt at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, November 16th. All members are urged to be present. Following the business meeting there will be a Thanksgiving social.

On their return from South Carolina last week Dr. and Mrs. S. J. Ezell were accompanied by Dr. Ezell's father, who will visit with them in their home for a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Lee Smith and Mr. and Mrs. J. Hance Alred will spend this week end in Gulfport, Miss., where their sons, J. Lee Smith and Callen Alred, are attending Gulfport military academy.

PLEASANT HILL

Sunday school was very good Sunday, although there were quite a few absent, but we hope to have a large crowd out next Sunday. Come on, both old and young, and let's build our Sunday school up. It's only what we make it. So we hope to see more out next Sunday.

A wedding of much interest was that of Miss Mozell Driver and Mr. Robert Pledger on last Thursday afternoon. We join their many friends in wishing them a most successful future.

Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Cleckler and family visited relatives at Randolph on Sunday. They reported a nice time.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Twilley attended the B. Y. P. U. convention at New Salem Sunday afternoon and reported a most enjoyable trip.

Misses Alta and Lurlene Blow were the guests of Miss Pearlene Martin Sunday.

We are glad indeed that the health of our community is fairly good at this writing.

Next Saturday night and Sunday and Sunday night are our regular preaching days. We invite everyone to come and feel at home at our church.—Reporter.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

On last Sunday, November 11, the children, grandchildren and great grandchildren of Mr. M. Robinson, better known as uncle Mord, gathered at his home to celebrate his 83rd birthday. The day was spent laughing, joking and talking of old times.

At the noon hour a bountiful dinner was spread picnic fashion, which was enjoyed by all. At a late hour everyone left for their homes, wishing Uncle Mord many more happy birthdays.

Those enjoying the day were Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Robinson, of Clanton; Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Robinson, and son, Charles E., and granddaughter, Eugenia, of Jemison; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dobbs and daughters, Gladys and Lula Mae, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Rutherford and children, Maude, Bobby, Milton, Mr. and Mrs. Troy Henderson, and sons, of Siluria; Mr. and Mrs. Askew Davis, of Collins Chapel; Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Cost and children; and his son-in-law, Mr. W. A. Martin, Lala, Austin, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Martin, and children, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Martin and son, of Enterprise, Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Thomas, of Birmingham, Mr. and Mrs. McKinney Williams of Montgomery.

Others were Miss Daisy Belle Thomas, of Birmingham, Mr. and Mrs. Josh Sorrell and children of Jemison, Mr. Taylor of Enterprise and Mr. Griffin of Montgomery.—Written by one of his granddaughters.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

GREEN FEED FOR POULTRY IS IMPORTANT THIS FALL

Many farmers and other poultry owners in the drought states are reporting unthrifty birds in their flocks without realizing that the difficulty may be a lack of green feed, a condition so unusual in flocks which have free range that it might easily be unsuspected.

The specific dificiency is vitamin A, usually obtained from grasses, legumes, some vegetables, and yellow corn in sufficient quantity to carry most flocks through the winter. But some poultry has passed through the summer with every bit of vegetation burned brown and corn and green feeds at a premium.

"Insufficient green feed or other sources of vitamin A result in greater susceptibility to disease and fewer and less-hatchable eggs," says A. R. Lee, poultryman in the United States Department of Agriculture. "The loss of poultry to any family is more than the cash value. It often means eggless and, in some cases, meatless meals.

"A lack of green feed can be remedied inexpensively in most cases. Leaves of alfalfa or other well-cured legumes can be fed to the hens or added to the mash. Carrots and cabbage, in addition to yellow corn, supply vitamin A. Milk takes the place of green feeds and adds valuable proteins to the ration. Poultry flocks will obtain their own green feed from fall-sown winter grains, if the fields are not too far away.

"Green feed for poultry returns such big dividends that it should never be overlooked."

LARGE SOYBAN CROP EXPECTED

This year's soybean crop is expected to be 20 to 30 per cent larger than last year, reports the United States Department of Agriculture, which expects a "big demand for soybeans of desirable and adapted varities for the 1935 plantings."

"The anticipation is that prices will be higher next spring than now," says the department. "Practically no soybeans for planting were held by dealers at the close of this planting season because of the unusually heavy late demand."

HIGHLAND NEWS

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

Don't let them get a strangle hold. Fight them quickly. Creomulsion combines 7 helps in one. Powerful but harmless. Pleasant to take. No narcotics. Your own druggist is authorized to refund your money on the spot if your cough or cold is not relieved by Creomulsion. (adv.)

DIRECTIONS FOR HANDLING CATTLE TO TREAT FOR WORM

1. Build chute with stanchion at outlet and it may be 20 inches wide. Have boards on inside of chute and 4 to 5 feet high.

2. If necessary to get at pocket, if worms are under skin or in the tissue, open with knife.

3. Have chloroform or benzol to apply on the screw worms. Do not drop live worms on ground. Use small machine oil can to shoot or squirt the benzol into pockets and deep wounds.

4. Then apply a mixture of pine tar, 1 part to 2 parts of old crank case oil, or use pine tar oil.

5: Repeat this treatment every day for 3 days; thereafter, treat once every three or four days.

6. Burn or bury all old meat and dead carcasses and all waste meats from kitchens around slaughtering places.

7. Use fly traps to catch screw worm and blow flies.—C. A. Cary, State Veterinarian.

ALABAMA RANKS FIRST IN FOREST ACCOUNTING

Montgomery, Ala.—That it is possible to cope successfully with so-called federal red tape has been demonstrated by the Alabama Commission of Forestry in its forestry work in cooperation with the United States government. The most recent rating of the various southeastern states, as announced by the regional forest inspector at New Orleans, places Alabama at the top of the list in accuracy of handling the numerous complicated accounts involved in connection with the operation of the forestry CCC camps which in Alabama are under the immedate technician J. M. Stauffer.

To most people transacting business in ordinary ways, the intricate requirements of the federal government as to incurring and paying financial obligations seem rather discouraging. However, when it is recalled that the government does not maintain a profit and loss account and that in the interest of the taxpayers every penny must be satisfactorily accounted for, much of the mystery is explained. To a person who is operating his own private business and knows intimately the whys and wherefores of all expenditures, many shortcuts and concessions are available. Should one cent of government money go astray, however, the fact must be made known to congress and a most thorough explanation made to that body.

AGRICULTURE FACES BETTER CONDITIONS

Improved conditions for agriculture in 1935 are predicted by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics in Washington. The prediction was made by the bureau following lengthy conferences with agricultural economists of 40 states, officials of the United States Department of Agriculture, and leaders of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

HOW TO BURN ANIMAL CARCASSES

1. Spray gasoline all around the carcass and upon grass or some dry pine straw or dry hay or leaves. This may be 5 to 10 feet wide. Do not spray gasoline upon carcass. Let all flies settle upon carcass; then throw a torch of flaming paper to fire it. This flame will burn off all the wings and destroy many of the flies.

2. Dig trench near the carcass 1 foot wide and 1 foot deep and 4 to 8 feet long. If wood is used, fill the center part of this trench with pieces of light wood, dry limbs, etc. Then drag or roll carcass upon the wood, cut abdomen and thorax open with sharp butcher knife and open the stomach. Place more wood over and beside the carcass. Pour some kerosene or gasoline over part of wood and fire it or light with a torch.

3. If old crank case oil or crude petroleum is used to burn carcass, place some wood in trench or dry pine straw; then place iron pipes or rods or iron pieces across the middle portion of trench; then roll or drag the carcass upon these irons; pour oil over the carcass and let it run down in trench; then fire with a torch.

How To Bury The Carcass

Dig hole near carcass 2 to 3 feet wide and 4 to 7 feet long and 5 to 6 feet deep, according to size of carcass. Roll carcass into hole; cut open the body cavities and stomach; cover with lime dust and then cover with dirst so that there will be 4 feet of dirt over the top part of the carcass. May leave out the lime dust.

Fly Traps

Fly traps may be used to advantage; bait them with a piece of bad smelling meat. They may be placed in sheep or cattle pens, lots, or barns. Every screw worm fly destroyed prevents the fly depositing 200 to 400 eggs. It pays to kill flies in moist, wooded areas and animal barns or lots.

If you cannot burn or bury carcasses just as above directed, then do the best you can. Always burn or bury carcasses as soon as possible after the animal dies. All waste meat left around country slaughtering places should be burned or buried. All waste meats from tables should be burned or buried.

FHA PHAMPLETS DISTRIBUTED

Birmingha, Ala.—One half million phamplets describing FHA financing plans for home improvements will be distributed throughout the state within the next few weeks by campaign committees in various Alabama communities, according to announcements here today by Mr. Robert Jemison, Jr., state director.

Loans for repair work are increasing steadily and reports are comnig in from every section telling of increased activity upon the part of local committees.

Speaking here this week to a group of business leaders, Mr. Jemison pointed out that business properties as well as homes may be modernized and repaired with funds made available locally by the National Housing Act.

"The same financial institutions that supply funds for improving houses are ready to make advances to owners of industrial, commercial and other business properties—up to $2,000—for needed renovation and modernization," Mr. Jemison said. Owners of business properties who undertake improvements at this time will find themselves able to repair and modernize at prices which are fair and likely to increase as business improves. Renovising writes its own golden reward in enhanced property valus, increased rentability and better business."

THANKS FROM P. M. MARTIN

Editor Union-Banner:

I take pleasure in thanking the many voters who cast their vote for me on November 6th, and do not feel sore at anyone who voted for the other ticket. I don't feel that I was defeated by the Democrats, for I received plenty of votes to have beaten the Democrat ticket, and I don't think that a Republican would have voted against his party, so I will leave it to you to say who defeated the ticket. I still stand 100 per cent Republican and will say again that I can't tell just how much I thank you all for your confidence you placed in me in voting for me.—Respectfully yours, P. M. Martin, Jemison, Ala., Route 1.

From The Editor of American Boy

During the coming year, the boys of America will get a half-fare rate to adventure and fun! The American Boy—Youth's Companion, the nation's leading magazine for boys, formerly $2.00 a year, now costs $1.00. A three year subscription, previously $3.50, costs only $2.00.

Griffith Ogden Ellis, editor of The American Boy, brings boys the hearty assurance that the new prices will in no way affect the editorial contents of the magazine. It will be as large, as beautifully printed, as full of high-spirited adventures as ever.

"The American Boy's" leadership has been no accident," Mr. Ellis states. "We publish the magazine on the firm belief that boys deserve a magazine as good as any publication for grown-ups. So we use the best illustrators obtainable—well-known artists who work for the biggest magazines. We send our staff writers all over the country digging up the interesting facts of science, interviewing world-famous explorers, talking to coaches and athletes.

"We encourage and assist our writers to go everywhere for material—to Hati, Africa, the South Seas, China—and bring back adventure for American boys. We hire experts on hobbies and boy problems to advise boys and young men. These steps account for our position as the quality magazine for boys, and we shall continue to take them."

Twelve issues of fun and excitement for $1.00! Three years for $2.00. Spread the news among your friends—and send your own subscription direct to The American Boy, 7430 Second Blvd., Detroit, Mich. Service on your subscription will start with the issue you specify.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for November 18

THE CHRISTIAN AS A CHURCH MEMBER

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 5:13-16; Acts 2:41-47.

GOLDEN TEXT—For we are members of his body, of his flesh, and of his bones.—Ephesians 5:30.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Praising God in His House.

JUNIOR TOPIC—What It Means to Be a Church Member.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Join the Church?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Learning From the Early Church.

The two Scripture texts selected by the lesson committee are not quite of the same import. The one from Matthew has to do with the relation of Christ's disciples to the world, especially his disciples as members of the Messianic kingdom. The so-called Sermon on the Mount, from which this unit is taken, sets forth the laws which will obtain in Christ's kingdom. This should be recognized in strictness of interpretation, while at the same time these vital truths have a definite relation to the members of Christ's body. There is a close connection, however, since Jesus Christ is the center in both cases. In the first, he is the reigning King, and in the second, the Head of the organism called the Church.

I. The Relation of Christ's Disciples to the World (Matt. 5:13-16).

The disciples are to live such lives as will enlighten, purify, and preserve. The responsibilities of the subjects of the kingdom are set forth under the figures of salt, light, and a city.

1. "Ye are the salt of the earth" (v. 13). Salt arrests and prevents the progress of corruption. Three properties are outstanding: a. Penetrating. b. Purifying. c. Preserving.

As salt, the disciples of Christ should penetrate, purify, and preserve society. The Christian should not go into seclusion: he should remain in the world, but not be a part of it.

2. "Ye are the light of the world" (v. 14). Light illuminates and warms. Its gift is guidance. The world in which the Christian lives is cold and dark. Many are the pitfalls and snares set by the devil. Christians should so live, should so let their light shine, as to prevent the unwary ones from falling into them.

3. "A city set on a hill" (v. 14). By a city is suggested a governmental and social order. Christian character and service should be such as to give the influence of the hill-lifted city. Christianity was not intended to be hidden.

II. The Christian Church an Evangelizing Agency (Acts 2:41).

It is not enough that believers should receive the life of God and enjoy the blessings of his grace, but they should evangelize the world. The Great Commission (Matt. 28:18-20) makes it clear that disciples should be made of all the nations, and that such disciples should be baptized and then taught to render obedience unto God. It is characteristic of a saved man that he proclaims the salvation enjoyed to those who are lost. The unmistakable proof of the experiencing of the life of God is that the good news is being proclaimed.

III. A Portrait of the Primitive Church (Acts 2:42-47).

1. They continued in the apostles' doctrine (v. 42). Instead of being taught by the scribes, they were now taught by new teachers, the apostles of Christ.

2. They continued in fellowship around Christ their Head (v. 42.) The "breaking of bread" illustrated the oneness of believers in Christ.

3. They continued in prayer (v. 42) The ideal church is a praying church.

4. They "were together" (v. 44). They were together because they were baptized by the Holy Spirit into the one body, of which Christ was Head (I Cor. 12:13). The oneness of this body was symbolized by the breaking of bread.

5. They had community of goods (vv. 44, 45). They sold their possessions and goods, and parted them to all men, as every man had need. This proved that they were under the power of the Holy Spirit, that is, that the supernatural was being manifested; for it is not natural to abandon one's title to possessions.

6. They were filled with gladness and singleness of heart (v. 46). All those who have had the experience of the life of God being poured into them are filled with praise, and gratitude must express itself.

7. "Favor with all the people" (v. 47). Such unselfishness gained the attention of the people, inducing them to yield themselves to God, and thus God added unto them daily such as were being saved.

Let us not forget that "Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it . . . that it should be holy and without blemish."

The Real God

To some people God is the great and terrible God. Their souls are filled with awe at the thought of him, and they say with Jacob, "How dreadful is this place." To others he is a God of gentleness, mercy, a Father that pitieth his children, a Counselor and familiar Friend.

Christians

I have often thought that the best of Christians are found in the worst of times.—John Bunyan.

SELF-HELP CLOTHES FOR THE CHILDREN

An exhibit of children's clothing, designed for easy making and easy laundering, and to help the child to dress himself, will be shown at the Jemison High School, November 12-16, 1934. The designs have been furnished by the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and the exhibit will be under the direction of the home economics class.

Freedom and comfort for the active child, encouragement to self-help, and the saving of his mother's time and energy are the main objectives in all the Bureau of Home Economics' designs. All the garments in this exhibit are adjustable, also to the growing child, extra material being allowed for lengthening. There is a minimum of buttons, and those that are used are conveniently placed, and of a size and type easy for children to manage.

Most of the fabrics are cotton, but there are also some washable woolens. The materials in all the garments were chosen because of their all-round practicability for children's clothes. Cottons can be secured in many weaves and qualities, for any sort of suit or dress, as the exhibit demonstrates.

The garments included in the exhibit are play suits, sun suits, and sunit ensembles for girls and boys, dresses for little girls, infant's wear, and rompers for creeping babies. They were designed by the staff of the Division of Textiles and Clothing in the Bureau of Home Economics at Washington, and four such exhibits are constantly in circulation throughout the country in respones to requests from colleges and other institutions or organizations concerned with child welfare. The bureau does not distribute patterns for the garments, but several pattern manufacturers have adpoted the bureau's designs and put the patterns on the market. The names of these firms, together with the pattern numbers, will be furnished by the bureau upon request.

RURAL WOMEN USING NATIVE MATERIALS

Rural women of southeast Alabama are making plans to use native materials, such as pine limbs and cones, cedar, spruce, and moss, in decorating their Christmas tables this year, reports Miss Ruth Dobyne, district home demonstration agent. County home agents are showing the farm women how to make attractive decorations out of the native materials.

THANKS FROM J. C. PATTILLO

To the People of Chilton County:

Permit me to take this method of expressing my deep appreciation of the honor you have conferred upon me by electing me to the office of Clerk of the Circuit Court.

I am indeed proud to know that you have reposed this confidence in me, yet I am made to feel very humble when I contemplate the responsibility of the position and the debt of duty which I now owe to all of the people.

I hope and pray that every unpleasant note of the campaign may now be forgiven and forgotten and that we may all work together to promote the progress toward happiness and prosperity for every citizen of the county.—J. C. Pattillo.

Why Children Need a Liquid Laxative

The temporary relief children get from unwise dosing with harsh cathartics may cause bowel strain, and even set-up irritation in the kidneys. A properly prepared liquid laxative brings a more natural movement. There is no discomfort at the time and no weakness after. You don't have to give the child "a double dose" a day or two later.

Can constipation be safely relieved in children? "Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" say many mothers who have followed this sensible medical advice: 1. Select a good liquid laxative. 2. Give the dose you find suited to the system. 3. Gradually reduce the dose, if repeated, until the bowels are moving naturally without aid.

An approved liquid laxative (one that is widely used for children) is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. The mild laxative action of this excellent preparation is the best form of help for children — and grown-ups, too. The dose can be regulated for any age or need.

Your druggist sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Everybody is about through gathering except picking velvet beans and making up ribbon cane syrup.

Rev. Maurice Hodgens filled his regular appointment here Sunday. He preached a fine sermon Sunday at 11 a.m., and the service Sunday night was wonderful, with one addition to the church. If the weather will permit there will be baptizing next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

A truck load from here attended the B. Y. P. U. convention at New Salem Sunday afternoon, and reported some fine speeches. I wish everybody in Chilton County could have heard the talk that Paul Oden made. It was extra good.

We are glad to see Mrs. T. J. Miller improving.

Mr. T. J. Miller is working in Birmingham.

Mrs. B. L. Cobb and daughter, Imogene, spent part of last week in Montgomery with their son and brother, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Cobb. They also visited Mr. and Mrs. Dock Glass and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Moore while there.

I am sorry Mrs. V. T. Cobb has not been doing so well for the past week.

Mrs. J. W. Collum is spending lots of her time in Jemison helping to nurse her father, Mr. W. G. Atkinson, who is very sick.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland, nee Gladys Moore, of Center Hill, visited Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Scott and the Misses Price Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Lonnie Cobb and son, Joe Frank, spent the week end with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Merchant, at Centreville.

Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Miller and children of Pleasant Grove spent Sunday with Mrs. T. J. Miller.

Mrs. Joe Corey and children spent Monday in Jemison with Mrs. John Davis.

Mrs. B. O. Lowery of Providence spent Saturday night with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Cobb.

Mr. and Mrs. Lem Sims of Sylacauga spent the week end here visiting their parents.

Mrs. Dollie Rasberry of Union Springs has been visiting Mrs. Ola Barnes and Mrs. Lige Garner.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvie Gentry were the dinner guests of Mrs. Madge Howard Sunday.

Miss Berney Dean Cobb visited Miss Wylda Smitherman Sunday. They spent part of the afternoon with Miss Kathleen Lenoir in the Pleasant Grove community.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ray are moving above Birmingham. We are sorry to see them go.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gillespie visited here Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Claudy Scott and son, Gerald, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Buster Scott.

Several from here attended the state singing convention in Birmingham Sunday.

We were glad to have Misses Robberta and Gladys Satterwhite of Oak Grove and Miss Ella Howard and Miss Mims of Thorsby with us Sunday night. Come again girls.

Remember Sunday school next Sunday morning.

Uncle Billie and aunt Lucy Dunlap from Selma are spending some time with his daughter, Mrs. W. T. Ward. Uncle Billie says he celebrated his 43rd wedding anniversary, November 6th. Uncle Billie gains friends whereever he goes by his good he has done, and always has a good word for everyone, a good example for all.

Next Saturday and Sunday are our regular preaching days. So let's all try and come and bring someone with us, and also Sunday school at ten o'clock. We hope everyone will come with a well studied lesson. God's word says let men lightETAOETAO word says, let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works. We cannot stay away from our church services and let our light shine, for if we stay at home we are very apt to hinder someone else. Some mothers say, "My husband or my son is a drunkard and won't go with me to church, and I will just stay at home, but if we cannot lead them to Christ by going to church and doing what God wants us to do, we certainly cannot lead them to Christ by just staying at home.

Let us not forget the annual Thanksgiving program to be held at Refuge on November 29th. Our teacher, Rev. H. D. Durbin, will render a program by his school in the morning. There is generally prayer service the first thing after noon. The last thing in the evening is an old time match spelling. So everybody is cordially invited to come and bring dinner and spend the day.

There will be preaching at eleven o'clock.

Just a word about the SERVICE at the

MOLTON HOTEL

FIFTH AVENUE AND TWENTIETH STREET

THERE'S a pleasant, friendly atmosphere about the Hotel Molton—a delightful informality and unobtrusively efficient service that appeals to discriminating guests. While Molton service is punctilious, it is entirely lacking in that stiff formality one often finds in larger metropolitan hotels. That's why the guests who stop here once, feel like they're coming home when they return to see us.

Baptist - Methodist Debt Campaign

Beginning November 12th and continuing through November 22nd, the Baptist and Methodist churches will join on a joint Catch-Up-Debt-Paying Campaign. It is hoped in this campaign to clear up all indebtedness on both churches, and start the new financial year with a clean slate. Both Dr. Ezell and Dr. Cochran expressed their desire and expectations that the campaign will succeed and free the churches to do their work unhampered with debts.

It is understood that the Baptists need $750 to clear up all their accounts, and the Methodists need $750 to put them in the clear. Both churches will put committees to work November 12th, and these will continue until all the members are seen and the debts raised.

It is hoped that the members and friends of the two churches will not only greet the committees with a smile but will also greet them with substantial checks or cash. This is a good and needed work and should meet with the hearty cooperation of all concerned. Let us DO this job.

THANKS FROM PERCY PITTS

Editor Union-Banner:

Allow me a space in your paper to express my appreciation to those loyal Republican voters who stood by us in the recent general election, in spite of keen interest and campaigning that was waged against our ticket not only by our Democratic friends, but mainly by some within our own political ranks, whom we thought to be loyal Republicans.

I feel that the approximately twenty-two hundred or more voters who cast their ballot for our ticket under these conditions can be counted upon in the future as in the past, to uphold our Republican form of government, and are to be congratulated.

To those of our party who saw fit and were persuaded to go over to our Democratic friends I hold no ill will, but feel confident that soon they will see the error of their way.

Allow me to say that I am not ungrateful to the Republican party of Chilton County for having honored me in the past, and greatly appreciated the honor of having represented Chilton County twice in the state legislature. You will find me in the future as in the past voting and working for the interest of the Republican party. In spite of the charges made during the campaign that I drew great sums of money from the state, as your representative by reason of my defeat I do not feel that I have lost financially, because by reason of same, I will be able to devote my entire time to my law practice.

Again thanking you for all past favors and assuring you that I am still grateful to the people of Chilton County and will continue, as in the past, in the ranks of the Republican party. —Respectfully yours, Percy M. Pitts.

THANKS FROM DEWEY HUGHES

To the Voters of Chilton County:

As it is impossible for me to see all of you personally I am writing you through the paper to let you know how I appreciated your help and vote in my race for sheriff, although I was defeated. I hold no ill will toward my opponent or anyone who saw fit to support him, and am willing to be of any service I can in helping him to enforce the laws of our county.

Words cannot express the feeling I have for those who helped me, regardless of which party they belonged to, and especially do I appreciate those beats that stood firm for the entire Republican ticket during this election.

I shall always have a kind feeling toward each of you for the hospitality shown me while around and with you in your homes, and I shall never forget the good women who did everything honestly for my election, as I feel they have the greatest responsibility in the future toward raising our boys and girls to respect and obey the laws of our country. With best wishes to all, I am your friend, Dewey Hughes.

MARS HILL NEWS

Please allow me space in your paper for just a few words.

Everything is progressing nicely around here. We are glad to say we have a P.-T. A. at Mars Hill.

ENTERTAINMENT AT NEW CEDRON

A plate lunch and hot dog supper will be sold at the New Cedron school house Saturday night, November 17. A cake for the prettiest girl and a cake for the ugliest man will be given. One vote has already been cast for one ugly man, but the question is, is he the ugliest.

A beautiful quilt of Alice blue lining with an antique fence pattern top will be given to its owner Saturday night. The proceeds of this entertainment will be used to repair the church building.

ON THE AIR

"A note from an old Coal Bin contributor, Isa W. Monroe, informs the Chief Shoveler that her poems, many of which appeared in the Bin, are going on the air from WMMM at Fairmont, W. Va."

The above lines from the Coal Bin section of the Birmingham News of a recent issue, will be of interest to Clanton friends of Miss Monroe. Miss Monroe's brother, Mr. W. W. Monroe, for some years served as principal of the Clanton Grammar School. It was during this time that Miss Monroe visited Clanton and made a number of friends, whom she occasionally visits.

Mothers Have Found Way To Keep Family's Colds Under Better Control

Millions of mothers are helping their families to greater freedom from colds—fewer colds, shorter colds, milder colds—by following Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds.

The helpfulness of Vicks Plan in reducing the number, duration and dangers of colds has been proved in thousands of clinical tests supervised by practicing physicians—as well as in every day use in millions of homes. The Plan provides proper care—and proper medication—for different types and stages of colds.

To Help Avoid Many Colds—At the first sneeze or nasal irritation, apply the unique aid in preventing colds—Vicks Va-tro-nol. Just a few drops up each nostril. Timely use of Va-tro-nol helps to prevent many colds—and to throw off colds in their early stages. (Va-tro-nol now comes in two generous sizes, 30c and 50c.)

To End a Cold Sooner—If a cold has already developed, apply Vicks VapoRub on throat and chest. It fights a cold direct—two ways at once. The combined effect of VapoRub's double direct action—by stimulation and inhalation—loosens phlegm—soothes irritated membranes—eases difficult breathing—helps break congestion. Sure relief and with safety. No "dosing."

Full details and proof of the effectiveness of Vicks Plan come in each Vicks package.

Mrs. Omar Reynolds Hostess To Club

Members of the Thursday Contract club were entertained last week by Mrs. Omar Reynolds. Two tables were arranged for bridge in the living room which was decorated in beautiful baskets of fall flowers. Mrs. J. C. Page held high score and received a pretty cream and sugar set.

Delicious refreshments were served to the following members:

Mrs. J. C. Page, Mrs. J. P. Hayes, Mrs. James Wade, Mrs. Arthur Johnson, Mrs. Grady Reynolds, Mrs. Doub Huddleston, Mrs. J. Lee Smith, Mrs. Hugh Jones.

Judge Thigpin of Andalusia, Ala., was in Clanton this week conducting court.

Don't forget the Alabama Glee Club at the High School auditorium Friday night, sponsored by the Grammar School P.-T. A. The admission is 15 and 35 cents.

Judge and Mrs. L. H. Reynolds spent several days last week in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. James Wade and Mr. and Mrs. Doub Huddleston motored to Montgomery Thursday night.

Misses Sara Hollis, Margaret Davis, Dixie Johson, and Elizabeth Browder of Montgomery attended the homecoming game in Tuscaloosa last week end.

Mrs. Dan Lester, bookkeeper for Hayes Chevrolet Co., spent the week end in Montevallo with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Galloway.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Callen and children were visitors in Selma Sunday.

Mr. Clifford Gregg of Montevallo was a visitor in Clanton Monday.

CANE CREEK

We had a wonderful week end. We had preaching, Sunday school, B. Y. P. U. and went to New Salem to the B. Y. P. U. convention. We had a real good program over there, and everyone enjoyed it fine. We all like to go to these services. We always learn something good to take back with us. Spiritual food is really worth going after to these meetings.

All of the members of Cane Creek are urged to be ready to send something to the orphans home. A committee will be around in a few days to gather up this stuff, and don't want to miss anyone. Any kind of produce that we all eat, they can eat too, except sweet potatoes. They have them furnished nearer to them.

Little Warrena Willis won the booster band bed spread Sunday that was given away fair as could be. Let's everyone not forget to be at Sunday school next Sunday morning. We have it at 10:30 except on preaching days, then we have it at 10:00, and be out to B. Y. P. U. on time.

Mr. Osmond Middleton spent some time Monday with Dr. Ward.

COOPER 4-H CLUB

We are delighted to report that Miss Ruth Pardue of Clanton came to this school Wednesday morning, November 7th, and organized a girls 4-H club. She was more than glad to find that there were so many girls of this school interested in the organization of a 4-H club. We have enrolled 28 members so far, and hope to enroll more next month.

We have never organized a 4-H club in our school before, but I know we are going to like it lots. Below are the names of our club officers: local leader, Mrs. Lucille Allen; president, Clara Logan; vice president, Mazell Hilyer; secretary-treasurer, Vera Logan; reporter, Nita Jones; song leader, Tommie Leah Robinson; cheer leader, Ruth Wise; record bookkeeper, Alma Cagle.—Nita Jones, reporter.

Charlie Ward and daughter, Myrtle, Hubert Ward and wife went to Montgomery Thursday.

Our Compliments
To The Ladies of Clanton
Through The Cooking School

We wish to say to the ladies of Clanton that it has been a distinct pleasure for us to extend our cooperation and assistance to you this week in making a success of the cooking school which you have had.

We are specially glad that we were given the opportunity to furnish a number of the standard food products for your demonstrations, and we hope that you have used the cooking school to every advantage to test the merits of these foods.

Dunlop's Flours, which were used in the cooking tests, were supplied through us by the Dunlop Milling Company, for which we are distributors. The local store of Moates and Taylor retails Dunlop's Flours to the trade in Clanton.

We also had the pleasure of furnishing Snowdrift for the school, with the compliments of Snowdrift-Wesson Oil Sales Corporation. Many sample packages of Snowdrift were given as prizes to many of you.

Through the courtesy of American Sugar Refining Company we were able to furnish a large quantity of Domino Sugar, both for use in the Demonstrations and as prizes to be awarded to the ladies in attendance.

We trust that our contributions in these respects have added something to the value and interest of the cooking school, and we want all the ladies to know that we will appreciate a word of endorsement of these products at any time you may have occasion to express yourself concerning them.

and medical care. They are doing a wonderful work for suffering humanity. They are saving millions of dollars to or for the people who are being served, and they are so arranging the finances that it is being paid in small amounts and while enjoying health and able to work, instead of coming as a terrific crash while suffering from sickness and probably unable to earn a livelihood.

Now, the question I want to get home to you is, are we people in Chilton County endowed with enough common sense, business ability and cooperative spirit to get our hearts and minds together and take care of ourselves for the least expenditure possible; or will it be better to admit that this is untrue and that it is going to be necessary for us to take away from our own families and friends and neighbors, to help build million-dollar offices and expensive equipment in New York or some other large city away from home and pay for high-powered salesmen to give us a similar service, inconvenient, miles away from home and friends, operated and carried out by people who are entirely foreign and strange to us?

You have several doctors here in Chilton County who would gladly equip themselves to do the special work necessary to such organization, if only they knew that the people were behind them in the movement, and were willing to cooperate in carrying it out.

I will close by saying that if you are interested, write me in the next few days giving me your view of some such organization in Chilton County. —Yours respectfully, V. J. Gragg.

STATEMENT FROM MRS. A. C. CARLSON TO THE A. L. A.

Many thousands of the mothers, wives, sisters and daughters of Legionnaires who comprise the membership of the American Legion Auxiliary were workers under the Red Cross banner during the days of the World War. Our units everywhere cooperate with Red Cross Chapters in their service to veterans and to our needy citizens.

As National President of the American Legion Auxiliary, I am reminding our great membership throughout the nation that the Auxiliary should stand shoulder to shoulder with the Red Cross in community work for service to our disabled veterans and our citizens who are suffering distress because of economic conditions.

From Armistice Day to Thanksgiving the Red Cross holds its annual Roll Call for members. May I urge that all Auxiliary members who are unable to do so join the Red Cross at this time.

Murder Trial On At Circuit Court Here

As we go to press Wednesday noon the trial of Willie Claud Henderson is in progress in the Circuit Court of Chilton County, Judge Emmett Thigpen presiding. Henderson is under a charge of murder for killing his brother, Charley Henderson, a few months ago.

The case was called Wednesday morning, a jury selected, and testimony of witnesses began shortly before noon.

The Circuit court began Monday morning under a schedule for two weeks session for the trial of cases on the criminal docket. Judge Thigpen is presiding in place of Judge Tate.

Quite a number of cases were disposed of Monday and Tuesday. Several were nol prossed; some were continued; and some defendants entered agreements to plead guilty at the next term.

The case of Irona Carter, charged with assault to murder, was tried before a jury which rendered a verdict of guilty of assault and battery. Appeal was taken under bond of $500.

Oscar Smith, charged with manufacturing liquor and possession of a still, was tried by a jury, and convicted as charged. Appeal was taken under bond of $500.

The case of Joe E. Gray, charged with manslaughter in the first degree in the killing of Harvey Chandler, is set on the docket for Thursday, November 15.

Following is the jury for trial of cases this week:

GAME AND FISH NEWS

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 13.—Judge J. P. Mitchell of Abbeville, thinks the next legislature should do something about the killing of young doves and squirrels during the month of September.

"Perhaps 90 per cent of the doves killed in September are still too young to fly well," Judge Mitchell wrote the Alabama game and fisheries department. "They flop along and sail like birds of other families.

"Many squirrels killed in September—and even in October—are less than half grown in some instances and are suckling their young in others. It appears that these facts should engage the attention of the forthcoming legislature.

"My interest is that of any other citizen who enjoys an occasional trip through the woods with his gun and dog."

A severe hail storm forced a flock of wild geese to alight on Loockout Mountain recently, Thomas H. Smith of Fort Payne, reported to the state department of game and fisheries.

"A flock of wild geese going south over Loockout Mountain on October 24 ran into a hail storm so violent they were driven to the ground until the storm subsided," said Mr. Smith.

"F. M. Casey, who drives one of the county school buses, happened to be close by and saw the incident. A few of the geese became lost from the flock and stayed on the mountain a few days."

Geese have been sighted frequently in the northern part of the state this fall.

Rev. S. J. Ezell left Monday morning to attend the annual session of the Alabama Baptist Convention in Birmingham.

Mr. Anderson Glass, age 67 years, died last Saturday at his home at Westover. His body was brought to Providence, Beat 13, and buried last Sunday, with Bell's Funeral Home in charge. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. R. M. Honeycutt. Mr. Glass is survived by his wife, four children, two sisters and one brother.

MAINE LIQUOR LAW ANNULLED

Augusta, Me., Nov. 11—Maine's ancient prohibition laws crumbled today before legislative action providing for immediate establishment of state liquor stores and sales for on-the-premises consumption in hotels and restaurants starting February 9, 1935.

After a series of party conferences and caucuses embittered by the cry of "politics" in connection with some liquor bills under consideration, the legislature, in extraordinary session, enacted the state stores and hotels bills early this morning. It then adjourned.

Gov. Louis J. Brann, who called the special session for enactment of liquor laws "as liberal as those of neighboring states," signed the emergency store bill although it did not satisfy him because it provided for pro rate distribution of profits to communities in accordance with their state tax assessments instead of establishing an old age pension fund.

20-YEAR TERM IN MURDER CASE

Eight Persons Carried To Penitentiary Following Sentences

Willie Claud Henderson was sentenced to the penitentiary for twenty years after a jury in the Circuit Court of Chilton County last week convicted him of murder in the second degree. Henderson killed his brother, Charley Henderson, at Mt. Creek last summer.

Walter Quarles, negro, was sent to the penitentiary to serve a life sentence, after he plead guilty to a charge of murder before Judge Emmett Thigpen, in the circuit court last week.

George Hardy, negro, was tried by a jury and convicted on a charge of burglary and grand larceny. He was sent to the penitentiary to serve a sentence of 13 to 19 months.

Others sent to the penitentiary as a result of convictions and sentences in the circuit court last week were:

J. C. Goodson, plead guilty to assault and battery, and was sentenced 20 days for the fine, 50 days for the cost, and six months additional punishment.

Charlie Kirkland, negro, was sentenced 20 days for the fine and 69 days for the cost, on a charge of violating the prohibition law.

Claud Hunt, negro, was sentenced 20 days for the fine and 62 days for the cost, on a charge of violating the prohibition law.

Jadie Mims, charged with violating the prohibition law, was sentenced 20 days for the fne and 56 days for the cost.

All of the above prisoners were carried to Kilby at the end of the court session of last week.

Misses Ethel Cagle and Dorothy Manning, teachers at Vermenot Jr. High School, spent last week end at Mitchell Dam.

Send Missionaires Back To China

Chilton County Baptists Assist in Noble Denominational Enterprise

The Chilton County Missionary Baptist Association at its recent annual meeting agreed to pay one hundred dollars on the transportation of Rev. Frank T. Woodward and family back to China as missionaries. It will be remembered that Mrs. Woodward is a product of Chilton County and a sister of Rev. G. G. Williams. The amount asked for has been raised and more. The amount raised was $118.10 from the following churches:

Bethaslem, $5.02; Pleasant Grove No. 2 $5, Highland $5, Mars Hill $2, Friendship $3, Thorsby $10, New Harmony $5.10, Pleasant Grove No. 1 $2, Mulberry $15, Chestnut Creek $10, New Salem $5.25, Mineral Springs $2, Refuge $3, Union Grove $3, Jemison $14, Pilgrims Rest $2, Pates Chapel $5.45, Corinth $2, Shiloh $3.01, Macedonia No. 1, $5, and Liberty Hill $11.05.

It is to be hoped that the other churches will send in other funds to be added to this love gift for this noble work. We will be hearing from the Woodwards through the columns of this paper. However, it will be some time as they have just sailed for China.

MEN'S BIBLE CLASS BANQUET

Friday night at 7 o'clock the Men's Bible Class of Clanton Baptist church will hold their annual banquet. Every member or friend of the class is fervently requested to come and to bring his wife or sweetheart. One hundred and fifty pounds of "the fatted calf" and 125 pounds of juicy pig will be barbecued for the occasion. Along with this will be an abundance of other good things with music and other entertainment to gladden the heart. We are preparing for 250 to meet us at the church at 7 o'clock. You are wanted.—H. S. Shaw, teacher; S. J. Ezell, pastor.

ORPHANAGE CAR

The orphanage car for the Unity and Chilton Associations will be in Thorsby Thursday and Clanton Friday of this week. Churches and individuals are asked to bring their gifts for the children on these days. Those who got and filled the empty jars from the orphanage last summer are asked to bring them in to either Thorsby or Clanton. Let the churches not forget. Do not bring sweet potatoes.

CLEVE WYATT'S HOME BURNED

The home of Cleve Wyatt, three miles from Clanton, on Lay Dam Road, was destroyed by fire early Monday night. The fire was discovered on the roof near the stove flue by Tony Connell, a neighbor nearby. It was impossible to stop the blaze. Only a few things in the house were saved. Mrs. Wyatt and two children were at home. Mr. Wyatt was visiting in Coosa County.

CHILTON COUNTY MINUTES NOW AT BANNER OFFICE

Mr. S. J. M. Webb, clerk of the Chilton County Baptist Association, announces to the various churches of the association that the minutes are now ready for distribution. The church clerks, or someone connected with the management of the various churches, will please call at The Union-Banner office this week, or as early as possible, and get such church's pro rata share of the minutes. These minutes should be in the hands of the clerks within the next few days, Mr. Webb says.

BORAH MAKES NEW CHARGES

Cites Many Examples of the Alleged Inefficiency of Government

Washington, Nov. 19.—New charges of waste amounting to millions of dollars were aimed at the relief administration tonight by Senator Borah, of Idaho.

In an address, the veteran Republican independent boomed a demand for an investigation by a "wholly disinterested committee or tribunal." Asked what he meant by that he said: "Congress."

Borah urged that the administration wrap additional safeguards against waste around the huge relief program contemplated for next year.

In one Western county, he asserted, he had a report that $4 had been disseminated in relief but that the cost of the administration had been $572. In another county it cost $576, he said and the amount administered was $6.

"The relief problem will be with us for a long time," he asserted. "It is going to take not only millions, but it will run into billons. Every dollar saved in administration means food and shelter for the needy and the unhoused.

"Before we start upon a new program, there ought to be a thorough, searching and dispassionate investigation by disinterested parties, not only as to things past, but as to how best to deal with the matter in the future. With the cost and expense now being incurred, there is going to be a breakdown."

Evidently replying to the claim of Harry L. Hopkins, the relief administrator, that he had supplied no specific evidence of "shameful waste" to a FERA investigator who conferred with him last week, Borah said nothing had occurred to justify modifications.

Instead, he went into more detail regarding reports of "wastes" which he said had poured into his office.

"The source of waste seems to come from administration in the field," he declared. "The administrative pay roll is enormous. Those in authority in different sections of the country, through pressure or desire, seem to place a wholly unnecessary number of persons on the administrative pay roll at salaries beyond what the service justifies.

"Many of these persons cannot qualify on the basis of relief or of experience . . . The payroll becomes clogged and padded and the cost of administration runs in some instances from 25 per cent to 50 per cent of the sum administered.

Earlier in the day, the relief administration had reported that in August 11.6 per cent of all relief expenditures went to pay administrative costs. September figures were not yet available.

Borah said:

"This afternoon a gentleman whom I know well comes to me from one of the states presenting what seems conclusive proof that a million dollars is unaccounted for in that state—that, in some way or other, it has utterly disappeared."

While in the West this summer, he said, he received evidence tending to show waste of from $2,500,000 to $3,500,000 of relief funds. Indictments returned in this instance since have been dismissed by the government with the explanation that legal proof was lacking, Borah reported.

"I do not assume to criticize the dismissal," he continued.

"I assume, of course, there was no evdience establishing crime or criminal intent. But I am not advised that no one has controverted the proposition, that this vast sum of money was actually wasted and squandered in ways that cannot be justified."

He said a report, made by "a courageous official," had disclosed that, for $5.47 expended for relief in one state, $2.68 was spent for administration.

"Taking 100 counties in the state, the report disclosed that the administrative costs in administering $4,700 was $5,100," he said.

"It is fair to say that some improvement has been made."

Singing at Courthouse Thanksgiving Day

County-Wide Program Will Be Sponsored By County Agent, Fant, and Miss Pardue On November the 29th

Under the direction of County Agent J. W. Fant, and Home Demonstration Agent, Miss Pardue, a countywide Thanksgiving Program is being planned to be at the courthouse from 10:00 to 11:30 o'clock on Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, November 29th.

The purpose of the program is to gather as many people from all over the county as possible to join in the occasion of songs and thanksgiving. The main feature will be singing, in which all who attend will have an opportunity to take part.

The program will open with a short devotional service, followed by a talk, by some speaker to be selected, on the purposes and meaning of Thanksgiving Day and why the people of Chilton County should be thankful in the good year 1934.

This will take up only a short period of time, after which it is planned to turn the meeting into an occasion of sacred songs, in which all will have an opportunity to participate.

An invitation is extended to all singers and leaders of music in Chilton County to come and bring their classes and song books. Also every singer and lover of music is urged to come and take part.

Mr. Fant specially requests that announcement be made of this program at all places in the county next Sunday, in order that everyone may have ample time to make preparations to come to the courthouse on Thanksgiving Day. Any and all song leaders in the county who may wish to gather more definite details of the plans for the program are urged to get in touch with T. E. Wyatt, at The Union-Banner office.

The Farm Bureau is sponsoring such a program in every county in Alabama for Thanksgiving Day, and it is the hope of Mr. Fant and Miss Pardue that the people of Chilton County will respond in such a manner as to make our Thanksgiving program the biggest and best in Alabama.

Any singers who will do so are invited to make any suggestions which they may think of to help make the program as good as possible. More definite details of the occasion will be published next week.

John R. Parnell Died At Thorsby

Prominent Business Man Died At Age of Seventy-Five Years

John R. Parnell, age 75 years, died last Friday morning at his home in Thorsby. Burial was at Thorsby cemetery Saturday, with Martin & Sons in charge. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. W. Jones.

Mr. Parnell is survived by four daughters: Mrs. G. W. Freeman, Mrs. R. H. Popwell, Miss Gladys Parnell, and Mrs. J. W. Carroll of Washington, D. C.; one son: Mr. Walter W. Parnell, of Thorsby and Clanton.

John R. Parnell was a native of Chilton County; born and reared near Stanton. About 34 years ago he removed to Thorsby, where he engaged in the mercantile business. On account of ill health, he was forced to retire from active business pursuits about ten years ago. For many years he was a member of the Board of Registrars of Chilton County.

JOE GRAY GETS MISTRIAL

Joe Y. Gray, under indictment for first degree manslaughter, was tried in the Circuit Court last week. The jury was unable to agree on a verdict in the case, a mistrial was entered.

Mr. Gray was indicted by the grand jury a few weeks ago and placed under a charge of manslaughter in connection with the fatal shooting of his life-long friend, Mr. Harvey F. Chandler.

Reemployment Service Is Free

Has On File List of Skilled and Unskilled Workers of County

The National Reemployment Service is a free employment bureau, being a branch of, and operated under the United States Department of Labor.

The Reemployment Service has almost a complete file of all available skilled and unskilled labor in Chilton County, and its services are available without charge to any employer.

In the local Reemployment office, employment of a cook, laborer or skilled worker is as convenient as the telephone. All applicants after being registered and properly classified according to work for which they are best fitted.

Throughout the state many calls from private employers have been received by the Reemployment Service, and the management of the local NRS office urge and invite private firms and individuals desiring help to cooperate by notifying the National Reemployment Service which is in a position to supply the kind of help required with full recommendations of former employers. Farm land owners desiring tenants, wage hands or other farm laborers are especially urged to call on the Reemployment Service when in need of labor.

CERTIFICATE POOL CLOSES NOV.24

The surplus cotton tax-exemption certificate pool will not accept surplus certificates after Saturday, November 24, reports the agricultural adjustment administration, although certificates may be purchased from the pool so long as there is sufficient demand to warrant keeping it in operation for this purpose.

DAN LOCKHART OUT UNDER BOND

Preliminary trial of Dan Lockhart was held before Judge Wilson last week, after which the defendant was released under bond of $500 to await investigation of the grand jury.

Lockhart is alleged to have inflicted knife wounds upon C. A. Johnson causing the death of Johnson a few hours later.

ELECTION LAWS FACE REVISION

Views of Fred H. Gormley, Capitol Correspondent for Alabama Journal

You will see Alabama's election laws revised and brought up to date before the legislature completes its session next year. Leaders in the new legislature recognize a public demand that will force changes in the laws. Agitation has been greater since the primary elections last summer, but it was noticeable long before the primaries were held.

A majority of those who have watched developments take it for granted that radical changes will be made in the absent voters law. This law is responsible for practically all charges of fraud. Persons experienced in election work realize that it is an easy matter to violate the election laws in the handling of absentee ballots. Abuses have overshadowed the uses of the absentee ballot and, if the law isn't repealed, you will hardly recognize it when the legislature gets through with it.

Secrecy—A statewide movement has been started for a revision in the election laws which will prohibit the numbering of ballots. This has caused a division. One argument is that secrecy cannot be maintained as long as ballots are numbered. The counter-argument is that numbers are necessary to protect honest voters who do not want the influence of their ballots killed by fraudelent ballots.

The law intends that a voter's ballot be protected from prying eyes. In this day of rings and organized influences exerted in elections many voters do not believe their ballots can be kept secret as long as they are numbered.

Fraud—A great task is presented in the enactment of legislation that will protect against fraud and against prying eyes at the same time. If the requirement for numbered ballots is continued additionally safeguards must be thrown about the ballots after they have been cast. Advocates of numbered ballots contend that the repeal of this feature would mean that the unscrupulous could run in illegal voters during an election and there would be no way of locating their ballots in a contest afterwards.

Judge Leon McCord, democratic national committeeman, made a proposal in the democratic campaign which is certain to have attention. He suggested that committee of three persons, not interested in any candidate, be appointed prior to an election to take charge of all ballot boxes immediately after the election and to keep them under three locks and keys until expiration of the time for contest. A felony would be committed by any person who obtained access to the ballots unless a contest were started and then the ballots could be inspected only in open court. At the end of the period for contests the committee, in the presence of the public, would burn the ballots cast in the election.

While absentee ballots and the numbering of ballots will have the greatest attention, some changes in the election machinery probably will be made. A number of contradictory provisions must be harmonized and something must be done to make it easy to obtain appellate court rulings in cases such as that in Russell County where the defeated candidate for probate judge refused to recognize his successful opponent as the democratic nominee for probate judge.

DR. EDGAR WILL TAKE THANKSGIVING OFF

Dr. J. E. Edgar announces that he will be out of his office Thanksgiving Day, the following Friday and probably Saturday. He and Mrs. Edgar will be visiting in Choctaw county.

FIDDLERS CONVENTION AT VERMONT IS POSTPONED

The fiddlers convention which was scheduled at Vermont Jr. High School for next Saturday night will be postponed until Saturday night, December 8. Remember this date and set your plans to be there. Sandwiches, peanuts, jokes, etc., will all go towards making a good time for everybody.—R. B. Johnson.

NO RESPECT FOR THE AGED

The stork visited the home of W. M. Easterling (better known as uncle Bud) of Refuge community, on November 13, and left them an eight pound baby boy. Despite his age of 77 years he is quite a happy man. They have named the youngster William Sam.

FARMERS TO VOTE ON COTTON LAW

Cotton Growers Will Express Views on Bankhead Law

The South's cotton producers will be given the opportunity to vote early in December on whether the Bankhead Cotton Control Act will be continued into the 1935 season.

The exact date of the southwide referendum has not been fixed but will be announced within the next few days. The question which will be submitted to cotton farmers is: "Are you in favor of continuing the Bankhead Act for next year?"

Secretary Wallace urges cotton farmers to examine carefully the facts and reach a decision based upon considered judgment as to whether the Bankhead Act is needed to assure attainment of the objectives of the cotton adjustment program." He emphasizes that the administration is not seeking to impose its views upon the producers, adding that "it is for the cotton farmers to choose."

The referendum will be conducted by the machinery that is now set up in the field under the production control associations. However, a special referendum committee will be selected in each of the communities where polling places will be located. The hours for balloting at each of these polling places will be from 8:00 a.m. until 6:00 p.m. on the date to be announced later.

The ballots will be secret and the test for eligibility to vote in the referendum is defined in the act as those persons who have the legal or equitable right as owner, tenant, share cropper, or otherwise to produce cotton on any cotton farm, or part thereof, in the United States for the crop year 1935-1936.

Chilton "Tigers" Beat Holtv'le 13-6

Bewildering Air Attack is Too Much for Holtville Bulldogs

Chilton County High's "Fighting Tigers" took the strong Holtville High School "Bulldog" kennel into camp on the local field last Friday afternoon and defeated them 13 to 6.

The light Chilton eleven could do nothing with the much heavier Holtville line, nor around the ends, but took to the air for two swift drives for touchdowns.

There was no scoring in the first quarter. To begin the game, Chilton kicked off to Holtville, who made a quick job of bringing the ball to Chilton's 1-yard line, and first down. But there the Tigers gave all they had, and it was enough. After four savage jabs at the line, Chilton took the ball and kicked out to their 30-yard line. The Bulldogs came right back to the 1-yard line again, with first down. After trying the line three times for no gain, Holtville started an end-around play, but crossed up their signals, and the pass from center rolled to the 30-yard line, where Chilton took the ball.

In the second quarter, Chilton worked down to the Bulldog 45-yard line. A pass netted 15 yards. On the next play Holtville was penalized 15 yards for roughing, and the ball was put into play on the 5-yard line. On the fourth down Chilton plowed over tackle for a touchdown, and added the extra point. Score: Chilton 7, Holtville 0.

Chilton kicked off to Holtville and the ball rolled to the 10-yard line. Holtville tried the line once, and found a stone wall. The Tigers were really fighting. Holtville kicked, but got off a poor punt, and Chilton put the ball into play on the 25-yard line. A pass was good, Reynolds to Jones, who went over for a touchdown, standing up. The try for extra point was wide. Score: Chilton 13, Holtville 0.

Late in the second quarter, Holtville put on a driving attack through the line, and on the last play of the half, smashed over for a touchdown, but missed the extra point. Score at the half: Chilton 13, Holtville 6.

That was all of the scoring for the day. Holtville put on two strong drives during the last half, but fumbles gummed up the works on both occasions. Chilton, likewise, put on two drives in the last half, but bogged when they came to "coffin corner."

Johnson seemed to be the only Chilton back who could pierce the heavy Holtville line. He also tossed several bullet-like passes, but the Chilton receivers couldn't get their hands on them.

As was the case last year, Chilton went into the game rated as the under-dog, and was the case last year, bewildered the Bulldog defense with passes, to win.

The Chilton line played the best game it has shown this season on the local field, with Gillespie, Wilder and Baker showing especially well.

The Tigers take on the strong Isabella team next Friday (tomorrow) on the local field, at 3:00 p.m.

NOTICE!

All persons who owe me for medical services will please call and settle or arrange their accounts by the 1st of December, 1934, as the list of delinquents will be revised at that time.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By ANN PAGE

SHOPPERS this week will find vegetables of all kinds plentiful, though prices are higher due to the advancing season. Eggs are much higher and butter somewhat more expensive, but meats are moderately priced.

Both white and sweet potatoes or yams represent outstanding values. Cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli, and Brussels sprouts are particularly seasonable and low in price. Onions, turnips, carrots and beets are dependable and cheap standbys. Iceberg lettuce is both fine in quality and cheaper than usual. There is an abundance of cheap pumpkin for Hallowe'en.

Apples are plentiful and moderately priced, grapes and grapefruit as well, while melons have largely disappeared.

The following menus are made up from the latest market news available:

Low Cost Dinner

Pot Roast of Beef with Gravy
Boiled White Potatoes,
Carrots, Onions
Bread and Butter
Banana Cream Pie
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner

Veal Chops Candied Yams
Buttered Cauliflower
Bread and Butter
Chocolate Pie
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner

Fruit Cup
Veal Cutlets Mashed White Potatoes
Scalloped Eggplant
Stuffed Tomato Salad
Hot Rolls and Butter
Coffee Bavarian
Coffee Milk

GAME AND FISH NEWS

Mobile, Ala., Nov. 19.—Alabama's seventh annual deep sea fishing rodeo will be held in the gulf waters off Dauphin Island next summer on July 22, 23 and 24.

The dates for the rodeo were announced following a business meeting of officials of the Alabama Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo Association here at which officers were re-elected.

L. G. Adams, who has been president since the association was organized, again heads the organization and Mark Lyons and Sam Lackland continue as vice-president and secretary treasurer respectively. All live in Mobile.

The seventh annual contest will be held earlier in the summer than any of the rodeos in the past and will take place a month earlier than the 1934 rodeo. Seasonal conditions and the fact that July is a big vacation month guided the officials in the selection of the dates.

"Late July was considered the most convenient time as this is the real vacation period of the year and the waters are in better condition for fishing," declared Game Commissioner I. T. Quinn, who founded the rodeo in 1929. "This also removes the rodeo from the season of the year when squalls frequent the coast."

The "silver king" tarpon is the big game fish of the rodeo and although tarpon were plentiful at the time of the last rodeo, they struck best during the month of July. Late July also is considered ideal for king and Spanish mackerel and the dozen other sport fish for which hansome rodeo prizes are offered.

The 1934 rodeo set a new attendance mark, a total of 525 anglers from 15 states registered for the three-day fishing classic. The largest tarpon was caught by Jake Rubel, a Corinth, Miss., merchant, and weighed 104 and three-fourths pounds, almost 22 pounds less than the record rodeo catch. The catch of small fish, however, was the greatest in the history of the tournament.

VERMONT 4-H CLUB

Mr. J. W. Fant, our county agent, came to Vermont school last Thursday morning, November 15, and organized the boys a 4-H club. The officers elected are as follows:

President, R. P. Kendrick; vice president, O'Neal Lewis; secretary and treasurer, Thermon Milford; reporter, Allston Clinner; cheer leader, Hugh Hayes; local club leader, Mr. R. B. Johnson.

We organized a 4-H club last year but never did take up the duties of club work. But we hope this year that our 4-H club work will be an outstanding success.

Our club will meet again some time next month. We hope to get some new members then.—Reporter.

L. G. Posey of Beat 14 was among the visitors in Clanton Monday.

Miss Elizabeth McSwain visited her parents here last week end.

Grady Reynolds, Jr., and Jesse Frank Foshee, who attend school at the University of Alabama, spent the week end here with home folks.

Among the college girls spending the week end at home were Dorothy Sessions, Hilda Hart and Eloise Jones.

ADMISSION 10c and 25c

ALABAMA DAY SET FOR DEC. 14

To All School Officials:

Alabama was admitted into the union of states on December 14th, 1819—115 years ago. Since the beginning of this century this day has been set aside as "Alabama Day" and each anniversary observed with fitting memorial exercises in the schools and communities of the state.

The colonists and pioneers up to date of admission had wrought mightily and successfully to carve out of the wilderness a state of happy homes and hardy citizens. Ever since that date our fathers have labored diligently and valiantly to perpetuate the good name of Alabama and hold inviolate the principles and purposes of the early pioneers. There is no more fitting and commendable method of celebrating the valiant deeds and of paying tribute to the worthy ideals of our forefathers than to make this year a notable contribution to the sum total of the history of Alabama and its people by devoting special and specific attention to the history of each community in the state.

Since the school is the natural center of each community, it becomes not only the pleasant privilege but the obligation of each school body to make constructive and where possible more or less complete contributions to local history. Where this is done, the school, the Parent-Teacher Associations, and other agencies and friends of education, and persons interested in the state's history may send this department such data as may be gathered, the same to be transferred later to the archives of the state and there held as original and in many cases hitherto unknown data for historical research. In doing this, those who are assisting in the gathering and transmitting of the material should be very careful that the data submitted are facts beyond dispute or that the statements are qualified with provisons for future checking against additional source material.

The history of education in Alabama has never been written. Some very fine articles and even one or more books upon the subject are extant but most of the data is so hidden that it has been impossible to assemble all of it and consequently our present historical knowledge is more or less fragmentary. The future historian of the progress of education in Alabama will be thankful for the immense amount of materail that can be made available by a united and intelligent effort such as you can make at this time.

Nearly every community is the scene of struggles for a better type of education and enlarged facilities therefor. What rich fields for investigation and report are such communities as those that promoted in days agone Walnut Grove, Lineville, Blountsville, Highland Home, and Oxford colleges; Barton Academy in Mobile and the academies of the nineteenth century in almost every county; the high schools and grammar schools in almost every large community!

Will you not endeavor to make this day a memorable one by your contribution to the educational, community, and industrial history of the commonwealth? Would it not be a good plan to have the older men and women tell of pioneer days; young men read thoughtful papers recounting authentic facts about the conditions prevailing and the customs obtaining in their communities from the beginning; children in drama and pageant make living pictures of the long ago; and all sing ballads and folk songs of their mountains, valleys, plains, and forests? Would it not be a good plan also to have a secretary or historian for the day to collect papers and make notes of informational value and send this office a copy? This, of course, is not required, but would be appreciated.

JEMISON HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

All those people taking part in paying for our electric clock system, installed last year, are to be commended on taking part in such an unusual project. The clock has been a wonderful factor of our school in adding such regularity as it has. We are very glad to announce that we made our last payment recently.

Mr. J. R. Ekblad carried his business law class to Clanton last Thursday to hear a criminal case in court. Everyone enjoyed the trip. We feel that the trip was very beneficial as well as one of pleasure.

The loving smile of Miss Celia Cumbee was heartily welcomed Monday morning when she came back to school after an absence of several weeks because of the illness of her mother.

Our library is bigger and better than ever this year as we have two new sets of encyclopedias and an ample supply of new magazines. New rules have been adopted by the librarians. Our present library system under the management of Mrs. Susie Bald deserves honorable mention.

The Jemison High School basketball team was defeated by Felix High school last Friday afternoon, November 16, by a score of 19 to 18. This game was close throughout the contest. Nelson and Cobb were high score men for Jemison, making seven points each.

Felix will return the game Tuesday night, November 27. A very interesting game is promised, so everyone is urged to attend. The team will appreciate the support of the student body and community.

Miss Leacy Newell, our home economics teacher, had a sudden call to Selma because of the illness of her sister Monday morning.

There will be an oyster supper sponsored by the P.-T.A. given at Jemison High school auditorium Friday night, November 23,. Proceeds will go to the school. Everyone come and bring someone with you.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Farley and son of Birmingham spent Sunday here with relatives.

Lesson for November 25

THE CHRISTIAN STEWARD

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 25:14-30.
GOLDEN TEXT—His lord said unto him, Well done, thou good and faithful servant: thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy lord.—Matthew 25:21.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Right Use of God's Gifts.
JUNIOR TOPIC—How to Use What We Have.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What We Owe to God.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC.—Stewardship of Service.

Stewardship here includes one's self and substance—stewardship in money is only a small part of our responsibility. God has entrusted each of his servants with certain gifts, and will hold each responsible for the use he makes of them. God has lent us capital, and one day will require of us a report of the business we have done with it. By talents is meant whatever gifts and powers we possess as gifts from God, whether of nature or of grace, such as strength, reason, knowledge, influence, time, money, ability to speak, sing.

I. The Distribution of the Talents (vv. 14, 15).

1. It was a sovereign act. He called his own servants and distributed to them his own money. As the one who created us and owns us, he has assigned us our places and given us our several powers, intending that we put them to the best possible use.

2. It was an intelligent act. The distribution was made according to "several ability." The God who made us knew our ability to use gifts, therefore he made the distribution upon that basis. A recognition of God's sovereignty and intelligence regarding the distribution of his gifts will make us content in our sphere of labor.

3. It was a purposeful act. The talents were given to be traded with. They were not given to be used for personal gain and profit, but as stock in trade for the enrichment and glory of the Master.

II. The Employment of the Talents (vv. 16-18).

1. All the servants recognized that the talents were not their own—that they were responsible to the Lord for the use made of them. We are not responsible for the creation of gifts, but for the employment of such gifts as have been given unto us.

2. Two servants used their talents The five-talent man put his to use and gained five more; the two-talent man put his to use and gained two more This shows that God's gifts can be increased. The exercise of any gift increases it. It is not primarily a question as to what we have received, but as to what use we have made of what we have received.

3. The one hid his talent. The crime of the one-talent man was not that he had but one talent, but that he hid the talent which the Lord gave him. He did nothing with it. To hide a talent may be just as hard or harder than to use it.

III. The Accounting for the Talents (vv. 19-30).

1. Its certainty (v. 19). There is a day coming when we all must give an account of our stewardship. There is absolutely no escape.

2. The time (v. 19). The time of accounting will be at the second coming of Christ. The incentive to faithfulness is the coming of the Lord.

3. The judgments announced (vv. 20-30).

a. Reward of the faithful (vv. 20-23).

(1). Praise, "Well done."

All like to be praised. From childhood on through life, commendation is pleasing.

(2) Promotion, "Be thou ruler over many things." Much of that to which we look forward in life is the passing from lower to higher privileges and positions.

(3) Entrance upon the joy of the Lord. The five-talent man and the two-talent man received the same praise and the same promotion.

b. Punishment of the faithless (vv 24-30).

(1) Reproach, "Thou wicked and slothful servant." To be called lazy is a reproach which even the lazy man dislikes.

(2) Stripped, "Take therefore the talent from him." The talent entrusted to him was to be taken from him.

(3) Cast out, "Cast ye the unprofitable servant into outer darkness."

Truth Not Lost

Enough to know, that through winter's frost and summer's heat, no seed of truth is lost.—Whittier.

Perpetual Miracle

"Every man living in the state of grace is a perpetual miracle."—Taylor

"Don't Let Me Get Sour"

"When troubles begin to come, I say to the Lord, 'Whatever happens, don't let me sour,'" recounts Mrs. Wiggs of story-book fame. We fear trouble for its effect upon our fortunes and our happiness, but really the greatest danger point is our character.

Always Need God

When you come down from the summits, you do not come away from God There is no task of life in which you do not need him.—Philip Brooks.

Evening School At Union Grove Ends

Mr. Montgomery of Jemison High school has just finished a series of evening school lessons at Union Grove.

Demonstrations were given in the inoculation of vetch seed and treating fruit trees for the peach tree borer. Special attention will be given to home orchards throughout the season. Demonstrations will be given on pruning and spraying.

The farmers of Union Grove were especially interested in insect control. Detail recommendations were given for such insects as the tomato fruit worm, corn weevils, cucumber beetles, bean beetles, San Jose scale and many others. Emphasis was also paid to landscaping the home grounds and improving the home.

Twenty men enrolled and each will carry a project and definite program.

Ernie Lee Robinson, president of Alabama F. F. A., recently made a trip to Kansas City as a state delegate to the National F. F. A. convention.

The terracing machine given to the Jemison High School by the Commissioner's Court is very much appreciated. It is now, with another machine, being used daily in instructing terracing to a class of 28 boys.

Frank Nelson of Thorsby leads the F. F. A. boys in doing community work. Frank is always picking up a job, terracing, planting or pruning an orchard.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

On the 11th of November the children and grandchildren met at the home of Mr. T. F. Limbrcik to celebrate Mrs. Lucindie Sharpe Davenport Scott's 78th birthday. There were three children and one step-son, Mr. Will Davneport, Mrs. Nannie Limbrick and Mrs. Birdie Bowles, daughters and Mr. John Newell Davenport, her son. They were all from Billingsley.

The cake was decorated with 78 candles. There was a bountiful table spread. There were 31 of her connection and several guests. Rev. J. H. Limbrick, wife and daughter and Mr. Leon Coggins, Mr. John Nelson, son and daughter. Everyone enjoyed the day and parted, wishing her many more happy birthdays.—Wrote by a grandchild.

Appetite gone?

A simple thing, perhaps...yet a very serious one, resulting in loss of strength...body weakness... and possibly many other ills. So why not check-up and snap back to the zest of eating and well being. You will find S.S.S. a great, scientifically-tested tonic—not just a so-called tonic, but one specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood to enable you to "carry on." Do try it. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon enjoy again the satisfaction of appetizing food and good digestion...sound sleep...and renewed strength. Remember, "S.S.S. makes you feel like yourself again."

Do not be blinded by the efforts of a few unethical dealers who may suggest substitutes. You have a right to insist that S.S.S. be supplied you on request. Its long years of preference is your guarantee of satisfaction.

Mrs. J. Lee Smith Hostess To Card Club

The Thursday card club were entertained last week by Mrs. J. Lee Smith at her home on Main Street. Two tables were arranged for bridge in the living room which was decorated in baskets of fall flowers. After a series of games, Mrs. Arthur Johnson was awarded a set of goblets for high score. Guest prize was won by Mrs. J. Hance Alred. This was a set of goblets also.

At a late hour a salad plate and hot coffee were served to the following: Mrs. J. Hance Alred, Mrs. J. P. Hayes, Mrs. Hugh Jones, Mrs. J. C. Page, Mrs. Jack Davis, Mrs. Arthur Johnson, Mrs. J. W. Hayes, Mrs. Grady Broadhead.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Lee Smith and Mr. and Mrs. J. Hance Alred are visiting their sons, J. Lee and Callen, in Gulfport, Miss., this week.

Mr. Jack Hayes, Mr. Dick Hayes and Mr. Barney Burnett made a business trip to Birmingham Monday.

Miss Ruth Pardue spent last week end with her homefolks at Saginaw.

Mr. Jack Hayes and Mr. Claudie Pipes attended the football game in Atlanta Saturday.

Mrs. Arthur Willis, Miss Margaret Kendrick and Miss Sara Colley spent Saturday in Montgomery shopping.

Miss Mary Frances Wynn, who has been the attractive guest of Mrs. J. R. Mullins, returned to her home in Tennessee this week.

Mr. L. F. Gerald, Jr., who attends the University of Alabama, spent the week end at home.

Mrs. Doub Huddleston, Mrs. James Wade, Mrs. Jno. D. Mullins and Miss Mary Frances Wynn motored to Birmingham Thursday and spent the day shopping.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Burnett and Mrs. Omar Reynolds were visitors in Birmingham Thursday.

Mr. Barney Burnette of Montevallo spent the week end in Clanton.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Mullins of Tuscaloosa were the week end guests of Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Edgar.

Mrs. M. R. Orr and Misses Dollie Mae and Ressie Harris spent last week end in Guin, Ala., as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Williams. During their visit they saw Norris Dam and heard President Roosevelt make his speech.

PLEASANT HILL

Last Saturday night, Sunday and Sunday night being regular preaching dates we heard a most wonderful message at each service by our pastor, Rev. W. E. Robinson.

The Mineral Springs B. Y. P. U. put on a splendid program here Sunday night, which was enjoyed by all.

We have organized a B. Y. P. U. at Pleasant Hill, and we invite each and every one to come and take part and help get our B. Y. P. U. going.

We also ordained three new deacons in our church Sunday night, as follows: W. R. Blow, S. J. Twilley, O. L. Martin. We feel sure that our church will continue to grow, and we church members must all do our duties to make it so.

There will be a Thanksgiving service here on November 29, beginning at 2:00 o'clock p.m. Rev. W. E. Robinson will be with us. Come one—come all! We all have more than tongue can tell to be thankful for, so don't forget to come. Be with us on that date.—Reporter.

ENTERPRISE 4-H CLUB

We are delighted to report that Mr. J. W. Fant, our county agent, came to this school Wednesday, November 14, to reorganize our 4-H Club. We have enrolled about 30 members.

Our officers are: local leaders: Joe Thomas and Hubert Stroud; president: Earl Yeargan; vice president: Frank Hill; secretary and treasurer: Clark Burkhalter; reporter: Quinton Boockholdt; cheer leader Euel Vance; song leader: Elbert Chandler.

Our next meeting will be called on December 11. — Quinton Boockholdt, reporter.

MT. PLEASANT CLUB TO MEET

The ladies of Mt. Pleasant community have a special invitation to an orange cutting and guess cake at the home of Mrs. Woodie Pate Friday, November 23 at 2 o'clock. Every lady will cut an orange and for every seed in the orange she pays a penny, and also a penny for every guess on the cake. This is for the benefit of our H. D. Christmas program.—A member.

SAMARIA NEWS

Last Sunday was regular preaching day here. Our pastor, Rev. Jones, delivered a wonderful message Sunday and Sunday night. We were glad to see so many at church Sunday.

We have Sunday school at 10:00 o'clock. Let's all come and bring another with us.

Miss Oddie Dennis of Jemison spent last week here visiting relatives.

Messrs. and Mesdames Joe Culp, Clarence McGraw, Reedie Blackmon, and Lamar Blackmon spent a while Saturday night at the home of Otis Blackmon.

Rev. Jones spent a while Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. A. C. McGraw, and with Mr. John Dennis.

Mrs. Dora Calloway and sister, Miss Zonie Roberson, were guests of Mrs. Otis Blackmon Sunday.

Miss Oddie Dennis spent Wednesday night with Mrs. Lula McGraw.

Mrs. Lula McGraw and Miss Oddie Dennis were guests of Mrs. Dee Dennis Thursday.

BIRTHDAY DINNER

On November 11 a large crowd gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Barnett to celebrate Mrs. Barnett's 64th birthday.

Those enjoying the affair were:

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Barnett and children, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Barnett and children, Mr. John Barnett of Florida, Mr. E. O. Barnett of Birmingham, Mrs. Ida Grant and son, Mrs. O. L. Martin and children, Mr. Clinton Barnett of Birmingham, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Barnett, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Glass and children, and Mr. Floyd Barnett.

The morning was enjoyed viewing the many beautiful gifts which had been brought to mother and grand mother. At the noon hour a most delightful dinner was placed on the table and enjoyed by all. A social afternoon was enjoyed and all left, after wishing for mother and grandmother many more happy birthdays.

BAKER SCHOOL

We wish to thank the people of this community and other communities for their cooperation with us last Friday night at our box supper. We appreciate the behavior very much.

We are planning on staging a play in the near future. We hope to see everyone out with us. Watch the papers for future announcements. The name of this play is, "Her Aunt Elvia." Come and be with us. You will not regret seeing the play. It will furnish you plenty of laughter.

We were glad to have the Liberty Hill quartet with us Tuesday morning during chapel period. They sang several songs, which were enjoyed by all the school children, and others who were present. We hope to have them with us again soon.

Don't forget to watch the paper for further announcements of the play. Save up your dimes and quarters and be ready to be with us.

REFUGE NEWS

Last Saturday and Sunday were our regular preaching days. We had three masterful messages delivered by our pastor, Rev. Lockhart. A large number attended each service. We were glad to have the visitors, and welcome them back any time.

We are sorry to report that Mrs. Nancy Mims is still ill, and hope she will soon be able to be back at church with us.

Let's try to be on time next Sunday for Sunday school with a well studied lesson. And let's not forget the day of Thanksgiving at Refuge. We hope everyone will cooperate with us and help make this a great day of giving thanks to the Lord. Let's all bring something that day, such as can be used in the home, for the purpose of giving it to the needy of this community, such as flour, sugar, corn, syrup, meal, soap, or just anything that can be used. God's Word says "Blessed is the cheerful giver," so we cannot lose anything by helping the ones who are in need.

HARDIMAN CEMETERY CLEANING

There will be a working at the Hardiman cemetery November 27. This is one among the oldest cemeteries in the county, and is located about ½ mile south of the double bridges near the poor house. Many of Chilton County's oldest settlers are buried there. This cemetery has been greatly neglected and many of the graves are unmarked. Others will be in the same condition if something is not done soon.

Everybody that has people buried there are requested to come on the above date with lunch and sufficient tools to clean off same.—P. C. Weldon.

The Story of the Bible Told in Pictures

Job's Patience.—The story of Job is told in prose at the beginning and end of the book which bears his name. A wealthy, God-fearing man, living in patriarchal style in the land of Uz, he suddenly is prostrated by a succession of calamities, and is stripped of possessions, of children and of health, a series of sufferings which he patiently endures. Three of his friends, Eliphaz, Bildad, and Zophar, visit him and a discussion, in poetry, takes place between them. Previously the narrative has declared that Job is righteous, and that sin is not the cause of his sufferings. In the last chapter Job realizes and confesses that in his discussion he had spoken beyond his knowledge. A prose conclusion describes the end of Job's life in peace and prosperity.—Job 13: 16-17. This illustration is from Merian's story of the Bible in pictures, engraved in 1625.

On the whole, industrial activity still is a little under that of a year ago, and is hesitant and spotty, with prices rather unsettled.

The government is spending about three times as much as a year ago, or upwards of three hundred millions a month. This puts credit money in circulation, and, as the public deficit grows, the public spends. But somehow or other, industry lags, and productive employment does not gain.

I think the answer is that, as the government gives relief and stimulates spending, it hurts credit and retards capital and industry.

Usually the one idea man is a fellow who doesn't have the capacity for more than one idea.

It's too bad that most candidates can't be compelled to make good on their campaign promises before they are elected.

When you read that "dainty refreshments were served" you know the men went hungry.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

It now begins to appear that the New Dealers held an election November 6, and from every indication it seems that the American people, at least a great number of them, are willing to take a chance on the program for at least a few more years to be certain that it will or will not work.

Although there were nearly as many voters registered for the off-year election as were cast in 1932, at which time Republicans polled 15,761,841 votes and Democrats 22,821,887, there was approximately only 12,797,785 votes cast for Democrats and 9,805,332 votes for the Republicans on November 6th. Where the remainder of the votes went, if cast, cannot be determined until final returns are in, a few weeks hence, although 395,992 of the remaining Republican votes can be accounted for as going to LaFollette who this year ran on his own party ticket. LaFollette votes heretofore have been accredited to the Republican Party.

The Democrats carried the Senate and the House of Representatives, in complete returns showing a total for the 74th congress of 318 in the house against 88 Republicans, 4 Farmer-Laborites, 7 Progressives, with 8 still in doubt. There are now 69 Democratic Senators, 25 Republicans, one Farmer-Labor and one Progressive. They also "cleaned up" in the states, winning all but eight of the governorships, two of the eight having been captured by Progressive and Farmer-Labor parties, leaving the Republicans only six governors. So it begins to appear that the Democrats have won.

The question now arises as to whether such a situation is really for the best interest of the Democratic party. The entire burden of the situation in the nation now lies in its lap. There can be no alibi in 1936 if things are not improved considerably, that "party" opposition prevented the return of prosperity. There is also the danger that congress may run away from the president's program and turn sharply to the left, thus injuring his program. There is also danger of the formation of blocs within the party, designated to put over drastic inflation, to tamper with tariffs, to make further efforts toward government interference with business and thereby stifle recovery, for there can be no recovery without more business. It is believed that the administration at Washington foresees these dangers. It may also realize that many of the incoming Democrats are not so strong for the New Deal as apparent on the surface. Some will want to go further to the left, while others will be determined to pull back to the right. These two sets of ideas will no doubt cause trouble in the ranks. Senator LaFollette has already sensed the possibility and has urged the president, it is said, to make a division on the floors of Congress, not partisan, but rather on a conservative radical basis. This would make a clean-cut issue of many questions and bring us nearer to the Old World political divisions.

The biggest surprises on November 6 were the Republican victory in Maryland where governor Ritchey was retired by Nice, Republican, and the Democratic landslide in Pennsylvania where Democrats upset the Republicans for the first time in recent history. Michigan, which left the Republican ranks in 1932, was switched back into the G. O. P.

In California, although defeated, Sniclair, the socialist in Democratic attire, polled over 747,000 votes and comes from under the debris shouting, "You haven't seen anything yet, we are just beginning; watch us in 1936."

While New Deal party leaders in Washington are wearing a broad grin and appear very jubilant over the victory, they are also wearing a surprised look. They didn't anticipate so much. In the Republicans ranks there appears to be a hopefullness and a determination to rebuild the party and immediately to launch a campaign for 1936. The Republican leaders were not surprised at the results of the election. They knew what was coming and spent very little money campaigning for two reasons: First, they had little, and, second, they believed they could under no circumstances match the Democratic expenditures which, they content, included the billions of dollars the administration was carefully allotting for "relief and revival". Republican leaders believe this expenditure cannot go on forever and that as soon as the well runs dry or inflationary methods are adopted the pendelum will swing back again.

MORE SPENDING AHEAD

The winter is again upon us. That the New Deal has not definitely solved the economic problems of the country and taken us out of the depression is evident by the feverish way in which plans are being drawn for the coming winter.

Just how much money will be appropriated by the next Congress for the PWA, remains to be seen. There are all sorts of guesses, one to the effect that $12,000,000,000 will be asked for, to finance a five-year building program. It is estimated that as much as $2,000,000,000 a year could be spent on low cost housing.

Another plan which is being discussed just now is one which would seek to rehabilitate the jobless by giving them lump sum loans.

All of this will cost a lot of money and somebody will have to pay the bill. Doubtless we will hear all sorts of suggestions for the raising of new revenues before the turn of the year.

One new tax proposal advocates a tax on pay rolls to support unemployment insurance. Some of the experts at Washington who have studied the unemployment insurance problem seem to be lieve that a tax on the payroll of those working is the most equitable way to finance the unemployment.

As to what the financial program will be, one mans's guess is as good as anothers. Certain it is that the New Deal has cost a lot of money and is going to cost a lot more in the next year. The taxpayer now seems to be the forgotten man. But he will not be forgotten when it comes to footing the bill.

EVIDENCE OF DISTRUST

President Roosevelt's subordinates should lay before him the comprehensive report on business conditions of the New England council.

He will find it informative and advistory and helpful.

The New England Council is composed of industrialists, bankers and commercial business men.

It is, as a whole, a liberal, forward-looking, ingenious organization.

The New England employers were asked by the Council if there is business uncertainty and lack of confidence among them.

Some 78 per cent of them replied that they do lack confidence. They gave the following as the major reasons for this condition:

Uncertainty regarding the administration's policy toward business.

Governmental interference with and control of business.

Excessive government expenditures, excessive government borrowings, unbalanced budget.

Uncertainty regarding the government's monetary policy; fear of inflation.

Distrust of the president's advisers.

These New Englanders are frank persons. They are daring. They have the pioneering instinct of their ancestors. They want to be helpful. They would like to expand their own businesses.

They compose a substantial element in American life and they want to see their country grow and prosper. President Roosevelt should accept their frank statement as compelling evidence of the distrust which exists and which has been increasing. He would then take proper steps to correct it.

ONE TOWN NEWSPAPER

We have heard a great deal in the newspaper systems, which are becoming more and more in evidence all the time.

Chase S. Osborne, former governor of Michigan, in an address at the twenty-fifth anniversary celebration of the Sigma Delta Chi, a fraternity of national journalists and active newspapermen, recently stated that the press is the greatest weapon in the world and that he did not believe that too much newspaper power in the hands of a few men was a good thing for the country.

"When we return to the individual ownership of newspapers," he continued, "the weekly and daily journal will again be a real guardian of the people's rights. The protection of the public and the dignity of the press will be increased."

Chain ownership, he said, encourages two forms of selfish purpose—one where editorial policy might bow to the business office, and the other a "tendency to enslave large blocs of the press to an individual's purely personal biases and to motives that may be questionable and dangerous.

"The subordination of many newspapers to the desires of a single individual likely made for much of the suspicion that attaches to the press today," he said. "Too much newspaper power in a few hands is a menace to the country, breeds distrust of the press, reduces its influence, and curtails the honor of being a newspaper man."

Governor Osborne has stated the case very succinctly for those who believe in sound, old fashioned journalism. There is one thing to be said for the weekly and small daily newspapers. Most of them have, up to this time, escaped the chain movement. They are individually owned and reflect the loyalty and good will of the editor and publisher toward the community in which he lives and in which his newspaper is printed.

Few men work more diligently for the public good, and with less reward considering the amount of service rendered, than the country editor. He is usually in the forefront of every movement which has for its purpose the furthering of the best interests of the community. If there is a movement on foot for a new hospital, a new playground or any sort of business enterprise which will help the community, the local editor is always on hand to contribute his best efforts, his time and his newspaper space—which is worth money—to the good of the cause.

The case with the so-called chain newspaper, owned by outside capital, directed by outside interests, with many and varied interests in different communities cannot be the same. There cannot be the same pride of ownership in the community in which the newspaper is published.

One of the things which the average small community has to be thankful for is the home owned, home edited newspaper, which is always seeking to do its best to build up the community in which it is located and through which it circulates.

One relief program which would be popular with millions of baseball fans would be to send all of last year's umpires to CCC camps next summer.

If you will pause long enough to analyze this administration's panaceas you may learn that almost without exception they have been designed to skin those citizens who were thrifty, industrious and self-denying in the past, and who looked forward to rainy days.

Somehow or other we have a hunch that the fellow who is going to need the most relief during the next few years and get the least of it is the taxpayer.

Station MITM

Station MITM, "Man in the Moon", is now broadcasting again. Believe it or not, lots of people called by to inquire why it was ever stopped, and I didn't have a very good reason to offer, except that I was just a bit tired, or something. I can't, for the life of me, see what there is in this column that people like, but evidently they do, and numbers of them have asked that it be continued, so I am setting out with it again. I don't know if I will be able to get across with it every week, but I'll try. You may not know it, but this job of filling a column every week gets quite monotonous. And there are weeks when there just isn't anything worth while to write about. Of course, when I can get into a stew with the editor of the News, (whoever that is), or can get my good friends, the Jacksons, all hot under the collar about something, I can have a grand and glorious time. But the News editor refuses to tell me or us who he is—maybe he is ashamed of the "honor"—and our good Uncles Joe and Gus Jackson have apparently gotten all they want—a full set of Democratic county officials—so I don't suppose I'll be able to raise anything with any of them. But just the same, I'll try to make the column interesting, and I'll be ready with it every week if I can.

We've Been To The Cleaners

Yes, sir, the Democrats (along with a lot of the Republicans) certainly did take us to the cleaners. And what a job they did of it. For all of which we must congratulate them. They have crowed a lot, but we can forgive that—they've been long enough getting in crowing position that we can't blame them. We want to assure them, too, that we will cooperate with them in all things and at all times for the purpose of good government. We want to see Chilton County prosper, above all things. But may Providence help them when they step off the straight and narrow pathway, or we think they have, for we'll be on hand to shoot the works when they give us a target to shoot at. And we will not use air-rifle shot, either, but will be loaded with pure TNT when we find their range. It's a funny thing. There is one advantage in being one of the minority. A man or set of men are bound to make mistakes—all men make them. And it is the sweet lot of the man in the minority to have the most and biggest targets to shoot at. In the majority we must always be on defense, but when the tables are turned, we then have full lee-way to shoot as hard, as long and as often as we see fit. We have nothing to lose and everything to gain. The Republican party of this county is not dead—not by a long shot. We polled about 47 per cent of the votes in the recent election, and when the thing is that nearly even, we are not near whipped. We are beaten, for the time, but not whipped. There are some 2,200 true and tried Republicans in Chilton, and lots of others who seem inclined to be jumpish—we'll be heard from later on. So, while we congratulate our opponents, like good sportsmen should, yet we also serve notice that their every act will be watched carefully and sifted for any flaws, and when we find them—well, it's just going to be too bad for the "booger man."

Enough Is Enough

Personally, I really like all of our opponents over the way, who go about the business of putting the Chilton County News into print. If I didn't like them, and consider all of them my personal friends, I wouldn't tell this little story on them—they might meet me near an alley some time. One of our good old steady, dyed-in-the-wool Republicans came into the Union-Banner office a few days ago, to renew his subscription. He was really hot. Here's the story he told us. Said he: "I've just come from the News office. I went in there a few minutes ago, and asked the nice young fellow who met me, just how much longer my subscription had to go. It was just about out, and he wanted to know if I wanted to renew. I didn't, and told him so, and why. I told him I had only taken his paper to really see what kind of bull they would shoot, but that I wanted no more of it. I gave him his orders to stop it, too, and told him that if he did send it on, and I caught any of my family reading it, I would quit the old lady and whip all the young'uns. I tried to impress on him that I didn't want his paper". Oh boy, he WAS hot. I wonder how many more there are like him.

Here Comes Huey

Once again Huey Long, the big "Louisiana Kingfish", is making the front pages of the newspapers. Huey, or "Hooey", as he has come to be known, is just about the last word when it comes to creating excitement. He has succeeded in curbing his home state of Louisiana like nobody's business. And now he has started in on the rest of the country—Huey wants to be president! Huey, once the swashbuckling greenhorn of the senate, who "came to town" in no uncertain manner, and set up a style all his own in the senate chamber, poking his jib into everything that came along, and talking his opponents into a daze, has changed his tactics. Once known as the heaviest drinker and the biggest clown in the senate, he has, of late, put on a new dignity befitting the title of senator, and has "gone on the water wagon—for good," so he says. No longer does he wish to be known as "The Kingfish", but now wants to be referred to as "Senator Long", with aspirations to the presidency. Every once in a while the new veneer slips off Huey, however, and he is again "the Kingfish" for a day, as was the case a few weeks ago, when he took the entire L. S. U. student body from Baton Rouge to Nashville to witness the L. S. U.-Vanderbilt football game, and led the band and the big parade through Nashville, in person. He is a born showman, and will do anything his fertile mind can conjure up for publicity. He plans to set up a new third party, with himself as its presidential candidate. He scoffs at the idea that his new party would be left far behind. "Shucks," says Huey, "the Republican party came into being as a third party, when the Whigs and the Democrats were the favorites, and the Republicans have not done so badly. Times are changing, and I'm going to change with them. These thousands of young voters don't like being bound by tradition. They want something with new life in it—something of their own, to vote for, and I'm going to give it to them." And that's Huey all over. He gets a big idea overnight, and sets about to put it into action the next morning. I can't say how far he will get, but there is one thing dead certain—Louisiana, "the land of mud and misery", will be back of him to a man. I just wonder what things are going to be like in Washington when the next congress meets. Theo Bilbo and Huey Long will both be on the job then. Bilbo was elected in Mississippi this year on the slogan that if elected he would "raise more hell than Huey Long". Now things ought to warm up a bit, to say the least, with both these masters of the art of hell-raising on the job. The senate will truly be caught between two consuming fires—those kept going by Bilbo and Long. Bilbo will have quite a time fulfilling his promise, though, is my guess.

White Supremacy?

Although, as I have pointed out numbers of times, most Democrats over the country have long since recognized that the Republican party was not a "nigger-lovin' gang," yet there have been a few prejudiced and misguided members of the Order of the Jackass who have not kept their eyes open sufficiently to recognize the above fact, and have kept right on harping on the old "white supremacy" tune. When Oscar DePriest was elected to congress as a Republican, how these old moss-back southern newspaper editors did howl. How they did glory in the chance to run a picture of the negro Republican congressman. And now, the boot is on the other foot, and I wonder what these same editors are going to have to say about it. In the recent election, a negro, Arthur W. Mitchell, was elected. When DePriest came to Washington, these southern Democratic congressmen refused to meet him, or to eat in the restaurant with him—and I can't blame them. But now, since "colleague" Mitchell will be sitting in the same pew with the honorable Messrs. from the lily-white South, and will have a hand in their deliberations, we wonder how they are going to get around hob-nobbing with him a bit. I wonder how they are going to leave him out when the hand-shaking starts, and when the Democratic banquets and social blow-outs are in order. And I just wonder how many pictures these Southern dailies are going to carry, showing "Hon. Arthur W. Mitchell (D) of Illinois." My guess is that you will not see a single one. Now, if he could only be a Republican, that would be something else again. Tell you what I'll do. I'm going to keep a sharp watch out in the newspapers (from the North) and when I see a picture of the "Hon. Mr. Mitchell" talking things over with his beloved Southern "brothers" from the dear old lily-white Democratic Southland, I'll get a cut of that picture and carry it in The Union-Banner so that any and all may see. And by the way, the Northern Democratic representatives vow they intend to see to it that Mitchell gets all the privileges to which a congressman is entitled. That will insure his dining with our Southern Democrats. I just want to see a picture of "Hon. Mitchell" dining along with some of our good Democratic brethren — "Buck" Oliver, for instance. — Man in the Moon.

NEW DEAL IN THE SOUTH

Dr. Neil Carothers, professor of economics at Lehigh University, who says that he is a true son of Dixie, transplanted in the North, declares that the South is being more harmed than helped by the New Deal and warns his fellow Southerners, as well as those in other parts of the country, against blind adherence to new theories because of partisan principles.

In an article in the Washington, D. C., Sunday Star, Prof. Carothers carefully outlines the ways in which he thinks the New Deal is more harmful than helpful to the states south of the Mason and Dixon line.

For example, he points out that the South, with its water power, coal and other advantages, is now becoming industrial, but that it is attaining this condition generations later than the North. As a result, labor in the South, being less trained, is less skilled than in the North and earns less money. The acquiring of this skill cannot be done over night, but is a long laborious process.

The Lehigh professor believes, therefore, that efforts to restrict industry and raise wages in the North, will rebound to the disadvantage of the South, and to the great advantage of the North. He says: "Wage differences between the South and North, due to differences in productivity and cost of living, are essential in the present stage of industrial development in the South. Equally vital is freedom to expand, to experiment and to improve processes. If the NRA with its blundering regimentation of hours, wages, cost, output and processes ever becomes a permanent part of a federal bureaucracy, your industries are in for trouble. NRA is at bottom fascism, and minorities do prosper under fascism." Higher wages, he adds, are of course needed in the South but they must come about through the free play of natural forces.

Prof. Carothers believes also that the government cotton program is injuring the South. Reduction of output has thrown many men out of work, and the raising of new crops on the idle lands has added to the depression in other parts of the country. And on the effects of the cotton program on the foreign market he says:

"Then there is the final cost in the loss of our cotton markets. There are 70 countries that grow cotton, and a small number that grow a great deal. For many years we have grown not far from an average of 15,000,000 bales, the rest of the world about 10,000,000. Last season we produced about half of the world crop of something over 25,000,000. This season, while we are growing 10,000,000 bales, our rivals are producing somewhere between 12,000,000 and 14,000,000 bales. The economic meddlers have finally managed to destroy our command of the world market in our greatest export commodity. This is just what happened to us in the Civil War. We recovered from the Civil War after a while. Whether we can recover from the AAA is another matter.

"In any event, our government is Santa Claus over a much wider area than was originally intended. We present today the slightly ludicrous spectacle of a nation straining its reduced resources to raise cotton prices and increase cotton markets for every cotton growing country in the world. The press reports that our Undersecretary of Agriculture is in Europe to find out what other countries are doing and thinking about agriculture. He will find out that they are not doing what this country is doing. If he finds out what they are thinking, he will be shocked. The European countries that own cotton-growing colonies will probably bestow on him their highest decorations."

It is said that some of the PWA plans will require over a century to work out. Part of the plan visualizes the planting of walnut trees which will not mature for 120 years. This, of course, would assure an ample supply of nuts for the year 2054, but if the present rate of increase in the supply of nuts keeps up, there won't be anything else but nuts by that time.

There's a new note in business, says a financial writer. But maybe it is just the old one renewed.

FIRST DARK HORSE CANDIDATE

James K. Polk was the first dark horse candidate for President of the United States, according to Franklin L. Burdette, Secretary of the West Virginia Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, writing in the current issue of the National Republic. Polk's nomination, he says, was a political upset and his election was a national surprise, due to the fact that his opponent, Henry Clay, wrote too many letters to explain his stand on the annexation of Texas. In part, Mr. Burdette writes:

"The campaign of 1844 began in earnest with the opening of the year. John Tyler, who had assumed the presidency upon the death of Harrison, had been read out of the Whig party for his oposition to its policies, and it was universally understood that Henry Clay would be the Whig candidate for president. Discriminating politicians believed, too, that Tyler, unable to arouse any enthusiasm in the Democratic ranks, would run as an independent candidate.

"As for the Democratic Party, it was generally regarded as a foregone conclusion that ex-president Martin Van Buren, who had been defeated for re-election in 1840, would be the nominee. He had been left by General Jackson as a legacy to the party, and while the South was in many quarters not particularly enthusiastic about the New Yorker, his position, unless something should 'turn up,' might be considered unbeatable. There were undoubtedly those who hoped fervently that something would turn up. Among them were John C. Calhoun, the great idol of South Carolina; Lewis Cass, of Michigan; James Buchanan, of Pennsylvania, and the ex-vice president, Col. Richard M. Johnson of Kentucky.

"In 1843 Mr. Calhoun retired from the senate the better to be groomed for the Presidency. James Hammond was procured to write and publish a political biography setting forth Mr. Calhoun's praiseworthy accomplishments from material furnished him by the hero himself. If he were ever to attain the presidency, Calhoun and all his associates realized that the opportunity was now at hand.

"Notwithstanding the activity of other candidates, Mr. Van Buren was making constant progress toward an assured nomination. State after state instructed its delegation to vote for him, and the popular speculation of the day soon began to revolve around the probable choice for second place. Those most frequently mentioned for this honor were Richard M. Johnson and James K. Polk. Colonel Johnson was still busily engaged in presenting his qualifications for the presidency, and it became the purpose of Polk to secure enough support to guarantee his own nomination before Colonel Johnson should abandon his presidential aspirations and become a serious rival for second place.

"As early as the fall of 1843 Polk had written his friends to use their influence with politicians of other states in his behalf. In January, 1844, S. H. Laughlin, a Tennessee political associate, procured from General Jackson letters to political leaders in various states in Polk's favor. On January 8, the Mississippi state convention nominated him for vice president, and in other states favorable sentiment soon began to grow. About this time William R. King of Alabama was also advanced as a candidate. In general, conservatives preferred King or Colonel Johnson; Polk was the candidate of the more aggressive and liberal elements. Old- line politicians like Buchanan, Calhoun and Thomas H. Benton were especially active in attempting to ruin Polk's prospects."

A BREAK FOR WILLIAM

Says a United Press dispatch for Detroit:

"The $600 William Kutzner will get for what he didn't do, was dedicated today to payment for what he wanted to do but didn't.

"It doesn't sound right, but it adds up, explained Farmer Kutzner.

"Kutzner borrowed $1,500 in 1931 to go into the pig business. During a delay he banked the money and the bank closed. So he did not go into the pig business.

"But his creditor sued for the $1,500.

"When the suit came to trial, Kutzner announced where he can get part of the money. It will come from the AAA for the pigs Kutzner didn't raise this year under the AAA production control program."

All of which is pretty fine for William. Now if the RFC will only help his bank "pay off" and he gets $900 on his frozen deposits William will be even with the world again. Then he can keep on failing to raise pigs, and gettnig paid by Uncle Sam for failing. It looks like a pretty good scheme from every angle but sooner or later somebody is going to have to do something positive. In order that Uncle Sam pay William for doing nothing, somebody is going to have to pay somebody for doing something. It is our idea that several people are going to have to do it. Among those who will pay "through the nose" is the fellow who does raise hogs and takes them to market, the fellow who buys regimented, process-taxed pork chops, and last but not least the taxpayer on whom Uncle Sam will have to call in the long run to pay for our Uncle's part in this monkey business, or should we say piggy business?

The government has already bought a million acres of poor land and plans to buy five million acres, moving the people off to better locations. Why not buy out all the rest of us who are not doing very well?—Jewell Co. Republican.

J. Z. MIMS THANKS VOTERS

Editor Union-Banner:

I take this method of thanking my friends and party associates who supported me in my race for Probate Judge. While I lost, the sting of defeat is largely assuaged by the loyalty of devoted friends.

The emoluments of the office of Circuit Clerk are not very great. During my twelve years in that office I have not been able to accumulate much of this world's goods, nor to maintain my family on a luxurious plane, but service has been my motto and not financial gain, nor political prestige my purpose. I have the consciousness of duty well performed, and it can never be said of me that I have proven ungrateful to my friends, nor a traitor to the party at whose hands I have received honor.

I shall ever remain true to the Republicans of this county, and I pledge my future efforts for a better and more noble Republican party, a party whose foundation is greater and whose purpose is more noble than that of serving the interest of any one man or any one family. In the spirit and language of the immortal Theodore Roosevelt: "I step back into the ranks but I do not quit the army."—Yours faithfully, J. Z. Mims.

W. G. CULP THANKS VOTERS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space to express my thanks to my many friends for their loyal support in my race for Tax Collector in the recent election.

I have been very busy with my tax sale and other matters and have not had time to express myself as I would like, but want to say this much at this time, that I am indeed grateful for your help and friendship and at some future date I expect to make a full statement to my friends.—Very truly yours, W. G. Culp.

MINSTREL AT THORSBY

A group of young men from Jemison will put on the Hogwallow Minstrel at Thorsby school, Thursday night, November 22 at seven-thirty. This entertainment is one of good, clean fun, and the proceeds will be used to complete the payment of the debt incurred by moving the primary children from the basement room of the school.

Fiddlers Convention

On Tuesday, November 27, a fiddlers convention will be held at the Thorsby school. Fiddlers from all over the county have been invited to compete for the prizes, which are listed below, with the names of the merchants making the donation:

Pair socks, V. J. Elmore; pair work pants, The Leader; man's tie, Chicago Sales Co; two-cell flashlight, Alred Drug Co.; hair brush, Calloway Drug Co.; pound fruit cake, Ward Baking Co.; pair men's socks, Tom Kemp; 1-lb box chocolates, Thorsby Fruit Store; $1 size hammer, Thorsby Hardware Co.; 1-lb can Maxwell House coffee, Thorsby Cash Store; 1 48-lb sack flour, Thorsby Market and Grocery; 24-lb sack flour, Willis Scott Grocery; pair socks, A. Z. Bean; work shirt, G. H. Harper; 1 call, Dr. H. G. Franklin; 5 gallons gasoline, Thorsby Garage; 1 fountain pen, Wright's Soda Fount; 1 pipe and can tobacco, Wyatt Drug Co.; 1 inner tube, Franklin Garage.

MT. PLEASANT 4-H CLUB

Our home demonstration agent, Miss Ruth Pardue, met with the girls on Tuesday morning, November 13, and reorganized our club. Twenty-four members were enrolled. Following are the officers for the year: President, Jewel Cost; vice president, Virginia Edwards; secretary and treasurere, Everee Smith; reporter, Lorene Price; cheer leader, Gladis Turner; song leader, Louise Parker; local leader, Mrs. D. W. Brown, and bookkeeper, Dorothy Jean Rush.

Clothing was selected as the project for the year. Our next meeting will be held December 7.—Lorene Price, reporter.

BOX SUPPER AT CONCORD

There will be a box supper given at Concord Jr. High School on Wednesday night, November 28th, beginning at seven o'clock. The proceeds will go for the benefit of the school. Everyone is invited.

TWO REPUBLICANS WIN

Only two Republican candidates managed to slip through Democracy's lines in Alabama at the November 6th general election, it was revealed by the official canvass of returns yesterday at the capitol. Both were elected members of the House of Representatives of the State Legislature. They are Norman C. Wilkes, who received a total of 5,458 votes, nosing our R. L. Tolbert, the Democratic nominee in DeKalb County, whose total was 5,247; and J. A. Posey, who defeated Mose A. Fincher, Democrat, in Winston County. Posey received 1,737 votes to Fincher's 1,113.

In Chilton County, which is normally Republican, C. B. Cox, Democrat, retired Percy M. Pitts by the comfortable margin of 2,688 to 2,114, in the race for representative. All Democratic nominees for seats in the state senate were elected.—Montgomery Advertiser.

ENTERPRISE CLUB NEWS

On Wednesday, November 11, Miss Pardue, our home demonstration agent, met with us and organized a 4-H club.

We elected officers as follows: Marzelle Kelley, president; Kate Courtney, vice president; Helen Mooney, secretary and treasurer; Zora Mae Tucker, reporter, Willodean Mooney, cheerleader; Mary Pearl Griffin, song leader; Christine Mims, record bookkeeper; Hazel Maddox, local leader.

Last year was our first year in club work. We did not have a very successful club, although we are striving to improve our club work for the coming year.—Reporter.

Mr. James Dunlap and son, James Warren, from Selma were visiting his sister Saturfday and Sunday. Jim says he's been unable to work for two months. He has been ailed with rheumatism.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Fiquette spent Sunday with Luther Arant and wife.

Mrs. T. W. Robinson made a trip to Birmingham Monday.

NEW SALEM SOCIAL CLUB

The New Salem Social club held its meeting at the home of Mrs. Texann Bussie the 15th of this month, with a large attendance. An enjoyable time was had by all.

The lucky number for the quilt which recently had chances sold on it, was twenty-one. The person having this number was Thomas Brown of Maplesville. Chances are being sold on another one.

Next time our meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Dochie Bean. We invite each of you to attend our meetings on Thursday before the third Sunday of each month.

Clyde Ward has been sick for the last few days. But he is able to work again.

CIRCUIT COURT CASES MONDAY

The second week of criminal court was convened Monday morning with Judge J. Fritz Thompson, of Birmingham, presiding. Considerable headway was made on the heavy docket the first day, with the following cases disposed of:

NINETY YEAR OLD RESIDENT LAID TO REST WEDNESDAY

Funeral services for Mrs. Susan Cooper, age 90, who died Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of her son, C. H. Cooper, in the Isabella community, were held Wednesday afternoon a 2 o'clock from the Pleasant Grove church. Dr. S. J. Ezell and the Reverend Honeycutt officiated. Burial was in the churchyard cemetery with Spigener Funeral Home in charge.

Mrs. Cooper's death came after an illness of little more than a week's duration. She became ill little more than a week ago, but hopes for her recovery were held until only a few days before her death.

She was a lifelong resident of the Isabella community, having been born only about three miles from where she died. She perhaps was the oldest person in the county.

Surviving her are five sons and daughters, C. H. Cooper, Maplesville Route 2; W. B. Cooper, E. W. Cooper, Mrs. Mariah Henley, all of Clanton, and Mrs. Essis Swint, of Columbus, Ga. She is also survived by seventeen grandchildren, thirty-five great-grandchildren, and six great-great-grandchildren.

REV. L. B. HEADLEY HERE

Rev. L. B. Headley, former resident of this county, but who for the past year has been at Logan, in Cullman County, in charge of the M. P. churches of that circuit, passed through Clanton this week, on his way to Pike County, near Troy, where he will do pastoral work for the next year.

Rev. Headley is the son of Mrs. Emmett Headley of Maplesville and was reared in the Fairview community.

VERMONT SCHOOL

Remember our Thanksgiving program which will be given on next Tuesday night, November 27, at 7:15 o'clock in the school auditorium.

Miss Cagle and Miss Manning motored to Montgomery last Saturday to witness the football game between Auburn and Florida.

Our P.-T. A. met in regular session on Thursday night, November 8. As a special feature Miss LeCroy, teacher at Pilgrims Rest, brought a group of children and presented a very appealing little program. Several parents accompanied them. A total of about 200 were present for both the meeting and exercise. The refreshments committee contributed their bit to the evening's festivities by serving a variety of cakes and punch, composed of fruit juices. Fifteen new members joined our P.-T. A. ranks which now makes an approximate total of 57. Several matters of business were discussed in connection with our drive towards the addition of necessary classroom equipment. Our next regular meeting will be held on Thursday night, Dec. 13. Come out and help make this one of our most enthusiastic meetings.

The school well is completed with the exception of installing the pumps. An order has been placed for this and we expect it some time this week.

Another test week is in session. Some expect to advance to a higher mark. We hope no one will be listed as a failure in any subject.

Attendance for this month will exceed that of last month. This should be a most gratifying announcement because various forces, such as work, illness, lack of necessary school supplies, etc., has tended from time to time to reduce our attendance percentage. The main spring of any measure of life is regularity. It leads to those larger and more abundant degrees of success of which we have all heard in familiar tones many times. The Vermont pupils have pledged themselves to not delay their educational attainments by irregular attendance except when unavoidable circumstances force this absence.

School will be dismissed next Wednesday for the Thanksgiving holidays. So here goes our heartiest wishes for a most pleasant Thanksgiving season.

Don't forget, folks, our fiddlers convention has been postponed until Saturday night, December 8. We are not relaxing in our plans to make it a huge success. Tell your friends about it and let's meet and have a good time.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson spent Friday night with Mr. and Mrs. J. Albert Culp of Mt. Pleasant and Saturday night and Sunday with Mr. Johnson's mother of Jemison.

Several parents visited our school on last Friday evening. That's the proper spirit, Vermont parents, visit your school and see just how the program of your child is advanced. Their teacher covet your kind cooperation and this is one way in which cooperation can be merited. Come out and see just what is happening in your school.

We regret deeply the loss of the family of Mr. and Mrs. D. Sansom and Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Gandy. The former is moving to Perry County, while the latter is moving to Wilcox County. Both families have been loyal patrons of Vermont school for several years and we are going to miss their presence.

Mr. Fant, county agent, and Miss Pardue, home demonstration agent, were in our school last Friday. They successfully organized the boys and girls 4-H clubs. R. P. Kendrick was elected president of the boy's club, and his twin sister, Frances, was elected president of the girl's club.

The Jr. III class met this week end elected class officers. A report of this meeting will be given next week.

The boy's and girl's basketball team expect to play a couple of practice games with Isabella and Maplesville soon.

We are glad to announce the addition of several new pupils to our school. This brings our enrollment up to 154.

Due to other programs, etc., the staging of the comedy drama play will be set back until after the Christmas holidays. You will see announcements relative to it later.

We'll see you next Tuesday night November 27, at Vermont Jr. High School at the Thanksgiving entertainment.

FRIENDSHIP NEWS

Friendship is still moving on with its work. Our Sunday school was good Sunday and B. Y. P. U. was fair, not as many as usual. We have prayer services every Wednesday night.

Next Sunday is our regular preaching Sunday and also singing Sunday evening at 1:30. We will have meeting the week following preaching Sunday and we expect to have all of our former pastors who have served our church with us, and expect to let them run the meeting as they wish. The church expects to let the preachers say when and who shall preach. We hope to have a meeting that will turn into a great revival. We hope to have our neighboring church with us.—J. Dudley Collins.

CHICKEN SUPPER AT OAK GROVE

There will be a chicken supper at Oak Grove school next Saturday night, sponsored by the teachers, for benefit of the school. Everybody is invited, special invitation to the County Superintendent of Education.

Come to silver tea next Saturday afternoon at Corner Drug Store from 2 to 4, November 24, sponsored by the W. M. S. ladies. Also they will have on display a quilt and spread, also anything antique, such as old money, books, letters, papers, etc. prizes will be awarded for oldest and prettiest quilt or spread; also prizes for oldest antique or money. Everybody invited to come and make this a success. Our W. M. S. consists of Baptist Christians, Presbyterians, Methodists and other workers.

Rev. W. H. Cook has been called as pastor to serve the Baptist church. He will preach the fourth Sunday. Everybody invited to come. We extend him a cordial welcome.

The Red Cross Roll Call progress is slow. But there is always a faithful few. Everybody will be given an opportunity to be a member of this great world wide organization.

Maplesville football team will enjoy a banquet at the school auditorium Thursday night. They will have 40 guests. The sponsors of the team are Misses Helen Nix, Cally Harris, Flora Jane Abney.

Mrs. Sam Martin and Miss Dorothy Sessions were in Montgomery Saturday.

Mr. Erlic Eiland was in Clanton Sunday.

Mrs. Barney Burnette and Miss Lucille Sherwood spent Saturday in Montevallo.

BOB JONES

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

This is being written on an ocean liner between Havre, France and Hamburg, Germany. We spent four most interesting hours in Havre today. Our party of six hired a taxi and "took in the sights." We had, of course, a French chauffeur. He was a rather magnetic personality who spoke some English. It so happened that Mrs. Jones and I were the only two members of our little party who had ever been abroad before. I heard Dr. Melvin Kyle, the great archaeologist, say in an address at the Bob Jones College several years ago that the greatest thrill he had ever known was the first time when after crossing the Atlantic he stepped upon foreign soil. It is a long way from Havre, France to our home in Cleveland, Tennessee; and yet it doesn't seem so far away.

On a hill in Havre after viewing a monument I asked our chauffeur if he fought in the war in 1914-1918. He made no reply but called me to one side, unbuttoned his shirt and showed me where a German stuck a bayonet in his stomach. It was a terrible looking scar. I have often said that I am sorry for a soldier who gets wounded, but I am sorry for a soldier who doesn't get wounded. Men glory in the scars of battle. My father was wounded in the right knee in the battle of Chicamauga. I used to think he thought more of that injured knee than he did my mother or any child he had. When the weather was bad or it was cloudy, the knee would get a little stiff and he would tell over and over again about how the Northern soldier at Chicamauga shot him through the knee. If God had a few million real Christian soldiers who would glory in their scars, what a different world it would be! Some day all of our scars which we have received in Christian battle will be turned into stars.

The steamship "City of Hamburg" on which we are traveling carries a great deal of freight. It is very interesting to watch them unload the cargo. "What is all that copper-looking metal?" I asked a ship officer. "It is metal just as it looks," he replied. "For ten years we have been bringing that in large quantities to Europe. It is my opinion that most of it is used to make munitions." Later, a gentleman who seems to know quite a good deal about international affairs told me that most of it is used for industrial purposes. No one can doubt that the world is headed toward a great war. The only thing which can save us is a revival of the old time religion. Men cannot worship the god of commerce and the god of sensuality and crowd Almighty God out of their plans without sooner or later witnessing the crumbling of civilization and the overthrow of the house of government. The devil told man in the garden of Eden to become like God. Man cannot do it. If all the nations of the world would cry unto God out of penitent hearts, civilization could be saved.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala., Nov. 19.—The mighty Crimsnn tide of the University of Alabama will rest this week end after a series of gridiron wars which have carried it surging against eight successive foes in as many week ends.

But on Thanksgiving day the Tide will roll into Birmingham for the climax of one of the most successful football dramas in which the Red Regiment has ever participated. The Crimsons will engage Vanderbilt's Commodores in the piece de resistance of Birmingham's Turkey Day menu.

Dan McGugin's men can be counted upon to give the Tide a great fight. Last year at Nashville, Alabama was just able to get over a touchdown and kick a point after touchdown to win the game 7-0 and the southeastern conference championship. With 12 days rest for both teams the two elevens should be in great shap for the last game of the season. The Alabama record to date is:

Alabama 24, Howard 0; Alabama 35, Sewanee 6; Alabama 41, Mississippi state 0; Alabama 13, Tennessee 6; Alabama 26, Georgia 6; Alabama 34, Kentucky 14; Alabama 40, Clemson 0; Alabama 40, Ga. Tech 0.

Added proof that the stars are not black is presented by Dr. B. A. Wootne, head of the department of physics and professor of astronomy at the University of Alabama, and Dr. W. W. Morgan of Yerkes Atsronomical Observatory, in the current issue of the Astro-physical Journal" which appears this week.

Prof. T. Earle Johnson, head of the department of dramatics at the University, spent November 16-18 in Florence where he conducted a dramatic institute for TVA employees at Florence and assisted in the organization of a little Theater for these employees.

Dr. Chauncey D. Leake, professor of pharmacology at the University of California, visited the University of Alabama this week and made an address before students in the school of medicine. Dr. Leake declared that the esprit de corps among the students and faculty at the medical school is one of the finest that he has observed in any medical school in this country. He also accorded high compliments to the investigative work being carried on by members of the medical faculty.

The first complete bibliography of the geology of Alabama ever prepared will appear in about two months. It will appear in "the History of the Work of Geological Surveys and Industrial Devtlopment of Alabama" by Dr. Walter B. Jones, state geologist. The bibliography was compiled by Roland M. Harper of the Survey staff.

The annual conference of Alabama Methodist students was held on the University campus Friday, Saturday and Sunday, November 16-18. The keynote of the conference was "Dare We Be Christian in Our Economic Order," and the keynote address was made by Dr. William Watkins of Emory University.

Why Liquid Laxatives are Back in Favor

The public is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have learned that the right dose of a properly prepared liquid laxative will bring a more natural movement without any discomfort at the time, or after.

The dose of a liquid laxative can be varied to suit the needs of the individual. The action can thus be regulated. A child is easily given the right dose. And mild liquid laxatives do not irritate the kidneys.

Doctors are generally agreed that senna is a natural laxative. It does not drain the system like the cathartics that leave you so thirsty. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a liquid laxative which relies on senna for its laxative action. It gently helps the average person's constipated bowels until nature restores their regularity.

You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store, ready for use.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

ALABAMA CROPS WORTH $53,000,000 MORE THIS YEAR

The farm value of crops produced by Alabama farmers this year is $53,000,000 more than the crops harvested last year, reports F. W. Gist, state and federal agricultural statistician, who places the value of this year's crops at $176,163,000 compared with $123,191,000 last year.

"The farm value of twelve crops produced in Alabama this year, for which prices are at present available, totals $137,747,000 compared with a value of $95,946,000 for the same crops last year," Gist said. "Using the same ratio for all crops produced the total farm value of all crops this year would be $176,163,000, compared with $123,191,000 last year, or an increase for this year over last of 43 per cent.

"The cash income from all crops last year was reported at $65,690,000. With the same ratio of increase this year the cash income would be $93,937,000. The additional farm value of all crops this year is indicated as fifty-three million dollars and the additional cash income at twenty-eight million. These figures are wholly tentative, being based on current crop prices for the twelve crops indicated and does not include any livestock values. The increases indicated are, as will be noted, due both to additional production of some crops and higher prices for practically all the crops."

Sanders Agrees With Dr. Gragg

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space to say a few words about Dr. Gragg's letter in last week's paper.

The words "Group Hospitalization" captured my attention and I read his letter first. His invitation to give our views on such organization, I accept and not only to Dr. Gragg but the entire county.

You remember when I announced as a candidate for Representative to the Legislature, the first plank in my platform was to establish a free hospital in Chilton County for it's people. I said, "The people's health should be protected in an organized way." And this I still say. Some might say that since Dr. Gragg is the head of the Central Alabama Hospital, that he is looking out for self interest and expecting a big job. The charitable operations that Dr. Gragg has performed is evidence that he wants to do something for the public. He is in a position to know the financial condition of most of those having operations performed.

You remember a few days before the tornado swept Chilton County that the hospital had to be closed down. This was caused by the poor people being unable to pay their bills. The hospital was not collecting enough to pay its expenses. Therefore it was almost a charitable institution on the shoulders of a few. Hospital and doctor bills are always higher when only a few pay. People should not be left to suffer and die because they are poor. So you see, the more that can pay has to pay enough to give service to those that cannot pay. However, this doesn't seem fair. These practices can be greatly eliminated if the people will come together and establish a system to give medical and surgical aid in a cooperative way.

Chilton County needs a hospital to build up the physical part of the individual, as well as a school to build the mental part. We have in Chilton County, five high schools, 11 juniors, thirty-two elementaries and twenty Negro schools, making a total of sixty-eight school buildings. The erection and equipment of these schools cost the people large sums of money, besides the expense of operating them. It seems that if the people can erect and equip sixty-eight schools and furnish each of them from one to eight teachers, to build up the mental part of their children, surely they can erect and equip one hospital and pay a doctor and sufficient nurses to build up the physical part of both children and adults.

There are scores of children in the schools who are unable to make their grades on account of enlarged tonsils, adenoids and bad eyes. It would be economy for the county to pay for whatever medical or surgical attention these children need, in order that they might get through school in a shorter length of time.

No only would it enable them to get through school earlier, but would be the means of developing stronger men and women, who, in the future, by such aid, would be an asset instead of a liability to the county.

There are numbers of men going about their daily work in misery, wearing uncomfortable belts, trying to hold up their rupture. This could be eliminated with little expense if we had a hospital supported by the general public. Scores of women with various disorders suffer and sometimes die for the want of attention. Minor operations in time would eliminate much suffering and possibly be the means of saving one's life.

People who's finances are very limited often pay the death penalty for not being able to have the proper operation performed. A person's health or life should not be at the mercy of the dollar. What per cent of the people in Chilton County would be able to pay a hospital bill if they had to have an operation today? Would there not be numbers that would suffer if they were not permitted on the credit or charitable list?

I do not know just what kind of organization Dr. Gragg has in mind, nor how he expects to finance it. But I am sure he has some feasible organization that will render a great service if the people will only give it their support. I hope the people will seriously consider this question and take some step toward the establishment of a hospital to serve one of our greatest needs.—W. L. Sanders.

CEDAR GROVE

Our Sunday school is still living, although it is not what it could and should be. We are still living in hope that the parents will become more interested in the way they should raise their children, and will live a life before them that will be pleasing to the Lord.

We had a fine singing at the home of Mr. John Rollins Saturday night. It was well attended and enjoyed by all. It was given in honor of Mr. C. N. Eiland's birthday. We hope he may live to enjoy many more birthdays.

Mr. and Mrs. Alphus Littlejohn and baby spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Littlejohn.—A reader.

DO YOU GET UP NIGHTS?

ARE YOU OVER 40?

If so, nature is warning you of danger ahead. Get rid of your trouble early. Make this 25c test. Get Juniper Oil, Buchu leaves, etc., in green tablets. Ask for BUKETS, the bladder laxative. Take 12 of them in four days; if not pleased go back and get your money. BUKETS work on the bladder similar to castor oil on the bowels. Flushes out excess acids and other impurities which cause getting up nights, frequent desire, scanty flow, burning, backache or leg pains. You are bound to feel better after this flushing and you get your regular sleep. Guaranteed by Alred Drug Co., and Upchurch Drug Co.

WHAT NEGROES ARE DOING

Farmers Conference at Tuskegee

The forty-fourth annual negro farmers conference will convene Wednesday, December 5th. The general theme for discussion will be "Rehabilitation and the Negro in Town, City and Country." Mr. Thad Holt, of Alabama Relief Administration, will be the principal speaker.

These will be group meetings for farmers, teachers, preachers and persons interested in industry. It is hoped that at least 25 persons will represent Chilton County. The Chilton County party will leave Clanton at 6:30 Wednesday morning. See me and I can arrange for your trip.

The N. F. A. Club News

The members of the club are offering their assistance to farmers who would like to have their old orchards renovated. Already they have agreed to help Mr. L. A. Price and Mr. Otho McKinney. They stand ready to help any farmer improve his orchard. Let them help you. They are already going forward with terracing.

Debate

The N. F. A. and H. E. clubs are planning a debate in the near future. The subject is "Resolve that Home Economics is more inportant than Vocational Agriculture." This debate promises to be very hotly contested with representatives on each side saying they can't lose.

Evening School Organized

Miss Rose V. Lee, teacher of Home Economics has just organized her adult evening class with a large enrollment. It is hoped that home-makers in this community will come out and learn how one might make the home a better and more comfortable place in which to live.

OAK GROVE

There will be a supper at this place Saturday night, November 24. Everybody is invited to come. There will be plenty of cakes, chicken sandwiches and other things. There will be a cake for the prettiest girl and ugliest boy. Come. You might win. Who can tell? We will also have plenty of music. Plates will be 25c each. We urge you to come and see for yourself just what all good things we will have to eat. Benefits will go for the school.

Good Seed Half The Battle

I have about 35 bushels of B. F. Summerhour half and half, seven-eighths inch staple cotton seed. Grown the first year absolutely pure. Ask Popwell. This cotton will make the farmer more money than any he can plant. I will swap as long as they last, one for two or sell $1.25 per bushel. Once you plant this variety you can grow it if you will plant no other. It turns out the lint.

$291,430 Hydro Tax Paid To Schools Of Alabama

Martin Hands Check to Butler for Part of $2,200,000 Taxes for Year 1934

Birmingham, Ala.—Oct. 24.—Mr. Thomas W. Martin, President, Alabama Power Company, today delivered to Mr. S. R. Butler, Chairman, State Tax Commission, check of Alabama Power Company for $291,430.41, to cover the hydro-electric kilowatt hour taxes for the benefit of the special educational trust fund of the State. Upon delivery of this check to Mr. Butler, Mr. Martin stated that the company was very glad indeed to be able to contribute this amount to education, especially at a time when educational funds have been curtailed in so many respects.

The entire amount of this check will be devoted to educational purposes. From previous years' distributions of the Educational Trust Fund, it appears that from this payment by the Power Company today, counties will receive for elementary and high schools $171,000; and State institutions, $120,000. Among the larger beneficiaries appear to be the five Teachers' Colleges, $19,000; Alabama College at Montevallo, $10,000; Alabama Polytechnic Institute, $32,000; University of Alabama, $23,000; Jefferson County, $12,000; Montgomery County, $4,000; Mobile County, $4,000; Walker County, $5,000; Cullman County, $5,500.

Mr. Martin further stated that the Company's total taxes for 1934 would approximate $2,200,000 and that the company continued to be the State's largest taxpayer, its ad valorem assessments for 1934 being the highest in the Company's history, contrasted with statewide tax reductions of approximately 25% since 1930.

The check for approximately $40,000 paid by the TVA some months ago went into the general fund of the State and only a small percentage of such fund is available for educational purposes.

Modernize Your Home Lighting

The campaign for converting old style floor lamps into modern serviceable I.E.S. student lamps is meeting with phenomenal success. The demand for parts is taxing the facilities of the jobbers. If you have not seen how simply this conversion can be done, ask your Home Lighting Specialist for a demonstration. With an expenditure of between $3.50 and $4.50, you can have a really modern lighting fixture, and learn what a comfort adequate lighting is. Almost upon us are the winter months, when lighting is such an important factor. Tell your friends of this plan of modernizing their present lamps, and pass on all prospects you can to your Home Lighting Specialist.

Willkie Addresses Birmingham Rotarians

Commonwealth & Southern President Discusses Power Problems

JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES
In Birmingham Age-Herald Nov. 8, 1934

To say that President Wendell L. Willkie, of Commonwealth & Southern, is a fine speaker and that his address to the Rotary Club Wednesday impressed everyone is putting the matter mildly. Birmingham has now had an opportunity to hear—from Mr. Willkie and Mr. Lilienthal—brilliant expositions of the two sides of the TVA question, and it would be hard to say which side has been the more appealingly put. Summarizing Mr. Wilkie's arguments, they run like this: (1) Given the write-downs, donations, low freight rates, lower taxes and other advantages the which he says make possible the TVA retail rates, the Alabama Power Company could give rates 30 per cent lower than TVA rates, and (2) private capital, no matter where it comes from, is better in the long run than federal capital or no capital at all.

Give Electrical Gifts This Xmas.

Once upon a time Christmas shopping was a slow, tedious affair—or else a "free-for-all" fight at bargain counters. In either case, all too often friends and relatives received gifts they did not want or could not use to advantage.

Fortunately, electrical appliances have simplified Christmas giving. Everybody wants them. Everybody can use them. For your convenience, a few Christmas suggestions are listed below:

Up to $1.95—Small lamps, hot plates, hair curlers, lamp bulbs.

$2.00 to $3.95—Egg cooker sets, heating pads, toasters, table lamps, percolators, clocks.

$4.00 to $5.95—Percolators, heaters, waffle irons, toasters, hand irons, lamps.

$5.95 to $9.95—Waffle irons, heating pads, table lamps, clocks, percolators.

$9.95 to $19.95—Cleaners, mixers, floor lamps, urn sets, cookers, percolators.

$19.95 to $79.50—Mixers, radios, cleaners, refrigerators, washing machines.

$79.50 and up—Ranges, radios, washing machines, refrigerators, dishwashers.

Let us help you with your Christmas shopping, or visit your Electrical Appliance Dealer.

If your child has to hold the book he is reading closer than 14 inches, the chances are his eyes are being strained. The remedy is eye-glasses or better lighting, or both.

TO THOSE IN ARREARS WITH BILLS TO DR. GRAGG

Listen folks, if you think I don't need what you owe me, you are badly mistaken.

I owe some just debts myself and the reason I have not already paid them, is because I am collecting so little myself.4 How can I pay when so few are paying me?

I just notice that people who have been owing me for years, can pay fines and court cost without trouble, but can't reach me.

Now, if you can't settle your account in full, you can pay some. If you can't pay the money, bring shelled corn or peas or peanuts. I will allow you the market price or better where you find it difficult to pay the money on your accounts.

If you think your bill is rather large, come and let's talk it over, maybe we could "scale" it down some for the cash.

I thought my practice was among the best classes, but the way they are paying off certainly doesn't look that way.

Come, let's get together. Pay me and let me pay the man I owe and we'll all be glad. Please don't put this matter off. I need it now.

Yours truly,

V. J. GRAGG

FIRE AT DENNIS GIN

The fire department was called early last Sunday morning to the J. N. Dennis Gin, where a fire of unknown origin, had been discovered at one of the ventilators on top of the building.

The fire fighters were able to stop the blaze before much damage was done. Prompt and efficient work averted what easily might have been a disastrous outcome for the gin plant.

A Resume Of The More Important Events Of Interest Condensed To An Epitomized Form

The first of the series of four concerts of the Birmnigham Civic Symphony Orchestra will be given at the Municipal Auditorium Nov. 20.

Leaders of the Episcopal Church in Alabama gathered in Montgomery for a two-day conference to perfect plans for the Alabama diocese during 1935.

An explosion beneath the bridge of the coastwise tanker Caliche, set fire to the vessel and caused the probable death of one seaman and injuries to 11 others.

Birmingham soon will be placed on the Newark-New Orleans air mail and passenger route, thereby restoring to Birmingham its former air connection with New Orleans.

Hundreds of cattle, fattened on Alabama pasture lands, are arriving in Montgomery daily and departing hours later in attractive cans as roast beef for the needy this Winter.

The farm value of Alabama's 16 crops this year was estimated at $176,163,000 by F. W. Gist, state and federal statistician, to show a gain of more than $50,000,000 over 1933

Twenty-two doctors and others from Alabama will be on the program for the twenty-eighth annual convention of the Southern Medical Association which meets in San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 13-16.

Two indictments charging election law violations were returned by a DeKalb County Grand Jury which has been investigating claims of irregularities in Tuesday's general election in the county.

Hundreds of delegates and visitors were in Birmingham for the opening of the annual session of the North Alabama Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at the Ensley Methodist Church.

F. W. Gist, federal and state agricultural statistician reported that the monthly survey of cotton crop conditions in Alabama did not warrant any change in the October forecast of a crop of 980,000 bales.

Thomas E. Knight, Jr., attorney general, ruled that L. A. Whetstone, tax assessor of Jefferson County, was not liable for $1,000 interest on certain commissions collected on school funds which were not paid into the county treasury until several months after their collection.

Florida industries, and especially its fisheries industry, would be affected adversely by the proposed general freight charge increase, representatives of shippers there testified at the Interstate Commerce Commission inquiry which Commissioner Joseph Tate is conducting.

Under observation of national guardsmen, Sheriff S. W. Pope, of DeKalb County, was sent to jail for contempt of court and was replaced by Coroner John Baxter, a Democrat, as a climax to the controversy between Democrats and Republicans following the general election Nov. 6.

Highway enthusiasts of Birmingham, including members of the recently-formed Alabama Tourists Association, were in Florence recently at a highway meeting held with local leaders in connection with the proposal to bring Southbound tourists through Alabama this Fall and Winter.

High freight rates to the heavy melting centers of the country have been reflected in declining pig iron production in this district, W. B. Lewis, traffic manager of the Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Company, said at the Interstate Commission hearing on the rate increase asked by railroads.

Thad Holt, state relief director, announced that the new terracing plan of the Alabama Relief Administration had been approved by 16 counties and that Perry and Autauga Counties had proposed construction projects that would employ almost every able-bodied person on the relief lists in these two counties.

The importance of Birmingham, an industrial center, as a point of origin for air mail was stressed by S. A. Cisler, Washington, general superintendent of the government air mail and railway mail service, in a talk before the Birmingham Civitan Club recently.

William F. Feagin, director of the State Board of Administration, announced the resignation of Dr. I. F. Spengler, of Birmingham, as state prison dentist, and the appointment of Dr. Oren Johnson, of Montgomery, to complete the unexpired term.

Messrs. Bill Simpson and Horiss Ellison spent the past week end in Montgomery.

Red Cross Roll Ends In Chilton County

Final Reports Should Be Sent To J. Mell Martin After Saturday

The annual Red Cross Roll call, which has been in progress since Armistice Day, will come to a close with the end of this week. Officially the drive for membership would end on Thanksgiving Day, but Mr. J. Mell Martin, roll call chairman for Chilton County, stated Monday that he will not end the campaign in this county until Saturday night of this week.

The response of membership enrollments has been highly gratifying so far, according to Mr. Martin, but he insists that workers continue solicitation to Saturday night, in order that Chilton's quota of 500 members may be reached.

Workers in some rural communities have requested information about the matter of accepting produce in payment of Red Cross memberships. Mr. Martin has worked out a plan whereby such can be accepted, and he urges all workers to accept either good thick sorghum syrup, cane syrup, or corn, in payment of Red Cross memberships. The syrup must be in gallon cans, or if a large quantity, in barrels.

Any roll call worker is, therefore, authorized to accept syrup or corn and issue membership cards to the persons from whom received. Mr. Martin wishes it to be understood that sweet potatoes can not be accepted for this purpose.

All workers are urged to continue their efforts and completely cover the field of prospects during this week, and make prompt reports of all members enlisted directly to Mr. Martin immediately after the end of this week.

HARDY-CHILDRESS MARRIAGE LAST WEDNEDAY NIGHT, NOV. 21

A marriage of much interest to the many friends of the contracting parties occured last Wednesday night when Mr. John R. Hardy, of Clanton and Mrs. Roberta Bean Childress, of Thorsby, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony.

Mrs. Hardy is one of the popular young matrons of Thorsby, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Z. Bean.

Mr. Hardy has for several years been chief of police of Clanton, and was recently elected Sheriff of Chilton County.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Hardy throughout Chilton County join in expressing their hearty congratulations and best wishes.

AGED RESIDENT OF MAPLESVILLE DIES

B. L. Woolley, 76, well known resident of Maplesville, died suddenly at 11 o'clock Friday morning at his home. He had been a resident of Maplesville for the past 40 years, and was engaged in farming.

Mr. Woolley is survived by his wife, Mrs. Sue Woolley; two daughters, Mrs. W. A. Gore, Selma, and Mrs. T. V. Abercrombie, of Robertsdale; by one brother, R. B. Woolley, of St. Petersburg, Fla., formerly of Selma; and by one nephew, Wood Woolley, of Selma.

He was a member of the Baptist Church.

ALABAMA TEMPERANCE ALLIANCE TO MEET DEC. 5

Wednesday, December 5th, at the First Methodist Church, Birmingham, at 10:00 a.m., will be held the Annual meeting of the Alabama Temperance Alliance for the purpose of perfecting plans to further the organization, the election of officers and such other business as may properly come before it.

Sergeant Alvin C. York, World War hero, the man who is credited with having held North and South Carolina against repeal, will be the principal speaker at 11:00 a. m. He will also speak that night at 7:30 at the First Methodist Church at a Temperance mass meeting. His subject, "Why I am For Prohibition." Admission free.

Let every one who wants to hold our Alabama prohibition laws and are opposed to the manufacture and sale of beer, wine and whiskey, and all the rest, come to this meeting.

Tragedy Wipes Out Complete Family At Home in Demopolis

Demopolis, Ala. Nov. 25.—Frank Clements Smith, cashier of the Commercial National Bank here, his wife, and two children, were found shot to death in their home this morning. the bodies were discovered by a maid in the home when she went to call them for breakfast. Mrs. Smith's body, fully clothed, was lying crosswise on her bed with two bullet wounds in her chest.

Her three-year-old son, Frank Alstine, Jr., by a former marriage, lay uncovered upon the bed, a bullet hole through the head.

Mr. Smith's body was upon the floor and near the bed. He was clad in pajamas, with a bullet wound fringed by powder burns in his head.

Their infant daughter, Sabre, a few months old, was in her crib. She was tightly tucked in and apprently had been shot as she slept, the slayer standing directly over her and firing through the screen over the crib. The bullet entered her mouth.

Two pistols were found. One was an automatic which, according to Coroner Hickman was owned by Mr. Smith. It was in a closet in the bedroom, contained several steel jacketed bullets and had been fired four times.

The other was a .32 caliber revolver, which Coroner Hickman said had been identified as the property of Mrs. Smith. It was found under the edge of the bed and near Mr. Smith, and cointained three shells, and several cartridges with lead bullets.

Four automatic shells were found on the floor, and investigation, the Coroner said, disclosed that Mrs. Smith had been shot with two steel jacketed bullets, the boy with a third and the baby with a fourth steel bullet.

PASTOR'S CONFERENCE

The Public Debt And New Deal

Some Big Figures On The Cost of Operating the Federal Government

On February 28, 1933, when the Roosevelt party came into power the public debt stood at $20,584,310,000. On August 31, 1934, it stood at $26,495,065,000—an increase of nearly 6 Billion Dollars. During the past two Congresses additional specific appropriations of 25 Billion Dollars which will make our national debt stand at over 45 Billion Dollars or twice the total national debt at the time they took charge. Only two years of power, and this does not include 7 Billion Dollars worth of mortgages and Bonds of the H. O. L. C. or F. L. B. guaranteed both principal and interest by the Federal Government.

During the first fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, the Roosevelt administration had a 4 Billion Dollar Deficit and went in the hole at the rate of $11,000,000 a day for every day in the year, including Sundays:

On a Day Basis
Expenditures	$19,000,000
Receipts	8,000,000
Deficit per day	11,000,000
On an Hour Basis
Expenditures	811,000
Receipts	355,000
Deficit per hour	455,000
On a Minute Basis
Expenditures	13,518
Receipts	5,928
Deficit ped minute	7,590

The U. S. Government is now spending $2.28 for every dollar it takes in.

Farm Bureau Thanksgiving Program At The Courthouse

Mr. Fant and Miss Pardue Expect Large Attendance of People From Every Part of Chilton County

Dear Farm and Women Leaders:

As the Thanksgiving Season approaches it is only fitting that we stop and give thanks for the many, many, blessings we are privileged to enjoy each day. Without thinking, we are sometimes guilty of doing just as the pig that grunts his satisfaction as he eats the acorns and never looks up to thank the old oak tree. So—

We are inviting all the farm men and women in the county to meet in the court room at 10:00 a.m., Thursday, November 29th, for a short Thanksgiving service.

Make your plans to come to the meeting promptly at 10:00 a.m., and you will be home in ample time for your turkey dinner. The program will consist of congregational singing, quartets, new cotton program, and Thanksgiving service.

Attendance at this meeting should come before every other consideration. Do not let ANYTHING keep you from coming.

J. W. FANT, County Agent.
RUTH PARDUE, Home Agent.

E. M. Bean Wants His Property Included in City Limits

Mayor C. Fenn Jones has received one very favorable and encouraging response already to the proposed plan to extend the corporate limits of Clanton.

Mr. E. M. Bean, of Sylacauga, who owns some property near Clanton, wrote Mayor Jones Monday as follows:

"I notice in the paper that you are going to extend the corporate limits of Clanton up as far as Willis place. I hope you will run the section lines as far west as the old Birmingham Highway and take in my place."

Mayor Jones was gratified to receive this very friendly expression from Mr. Bean. It indicates that the idea of being included in the corporate limits of Clanton will not be opposed by property owners who will take the time to find out just what advantages will comes to them through the plan.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR J. M. TODD HELD AT COOPER TUES.

The Rev. J. W. Jones officiated. Burial was in the churchyard cemetery with Spigner in charge.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Todd; two brothers, Herman and Charles Todd; three sisters, Mrs. Thelma Driver, Mildred and Margie Todd, all of Cooper.

Isabella Trounces Clanton Boys 6 to 0

Last Game of Season Played At High School Last Friday Afternoon

Coach Porch's Isabella High football team "came to town" in a big way Friday afternoon, and defeated the Chilton Tigers 6 to 0.

The Isabella team ran the ends with ease, and slammed through the line for several nice gains. In addition to this, they showed up with a strong air attack, and very few of their passes missed.

Chilton, finding their running and line game bottled up by the inef Isabela defense, took to the air, and made several good gains, although many of their passes were knocked down, and two were intercepted.

Early in the fourth quarter, Martin, the spark plug of the Isabella team, intercepted a Chilton pass about the Chilton 40-yard line, and galloped down the side-line, amply protected, for the lone marker of the game. The try for extra point failed.

The Tigers were putting up a listless game throughout, never displaying the fight so evident in their game with Holtville a week before. On the other hand, Isabella was in there scrapping every minute, striving for their first victory over the Orange and Blue. In all their contests up to last year, Chilton has won. Last year the game was a tie, and Isabella came through this year to win.

On the strength of this victory, Coach Porch's boys are claiming the county championship. They have played eight games, winning three, losing two, and tying two. Yet they have not been beaten within the county.

Isabella's starting line-up was as follows: Griffin, LE; Deason, LT; White, LG; B. LeCroy, C; Veazey, RG; Turner, RT; Williams, RE; Martin, QB; W. LeCroy, LHB; Conway, RHB; B. Jones, FB.

To Make Clanton A Bigger Town

Mayor Jones Discusses Plans To Enlarge The Corporate Limits

Considerable interest is being manifested by Mayor C. Fenn Jones and other officials and citizens of Clanton community in the proposition which is proposed for making Clanton a bigger town by the route of legislative action to extend the cooperate limits to take in much territory not now included in the town.

While definite outline has not been made yet, it is stated by Mayor Jones that tentative plans provide for making the corporate area of the town to cover a distance of two and a half miles square. This, it is stated, would make the population of Clanton about 3,500, instead of its present 1,800.

Mayor Jones states that he is conducting a little talking campaign in favor of the extension project, which has been extensively discussed by the Town Council. Those who will be affected by the plan are being approached with explanations of how they will be affected, and the benefits that would be possible to them individually and the community as a whole by making the area of Clanton larger.

Roughly speaking, it is stated that the extension plans would reach south about to the J. N. Dennis home; north to take in the vicinity of Willis Tourist Camp, taking in the Alabama Mill village; west to take in the Candler Terrace subdivision; northeast on Lay Dam Road to the Dudley Collins place; and east to the home of Dr. W. L. Parrish.

Discussing the proposition Mayor Jones said: "It is my aim to be guided by the wishes of the majority of the people affected. We expect to extend a friendly invitation to our neighbors to become a part of the town, and in doing so we believe we can offer them advantages which will make it worthwhile to everybody concerned."

Official cotton statistics show that there were ginned in Chilton County, 11,881 bales prior to November 14, this year, as compared with 12,026 bales ginned prior to the same date last year.

Prominent Speakers At Kiwanis Meeting

Congressman Oliver and Judge Thompson Were Guests Thursday Night

The Clanton Kiwanis Club enjoyed an exceptionly interesting meeting at the Exchange Hotel last Thursday evening, when a number of distinguished guests appeared on the program for presentation of subjects of keen interest to Kiwanians.

The main address of the occasion was made by Congressman W. B. Oliver, who was in our city Thursday and stayed over Thursday night in response to many pressing repuests that he make an address to the club.

Judge J. Fritz Thompson, of Birmingham, who was presiding at Circuit Court here last week, was a guest of the club, and in a short speech gained a delightful expression of interest from his hearers.

Miss Doris Duke, of Dublin, Ga., was at the meeting, in the interest of establishing a commercial school in Clanton. After stating her plans to the club a committee of club members was appointed to confer with her and determine further steps toward sponsoring her proposition.

Miss Kitty Clyde Austin, director of relief in Chilton County, captured the interest of the audience with her fine expression and interpretation of the permanent rehabilitation farm plan into which the federal relief organization is being converted.

Miss Nolan Meroney, superintendent of child welfare in Chilton County, discussed her hopes and plans for the underprivileged in Chilton County, and gained the assurance that her work will have the full interest and support of the Kiwanis Club.

Miss Margaret Kendrick, of the high school facutly, was a guest, and took the part of pianist in the absence of Mrs. Pitts.

At a short busines meeting of the Board of Directors following the meeting, Mack Wyatt was elected as secretary of the club for the next year, succeeding Dan Waite.

FROM REV. HODO

Bessemer, Ala., Nov. 23.

Dear Editor:

Received my copy of The Union-Banner which was indeed a glad surprise. It was certainly "like a letter from home." We met with many while at Clanton whom we learned to love and appreciate as friends, and to get a copy of your paper is so much like a visit to Clanton and meeting those friends again.

We surely do appreciate your interest in sending the paper to us and will say again it is certainly a splendid little paper. We enjoy reading its pages each week and wish The Union-Banner much success. And as Christmas and New Year draw near, we wish you much happiness and good cheer. Sincerely, W. E. Hodo and Family.

PATTERSON-WYATT WEDDING

At the home of Rev. G. G. Williams west of Clanton Saturday evening, Mr. Chester Wyatt was married to Miss Jewell Patterson, Rev. Williams performing the ceremony.

Chester Wyatt is the son of Will H. Wyatt of Concord community. His bride is the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Patterson, formerly of this county but now of Coal Creek, Tenn. The young lady came down from Tennessee last week end, together with her father and mother and brother.

After the nupital rites had been performed the happy couple went to the home of G. N. Easterling, where a wedding supper had been prepared for them. A number of young people gathered at the home to share with them the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Easterling.

Mr. and Mrs. Wyatt will make their home on the farm of Mr. Patterson on Clanton Route 2.

MUNICIPAL BOND ELECTION IN CLANTON HELD MONDAY

The municipal bond election for the purpose of securing PWA loan for funds to build a new city hall and extend the town's water mains was held in Clanton Monday. After the votes were cast and counted the following result was announced:

For Waterworks	147
Against Waterworks	4
For City Hall	143
Against City Hall	8

This matter has already been voted upon once and carried, but on account of a technicality in the former procedure, it was found necessary to resubmit it to the people.

cost is of great importance. In a Red Cross relief operation, running for a limited time, thousands of volunteers are ready to work tirelessly along with our seasoned disaster relief staff. They can arange their time freely for that period. It is quite out of the question that the Federal Relief Administration could man its organization for an indefinite period with volunteers who must necessarily return to their own responsibilities within a reasonable period of time.

"Millions of our fellow countrymen have been saved from want and despair, or worse, by the energetic and prompt action of the Government. Those who have had extensive experience in emergency relief work know only too well the burdensome responsibilities, intricate problems and misunderstandings which have had to be, and are still to be met. The Congress and the people know that a program of just bread and clothing for men, women and children, who, by the million, have now for five years been confronted with bitter privation and want, will not suffice.

"Unemployment is now several years old in millions of families. The husband and wife and children are going to be strong or weak in body and mind, now and tomorrow, depending upon what is done in their behalf. They are fellow human beings. Beyond mere subsistence they should have decent shelter, medical and nursing care, education and every factor that will sustain morale and preserve character. The nation needs these people.

"Through trips in the field I have had a chance to sense the eagerness for improvement on the part of those responsible for relief work. I am of the opinion, in the light of my knowledge of social work and economic conditions, that considering the difficulties involved, the speed required, and the variety of rural and urban situations across the country, the Federal Emergency Relief Administration has done more than reasonably well. Constant effort is being made to see that local and state resources are drawn in to help carry the load. The personnel I have met are, almost without exception, diligent, intelligent, public servants who have not spared themselves in their efforts in behalf of the victims of the depression. In justice to the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, to the Red Cross, to other agencies of public and private relief, and in behalf of the millions now primarily dependent upon the government for the necessities of life, it should be appreciated that no such simple process as comparing one single percentage figure with another can give an intelligent judgement of the value of the work now being done."

RED CROSS EXECUTIVE DISCUSSES REIEF COSTS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 22.—James L. Fieser, Vice Chairman in charge of domestic operations, of the American Red Cross, made the following statement this afternoon.

"Many inquiries have come to the Red Cross from the press and others concerning the administrative cost of Red Cross relief operations as compared with reported costs for the work of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration. The greatest caution must be exercised in attempting to reduce such comparison to a single percentage figure.

"I speak out of twenty-one years of administrative responsibility including every major disaster relief undertaking of the Red Cross beginning with the Ohio Valley floods of 1913. In Red Cross disaster relief work the administrative cost of one operation, expressed in percentage, will sometimes be two or three times as great as the cost for another operation. This does not mean that one piece of work was poorly done and another well done. It means that conditions met in one disaster were very different from conditions met in another.

"Red Cross disaster relief differs from the unemployment relief conducted by the Federal Relief Administration in many important particulars. As one who has spent his life in social, educational and health work and in the study of economic conditions as they apply to human beings, I see vast differences. Disasters, even big ones, are relatively localized. They cover a definite territory. In general we know who the victims are before we start. The number of people affected can be established in a relatively short time. We know what caused their distress. The nature of the loss they suffered from a common catastrophe and the needs to be met are known. We know that even in a Mississippi flood the relief work will have termination. A fairly definite time may always be set for ending the work.

"The situation faced by the Federal Emergency Relief Administration is very different. It deals with varied needs, urban and rural, throughout the length and breadth of the land. Estimates of the number of unemployed varied from several million to two or three times that number with only the haziest estimates of the number requiring relief. The nature of relief did not depend upon the type of loss suffered in a disaster. It varies with all of the infinite detail of industrial, and rural and economic conditions in this vast country of ours. More important than these, no time limit for Federal relief can even now be approximately set. This situation has already run five years. It covers the whole country; indeed the whole world. Every situation must be met quickly.

"One single factor of differences in

Why Hospitals Use a Liquid Laxative

Hospitals and doctors have always used liquid laxatives. And the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. Do you know the reasons?

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be regulated to suit individual need. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The right dose of a liquid laxative brings a more natural movement, and there is no discomfort at the time, or after.

The wrong cathartic may often do more harm than good.

A properly prepared liquid laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin brings safe relief from constipation. It gently helps the average person's bowels until nature restores them to regularity. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an approved liquid laxative which all druggists keep ready for use. It makes an ideal family laxative; effective for all ages, and may be given the youngest child.

We Are Thankful With And For Our Friends

Among our greatest blessings we count the friendship and good will of the hundreds of customers whom we have had the pleasure of knowing and serving in the past.

We are happy to join with those good friends in thankfulness for the many good things that have come to us during this year. We face the future with renewed confidence.

We want you to remember that The Leader always LEADS in true value-giving, and you can depend on that.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

Miss Gertie Mae Culp celebrated her 11th birthday with a party at her home Saturday afternoon, November 24th. As each guest arrived Gertie Mae was presented with a gift. Games were played outdoors until late afternoon after which they were invited into the dining room by Mrs. Culp.

The dining room was beautifully decorated with lovely fall flowers which harmonized with the white cake bearing 11 pink candles. Cake peaches, and candles were served to seventeen children. Those enjoying this birthday party were:

Misses Mattie Lee and Clarice Culp, Elsie Merle Griffin, Grace Headley, Allie, Edwin and Noami D. Francis, Dorothy, Dean and Mary Pearl Culp, Olivia Gilliland, Marvarene Henley, Beth Williams, Messrs. Bernice Jessie A. Avery and Hollis McCary.—Mrs. A. B. Culp.

A FEW FACTS CONCERNING THE REPEAL OF THE 18th AMENDMENT

As the full force of the mighty, devastating waves of repeal break over the nation, the utter folly of sweeping away every vestige of moral law is beginning to dawn upon the American people.

In the light of present-day conditions, let's review some of the wet fallacies and compare them to the dry facts:

Fallacy No. 1.—There will be no saloon under repeal.

Fact.—A saloon is a place where liquor is sold as a beverage and consumed on the place. It is estimated there are over 500,000 places (saloons) selling liquor in the United States. There were only 177,799 licensed saloons in the old days before prohibition.

Fallacy No. 2.—Repeal will balance the budget.

Fact.—"As for taxes we have been disappointed," says Joseph H. Choate. In the presidential campaign we were told that beer alone would bring in $2,500,000,000 a year in revenue, but the facts are that the total revenue on beer alone for the first year has netted the Federal Government only $137,547,000. Some difference!

Fallacy No. 3.—Repeal will put millions of men to work.

Fact.—For every million dollars of capital invested in the brewing industry, it puts to work 78 men, and for every million dollars of capital invested in the automobile, shoe, radio, or legitimate business, 318 men are put to work.

Fallacy No. 4.—Repeal will do away with the bootlegger.

Fact.—Joseph H. Choate, Director of Alcohol Administration of the United States, on April 29th, said: "Bootlegging has increased one hundred fold since repeal of Prohibition."

Fallacy No. 5.—By repealing prohibition there won't be so much liquor drunk.

Fact.—The Chicago Tribune, the wettiest of all wet papers, of March 9th reports: "The Dwight-Keely Institute (Cure for drunkards) saw a 65 per cent increase in December, the first month after repeal, than preceding December; and a 55 per cent increase in January."

The Chicago Herald-Examiner, another of the wet papers of wet-Chicago, March 10th, says: "High School boys and girls at bar, and dead drunk on floor."

Fact.—Alcohol is a poison and habit-forming drug.

The base of all intoxicating liquor, whether that liquor be beer, gin, whiskey, wine, or whatnot, the base of it, the thing that makes it an intoxicating beverage is alcohol and that alcohol is a narcotic poison, a habit-forming drug. Scientifically it belongs in that group of deadly drugs which we call cocain, heroin, morphine or opium and that as a scientific fact you can not divorce it from this group. Scientifically there is no other group with which it can be placed. There are 100 addicts of alcohol to one of all other drugs combined.

Prohibition is on its way back. Even wet Senator Walsh who led the fight for repeal believes this to be true. God speed the day! Help hold Alabama by voting against Repeal, against beer, wine and against "hard liquor."—The Anti-Saloon League of Alabama.

CHILTON COUNTY MINUTES NOW AT BANNER OFFICE

Mr. S. J. M. Webb, clerk of the Chilton County Baptist Association, announces to the various churches of the association that the minutes are now ready for distribution. The church clerks, or someone connected with the management of the various churches, will please call at The Union-Banner office this week, or as early as possible, and get such church's pro rata share of the minutes. These minutes should be in the hands of the clerks within the next few days, Mr. Webb says.

ALABAMA DAY SET FOR DEC. 14

To All School Officials:

Alabama was admitted into the union of states on December 14th, 1819—115 years ago. Since the beginning of this century this day has been set aside as "Alabama Day" and each anniversary observed with fitting memorial exercises in the schools and communities of the state.

The colonists and pioneers up to date of admission had wrought mightily and successfully to carve out of the wilderness a state of happy homes and hardy citizens. Ever since that date our fathers have labored diligently and valiantly to perpetuate the good name of Alabama and hold inviolate the principles and purposes of the early pioneers. There is no more fitting and commendable method of celebrating the valiant deeds and of paying tribute to the worthy ideals of our forefathers than to make this year a notable contribution to the sum total of the history of Alabama and its people by devoting special and specific attention to the history of each community in the state.

Since the school is the natural center of each community, it becomes not only the pleasant privilege but the obligation of each school body to make constructive and where possible more or less complete contributions to local history. Where this is done, the school, the Parent-Teacher Associations, and other agencies and friends of education, and persons interested in the state's history may send this department such data as may be gathered, the same to be transferred later to the archives of the state and there held as original and in many cases hitherto unknown data for historical research. In doing this, those who are assisting in the gathering and transmitting of the material should be very careful that the data submitted are facts beyond dispute or that the statements are qualified with provisons for future checking against additional source material.

The history of education in Alabama has never been written. Some very fine articles and even one or more books upon the subject are extant but most of the data is so hidden that it has been impossible to assemble all of it and consequently our present historical knowledge is more or less fragmentary. The future historian of the progress of education in Alabama will be thankful for the immense amount of materail that can be made available by a united and intelligent effort such as you can make at this time.

Nearly every community is the scene of struggles for a better type of education and enlarged facilities therefor. What rich fields for investigation and report are such communities as those that promoted in days agone Walnut Grove, Lineville, Blountsville, Highland Home, and Oxford colleges; Barton Academy in Mobile and the academies of the nineteenth century in almost every county; the high schools and grammar schools in almost every large community!

Will you not endeavor to make this day a memorable one by your contribution to the educational, community, and industrial history of the commonwealth? Would it not be a good plan to have the older men and women tell of pioneer days; young men read thoughtful papers recounting authentic facts about the conditions prevailing and the customs obtaining in their communities from the beginning; children in drama and pageant make living pictures of the long ago; and all sing ballads and folk songs of their mountains, valleys, plains, and forests? Would it not be a good plan also to have a secretary or historian for the day to collect papers and make notes of informational value and send this office a copy? This, of course, is not required, but would be appreciated.

A LITTLE CHAT BY GUS AND JOE

Dear Editor:

Will you give us space in your paper for a chat with your MITM? Thank you.

We are much interested in your courageuos discourse that appeared in The Union-Banner of last week. We got a real kick out of it.

Yes Sir, we took you to the cleaners, and we want to thank all of the good Republicans who joined in with us in making the job a most glorious success.

We want to congratulate you in making the promise that you will watch carefully and sift for any flaws that may be made by the Democrats. Now, if you don't mind it, we will help you watch for the flaws.

You seem to think that Uncle Joe and Gus Jackson got all they wanted—a full set of Democratic county officials. Well, that was one thing we wanted, and we want to again thank the good Republicans for helping us get them.

But this is not all Uncle Joe and Gus want. We want a clean administration from these Democratic officials, free from discrimination against one person in favor of another. Yes sir, and we have faith that we will get it.

But still, this is not all that Uncle Joe and Gus want. We want to have the privilege of discussing through the columns of both the Union-Banner and the Chilton County News the question of prohibition, as the people will be called upon in a few months to vote whether or not Alabama will repeal or retain the present prohibition laws.

You seem to be a little worried about white supremacy, and the Hon. Arthur W. Mitchell, a negro Democrat, elected Congressman from Illinois. The thought just appears to us if the negroes have decided to quit the Rpublican party and seek admittance into the Democratic party, there is something radically wrong, since the Republican party has been known as the negro party. I am glad they have found a place to go, aren't you?

The election results makes us think of the old man whose house was burned while he was off on a visit. The old man laughed fit to kill. His neighbor inquired what he was laughing about, and the old man replied: "It just tickles me nearly to death to think how them old rats had to get out."

Now may we wish that the Man in the Moon may rise every seven days full with a bright and shining light that can shine so deep into hypocricy that many black spots may be destroyed and bright ones made to fill their places.

We close with the following poem:

As pilgrims and strangers we journey through life,
Thru sunshine and shadow, thru calm and thru strife;
Each day we are scattering seed as we go,
Some day 'twill be harvest—we reap what we sow.

Respectfully, your Uncles,
GUS and JOE.

DO WE NEED MORE POWER?

The federal government is carrying on a number of major hydro-electric developments in various parts of the country. Proponents paint glowing pictures of the progress that will come to these areas through an abundant power supply. An interesting commentary on that is provided by the National Coal Association, which has issued a survey, from which the following figures are taken, showing just how much the areas involved need more power, whether from public or private plants.

At Boulder Dam, the capacity of existing plants is 43 per cent in excess of market demand. When the federal project begins operating, exces capacity will be 64 per cent.

In the Booneville area, existing plants can produce 36 per cent more power than they can sell. Federal capacity will bring the excess to 53 per cent.

In the Tennessee Valley, scene of the famous Muscle Shoals development, existnig capacity is 55 per cent over demand. Federal power will raise this to 72 per cent.

At the Grand Coulee, capacity is now 37 per cent over the need. The new public plant will bring up this figure to 77 per cent.

In the Loup River region, existing plants can provide 45 per cent more power than is wanted. Federal capacity will jump the excess to 47 per cent.

A similar situation exists in the other areas of Federal hydro projects, such as Fort Peck and Caspar Alcova.

Here are the facts—they require no argument. Close to a billion dollars is being spent for something we don't need and apparently can't use—at the expense of private industry, investors and workers employed in private endeavor.

Between now and November, 1936, one of the most popular conversational subjects is bound to be: "What about the Republican party?" Democratic zealots, echoing the words of Mr. Farley, will say that the party is dead; Republican stalwarts will say that it is simply lying fallow, and shows no signs of decay. The truth probably lies somewhere between these two extremes.

The Republicans took a terrific lacing in the last election—so far as carrying offices was concerned. But they did get around 46 per cent of the total vote cast. A party that gets as substantial a minority as that can't be considered dead by a long shot.

One of the prinicipal Republican problems is dissension within the party. Henry Fletcher, Chairman of the Republican Central Committee, is a conservative—many of the principal Republican Senators, such as Borah, Johnson, Couzens and McNary are liberals of varying shades of opinion. It seems a certainty that a strong drive will be made to eliminate Mr. Fletcher and put a liberal in his place—and until the Republicans have fought their own internal battles to a finish, no one can forecast the future of the party with accuracy.

IS THE ELEPHANT DEAD?

(Editorial in Montgomery Advertiser)

We wish somebody besides the historians of the future could settle the question whether the Republican party is dead, or merely desperately ill.

The Advertiser has not been much impressed with the obituary notices that have been published. It does not believe that the Republican party is dead, even though we own that the G. O. P. will never be the same again.

Last week the Nation formally pronounced the Republican party as dead.

In the same week David Lawrence, writing in his United States News (one of the best political weeklies ever published in the world), pointed out that even though the New Dealers captured most of the offices in the recent nation wide election, the Democrats polled only 15,000,000 votes as against 12,000,000 polled by the Republicans!

In the same week, Time, the news magazine, pointed to the same arresting information, and quoted William Allen White, of Kansas, one of the great American newspaper editors, and a Republican, as saying:

"The Republican party . . . has retained a foothold in the courthouses in 1,000 counties. Parties do not die from the top but from the roots and the roots of the Republican party in the east and middle west are still full of courthouse sap . . . Until the Roosevelt program itself blows up and destroys its leaders, the Republican party is likely to survive as a minority critic attacking the majority not from the right but from the middle left. . . . Now for the first time in a generation the two parties have a real division."

Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, one of the brightest of contemporary Republican politicians, a possible nominee for the Presidency in 1936, and one of the few Republicans who won a Senaotrship two weeks ago, after denouncing the New Deal, is of the same mind. Commenting on Jim Farley's statement that the Republican party is dead, Senator Vandenberg says:

"When Farley says the Republican party is through I recommend to him that he read the 16th chapter and the 18th verse of Proverbs in the Holy Bible.

"The Republican party at Tuesday's polls represents the biggest political minority in American history."

And which of the Proverbs did the Senator quote? It reads: "Pride goeth before destruction, and an haughty spirit before a fall."

Most likely Mr. Roosevelt is safe so far as 1936 is concerned, but his safety does not necessarily mean that the "natural opposition" party is dead beyond recall.

Apparently it is no deader now than the Democratic party has been several times in the past—as for instance, after T. R. beat Parker in 1904, after Taft beat Bryan in 1908, after Harding beat Cox in 1920, after Coolidge beat Davis in 1924, and finally after Hoover beat Smith in 1928. In the latter year Hoover carried all but six states—but his vote was only 20,000,000 as against Smith's 15,000,000. We should never overlook the popular vote that a candidate receives.

There are some very able, indeed some great men in the Republican party. If they are worthy of their responsibility as leaders they will yet revive their languishing party. At least that has been Democratic experience.

PROBLEMS FOR DEMOCRATS

Newspaper headlines of November seventh certainly indicated joy and jubilation in the Democratic camp. The party had done what used to be thought the impossible—where even popular administrations usually lose 50 to 60 house seats in the off-year elections, along with a senator or two, it actually increased its already preponderent majority in each branch of congress. However, beneath the surface, the very size of the victory has brought big problems to the White House and to responsible Democratic leadership.

Just before the election, Democratic Chairman Farley, asked as he naturally would, that the people return democrats to the house and senate, and offered the opinion that the one big issue at stake was confidence in Mr. Roosevelt. Mr. Farley went so far as to say just how much majority he would like to see, placing it at two-thirds.

The public went Mr. Farley one better. The senate will consist of 69 Democrats, 24 Republicans and three members of minor parties. The next house will contain 321 Democrats, 103 Republicans, and ten members of minor parties. There will be 38 Democrats governors, as against eight Republicans, one Progressive and one Farmer-Labor. As a result, the Democratic party controls, roughly, 75 per cent of the major elective offices of the nation.

Now for the Democratic troubles. It has been the unvarying experience that when a party has so great a majority that it need fear no opposition, it breaks up into factions, becomes constantly more difficult to handle. The reason for what is obvious: When neither party has much of a majority, each must hold together in order to adequately do battle with the other. The consequences is that Mr. Roosevelt will probably have a great deal of trouble in keeping recalcitrant Democrats in line. Many of those newly elected are small-bore politicians who wouldn't have a chance without the New Deal magic behind them. The American people, for the most part, didn't vote for the candidates they elected—they marked X's opposite their names, but they were really voting for Mr. Roosevelt.

Another trouble lies in the fact that the greater majority a party has, the greater its responsibility. It can't plead obstructionism in case it fails. Now, with the Republicans almost as scare as lions in the capitol, the Roosevelt Administration will have to show results or take the whole blame for not showing them.

It will be recalled that when newspapermen asked Mr. Roosevelt for some remarks the day after election, he smiled, said, "No comment." That may have been greatly due to a fear of seeming to crow over victory—but it's pretty certain that the thought of future difficulties with his own party congressmen was in his mind. Even the exurberent Mr. Farley was grave when commenting upon the Democratic sweep.

Some idea of the forthcoming legislative proposals is gained from a recent Associated Press survey of the pet hobbies of congressmen who will be in the next session. Demands will probably be made for a year's outlay exceeding $15,000,000,000—an unprecedented sum. Cash payment of the bonus would cost over $2,000,000,000; public works as advocated by one senator, would come to $5,000,000,000; a proposed increase in home loan bonds would run to $1,000,000,000, and so it would go, with a dozen similar measures assured of substantial house and senate support. Conservative party officials are said to be frankly concerned over the outlook, and the president may have to use all his influence, and perhaps the veto power, to keep congress in check. The belief is that Mr. Roosevelt's own projected program will cost some $7,000,000,000.

"Stork to visit Dionne family again."—A headline. To h.m that hath shall be given.

Roosevelt—Pioneer and Explorer

The story goes that a rabid New Dealer and a friend who didn't think the New Deal was so hot, were talking the matter over. Said the New Dealer: "This man, Roosevelt, is one of the greatest presidents we have ever had. To me, he is some kind of pioneer, or explorer, only he doesn't have wild lands to explore. Instead, he thinks that he must strike out along uncharted paths in the economic world in his effort to lead this nation out of the depression. In this way he is forced to use untried plans and methods. And, as is the case with all explorers, if his plan works, and he finds the way out, he will be heralded as the savior of the country. But if he fails, well, I suppose his will again be the lot of pioneers who fail—he will be branded as foolish to have tried these new plans. To me, Mr. Roosevelt is about like Columbus was when he set out on his trip on which he discovered America." His friend answered: "I, too, think Mr. Roosevelt must be in about the same boat with Columbus, in one sense, any way. You will remember that when Columbus set sail, he didn't know where he was going; when he reached what he thought was his goal, he didn't know where he was; and when he got back to Spain, he didn't know where he had been. Yep, I believe you are right, Mr. Rosevelt is very much like Columbus in this respect."

Obstructionists?

President Roosevelt insists on taking a leaf out of the book of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, erstwhile commander of the Blue Eagle hosts, and calls all who are not absolutely in accord with his own ideas, "obstructionists." Just at this time, Mr. Roosevelt is resting up a bit down at Warm Springs, Ga., and we wonder if he isn't just a little put out by the latest "obstructionists" news from Georgia. For some time there have been rumblings of discontent in Crackerland. Then, from a Democratic standpoint, the Georgia State Democratic Convention came out not long ago with a flat-footed refutation of the administration's system of handling the nation's affairs up Washington way. This convention condemned the system in no uncertain terms. Along about this time, too, the AAA gave out the news that they were having more trouble getting the farmers of Georgia fall for the cotton plans than in any other cotton-raising state. Then Gov. Talmadge got a chip on his shoulder about the way some things were being handled by the nation's high officials. And now, to cap it all, Georgia's representative, Carl Vinson, (a Democrat, of course), has come out with an open charge of extravagance and incompetencey in the handling of relief funds. He joins with Senator Borah in asking for congressional investigation of the whole affair, and promises that if such can be effected, the findings will be startling. From all this, it seems that Georgia is just about fed up on the high-handed system now in vogue, inasmuch as complaints have been registered from pretty near every class, officials, political, and even the very people themselves. We wonder if the president will pay any attention to these storm warnings, or if he thinks that his ship is unsinkable. If the latter is his idea, he should remember the Titantic, we think, and take on a few life boats and belts.

The Jewels of Consistency

This columnist has been charged several times by the editor of the Chilton County News with lambasting President Roosevelt, (in our small-bore manner). I do not agree with this, however. I have said time after time that I believe Mr. Roosevelt is a very wise man, but that there are certain things about his adinistration which are not nearly up to his standard of wisdom, and these I have attacked, because I believed they were wrong. Another thing that has been highly conspicious in the present administration is its inconsistency. This has been evident from the very beginning. For instance, at one and the same time, the AAA was paying farmers in one region to NOT raise certain farm products, while in other sections they were insisting that these farmers raise more of this same product, and even lending them money with which to buy seed and fertilizer. Numerous instances of this kind might be cited. The latest, however, has come from Donald R. Richberg, director of the National Relief Emergency Council. From the day of their entrance to power, the present administration has stressed "collectivism," and on one occasion the president, himself, said: "The day of individualism in America is gone. We must put into effect a collective national social system if we are to survive." Disregarding the natural law that competition is the life-blood of any institution, no matter what its nature, Mr. Roosevelt and his aides have striven to perfect such a collective system. But now Mr. Richberg comes back with these words: "No permanent political or economic system can be built in any modern nation that is not built on a system wherein there is a people free to realize, as far as possible, the ambitions of their INDIVIDUAL lives. Man was not created to serve society, but society must be organized to serve the individual and his welfare." Americans like to work out their own problems—run their own businesses—unhampered by official interference. The Utopian dream that America might have a trade system wherein every man is equal was a bright one, but the dreamers forgot to include the fact that there is at all times a difference in buying power, and like differences which make their grand dream impractical, beautiful as it may appear, on paper.

Was Sherman Right?

Gen. Sherman said: "War is hell," and he may have been right, at the time he had his say, but we doubt if his description is applicable now, if the latest in war machines is any criterion. The latest war machine devised by army inventors of the U. S. army is an 8-ton tank, capable of making from 50 to 60 miles per hour. It is protected by a three-quarter inch armor plate, and cost $30,000 each. It is reported to ride like a heavy passenger car, is comparatively free from noise, and at a speed of 20 miles per hour, can turn in its own length. It runs on revolving rubber tracks, has a cruising range of 125 miles, and is equipped with three machine guns, capable of firing 500 times each per minute. It is designed to go ahead of the infantry, and to do most of the "dirty work," while the "doughboys" merely follow it and "mop up" any stragglers that the big monster may have missed. It is expected that the War Department's budget will provide for the construction of a number of these machines during the next year. Some machine, eh? What do you suppose Sherman would have to say about war if he could look one of these big babies over. He might even change his mind, entirely, and decide war is only a cream-puff affair, after all. If we go to war, though, and I have to be in it, I think I had rather be IN one of these fellows than in front of it or with the "mopping" crew to follow it.

Do You Know Your Bible?

Just how well do you know your Bible? Lest I be censured, and be charged with trying to conduct a purely political column, I'll branch off a bit, and give another Bible problem, that a friend has handed to me Some time ago I had a Bible problem in this column and got a report on it from only one man, a Rev. Durbin. He seemed to think it was easy, so here's another one. Here 'tis: A young man, on being asked how many students he had in his Bible class, replied: "If you multiply the number of Jacob's sons by the number of times the Israelites encompassed Jericho, then add to the product the number of measures of barley Boaz gave to Ruth, then divide this answer by the number of Haman's sons, then subtract the number of each kind of clean beast that went into the ark, multiply by the number of men who went to seek Elijah after he was taken up into heaven, subtract from this Joseph's age at the time he stood before Praraoh, add the number stones in David's bag when he went out to Kill Goliath, subtract the number of furlongs that Bethany was distant from Jerusalem, then divide by the number of anchors cast out when Paul was shipwrecked, and subtract the number of persons saved in the ark, this will be your answer." Now, how many did he have in his class? I'll give you a little tip, too—you had better have clean hands when you start thumbing your Bible to find out all these numbers, no matter how good you are on the Bible, or that Bible will be pretty dirty when you have finished. I'd like to have several try this one, and let me know the answer you get. Do that, and I'll announce the names of all who get the correct answer, which will be given in this column in the issue of December 13, week after next, after all have had time to take a try at it. Try it—it'll be interesting.—Man in the Moon.

NINE LITTLE PIGS

This is the story of nine little pigs that did not go to market. But with a deference to the child-mindedness of the old nursery rhyme and the new governmental economy, they did go AAA all the way home.

The scene was the James T. Perrill farm about half way between Washington Courthouse and Bloomingburg, where the flat, fertile land holds a fame as old as American agriculture for its corn and hog production.

The time was yesterday afternoon and the principals were a young farmer and nine young Hampshire pigs. But for the serious consequences that may result from the action, it might have been something of a comedy. But, unfortunately, it wasn't very funny.

Williard Perrill, the young farmer of the story, is a contractee with the government in the administration of the Agricultural Adjustment Act. He had put his hand to an agreement to limit his swine production by 25 per cent of an average taken in the last two years. Along with this he had agreed to curtail his corn production similarly.

All well and good with the corn, considering the rather passive reproduction habits of the plant. Hogs, however, present a different problem. Out of the factor that created that hog problem, Perrill found one of his sows a mother about six weeks ago and himself a possessor of about nine pigs more than his contract quota called for. It was purely an accident, unpremedidated by Perrill.

If he allowed the pigs to grow and marketed them he would have been violating his agreement with the government.

If he killed the pigs and gave the meat away, he would be equally guilty under the terms of the contract.

These little pigs were illegitimate in the eyes of the New Deal.

There was nothing left for him to do but destroy the pigs, which could easily have made pork enough to support five average families; and kill them he did.

Driving the squealers into a pen he removed them, one after the other, from the pork market with a hammer blow on the head.

He could, he related after the enforced slaughter, have allowed the pigs to grow to fifty pounds and then have given them to the government.

Such an act would have brought him no return and would have necessitated further inroads on his already shortened corn crop. Being a man of sound business sense, he smiled at such an absurdity.

All this potential pork had but one destiny. It must be utterly wiped off the face of the earth. When the show was over, the face of the earth stretched smoothly over the pigs, five feet up. The food that people are crying for was buried to rot away.

Such is the story of one instance, typical of the thing that goes on every time a quota check of the swine on AAA contract farms comes around.

As was said before, it is a sad story, a story of the defeat of the fruitful earth in its efforts to feed its children.—Joe R. Mills in the Ohio State Journal.

AAA CAUGHT UP

Just about everybody who is able to read knows something of the drastic changes in NRA set-up and policy that have been taking place for some months. Price-fixing has been dropped in many codes; business is being given more power over its own affairs; the era of iron-handed industrial dictatorship is apparently coming to an end.

Not so well known are changes that have taken place, or that will take place, in the second most important of the Administration's bureaus—the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, generally spoken of as the AAA.

Main activity of the AAA was its commodity and livestock reduction program. It caused the wholesale killing of pigs and the ploughing under of thousands of acres of cotton, in an attempt to cure overproduction. Its opponents were bitter in criticism of this—and its defenders equally impassioned on the other side. But whether these measures were sound or ill-advised, the future course of the bureau will take very different lines.

Henry Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, has said that the AAA has done about as much for the farmer as it can, and that further improvement in his position will depend principally upon improved conditions in the urban consuming regions. Dr. Tugwell and Chester Davis, AAA Administrator, have recently said the same thing. The AAA, apparently, is through with pig killing and cotton ploughing under.

The main reason for a change now of AAA policies is due to the fact that agricultural economic conditions have caught up with city conditions, while, in the past, the farmer was generally in a worse position than the urban worker. Officials believe that the AAA has exhausted the possibilities of its past program, and must choose a new track for the future.

COORDINATION NEEDED

The New Deal program of planned economy is out of balance according to Wallace B. Donham, dean of the School of Business Administration, Harvard University. At a recent address made in New York, Dean Donham called attention to the difficulty which the president himself is having in coordinating his programs, and he asserted that this is due to the fact that plans of the administration are based on conflicting social and economic theories.

"Much is done without reference to either practical or logical limitations on human capacities and accomplishments," he said. "Emotions control. Wishful thinking and good resolutions spawn hectic activity and action is esteemed evidence of accomplishment. Sweeping regulations are little tempered by realism. Even when objectives are hardheaded, discipline and coordination are lacking."

Certainly the Harvard authority has succinctly described the present status of New Deal planning in the above paragraph. But it does not take a student to see the mess of conflicting theories and cross currents in the programs of the NRA the AAA and various other governmental policies. Often the things planned to be done by the various departments are exactly opposed one to the other. There seems to be a great deal of regimenting without knowing just what is to be accomplished. Perhaps this is due to the enthusiasm of college professors who are getting their first chance at the limelight and their first opportunity to spend what looks like ready and easy money.

Dean Donham admits that some national planning is necessary and helpful in this complex age, but he would have it well ordered and well thought out in advance, and he does not believe that any human brain is wise enough to plan for a long time in advance, because of constantly changing world conditions.

"Foresight," he declared, "in any general sense for any long period is logically impossible and national planning on such foresight is beyond the capacity of man. Under such conditions to plan for Utopias is to stop thinking, and efforts to attain Utopias are efforts toward chaos."

It is difficult however, to restrain the enthusiasm of youth and most of the Brain Trusters at Washington are youthful in practical experience as well as in years.

BIBB GRAVES AND THE STATE

Those who have been close to Bibb Graves during the past few weeks are expressing their firm opinion that the next governor is determined that his coming administration will not be inclined to favor any one section of Alabama at the expense of the other parts of the State. That is good news. It is even better news for the reason that the victory of Mr. Graves was not achieved by any special group of voters. In spite of much talk to the contrary during the campaign, Mr. Graves did not have any special reason to place himself under great obligations to any special coteries of supporters in order to get himself elected.

A trustworthy account of the way the next governor looks at his duty is offered by a news article written from Montgomery by Fred Gormly last week. "The northern tier of counties," wrote Mr. Gormly, "will have greater consideration next year than they had during the first term of Col. Graves. South Alabama will also have the attention it did not have in days gone by. It comes about because of the determination of Col. Graves to make his second term an administration for the benefit of the entire state, rather than any one section."

The matter of appointments to state offices is not the most important one connected with the next governor's promise that his administration will not discriminate in favor of any special part of the state. After the appointments to offices have been made, the real business of the administration will begin. It will be in such matters as fair and intelligent adjustment of the expenditures of state funds that the character of the Graves administration will be shown. All Alabamians surely are aware of the fact that discriminations in this state have not been wholly geographical in their nature.

There has been a most lamentable lack of balance in the attention which our state has been giving to the various departments of the government. The most gratifying thing in connection with the outlook for the administration of Col. Bibb Graves is the strong basis for the expectation that the next governor will be constructive and socially-minded enough to give public education and public health first consideration in the allocation of state funds.—Birmingham News.

A CATECHISM

What creates wages and salaries? Business and industry.

What pays politicians and officerholders? Business and industry.

What pays the doles now handed out by the government? Business and industry.

What improves property that pays the taxes? Business and industry.

Where does permanent employment for the masses originate? Through business and industry.

What is injured by government going into business? Private business and industry.

What will replace taxes destoryed by tax-exempt government business competition with private citizens? Higher taxes on remaining private property.

Can everybody get a job with the government or benefit directly from some one of the many doles? You answer that one.

"George comes from a very poor family."

"Why, they sent him to the university, did they not?"

"Yes, that's why they got so poor."

Thorsby Institute News

There will be school on December 1 at the Institute. Classes will meet from 8:30 until 1:15 as on other make-up days.

On Saturday evening, November 24, the students of Thorsby Institute presented their annual stunt program. Each class presented a stunt or group of stunts and they were enjoyed by a large audience. The opening number of the program was presented by the freshman class. This was a comedy in which the characters announced their own parts. The play centered about the daring rescues of the tiny kitten belonging to the princess. In spite of the queen's protests the king still refused to give the hand of his beautiful daughter to the daring duke. The scene came to a tragic end with the five characters lying dead around the throne. The second stunt was a scene from the home of a young married couple giving the interesting results of the young husband trying to copy a radio receipt that had gotten mixed with directions for a setting up exercise. The closing feature of the group was a scene from the life of Mozart, showing the great musician as he played by candle-light in the attic of his boyhood home. This was very impressive and beautiful.

The sophomores entertained the audience with a representation of Mother Goose characters. A short history of the first Mother Goose Book was given, and this was followed by the reading of a number of delightful jingles that we are all familiar with. As the verse was read the characters appeared on the platform dressed in gay costumes. Even Humpty Dumpty toppled from his perch and the cow jumped over the moon. When Mary and her lamb, Jack and Jill, Mother Hubbard and her hungry pup, Little Bo-Peep, and many others had nearly filled the platform the entire group sang "Four and Twenty Black Birds." The merriment was suddenly brought to a close when the "Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe" appeared with her switch and sent them all to bed. All but Simple Simon, straightway jumped through the window in the show. He gave the Old Woman a merry chase, but finally toppled in backwards.

The Juniors took the audience to an old attic where three girls were exploring on a rainy afternoon. A number of large pictures were covered up in the corners and leaning against the walls. When these were uncovered one by one, each picture came to life and the individuals stepped from the frames and visited with the three girls. After finding how strange the dresses and customs had become during the years they had been covered up in the attic they decided not to stay in the rush and confusion of modern times and stepped back into their frames to be covered up again.

The senior stunts were equally as interesting. The first was a play entitled "The Light-House Keeper's Daughter." The setting was in the top of a light-house and each character climbed the long and winding stairs to the top. The beautiful young daughter who was supposed to meet her lover after attending to the lights was overtaken by her rival and killed in the little tower of the lighthouse. The murderess slipped away and the body was found by the lover, who hurridly descended the stairs and soon returned with the doctor and the girl's mother. The two men carry her body down the winding steps followed by Senior stunt was the demonstration of the weeping mother. The second three useful household devices. These models were skilled in the art of sweeping, etc. The operation of these devices was interesting to observe.

The stunts were contested and at the close of the program Mr. Butler read the judge's decision. The sophomore class was selected as the winner.

SCHOOL REVENUES

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 23.—If Alabama should levy a two per cent sales tax, patterned after Mississippi's much discussed "sales" tax, the annual yield would be $2,687,714. If to this amount were added a "One Dollar" license, such as is collected in Missiissippi along with the sales tax, an additional yearly sum of $26,812 would be realized, or a total of $2,714,526.

This estimate, as announced this week in a bulletin published by the Public Relations Committee of the Alabama Education Association, was prepared by the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Alabama, and is based on a comparison of various economic indicators of the two states, Alabama and Mississippi. It presents the most carefully determined forecast of a sales tax yield yet made public in the state.

In explaining the estimate the bulletin says:

"In attempting to answer the question what a similar tax would yield in Alabama we have assumed that in case of the enactment of a so-called sales tax law, no more exemptions would be allowed than in Missisippi. This means that retail sales tax of two per cent would be collected in addition to the existing taxes being obtained from tobacco, gasoline, and oil. It means also that new taxes on the extraction of minerals and on gross receipts of railroads and all sorts of transportation lines and public utilities would be levied at the same rates as in Mississippi, additional to those now being collected in Alabama. We also assumed that the Alabama law would tax at the same rates as Mississippi all manufacturers and wholesalers, and the gross income of certain professions and callings. . . . To get any definite estimate at all, therefore, we have to assume that any sales tax in Alabama would be a duplicate of the Mississippi law."

Relative to the general property tax, the bulletin shows that in Alabama approximately sixty per cent of all state and local revenue in 1930 was derived from state and local property taxes. In North Dakota nearly eighty-five per cent of the state and local revenue was derived from property taxes.

As regards Alabama's support of education the bulletin states that although Alabama ranks second in the percentage of state revenue appropriated to education, it ranks thirty-third in the percentage of its income used for schools. This means that although Alabama is generous in appropriating funds to schools, once taxes are levied, for some reason it is more reluctant than most states in levying taxes and passing revenue bills.

A CORRECTION

In reporting the Circuit Court proceedings last week The Union-Banner stated: "Arley Guy, possessing still, case continued. It should have read: "Arley Guy, transporting five gallons or more whiskey, nol prossed." We are sorry this error occurred and gladly make the correction.

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

Recently in Poland the writer had the privilege of preaching to hundreds of people who walked miles and stood for four hours at each service. These people showed more signs of New Testament Christanity than any group which it has ever been my privilege to address. I was speaking in Poland under the auspices of a committee. This committee has no real ecclesiastical identification. It is true that they have their own membership and the usual church ordinancies. They are sane, independent, middle-of-the-road Christians. The organization is composed of sixty-three churches, every one of which has local self government, one hundred and fifty seven meeting places, two hundred and eighty-two mission stations, thirty-three buildings, two hundred and eighty mission workers. Only forty of these mission workers are paid and they receive practically nothing. This union was organized in 1923 and now has fifteen hundred members. This past year they had approximately one thusand open, clear cut conversions. The writer was greatly impressed with the possibility of a little money being used without much church machinery so as to accomplish great results. It is the opinion of the writer that it would be possible to spend a few thousand dollars every year and in heathen and pagan lands if we would not attempt to carry so much ecclesiastical overhead. This is not written in a critical spirit. I am convinced that one of the greatest handicaps to the Christian program today is the burden of too much religious machinery. What we need to do and what we must do if we are to put over the program for God is to get back to simple New Testament Christianity.

I am in Liverpool, England, where we are engaged in an evangelistic campaign. The last few days have been spent in London, which, to my mind is in many ways the most interesting city in the world. The British muscum, where we spent a few hours contains more treasures in which the writer is personally interested than any other museum in the world. Two of the oldest original Bible manuscripts are in the British museum. One of these manuscripts, the Codex Siniaticus, dates back to 340 A. D. It was found in a monastry at Mt. Sinia. It was owned by the Russian Government. The British Government recently purchased this manuscript from the Russian Government at a cost of half a million dollars. The communists of Russia did not want the Book. England wanted it. Say what you please about the British, they have written the name of God on the lives of their institutions. This is noted at the unknown soldier's grave. Scripture verses have been chiseled into the marble slab of the tomb.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala., Nov. 27.—The Alabama Crimson Tide will conclude their drills Wednesday afternoon on Denny Stadium in preperation for the Vanderbilt game in Birmingham on Thanksgiving Day. Hard work will be given them Monday and Tuesday, but the work will be eased up on during Wednesday. The team will depart for the Magic City after the Wednesday drill, which will be a light signal practice.

The Vandy-Alabama game will be a battle in the air, according to indications. The Commodores have one of the finest passing combinations in the South in the Phil Diskens-to-Dick Plasman one. Alabama's defense will need to be plenty wary to withstand such an attack as these two players are able to show.

"Dixie" Howell and "Micky" Riley are rehearsing their own passing game at the Capstone these days. Both the Hartford flash and the Dothan dreadnought will be in form against the Commodores on Turkey Day and will deal them misery with their tosses.

The ace Alabama backfields, Smith-Howell - Angelich - Demyanovich and Campbell - Riley - Boozer - Nisbet, are ready to jump at the throats of the McGuiginmen. Campbell, Howell and Demyanovich will be playing their last games for the Tide and will be hard to stop.

Linesmen who will be soon in the Crimson Jersey for the last time are Don Hutson, Ralph Gandy, Bill Lee, Charlie Marr, Bob Morrow and Joe Dildy. All are fine players and all will be playing their best games in their college careers.

Dr. Benjamin Wooten, head of the department of physics, University of Alabama, has been elected to membership in the American Geophysical Union, the outstanding organization of its kind in the world. This honor comes in recognition of work directed by Prof. Wooten in the field of seismology, the study of earth tremors.

President George H. Denny of the University of Alabama has returned from New York, where he attended the meeting of the National Association of State Universities and of the trustees of the Carnegie Corporation. President Denny is former president of the N. A. S. U.

The University of Alabama Glee Club made its first home appearance the evening of November 23 and was greeted by a large and enthusiastic crowd of music lovers. The Club has just returned from a trip which took it to Tallassee, Montgomery, Montevallo, Sylacauga, LaFayetee, and Clanton. At Sylacauga the Club was the guest of Dr. Frank Craddock, former bass on the club quartet, at a turkey dinner. Dr. Craddock's son, French Craddock, Jr., is now occupying the place his father once held on the club.

The Alabama Methodist Student's Conference which met at the University last week selected Auburn as the 1935 meeting place. Officers for next year include Ray Tipton, University of Alabama, president, Florence Norton, Birmingham-Southern, vice president; Wilson Hill, Auburn, second vice president; Clara Lee, Athens College, secretary; Dr. William Graham Echols, University, Dean of Conference.

IN MEMORY OF DADDY

On November 3rd, the death angel visited our home and took our loving daddy, Leonard Mims. For months he suffered awful pains. All was done for him that loved ones, doctors and nurses could do. He suffered, oh he suffered, the pains he could not bear. Bue he is now in heaven with the King we all can share.

He leaves to mourn his loss a wife, Mrs. Leonard Mims, and four children; Annie Pearl, Acie, Charles, and Edna Ruth. Weep not, dear mother, brother and sisters, for he is now at rest in that home in heaven, for us all is best.

We have dreamed of his life. We have dreamed of his death, but the sweetest dreams of all to me was one when he says, "Pearl, I am at rest." we miss him, we miss him, in all we do or say. But for some purpose he was taken from us to dwell with loved ones on high. When this life here is ended and our task on earth is through, our prayers are that we shall meet daddy and say, "Well done." Written by his daughter, Mrs. Leonard Wyatt.

APPRECIATION OF MISS PARDUE

To the Commissioners Court of Chilton County:

We are writing you to try to express the appreciation for the faithful and outstanding worker of the county, Miss Pardue. We fell that our county has been helped in worth beyond dollars and cents. There are cold and needy children helped by her demonstrations. Especially the demonstration given on making clothing from socks, renovation of garments and all the demonstrations on canning and preserving food.

Thourgh her work the county has furnished cans for half of products for those who were not able to buy them. There are numbers of other things which might be added but the work she has done is proving for its self the help she has been to us. As for our club, we feel that none other could have done any more and we appreciate her so much. We feel that she is not getting the salary that she should.

No one knows the hours of hard thinking and work she does but herself. Too, she has been so faithful. She never misses going to meet the clubs on their meeting days. We all know that her expenses are very great. She buys patterns and other demonstration material which amounts to approximately $10 per month, besides the upkeep of her car which we know is great because she has so much territory to cover. As a club we feel that saying the least, she should get a raise of $25 per month, and part, if not all, of her gas. She really is getting the smallest salary of any person in the county doing the kind of work. And she should be receiving equally as much as any one.

We sincerely hope you commissioners will consider the salary question and help Miss Pardue as much as possible. We thank you all so much for getting Miss Pardue in the county. We wish each of you commissioners could attend some of our meetings and see the good you did by getting her into this county.—The Fairview Demonstration Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Copeland and daughter of Montgomery spent Sunday afternoon here with friends.

NEW CEDRON NEWS

The members of the New Cedron church wish to thank the following who made it possible for a roof to be purchased for the church:

The donations of those who gave to the series of suppers were greatly appreciated. These suppers were given under the leadership of Mrs. Candy Williams, Mrs. E. E. Edwards, Mrs. O. L. Rawlinson, Mrs. J. E. Edwards, Miss Rena Devaughn, Miss Audrey Johnson and Miss Lucille Edwards.

NEW SALEM NEWS

Sunday, December 2, will be our regular meeting day at this place. There will be Sunday school a 10 a.m. Preaching at 11 by our pastor, Rev. Homer Carroll. Singing in the afternoon beginning at 1:30 o'clock.

All singers and lovers of music are cordially invited to attend. We are expecting to have a quartet with us. So you had better come or you might miss something good. Will be looking for you and don't disappoint us, we'll be there.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank my friends and neighbors who have so liberally helped since my barn burned. May God's richest blesings rest upon each and every one is our sincere prayer.—Lewis Carroll and Family.

Appetite gone?

A simple thing, perhaps...yet a very serious one, resulting in loss of strength...body weakness... and possibly many other ills. So why not check-up and snap back to the zest of eating and well being. You will find S.S.S. a great, scientifically-tested tonic—not just a so-called tonic, but one specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood to enable you to "carry on." Do try it. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon enjoy again the satisfaction of appetizing food and good digestion...sound sleep...and renewed strength. Remember, "S.S.S. makes you feel like yourself again."

Do not be blinded by the efforts of a few unethical dealers who may suggest substitutes. You have a right to insist that S.S.S. be supplied you on request. Its long years of preference is your guarantee of satisfaction.

TERRACING PROGRAM SPREADING RAPIDLY

Alabama's cooperative terracing program continues to spread over the state with farmers, county commissioners, and others taking an unusual interest in the work.

Extension District Agents R. G. Arnold, J. T. High, and Emmett Sizemore report 50 complete terracing outfits in 31 counties of the state with several other counties joining weekly.

The counties which have joined in the program and have supplied terracing equipment are Etowah, Franklin, Lawrence, Limestone, Madison, Marion, Morgan, Barbour, Bullock, Chambers, Coosa, Lee, Macon, Pike, Randolph, Tallapoosa, West Tallapoosa, Butler, Hale, Marengo, Perry, Sumter, Lowndes, Tuscaloosa, Covington, Colbert, Bibb, Calhoun, Shelby, Pickens, Greene, Cherokee.

The TVA and ARA are cooperating in this work.

TURKEYS BROUGHT THE FARMERS $25,000

Twelve cars of Thanksgiving turkeys this year brought Alabama farmers over $25,000, reports J. D. Moore, extension market specialist, who assisted farmers in obtaining 15 cents per pound for their birds.

"The quality of the state's turkeys was much better this year than last, due to the increase in the amount of feed produced," he said.

PINK CORN WORMS CAUSING DAMAGES

Pink corn worms are playing havoc with corn in a number of cribs in north Alabama, reports Prof. J. M. Robinson, entomologist of the Alabama Experiment Station, who has received complaints of damages from several farmers and county agents.

"Fumigation is by far the most common method of controlling this pest," Robinson said. "When a farmer fumigates his crib of corn he not only destroys the pink worms and moths but he also rids it of other insects, such as corn weevils."

The best time to fumigate is during warm weather when the temperature is 65 to 70 degrees F.

Of the many different fumigants used to control pests in stored products, carbon disulphide ("high life") is perhaps the most satisfactory. This material is a clear liquid that volatilizes rapidly, forming a heavy gas which penetrates well into piles of stored seed. It is both effective and economical. Carbon disulphide has the disadvantage, however, of being highly inflammable, its vapors, when mixed with air, are violently explosive.

The amount of carbon disulphide needed to kill insects varies considerably, depending upon the tightness of the fumigation chamber. In a practically air-tight bin 5 pounds of the material to each 1,000 cubic feet of content is sufficient. The average tongue-and-groove crib in Alabama, designed especially for fumigation, requires 8 to 10 pounds for each 1,000 subic feet. In many cribs 15 to 20 pounds must be used for the same amount of space, if fumigation is possible at all.

A booklet on controlling insects in stored grains may be obtained free by seeing the county agent or writing Professor Robinson at Auburn.

SCREW WORM UNTOUCED BY FIRE

Montgomery. — Experiments have been conducted by the Alabama Commision of Forestry to determine the effect of broadcast fire upon the screw worm, one of the most recent imoprtations of livestock pests. According to data compiled by the Commission, woods fires and grass fires leave the screw worm unscathed. In a number of sample plots on which lay carcasses infested by the pest, the rough cover was set on fire and examination made afterwards to determine any deterrent effect upon the worms. In every case, it was found that the pests were practically untouched, they in most cases being on the underside of the carcasses and exposed to no material degree of heat.

The tests made as to the use of fire in controlling harmful insects bear out the results made in similar experiments with reference to the control of the boll-weevil, mosquito, ticks and other harmful insects. In all of these cases woods burning has had no appreciable effect whatever. In deed, were the use of fire a material aid in pest eradication there would hardly be a single harmful insect alive in the South today, since practically every inch of ground that could be burned has been swept by fire repeatedly in the past. The spead of the screw worm has proceeded from the southwest along the Gulf Coast wholly unaffected by widely sweeping fires in the territory through which its has migrated. The only tangible result of woods burning to abate insect pests is a heavy money loss to the landowner and the community.

Mesdames W. A. Reynolds, W. W. Fox, R. Reynolds and sons spent Saturday in Birmingham with Mrs. Sam Box.

COLLINS CHAPEL 4-H CLUB

On November 16, 1934 the 4-H club girls of Collins Chapel met with Miss Ruth Pardue to reorganize their club. They elected new officers. There were twenty-seven members present.

Our next meeting will be held at Collins Chapel schoolhouse, on December 6, 1934. The program will be on cloth. The officers elected are: president, Geraldine Hubbard; vice president, Mary Sue Littlelon; secretary-treasurer, Clorine Simpson; reporter, Ruby Hilyer; cheer leader, Claudie Mae Shaneyfelt; song leader, Jessie Charles Littleton; local club leader, Mrs. Clyde Gore; record book keeper, Helen Hubbard.—Ruby Hilyer, reporter.

HERD OF PUREBRED ABERDEEN-ANGUS CATTLE TO BE GIVEN TO BEST 4-H CLUB BOY AT EXPOSIT'N

A herd of purebred Aberdeen-Angus breeding cattle is to be presented to the most outstanding 4-H Club boy of the United States at the International Live Stock Exposition to be held in Chicago December 1-8. The presentation will be a feature of the Golden Jubilee celebration of the American Aberdeen-Angus Breeders' Association. The herd will consist of four heifers and a young herd sire representing the choicest and most prominent winning blood lines in the breed.

The five public spirited breeders donating the herd are:

Ames Plantation, Grand Junction, Tennessee; Briarcliff Farms, Inc., Pine Plains, New York; Marshall Farms, La Fayette, Indiana; Congdon & Battles, Yakima, Washington; Mercer County, Illinois, Aberdeen-Angus Breeders, Association.

The 4-H Club boy who will be presented with the herd must be at least 15 years of age, have had three years experience in 4-H Club work, and have purchased at least one breeding female of the breed. He must live on a farm large enough and well enough equipped to support a breeding herd and be assured of the cooperation of his parents in the project. The boy must have a high 4-H Club record.

The selection of the herd winner will be made by the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work.

SURPRISE BIRTHDAY DINNER AT THE HOME OF MRS. MARY J. MIMS

Last Sunday while she was at the church and without her knowing anything about it a number of friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mrs. Mary J. Mims and spread a bountiful dinner, each family bringing a basket well filled with good things to eat. Everyone thoroughly enjoyed the occasion. We all wish her many more happy birthdays.

Those present were all of the families of her children and grandchildren and the families of C. S. Mims, E. V. Mims, L. W. Mims, D. E. Easterling, also A. J. Easterling, Mrs. Ella Mims, Annie Pearl Devaughn and Mr. Reedie Hillyer.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS PARTY

The Story of the Bible Told in Pictures

Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego in the Fiery Furnace.—Nebuchadnezzar made a golden image in the plain of Dura and commanded that everyone should bow down and worship it, declaring that anyone who failed to do so should be thrown into a fiery furnace. Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego, upon their refusal to worship the idol, were cast into the midst of the fiery furnace. "And these three men, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, fell down bound into the midst of the burning fiery furnace. Then Nebuchadnezzar the king was astonished. Lo, I see four men loose, walking in the midst of the fire, and they have no hurt; and the form of the fourth is like the Son of God. Then Nebuchadnezzar came near to the mouth of the burning fiery furnace, and spake, and said, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, ye servants of the most high God, come forth. And the princes, governors, and captains, and the king's counsellors, being gathered together, saw these men, upon whose bodies the fire had no power."—Daniel 3: 23-27. This illustration is from Merian's story of the Bible told in pictures, engraved in 1625.

Lesson for December 2

THE CHRISTIAN AS A WITNESS

LESSON TEXT—I Thessalonians 1:1-10

GOLDEN TEXT—But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth. —Acts 1:8.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Sharing our Stories of Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Sharing the Good News of Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Good News We Have to Tell.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Witnessing for Christ.

I. Paul's Greeting (v. 1).

In this salutation Paul associates with himself Silas and Timothy. Silas was with him at the founding of the church, and Timothy was the special messenger sent unto them, upon whose report this letter is based (3:1, 2).

In this epistle he sets forth the peculiar position of the safety of the church. It is "in God the Father and in the Lord Jesus Christ." Knowledge of the absolute security of the believer in Christ makes him courageous to meet trials and opposition. Two features characterize this greeting, "Grace be unto you and peace." "Grace" expresses God's attitude toward them; "peace," the resultant experience in their lives.

II. Paul's Thanksgiving (vv. 2, 3).

This thanksgiving issues from the remembrance of three outstanding facts concerning the Thessalonians, which constitute the foundation facts of normal Christian experience.

1. "Work of Faith." This relates to their belief of the gospel which brought them into living relationship with the Lord Jesus Christ, and also to their Christian activity growing out of their faith. Jesus Christ said in answer to the question "What must we do that we may work the works of God?" "This is the work of God that ye believe on him whom he hath sent" (John 6:28, 29).

2. "Labor of Love." This means the spirit by which they performed their Christian duties. It was the expression of the new law of life issuing from the enthronement of Jesus Christ in their hearts.

3. "Patience of Hope." This refers to the strength of their endurance growing out of their expectation of the speedy return of the Lord. The transcendent theme of Paul's preaching at Thessalonica was the second coming of Christ (Acts 17:7).

III. The Reasons for Paul's Thanksgiving (vv. 4-7).

1. Their election of God (vv. 4, 5) Their reception of the gospel was the unmistakable evidence of their divine selection. The gospel came in power and in the Holy Spirit. They did not receive the gospel in mere theory, but in the power of the Holy Ghost. Where it is received, the consequent life will manifest itself.

2. They received Paul as a messenger of God (v. 6). The reception of the gospel is largely determined by the kind of preacher. Its reality will be detected in the life of the messenger.

3. The changed life of the Thessalonians (v. 7). They "became followers"—that is, their lives were changed by the power of the gospel. The order in Christian expedience is the reception of the gospel, the changed life, and then the example. The Thessalonians became examples to all in Macedonia.

IV. The Missionary Activity of the Thessalonians (v. 8).

Their experience of the life of Jesus Christ was so real to them that they at once became missionaries. The word of the Lord was so widely and effectively sounded forth that when the apostles returned they needed "not to speak anything." This is as it should be when the gospel is received in the power of the Holy Ghost. The gospel is good news. Good news cannot be kept to oneself; it must be given out.

V. The Results of Paul's Preaching (vv. 9, 10).

1. They turned from idols (v. 9). Thessalonica was a city largely given up to idolatry. Statues were to be seen almost everywhere. The fruits of Paul's preaching were the changed lives of the people. They turned away from idols and gathered together around Jesus Christ in the church. The idol temples were deserted and the churches filled.

2. Awaiting the coming of Jesus Christ (v. 10). Their faith was so real that they looked for the personal return of the Lord Jesus Christ to the earth. The second coming of Christ was a real tenet of faith of the early church. It is so now wherever the gospel is really preached. "And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure." (I John 3:3).

Go Forward

"We trust we have a good conscience in all things" (Heb. 13, 18). Pass smoothly over the perverseness of those you have to do with, and go straight forward. It is abundantly sufficient that you have the testimony of a good conscience toward God.—John Wesley.

Comfort

God does not comfort us to make us comfortable, but to make us comforters.—Doctor Jowett.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Barnette of Selma spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Dick Hayes.

TO THOSE IN ARREARS WITH BILLS TO DR. GRAGG

Listen folks, if you think I don't need what you owe me, you are badly mistaken.

I owe some just debts myself and the reason I have not already paid them, is because I am collecting so little myself. How can I pay when so few are paying me?

I just notice that people who have been owing me for years, can pay fines and court cost without trouble, but can't reach me.

Now, if you can't settle your account in full, you can pay some. If you can't pay the money, bring shelled corn or peas or peanuts. I will allow you the market price or better where you find it difficult to pay the money on your accounts.

If you think your bill is rather large, come and let's talk it over, maybe we could "scale" it down some for the cash.

I thought my practice was among the best classes, but the way they are paying off certainly doesn't look that way.

Come, let's get together. Pay me and let me pay the man I owe and we'll all be glad. Please don't put this matter off. I need it now.

Yours truly,

V. J. GRAGG

STATE GAME AND FISH NEWS

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 27.—I. T. Quinn, commissioner of game and fisheries, and J. M. White, fish culturalist, recently inspected improvements underway at the Estaboga fish hatchery which ultimately will increase the hatchery's output.

They found the FERA work crews had completed the pond at the hatchery spring and were ready to place the roof on the spring house. Excavations have been underway on both the No. 7 and No. 2 ponds, which will double their size, and new concrete outlets will be built in each.

The plans call for the construction of a new areation plant and the building of another pond on the property recently acquired across the road from the spring.

Boligee, Ala., Nov. 27.—District Game Warden Arnold Hale of Boligee, has announced that the annual deer hunt on his big game preserve in Sumter county will be held December 10 and 11.

A large hunting party from Louisiana again will attend the Hale hunt. This party will be headed by Dr. Broox C. Garrett of Shreveport, and will include a number of the Louisana sportsmen who take part in the Alabama deep sea fishing rodeo each summer.

The hunt last December drew three dozen sportsmen from the two states and resulted in the killing of five bucks. The preserve is well stocked with deer, and Warden Hale reports preparations complete for the hunt.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 27.—James G. Hammond of Hartford, Conn., commissioner of the Connecticut Board of Fisheries and Game, will be a guest speaker of the Birmingham Rotary club on December 5th.

Accompained by Mrs. Hammond, the commissioner is on an entertainment tour and thus far has visited Rotary clubs at Cambridge, Md., Richmond and Norfalk, Va., High Point, N. C. Macon, Ga., and will stop in Greenwood, S. C., before coming to Birmingham.

Mr. Hammond has written Game Commissioner I. T. Quinn of his coming and will be met here by the Alabama Commissioner.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

Last Sunday, November 18th, the children, grandchildren and relatives met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. V. Miller to celebrate his birthday. At the noon hour a bountiful dinner was spread. The cake which held 59 candles told the tale.

Among those who enjoyed this wonderful hospitality were: Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Blalock and children, Inez and Dean; Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Wells and children, Douglas, James and Mary; Mr. and Mrs. Roy L. Traywick and children, Bernice and Ray Pearl; Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Downs, Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Hino, Mrs. L. Nickelson and children, Mary Nell, J. E. and Lais.

In the afternoon pictures were made in different groups of the family. At a later hour everyone left for home wishing daddy many more happy birthdays.

THE MIDWAY-MT. CREEK CLUB

The Midway-Mt. Creek club met on November 14th, in the club house at the Soldiers' Home. There was a large number of members present with two visitors present. Miss Ruth Pardue gave a demonstration on home made gifts for Christmas. The club members voted to have a Christmas program and Christmas tree on our next meeting day, which will be December 12th, at 2:00 p.m.

Our next project will be on handicraft. We are hoping to have a large number present.—Reporter.

Benefit Bridge Party Last Tuesday

Members of the Clanton Study Club entertained at the home of Mrs. N. S. Johnson with a benefit bridge party on last Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. N. S. Johnson was chairman of the committee from the study club to raise money for the Cripple Children's Clinic. This money, with donations from other organizations was carried by Miss Jane Roberts to Birmingham Friday. For this occasion the Johnson home was decorated in beautiful fall flowers and eight tables were arranged for bridge. Two prizes were given high score contract prize to Mrs. Hugh Jones. Mrs. Ken Vinson won high score prize for her auction score. At the domino table Mrs. John VanDerVeer held high score and received the prize. Cut prize fell to Mrs. H. M. Simpson.

Coffee and cookies were served at a late hour. About $25.00 was realized from this affair and was sent by the study club to the Birmingham Cripple Childrens' Clinic.

Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Hayes spent Friday in Montgomery on business.

ERROR IN FRIENDSHIP'S PASTOR SALARY IN MINUTES

In the statistical table printed in the Chilton County minutes for 1934, the pastor's salary was printed $20.00. This should have been $120.00. Also for some reason the name of Rev. W. E. Robinson, pastor at Friendship, Cane Creek, Mineral Springs and Pleasant Hill, was omitted from the list of ordained ministers of the Association. We do not know whose fault these errors were, but we hope those interested in the Association's work will take note of this and allow the proper credits in these instances.

Alabama State News

A 60-day stay of execution was granted two Negro defendants in the "Scottsboro case" to permit International Labor Defense counsel more time to perfect an appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Three men were accidentally electrocuted in Montgomery recently when a power cable carrying 2,000 volts of electricity short-circuited near the spot where they were working.

Meetings of educational authorities and officials will be held throughout the state within the next few weeks to discuss plans for obtaining aid from the federal government in keeping Alabama's schools open.

The greatest day in Roanoke's history was the New Deal Day celebration staged recently with 12,000 to 15,000 persons attending from every section of Randolph County and from many neighboring counties.

A reward fund, with a goal set at $1,000, is being created at Dothan for the person who will furnish information leading to the arrest of the hit-and-run driver who fatally injured Judge H. A. Pearce.

The Democratic party carried Alabama in the Nov. 6 general election by an approximate vote of 147,000 against 24,000 for the Republican party on a basis of the official count made by the State Canvassing Board.

Thomas E. Knight, Jr., attorney general, ruled that license tag classification shall be based on the factory shipping weight of automobiles whether bumpers, spare tires and tools are included in the shipment or not.

Economic soundness of the Tennessee Valley Authority's low yardstick electric rates was upheld before the Alabama Public Service Commission by Llewelyn Evans, chief electrical engineer of the federal development agency.

Thad Holt, state relief director, announced that the removal of hundreds of employes in administrative offices over the state should reduce the administration cost of the Alabama Relief Administration by $50,000 monthly.

Rep. George Huddleston predicted that if the U. S. supreme court rules the railroad pension bill unconstitutional congress will iron out its defects and pass another bill along similar lines that will stand court tests.

A group of educational leaders gathered in Birmingham "to consider the situation with respect to the support of education by the federal government," authorized a committee of three to proceed with the drive to enlist federal aid for Alabama's needy schools.

SAFE STOLEN AT POWER OFFICE

Hauled Away to Railroad Cut and Blown Open, Robbed

If you don't think Clanton is getting "up in the pictures" for banditry and law violations, just listen to the story of how a big iron safe was taken from the office of the Alabama Power Company last Thursday, carted a quarter of a mile up the railroad, and blown open.

According to a statement of the official manager, Mr. Leonard Williams, the safe was carried away between four and six o'clock on last Thursday afternoon. The office was entered by bandits Wednesday night, when they broke through a window. They went through the cash drawer, but found nothing of value. Evidently they took careful notice of the situation and made plans which were carried out Thursday afternoon when the safe was stolen.

Mr. Williams stated that the robbers secured about twenty dollars for their trouble in handling the safe. A lot of stock certificates and valuable papers were not molested. They were slightly damaged by the rain which fell Thursday night. The safe was not found until some time Friday.

In the opinion of Mr. Williams, the job was done by "local talent," who knew all about how to get around the city policemen, and timed their actions for the exact hour when the shift of officers was changing.

The building was entered from the back, where a door was knocked down. A pair of trucks from Wade's ice house were used to haul the safe down the alley and up the railroad tracks to the cut near the bridge.

O'NEAL RITES SET

Calera, Ala., Nov. 29.—Funeral services for C. L. O'Neal, president of the O'Neal Lime Works, who died on Wednesday night, at the residence in Calera after a long illness, will be held at the home at 3 p.m. Saturday.

Mr. O'Neal was widely known throughout Shelby County. He was conected with many enterprises in the county at various times, but retired from active business several years ago.

Surviving are the widow and a sister, Miss Perry O'Neal, Cicinnati.

JUDGE REYNOLDS RETURNED HOME

Probate Judge, L. H. Reynolds, returned to his home Monday from Montgomery, where he underwent an operation on one of his eyes over a week ago.

His condition is said to be favorable, with indications that the operation will restore his sight to the affected eye. However, it was said Tuesday that he would not be able to assume the duties of his office for perhaps two or three weeks.

His many friends will be glad to hear that conditions are hopeful for the restoration of his vision, and it is universally hoped that he will soon be able to resume his normal activities.

FATHER'S NIGHT

The Parent - Teachers Association will observe Fathers Night at the high school on the second Tuesday night in December. Watch for further announcement.

Drainage Project In Negro District

Valuable Work To Be Done Under Direction of Relief Office

Another drainage project in Clanton has been instituted under direction of relief work director, Floyd Smith. A crew of men was put to work this week digging a series of small laterial ditches in the West End negro residential district. These ditches will drain into the large canal which has already been dug along the swamp adjacent to the negro section of the city.

For some time Mayor C. Fenn Jones has been interested in improving sanitary and health conditions in the negro section. Proper drainage was immediately recognized as the greatest need of the district.

Accordingly Mayor Jones took the matter up with Mr. Smith, local work director of the relief administration. After looking into the project Mr. Smith readily consented to recommend it as a worth-while work.

Mayor Jones was happy over the prospects of improvement that will come from better drainage in the West End area. He points out that it will not only mean better living conditions for the negroes in the immediate area, but the advantages will be felt by large numbers of white citizens who are not so far away from "frog level."

JUDGE WALTER B. JONES IS ORDERED BEFORE COURT

The Alabama Supreme Court issued an order last Thursday, November 22, ordering Judge Walter B. Jones, of the Montgomery County Circuit Court to appear before them on Thursday, December 6th, to show cause why a writ of release, issued by him in the contempt charges pending against Sheriff Pope, of DeKalb County, should not be vacated.

Sheriff Pope had previously been cited in court by Judge A. E. Hawkins, of the DeKalb County Circuit Court, and jailed for contempt. Hon. O. D. Street, of Birmingham, and Col. John B. Isbell, of Ft. Payne, appealed to the Montgomery County Circuit Court for a writ of release for Sheriff Pope, which was granted and a writ of review issued, calling for a review of his case before that court on Friday, the 23rd day of November.

Citizens of DeKalb County then appealed to the Supreme Court for an order vacating Judge Jones' Writ. Acting on this petition the Supreme Court ordered Judge Jones to appear and show cause why said writ should not be vacated.

In the meantime Sheriff Pope stands released from imprisonment, pending the outcome of the case.

FARMERS TO VOTE ON COTTON LAW

December 14th Is Day Set For Ballot By Cotton Growers

Southern cotton growers will vote on the Bankhead Act on December 14, announces Secretary Wallace. If two-thirds of the producers vote for the act it will be continued in 1935 on an improved and more flexible basis. Otherwise it will be discarded.

The question to be answered by the cotton farmer is: "Are you in favor of continuing the Bankhead Act for next year?" The hours of voting are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Eligible voters are "persons who have the legal or equitable right as owner, tenant, share-cropper or otherwise to produce cotton on any cotton farm, or part thereof, in the United States for the crop year 1935-36."

County Agent, J. W. Fant, states that Chilton County cotton farmers will vote on the Bankhead Act on Dec. 14, are the regular places of voting in Chilton County, except in Beat 4 and Beat 9, as noted below:

All farmers in Beat 4 will vote at the courthouse in Clanton, and all farmers in Beat 9 will vote at the City Hall in Thorsby.

Mr. Fant further adds: "The 1934-35 cotton acreage reduction contracts will be enforced in 1935. This being true, those who have signed contracts should remember if the Bankhead Act is done away with, the non-signers will have an opportunity to grow all the cotton their forces will permit. Farmers who wish to may sign 1935 contracts."

In a press release from Warm Springs, Ga., president Roosevelt made the following statement in regard to the Bankhead Act:

"If the Bankhead Act is continued in effect for another year it is my purpose to recommend to the Congress an amendment granting an exemption for the full amount of his base production to each farmer who has an established base product of not more than two bales of cotton."

PLAY AT BILLINGSLEY HIGH SCHOOL DECEMBER 8

The Faculty of Billingsley High School will present "Moon Shy," a farce comedy in three acts, Saturday night, December 8th, in the Billingsley High School Auditorium.

A clean comedy, and how delighted you will be with it—full of laughs. Scene: The living-room of a summer cottage by the sea. Don't fail to see Esmeralda, who says she is a man-hater; Duke, the maid's burglar beau; and E. Mortimer Perkins, goodness, how shy!

FOSHEE-TIFFIN ENGAGEMENT WAS ANNOUNCED SUNDAY

The following announcement of wide interest to their friends in Clanton was made in the Birmingham News Sunday:

"Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Tiffin, of Clanton, announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Lou, to Mr. Alvin B. Foshee, also of Clanton, the wedding date to be announced later."

LOWERY-LITTLEFIELD MARRIAGE

Mr. Herman Lowery and Miss Olyce Littlefield were married at the home of Rev. Davis Saturday night November 17, at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Lowery is the grandson of Rev. Lowery. Miss Littlefield is the daughter of Barney Littlefield of Mineral Springs community. Mr. Lowery is an employee of Alabama Harness & Shoe Shop.

ANNOUNCEMENT

There will be a terracing demonstration near Isabella Schoolhouse Friday, December 7th.

We will use a Diesel caterpillar tractor and a terracing machine built specially for terrace work.

Every farmer in the county who is interested in terracing should be at this demonstration.—J. W. Fant.

SENATOR BORAH IS FOR NEW LEADERS

Complete Reorganization of Party By Liberals Is Demanded

Washington.—A revolt by young and liberal Republican elements to force a "complete reorganization" of the party for the 1936 acmpaign was proposed Saturday by Senator Borah.

The Idaho Republican demanded what he said could be called a "revolution" unless the conservatives now in control hold a meeting at once to cooperate to that end.

In a statement commenting on a proposal of Charles D. Hilles, Republican national committeemen from New York, that the party guard against reorganization, lest it result in factional chaos, Borah in effect challenged Chairman Fletcher and the Hilles group to hold a "plebiscite" if they believed the rank and file did not desire a change.

"I venture to believe they will not be long left in doubt," he asserted.

"If these genlemen are unwilling to do this, there is only one thing to do, as I see it, and that is to create a new organization.

"There are young Republican clubs all over the country which would form the nucleus of such a movement which would send representatives to a common meeting place and elect a chairman and complete a national organization."

Insisting he did not want a "third party" but a new Republican party, Borah said his stand probably would be interpreted as "revolution."

"But does not the present situation justify revolution?" he asked.

"If this is not done then the party will drift along completely in the hands under the control of an organization which has lost the confidence of the rank and file until we approach the national convention. This situation ought to be dealt with at once."

The Borah statement served to intensify the factional differences in Republican ranks. As far as the Senate is concerned, the independents are now about on an equal basis numerically with the regulars and it would not surprise some political observers to see the former take more of a hand in organization should the party remain strongly conservative.

Ever since the Eastern right wing element dictated last Summer the appointment of Fletcher, of Pennsylvania, the former diplomat and tariff commission head, some Western Republicans have been demanding his scalp.

The Hilles letter, addressed to an unidentified member of the national committee or group of members was interpreted in some quarters as an attempt to keep the Eastern anti-reorganization group in the ascendancy.

In the letter, the New Yorker paid tribute to Fletcher and said the latter planned a meeting of the party's executive committee this winter to map a course of action. No immediate confirmation of such a meeting call was obtainable.

Hear Sergeant Alvin C. York speak on prohibition at the courthouse Saturday at 10:30 a.m.

STATE ASKS FOR BID ON MORE SELMA ROAD

Five projects in the state, to cost $500,000, comprise the list on which bids were asked last Thursday by the State Highway Department. Included in these projects was that of 1.969 miles of bituminous surfacing on the road out from Clanton toward Maplesville. The amount of the project is $30,000.

Fant Compares Cotton Crop Figures In County For Past Three Years

To Cotton Farmers in Chilton County:

Every successful business man takes stock at the close of a business year. November closes the crop year for farmers. Our harvest is all in the barn or gone to the market by the end of November. We have our feed and food stored for the winter.

Let's figure on what has happened in Chilton County during the past two years under the New Farm Program:

1. Cotton plow-up in 1933.
2. 10-cent loan on 1933 cotton crop 3,500 bales.
3. 4 cent advance or cotton plow-up options—1933.
4. 1934-35 cotton acreage reduction rental contracts.
6. Rental payments—1934.
6. Rental payments—1924.
7. 12c loan on 1934 cotton crop—10,000 bales.
8. 2 cent additional advance on 1933 plow up options. (Will be here soon).
9. Parity payments—1934. (Will be here soon).
10. 2 cent additional loan on 1933 10 cent loans.

Now let's make a few comparisons and see how we stand this year compared with 1932 and 1933.

1932 CROP

11,907 bales at $32.50 per bale	$386,977.50
5,076 tons seed at $10.36 per ton	52,588.50
Total value of 1932 crop	$439,566.00

1933 CROP

12,072 bales, seed and plow up payments at $71.72 per bale	$865,805.84

1934 CROP

12,213 bales at $62.50 per bale	$763,312.50
5,334.75 tons seed at $37.50 per ton	200,054.25
348 bales gin certificates at $20.00	6,960.00
Rental payments	120,819.94
Parity payment at 1c per pound	35,785.02
Total value of 1934 crop	$1,126,931.71

I think it would be well for us to note the constant increase of cotton in Chilton County, even though we were paid to reduce. Our income doubled in 1933 over 1932, and increased 50 per cent in 1934 over 1933.

December 14 you will have an opportunity to vote on the continuation of a very important part of this new farm program—the Bankhead Cotton Control Act. I am enclosing some literature which I believe will be valuable for you to read before you decide to cast your vote for or against this important part of our farm program.

The 1934-35 cotton acreage reduction contracts will be enforced in 1935. This being true, those who have signed contracts should remember if the Bankhead Act is done away with, the non-signers will have an opportunity to grow all the cotton their forces will permit. Farmers who wish to may sign 1935 contracts.

Think these figures over and remember that the Bankhead Act is a part of the New Farm Program.

I am completing my first year's work with Chilton County farmers. I have enjoyed working with you folks, and certainly appreciate your good cooperation in carrying out the program for the year. Most of my time has been taken up with the cotton program; as a result, I have not been able to help with your individual farm program as much as I would have liked to. Let me solicit your continued cooperation in the future.

There are adjustments needed in the program, but I believe we should keep all the program and make adjustments, rather than kill part of it and seriously cripple the remainder.

Remember that practically every law that has been written needed revising. The same is true of the Bankhead Act. This will be done if we vote to keep it, but if we kill it we stand a good chance to revert back to 1932 conditions.

Very truly yours
J. W. FANT,
County Agent.

MORE PAVING ON SELMA HIGHWAY

Bids Will Be Requested For About Two More Miles of Asphalt

Recent developments seem to indicate that we are going to have some more paving on the Selma Highway, in addition to that which is now almost completed.

Some months ago Judge Reynolds "put our name in the pot" with the State Highway Department for about two miles in addition to the present contract, which, all told, would make the Selma Highway paved westward from Clanton to the Liberty Hill Crossing, about four miles in all.

A statement in the news columns of The Montgomery Advertiser one day last week, said the State Highway Department will advertise the additional project for bids right away. The distance was stated as 1.9 miles, and is estimated to involve a cost of about $30,000.

We learn from Selma that agitation for more paving on that end of the road is getting to be a live issue. A meeting in the interest of the work was said to have been held at Plantersville during the past week in which Judge Hobbs and other prominent Selma officials took part.

Gradually the importance of the Selma-Clanton Highway is becoming recognized in many parts of the State. We would not be surprised to see the whole forty-mile stretch paved in the next few years.

If we could have about a week of good weather, the present paving job from Clanton to the Willoughby Hill would be finished and ready for traffic.

SUNDAY SCHOOL RALLY

All officers and teachers in Baptist Sunday schools near Clanton are requested to meet Mr. Davis Cooper and Mr. John Meguire at the Clanton Baptist Church Friday evening at 7:30 in a rally of the Sunday school forces of the district. You are urgently requested to be present.

Mr. Cooper and Mr. Meguire are the state Baptist Sunday school workers.

CIRCUIT COURT

The non-jury term of Circuit Court was in session Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. We will publish a full report of cases disposed of next week.

Nivens Will Be Deputy Sheriff

Chief Assistant Is Named By Sheriff-Elect John Hardy

Sheriff-elect, John R. Hardy, who will assume the duties of Sheriff of Chilton County about the middle of next month, announced Monday that he has definitely chosen Mr. J. A. Nivens for the important position of chief deputy sheriff in his administration.

"There will be some other deputies employed," said the future Sheriff, "but I am not yet ready to announce them; but I can say that my chief deputy will be Mr. Nivens. That selection has been settled."

Mr. Nivens is at present serving on the Clanotn police force of which Mr. Hardy is chief. This position has been held by Mr. Nivens for more than a year.

Four years ago Mr. Nivens was a candidate for Sheriff of Chilton County, and was defeated by the present Sheriff, W. H. Gillespie. Mr. Nivens is widely known throughout Chilton County, and has many warm friends and admirers who will be glad to know of his future connection in the important position of chief deputy under Sheriff Hardy.

3 REPUBLICANS ENTER CONTEST

Culp, Collins and Harris To Test Vote of The General Election

Bills of complaint contesting the results of the general election of November 6th, in Chilton County, have been filed in the office of Circuit Court Clerk by W. G. Culp, Akins I. Collins, and H. A. Harris.

The contest declaration of W. G. Culp is directed against T. L. McKee, whom the election results as announced declare was elected Tax Collector by a majority of 54.

Akins Collins is contesting the election of Arthur D. Martin, who was declared winner of the office of Tax Assessor by a majority of 94 over Mr. Collins.

H. A. Harris is challenging the results of the race for Circuit Clerk, in which the official count stated J. C. Pattillo defeated Harris by a majority of 195.

Bill of complaint by Culp, Collins, and Harris, together with bonds for the costs of the court, have been filed with Circuit Clerk, J. Z. Mims. Notice of the complaints have been served on Mr. McKee, Mr. Martin, and Mr. Pattillo, by Sheriff Gillespie.

The latter parties have under the law five days from the time they were officially served notice by the sheriff to make answer to the charges of the contesting parties.

After such time has expired, the matter will come before the presiding judge of the Circuit Court, who will set a date upon which the proper legal machinery will be brought into action.

It was stated that the contesting parties have employed Hon. Oliver D. Street, Hon. J. Osmond Middleton and Hon. Percy M. Pitts, as counsel to handle the case for them.

All of the three contesting parties are Republicans. They declare that various illegal votes were cast and corrupt practices were conducted by their Democratic opponents, which, if corrected, will take away from the Democratic candidates and add to the Republican candidates enough votes to reverse the results of the election and give the offices to the Republicans.

Quartet Jailed As Robbery Suspects

Arrested on advices for Sheriff Sam Reynolds of Dallas County, the two Woolley brothers, Glenn 25, and Brown, 31, of Stanton, with G. T. Eaves 30, and Lee Davis, 29 of Oklahoma, are being held in the Seminole, Okla., jail awaiting identification Saturday as the robbers of the Red Bay, Ala., bank on November 3, when $2,500 was stolen in a bold daylight robbery.

Sheriff Reynolds received a telegram Thanksgiving day from Jake Sims, chief of police of Seminole, stating he was holding the four for the Dallas County officer who entered the case the past Friday following the finding of a V-8 car near Stanton which bore an Oklahoma license plate. The car was said to be owned by the Woolley brothers and investigations instituted by Sheriff Reynolds and his deputies disclosed that it had been seen in North Alabama.

The sheriff of Franklin County, in which Red Bay is situated, has been notified of the arrest of the four men. Final arrangements for the disposition of the men will be made after they have been viewed Saturday by Charles Cashion, cashier of the Bank of Red Bay, now en route there at 9:47 a.m. tomorrow, and will immediately view the men, three of whom he saw at the time of the robbery.

When arrested at Seminole Thursday the four men, all of them well known at Stanton, had in their possession two Alabama license plates which had been stolen from cars near the Stanton school and which belonged to the Jefferson Lumber Company and to Postmaster Wallace of Maplesville.

Telegrams received here today by Sheriff Reynolds state that the four Chilton County men also had clippings of the bank robbery in their luggage, along with the two stolen license plates. The four have been operating in the oil fields of Oklahoma, Sheriff Reynolds stated today, and made frequent trips back to Alabama and Chilton County.

So far the money, which amounted exactly to $2,571.67 has not been recovered. Dallas County officers say that the four young men left Stanton by a freight train after the wrecking the past week of their car, but that they later purchased tickets and continued to Oklahoma where advices furnished by the Dallas County officers brought about their arrest.

Listed among the four names in the Associated Press dispatches Friday was the name of G. T. Eaves which was erroneously given as Graves. Eaves and Davis both are from Oklahoma.

The Woolley boys are well known in this section. Their mother, Mrs. Calhoun Woolley, widow of a rural letter carier, now lives at Stanton where the family has many relatives.

Chilton Schools May Run On

Indications seem favorable that the United States Government will again play the part of a wealthy parent and come to the rescue of Alabama in the dilemma it is facing in devising means for the continuance of schools.

Last year the schools in Chilton County were the recipients of more than $40,000 of federal money, supplied by a kind Uncle Sam that the schools of this county could be continued to their normal lengths. It is again probable that our schools will receive aid from the federal government to prevent the closing of the doors several weeks earlier than they should be closed, according to the opinion of Supt. Luther E. Little.

However, Mr. Little explained that it is far from definite just what plan will be put into effect, or whether federal aid will be available at all. Congressman W. B. Oliver has expressed himself sympathetic with extending some type of aid to the schools of Alabama again this year, though he expressed the opinion that if federal aid is secured it will likely be on a different plan than last year. He suggested that perhaps aid may be extended in the form of a long time loan to the State of Alabama.

At a meeting in Tuscaloosa last Friday of approximately 300 representatives of almost every county in the Sixth District, which was called at the request of Congressman Oliver, the venerable statesman declared himself heartily in accord with the idea of extending federal aid to Alabama schools again this year. The meeting was called for the purpose of furnishing data to Mr. Oliver that he might be better equipped to submit the matter to the Appropriations Committee, of which he is a member.

Without federal aid, the schools of Chilton County may be forced to close on terms two to four months shorter than normal. Mr. Little said that without federal aid he does not see how the schools will be able to operate after March 1, and some of the elementary schools will likely be closed even earlier.

This is a situation, however, that leaders throughout the country are fighting to prevent, and they declare that they have reason to believe that some steps will be taken to give school children their chance again this year.

Those who attended the Tuscaloosa meeting were: Superintendent Little, L. C. Warr, principal of the Chilton County High School, W. M. Wyatt, editor of The Union-Banner, John C. Page, cashier of the First National Bank, and R. W. Lowe, commander of the local post of the American Legion.

ANNUAL CARNIVAL BALL FOR CRIPPLED CHIDRENS' CLINIC

Miss Farris Gambrill, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Gambrill, ruled as queen over a gala court of princesses and envoys from all parts of the state at Alabama's annual Chirstmas Carnival Ball last Saturday evening at Municipal auditorium, sponsored by the Birmingham Debutante club and the Birmingham Post for the benefit of the Crippled Children's clinic.

Holding the scepter as king on the royal throne beside the queen was Ross Smith, Son of Mr. and Mrs. Hampton Smith.

With a blare of trumpets, flashes of light and applause, A. B. Aldridge, master of ceremonies, revealed the identity of their royal highness, king and queen, who proceeded to the stage to take their places on the throne, which was mounted on a dias. They were preceded by the ladies-in-waiting, members of the Debutante club, and their escorts, who stood beside the throne.

Forming a background for the court was a silver and royal blue modernistic curtain in the center of which was the coat-of-arms of the Debutante club and the Crippled Children's clinic, details of which were emphasized by red, blue and silver colors illuminated by soft, indirect lights.

A medley of Christmas music by Coleman Sachs and his orchestra opened the ball, followed by a fan ballet from the costumes of pink outlined around the hem with silver and their pink and rose fans added to the color and gayety of the spectacle.

After the princesses form Alabama cities presented their monetary gifts to the queen and she made the presentation to W. A. Currie, president of the Crippled Children's clinic, Miss Mary Muller and Frank Jones, of Anniston, gave an exhibition waltz that was a thing of beauty and grace. Miss Muller's constume of white with a skirt of ruffles having 1,000 yards of tulle was set off by the black suit of her dancing partner. Following their number, the court, including ladies-in-waiting, out-of-town pricensses, their escorts and the king and queen, had the first dance of the evening, creating a scene of carnival and holiday revelry for the audience who joined them later.

Clanton Represented

From Clanton came Miss Jane Roberts, whose escort was Edwin Mullins. She wore a white taffeta frock with square neckline. A double row of ruffles reached from the shoulder around the waist. The skirt had inserted flares at the sides. A clasp of rhinestones fastened the sash. She wore a corsage of roses. Miss Roberts, the daughter of Mrs. Barney Roberts, is a junior at Woman's College in Montgomery where she is specializing in music.

Six clubs were represented from Birmingham. Princesses were presented from Anniston, Athens, Bessemer, Cullman, Detcatur, Dothan, Fort Payne, Gadsden, Homewood, Huntsville, Jasper, LaFayette, Mobile, Talladega, Marion, Pell City, Prattville, Selma, Russelville, Sheffield, Troy and Tuscaloosa.

WHY I AM FOR THE BANKHEAD COTTON CONTROL LAW — WITH AMENDMENTS

In less than two weeks the cotton growers in every cotton growing county will be called upton to express themselves by ballot on the Bankhead Cotton Control Act.

Regardless of the success or failure of said Bankhead Law at the polls on December 14th, all farmers who signed a contract this year and all farmers who have secured a government loan on their cotton, as well as all who have been helped by loans of any kind by the government have already agreed to comply with the required reduction program and will not be permitted to plant more than 75 per cent of their five year cotton acreage. Therefore, more than four-fifths of the cotton growers cannot increase their acreage above the required, so why should we be willing for the Bank head Act to be killed, letting the small number of non-contract signers plant all the cotton they want at our expense, thereby offsetting the benefits to be derived by all, and making it possible for us to have to sell the next crop for six cents or less and seed for less than eighteen dollars per ton.

Each contract signer in the past will have certain acreage and yields allotted to him for 1935 and I am firmly in favor of all cotton growers being required to cooperate in helping maintain the price of cotton and cotton seed and expect to vote for a continuation of the Bankhead Act with the belief that it will be amended and work no hardship on cotton growers generally.

Respectfully yours,
J. N. DENNIS.

Purpose.—For the benefit of the Methodist and Baptist churches. Admission will be 5 cents.

There will be music, relays, contests and a sock supper. Boys you get your supper and a pair of socks. Everyone is invited.

CANE CREEK

Our box supper was a success last Friday night. Had a large crowd and collected some over $25.00. We surely thank everyone for their cooperation shown. We thank every one for all they did, and last, but not least, do we appreciate the behavior from the boys. Everyone was so good and really acted right. The proceeds went on our piano fund.

Next Saturday and Sunday are our regular preaching days. Don't forget to come. Bro. Robinson will tell us something worth while. Don't forget Sunday school at 10:00 a.m. and be promptly on time.

In the afternoon we will meet at two o'clock for our singing. We hope to have cooperation from the other churches, and we especially invite Mr. Ocie Devaughn to come.

ALABAMIAN'S FATHER IS KILLED IN NEW YORK

New York, Dec. 3.—Lummis A. Knapp, 85, father of Lummis A. Knapp, Jr., postmaster of Auburn, Alabama, died yesterday following an automobile accident.

His widow, five sons and three daughters survive. One of the sons, Captain Robert D. Knapp, U. S. A., is stationed at Randolph Field, Texas, and a daughter, Mrs. Chester Ashby, lives in Hilton Village, Virginia.

CARD OF THANKS

Editor Union-Banner:

Will you please allow me space to thank one and all who helped us when we were in need?

We do not know all of you, but we want you all to know we appreciate all that you have given. Dear friends, if it had not been for you all we would have suffered more than we did.

You don't know how we fell when we received what you all gave to our needs. Words cannot tell how we appreciate what you all did for us. We can never forget you all. Any time I can assist any of you I will be more than glad to do it. May God bless you all many times is our prayer. We love each and every one of you.—Obie Moates and Family.

Steagall, Abbeville; Congressman Henry B. Steagall, Ozark; Guy Moss, Gadsden; and R. L. Kilgore, Jasper.

During the past year practically all of the major fox hunting organizations in Alabama have become affiliated with the state association.

Cullman, Ala., Dec. 4.—Three Cullman county hunters went squirrel hunting in the Alabama National Forest recently, killed a five foot rattlesnake and in the snake found a full grown gray squirrel.

Dr. T. A. Robinson, T. J. Vogle and Clarence Legg, all of Cullman, had bagged 14 squirrels when their dogs started barking at the snake.

After dispatching the rattler, which had 11 rattles, the hunters noticed a bulge in the snake and cutting it open, found their 15th squirrel.

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 4.—At the request of W. C. Henderson of the U. S. Bureau of Biological Survey, the Alabama Game and Fisheries Department has prepared a report showing that its hunting and fishing revenues for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1933, amounted to $75,575.60.

This resulted from the sale of 11,836 state hunting licenses, 42,206 county hunting licenses, 127 non-resident annual and trip hunting licenses, 253 non-resident annual and trip fishing licenses, and 99 trapping licenses, or a total of 54,521 licenses.

Mr. Darden—"What is steel wool?"

Solomon—"If I'm not mistaken it is the fleece of hydraulic rams."

Ferguson—"Why do you speak to girls you do not know?"

Crowe—"Because the girls I do know will not speak to me."

SINGING SOCIETY MET AT CHESTNUT CREEK

The singing society met with Chestnut Creek Sunday afternoon. I feel sure, almost everyone present, enjoyed the singing, because it was real good. The following directors took part on the program:

I. D. Huett, G. C. Weldon, Orvid Hughes, L. T. Grant, Floy Devaughn, A. B. Stanley, Dr. Williams, Dewey Hughes, W. M. Devaughn, J. B. Crewe, Clayton Miller, Paul Hughes, Raybon Crew, L. J. Crew, Raymond Gilliland, and Audey Brown. A duet was rendered by Mrs. Stanley and her little daughter, Josephine, which was real pretty. A special number was sung by W. M. Devaughn, Floy Devaughn, Mrs. Stanley, and Melton Hughes. Pianists were Miss Louanna Jones, Mrs. Stanley and Mr. C. H. Robinson.

Prof. L. T. Grant was elected as the new chairman for the society which will meet again the first Sunday in January at 2:00 o'clock.

WATCH YOUR MAILING XMAS

Christmas mailing is expected to be much heavier this year than it was last, and I cannot urge too strongly that Christmas packages be mailed as early as possible. These packages may be marked, "Do not open until Christmas," if so desired.

Packages should be securely wrapped and properly addressed, with the name of the sender on them. When a package is brought to the postoffice for mailing and is scurely wrapped, properly addressed, it takes only a few minutes of the sender's time to have it weighed and stamped. This will do a great deal toward avoiding delay at the windows, as well as insuring proper delivery of the package. When insuring packages, it is not a good idea to place the address on both sides. One side is sufficient if the package is to be insured.

Mrs. Tharp—"Do you want to know something?"

Mr. Tharp—"Sure."

Mrs. Tharp—"Well, maybe some day you will."

ANNOUNCEMENT

I am now a part of Chilton County, living here and being interested in its growth and development. I now have the exclusive Agency for the Singer Sewing Machine Company in this county, handling every type of Machine made, and servicing the ones now in use with parts, etc.

Appetite gone?

A simple thing, perhaps...yet a very serious one, resulting in loss of strength...body weakness... and possibly many other ills. So why not check-up and snap back to the zest of eating and well being. You will find S.S.S. a great, scientifically-tested tonic—not just a so-called tonic, but one specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood to enable you to "carry on." Do try it. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon enjoy again the satisfaction of appetizing food and good digestion...sound sleep...and renewed strength. Remember, "S.S.S. makes you feel like yourself again."

Do not be blinded by the efforts of a few unethical dealers who may suggest substitutes. You have a right to insist that S.S.S. be supplied you on request. Its long years of preference is your guarantee of satisfaction.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala., Dec. 4.—Alabama's mighty Crimson Tide has again received the invitation to represent the East in the annual Tournament Roses football game at Pasadena, California, on New Year's Day. The Crimson Tide received the invitation after defeating Vanderbilt University at Birmingham Thanksgiving Day 34 to 0. Stanford University, tied by Alabama in the Rose Bowl classic on January 1, 1927, will be western representative.

Coach Frank Thomas stated that he was very pleased that his team received the invitation to carry the East's standard. Two light signal practices are to be held next week, after which intensive practice will be resumed.

The Tide will entrain on December 21 for Los Angeles and will arrive in the City of Angels on the morning of December 24. Practice will be held probably at San Antonio, Texas. Three teams will make the trip.

The Alabama-Stanford classic will mark the Crimson's fourth invasion of the Rose Bowl. Alabama has won two games and tied one. On January 1, 1926, Coach Wallace Wade's team turned back the Washington Huskies 20 to 19, coming from behind to win. A year later the Tide battled Stanford to a 7 to 7 tie. In 1931 Wade took his last Alabama team to the coast, and crushed Washington State 24 to 0. The Tide went west once since Thomas took over the reins, and won from Saint Mary's in 1932, 6 to 0.

Alabama will be represented by perhaps the most versatile team in her history. The Crimson Tide has been ranked on top with Minnesota and Stanford, and leads the nation's college teams in scoring 287 points.

On the team are four men who have made most of the All Southern selections, Howell at halfback, Lee at tackle, Marr at guard, and Hutson at end. The three have also been named on several of the first all-America picks.

The coast will have the opportunity of seeing Howell and Grayson, two all-American players, opposing each other.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks for each kind word and deed rendered during the short illness and death of our mother, grandmother and great grandmother, Mrs. Susan C. Cooper.—C. H. Cooper and Family.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

SYRUP AND POTATOES WILL BE PURCHASED

The federal surplus relief corporation has authorized the Alabama relief administration to purchase 150,000 gallons of cane syrup and 50,000 bushels of sweet potatoes.

The syrup will be bought at a maximum of 50 cents a gallon, packed in gallon tins, and the potatoes at a maximum of 55 cents per bushel. The syrup and potatoes will be bought first from farmers under the rural rehabilitation program and then from others if the supply from this source is not sufficient, reports the relief administration.

FARM CASH INCOME MORE THAN DOUBLED

Alabama farmers are this year receiving over $73,000,000 more cash than they did two years ago, reports F. W. Gist, state and federal statistician, who gives figures showing that the cash income this year exceeds that of last year by $40,000,000.

The cash income of Alabama farmers this year is approximately $131,000,000 compared with $58,598,000 in 1932, and $91,708,000 in 1933. This shows that the cash income this year more than doubled that of 1932.

CLUB MEETS WITH MRS. ROBERTS

The Minooka Home Demonstration Club met with Mrs. Roberts on November 26, 1934. The president, Mrs. C. B. Martin, had charge of the business meeting. Miss Ruth Pardue then took charge. Plans were made to have a Community Christmas Tree at the home of Mrs. Roberts, December 10th, at 2:00 o'clock. A beautiful display of Chirstmas gifts were then shown. Project for December meeting will be Christmas wrapping.

Notice the date of next meeting, December 10, 1934.

C. C. C. PROGRAM IS SUPPORTED BY PEOPLE

Montgomery.—A recent survey conducted by the State Commission of Forestry dicloses that material as well as moral assistance is being given to the work of the Civilian Conservation Corps in Alabama. Various State Departments, numerous counties and municipalities and a large number of citizens and landowners have given construction materials, loaned the services of employees, and donated the use of equipment for the successful conduct of the forestry and erosion program. Expressed in monetary values a total of $40,000 has been contributed for the forestry projects and $14,000 for erosion control.

Surveying equipment, tractors, graders, pile drivers, road plows and other items of utility have been furnished without cost, while bridge timber, lumber, culvert material, sand and gravel have been freely given as needed. Lumber companies and individuals have donated the use of camp sites, and supplied water and electricity without charge. Landowners have given the services of skilled workers saw filers, teams, etc. All services, assistance and cooperation have been extended with the purpose of taking full advantage of President Roosevelt's program to develop the natural resources of Alabama.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Williams and Douglas, Jim Barrett and family from Selma spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Sam Jones.

Mr. Williamson—"What is the most outstanding gift that chemistry has given to the world?"

Fleming—"Blond hair."

CORN WEEVILS ARE PLENTIFUL

Auburn, Ala.—Indications are that corn-weevil damage this winter in Alabama will exceed the three to four million dollars loss in normal years.

Because of the larger crop of corn, higher prices, and greater abundance of weevils, due, perhaps, to warm winters i nrecent years, Prof. J. M. Robinson, entomologist at Auburn, anticipates increased damage. Fall reports, he says, indicate that this well-known insect is abundant throughout the southern half of Alabama and less numerous in the northern half.

The corn weevil is ranked second only to boll weevils in damage done to Alabama crops by insects. Yet it can be controlled effectively and inexpensively, Professor Robinson said. This can be done through fumigation with carbon disulphide in accordance with standard directions sent from Auburn or distributed by county agents who are conducting demonstrations in fumigation. Complete but concise information is contained in Leaflet No. 8, "Control of Insect Pests in Stored Grains, Peas, and Beans," published by the Alabama Experiment Station.

4-H STYLE HOPE

Virginia Charlton, age 15, of Autaugaville, is the hope of Alabama 4-H clothing girls to win national style honors. She will model her state champion costume in a feature revue at the Chicago Club Congress, on December 5th. It is a party dress which with all accessories cost $8.08 including 50-cent hose, 50-cent gloves and $2.00 shoes. As state winner she receives a prize educational trip to the Club Congress through the Chicago Mail Order Company which provides a handsome gold medal and other prizes for national winners. The girl has completed four years of club work.

CORN-HOG GROWERS OFFERED CONTRACTS

Benefit payments will be offered to Alabama farmers who wish to adjust their corn or hog production in 1935. The maximum reduction to be required by the 1935 contracts will be 10 per cent under the base average for 1932 and 1933. However, corn growers may reduce as much as 30 per cent and get benefit payments in proportion with their reduction.

Barber—"Sir, er, that is, I mean I have been going with your daughter for five years."

Father of girl—"Well, what do you want now, a pension?"

The Story of the Bible Told in Pictures

Daniel in the Lions' Den.—Under Darius, Daniel retained his high position, being made chief of the three presidents which Darius set over the kingdom. Then his fellow dignitaries induced King Darius to issue a decree forbidding any one to ask anything of God or man for thirty days except of the king. When Daniel, nevertheless, continued to pray three times a day, the king against his will felt obliged to carry out the decree. "Then the king commanded, and they brought Daniel, and cast him into the den of lions. Then the king went to his palace, and passed the night fasting. Then the king arose very early in the morning, and went in haste unto the den of lions. And when he came to the den, he cried with a lamentable voice unto Daniel: Is thy God, whom thou servest continually, able to deliver thee from the lions? Then said Daniel unto the king, O king, live forever. My God hath sent His Angel, and hath shut the lions' mouths, that they have not hurt me. Then was the king exceeding glad for him, and commanded that they should take Daniel up out of the den; and no manner of hurt was found upon him, because he believed in his God."—Daniel 6: 16-23. IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for December 9

THE CHRISTIAN AS TEACHER

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 7:24-29; Acts 18:24-28.

GOLDEN TEXT—Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth.—II Timothy 2:15.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Our Teacher.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus the Great Teacher.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Learning From the Master Teacher.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Teaching Church.

It seems that the lesson committee decided upon a title and then sought texts to fit it. It is very difficult, if not impossible, to make the texts fit the title. Regardless of the strained effort required to make this adjustment, two vitally practical Scripture passages are before us from which to set forth vital truths. The following practical lesson plan is suggested.

I. Jesus the Master Teacher (Matt. 7:24-29).

1. His method of teaching (vv. 24-27). In his application of the so-called Sermon on the Mount Jesus used a most striking simile, namely, the two foundations.

a. The house built on a rock (vv. 24-25). This house endured the storms and flood because of its secure and abiding foundation. The wise builder will see to it that a safe foundation is provided before he proceeds to erect his house.

b. The house built on the sand (vv. 26-27). This house collapsed with the impact of the storms and flood because its foundation was insecure. The foolish builder is the man who proceeds to build his house without consideration of the importance of the foundation.

By house in this figure is doubtless meant human life and character. And by rock is meant the teachings of Christ. Every man is building a house. The fact of building is true of every human being. The supreme difference is not in the men who build or the material used in the building, but in the foundation upon which they build. The foundation determines everything so far as man's destiny is concerned. A time of testing will surely come to every life. The matter of importance is as to whether we are building upon the foundation which will withstand the coming storms and flood. The one who builds upon the words of Jesus Christ is eternally secure.

2. The impression made (vv. 28-29). The people were astonished. The content of Christ's teaching as well as his manner of teaching was in contrast with that of the scribes. The teaching of the scribes consisted in the repetition of the words of others, while Christ's teaching was in his own words. The Christian teacher should give forth a positive and certain message because he sets forth the inerrant and eternal words of Christ the living God.

II. Apollos the Teacher Who Needed to Be Taught (Acts 18:24-28).

Apollos is a striking example of many Christian leaders today. Many are gifted, energetic, and highly trained, and yet are ignorant of the real Christian message and Pentecostal grace.

1. Who he was (v. 24). He was an Alexandrian Jew, highly cultured, carefully instructed in the Old Testament Scriptures, energetic and eloquent. He was a believer in Jesus Christ, even familiar with his life and teaching.

2. What he lacked (v. 25). He was only a disciple of John the Baptist. He was therefore ignorant of the meaning of Christ's death, resurrection, ascension, and the gift of the Spirit as outpoured at Pentecost. There are striking parallels to this today in the Christian church. We have many good men eloquent and highly cultured who know only "the baptism of John." They insist upon the integrity of men in public life, social justice, and even call upon men to repent of their sins, but they seem to know nothing of the meaning of the death of Christ, the necessity of the new birth by the Spirit, and the Pentecostal gift. They are pleading for social justice and a higher standard of ethics, seemingly not knowing that these are by-products of the gospel and are meaningless and impossible without the proclamation of the gospel of Christ which centers in the person and work of the divine Saviour.

3. Who instructed Apollos (v. 26). Priscilla and Aquila, humble Christian tent-makers, were instrumental in showing the great preacher his ignorance and leading him into the truth.

4. Result of his ministry (vv. 27-28). He was provided with credentials and had a fruitful ministry. He mightily convinced the Jews showing that Jesus was the Messiah.

God Is Everywhere

"If I take the wings of the morning and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea, even there shall thy hand lead me and thy right hand shall hold me."

Headed Right

By being true to the moral conscience your face is set in the right direction; it is turned towards Zion.

Use a Ladder

"They that have not wings to mount must use a ladder to climb."—Calvin.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Lakeman of Lay Dam were visitors to Clanton Monday.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

It will possibly be a number of weeks before this article appears in an American paper. I am writing from northern Ireland where we are conducting evangelistic services. I have always wanted to come to this country. My mother's people were from the north of Ireland. The people here are gracious and hospitable. They are distinctly evangelistic. A Scotch minister who is a pastor in Liverpool, speaking to me a few days ago, said, "The English have polish, the Scotch have depth, and the Irish have heat." I have met some Irishmen who have culture and who have depth, but all the Irish people I have met are fervent and most responsive to the gospel.

My attention has been caled to an editorial which appeared recently in "The Belfast News." It is so much in line with what I have been preaching that I am quoting an entire paragraph. "Whither are we tending? How often do we ask ourselves the question in relation to politics, to social questions, to scientific thoughts, and, above all, to religion? As regards religion, it is only as the question touches Christianity that it matters seriously. There is no religion that competes with Christianity for world dominion today except the religion of the secularity, for, in his own way, the secularist is a religious man. Just as the one hundred per cent Christian aims at bringing God into every phase and part of human life, so the secularist aims at excluding Him from it completely and thoroughly. Which power is going to sway civilized man during the next few years? Is life going to be more and more secularized? Or is it going to become more and more God-coloured, and God-directed?"

The writer of the preceding article says that there are signs of an awakening conscience in individuals everywhere, and that there is much talk of a revival. He quotes Mr. Beverly Nichols who says, "I believe that we are about to witness in England a religious revival of such intensity that it may well cause the kindred movements of history to seem like feebled plaints and weak gestures. There is every sign of it, and every reason for it, too." The editor warns, as we have tried to warn the Christian people in America, that we are facing spiritual danger. Modernism has failed. Modernistic preachers have emptied the churches practically everywhere. There is a swinging back to the evangelistical orthodox position. The danger now is that we may go into a religious fanaticism. If the devil can't freeze us to death with modernistic preaching, then he will try to burn us up with wild fanaticism. At the Bob Jones College I am always telling our students, "Be orthodox, be fervent, but stay in the middle of the road. Don't go off at a tangent." There is going to be a great need within the next few years for a sane, well trained, middle-of-the-road, fervent orthodox leadership.

ABOUT FRIENDSHIP PASTOR SALARY, ETC.

Mr. S. J. M. Webb asks The Union-Banner to publish exactly how the error happened in the Statistical Table of the Chilton County Association Minutes regarding Friendship church pastor's salary. The church letter was made out by the church clerk in such a way that it was not clear to Rev. Barnes in Montgomery, who compiles the statistical tables. There were two items entering into the pastor's salary—one $100 and the other $20. Both were written into the letter, but only the $20 was carried over into the total column. The total column was all that Mr. Barnes looked at in copying the letter on the large table.

The name of Rev. Wm. E. Robinson, who is a member at Friendship and who is an ordained minister, was not written in on the church letter certifying his as an ordained minister belonging to that church. Therefore, the Clerk of the Association did not find his name when he checked through the church letters to make up his list of ordained ministers.

From the above facts, it will be deducted that the errors occuring in the statistical table referred to in last week's paper were due to the oversight of the church clerk at Friendship in filling out the letter.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our friends and relatives for their kindness and assistance during the illness and floral offerings at the funeral of our darling baby, Dewey Frank, who died on November 18, from colitis and other ailments, after an illness of about four weeks. We wish to thank Rev. Lowery of Thorsby for his comforting words, also Dr. Lawrence and nurse of Clanton, and the doctors and nurses of King Memorial Hospital of Selma, for their never-tiring efforts to save this little life. Everything that loving hands could do was done, but god saw fit to take him home, and His Will must be done, not ours.

May God bless each and every one who aided us in any way is our most sincere prayer.—Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Wright and Children.

LIBERTY HILL

Next Saturday and Sunday are our regular preaching days here, by our pastor, Rev. J. S. Holland. All members and the public are requested to be present.

There will not be any singing in the afternoon on account of the class going to Pleasant Valley. All of the singers are requested to go, and all others who like to hear singing, have an invitation to attend also.—D. W. Ward, Chairman.

"ALWAYS IN TROUBLE"

This play will be presented at Mineral Springs Church Friday night, December 7, beginning at 7 o'clock. It is a three-act play just full of fun. So don't miss it, Folks, please don't think because the admission is so littlle that the play is no good. We guarantee you 50 cent's worth of fun for only a "dime".

The play is being put on by the Mineral Springs boys and girls, and we want a big audience to enjoy all the fun. Proceedings will go for the benefit of the Church.

Admission 5 cents and 10 cents.

REPORT ON WOODWARD FUND

I have received the following amounts from the following churches to help pay the transportation of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Woodward back to China:

Clanton, $250; Bethesda, $3.50; Big Springs, $15.00; Billingsley, $16.50; Milton, $5.10; Samaria, $17.50; Marbury, $10.00; Pleasant Valley, $5.00; Alpine, $5.11; Mt. I hold the receipts from Dr. Barton for the above and will hand to the pastors as I see them or to any member of the above churches. If any mistakes are noted please see me for corrections.—S. J. Ezell, Treasurer.

SGT. ALVIN YORK IN CLANTON

Saturday morning at 10:30 at the courthouse, Sgt. Alvin York will deliver an address to the citizens of Chilton county on the subject, "Why I Believe in Prohibition."

Sergeant York is perhaps the outstanding hero of the World's great War. This is a rare opportunity for the citizens of our county to hear one of the world's greatest men and heroes. He comes here under the auspices of the temperance forces of Alabama, and will discuss one of the most vital subjects before our state today. Every mother and father of Chilton County shuld try to hear this great man on this vital subject. Tell your friends.

DON'T GET UP NIGHTS

Use Juniper Oil, Buchu Leaves, Etc.

Flush out excess acids and waste matter. Get rid of bladder irritation that causes waking up, frequent desire, scanty flow, burning and backache. Make this 25c test. Get Juniper oil, buchu leaves, etc., in little green tablets called Bukets, the bladder laxative. In four days if not pleased your druggist will return your 25c.—Alred Drug Co., and Upchurch Drug Co.

GOING TO ROSE BOWL?

I am contemplating making the trip to California during the last week in December, to see the Alabama-Stanford football game at Pasadena on January 1, 1935. If I go, will have room for two passengers. Anyone thinking of making this trip, see me. Will leave on December 25, and reach Los Angeles on the morning of December 29, giving over two days before the day of the game, in which to see the city. Will leave for home on January 4, to arrive here January 10.—Paul C. Mims, at Union-Banner office.

A. J. DAVIS THANKS VOTERS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper to express my thanks to those who saw fit to support me in the last election. To those who did not support me I hold no ill will whatever. And if there is anything that I can do to help my opponent who won over me in any way I am ready at any time. —A. J. Davis, Jemison, Ala.

PLEASANT HILL

Last Sunday being our regular singing evening we had a large crowd and did some good singing. We had several visitors with us and were glad to have them visit our singing and ask them to come back again. Directors were P. M. Cleckler, J. A. Blow, Jessie Driver, E. L. Glasscock, A. H. Glasscock, Emmitt Wilson, Pianists were Mrs. Bell Huette, Mrs. O. L. Martin, Mrs. James Gillespie.

We had another large crowd out to help us carry on our Sunday school, also our B. Y. P. U. Sunday night. We are glad to see so many getting interested in church work. We were especially glad to see a number of 10 or more girls and boys join our B. Y. P. U. Sunday night with us. We feel like our B. Y. P. U. is doing good.

Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Cleckler spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Cleckler.

Misses Central Cost, Dathia Cleckler and Minnie Bolton were the guests of Pearlene Martin Sunday.

We have changed our singing, as our regular preaching dates are on the third Sunday in each month our singing will be on the third Sunday afternoon in each month. Don't forget the date. Visitors are always welcome.—Reporter.

NEGRO MINSTREL AT PROCIDENCE BEAT 13

JEMISON HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

Everyone was back in school Monday morning very enthusiastic over their work after the Thanksgiving holidays.

The Senior class held a meeting Friday afternoon with Mr. Peterson and Miss Harvey present, for the purpose of making a program plan for class night. The program planned is quite different from the usual plan. The welcome address will be given by Howard Anderson, president, and the oratorical address given by Evelyn Martin, followed by the speaker of the evening. The Senior class is very busy, as we are already making progress in our play "Son John," to be given January 4, 1935, coached by Mrs. Susie Bald.

On November 24th, Miss Virginia Price was the charming hostess to the Senior class at a lovely house party. Dancing, games and contests were enjoyed to a late hour, followed by delicious refreshments served by the hostess. Everyone reported an enjoyable evening.

The following members of the faculty spent the Thanksgiving holidays at their respective homes: Miss Miriam Harvey, Atmore, Alabama; Miss Celia Cumbee, Stroud, Alabama; Miss Leacy Newell, Coy, Alabama; Miss Grace Meigs, Columbiana, Alabama; Mrs. Carl Glasscock, Billingsley, Alabama. All reported a nice time throughout the holidays.

"Uncle Bud and His Boll Weevils" will be at Jemison High School auditorium, Friday night, December 7; at 7:30 p.m. Admission 15 cents and 25 cents. The public in invited.

SAILS FOR HONOLULU

Ediotr Union-Banner:

Please allow space in your next edition for this small article, of which I am sure will be of great interest to all friends of Mr. Mims. He is also interested in his friends and the general welfare and success of Chilton County. The article is as follows:

Mr. Harold Mims of Mulberry community, who has been in New York since September, will sail for Honolulu on Dec. 4th.

Harold has spent a very happy and successful vacation in New York City since he has been away from home. He will sail on the "Republic" and expects to stay in Hawaii two years. He hopes to make a collection of trophies on his lengthy stay and hopes to bring back a good many souvenirs from the South Sea islands.

Old-Time Republic'n Comments On Vote

Editor Union-Banner:

We have had a great Democratic-Republican victory. But, says one, "We thought it was a Democratic victory only." Yes, everyone knows that a Democratic victory in Chilton County was impossible unless aided by Republican votes.

Honor to whom honor is due. We note that Uncles, Gus and Joe, are giving credit to Republicans for helping them win. This is out of the usual order. But it is as it should be, acknowledged Republican aid.

A Democrat living in Clanton long ago said, "You can never out vote the Republicans, but you can win, through the defeated Republican candidates." Is it not true?

Well, we note Mr. A. A. Jackson is against certain features of the Bankhead Law. We wish he had been one year earlier, before the little man was hurt. Because the little cotton grower is hurt; the one that needed help most is getting the least. So we must wait another year. The good times are always just ahead, so it is "keep waiting."

Yes, the loyal Republicans got a good lacing this time. But it took the opposition about forty years to get where they are now. So we take our hats off to the more than 2,000 loyal men and women who, when the battle was over, went down with their own people and were not found on the opposing side. We congratulate J. Z. Mims when he quotes the immortal "Teddy," saying, "He goes back into the ranks, but does not leave the army."

We congratulate Dewey Hughes when he speaks out for law and order.

Hon. L. B. Pounds once said the Democratic party is "Water-logged and whiskey soaked." If that be true then temperate people have a fight on their hands. The question is coming and we have to meet it. We see no good resulting from the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. But if any difference, more drink than before. We believe Mr. A. A. Jackson said, "We never can destroy, and drink our way into prosperity."

We want temperance to prevail, thus aiding law and order, which will add to the happiness of all our people. We are tired of doles, and the loss of our civic pride. Give us back our American individualism.

Where is the much talked of prosperity? Where do we have much money now, except government money? But they tell us good times are coming. But when? Long live true Americanism and The Union-Banner. —An Old-Timer.

FIDDLER'S CONVENTION AT THOMAS JR. HIGH DEC. 14

On Friday night, Dec. 14, the P.-T. A. of Thomas Jr. High School are sponsoring a fiddler's convention. All fiddlers are cordially invited and several prizes will be awarded. The time is 7:30 and admission is 10c and 15c. 2t.

BAKER SCHOOL

The Jr. III class is planning to put on the play, "Her Aunt Elvira," in the near future. The characters in this play are: Ethel Pierce, unmarried and lonly, Annie Leah Bates; Elvira Stillings, her aunt, who dominates the household, Gladys Wyatt; Nellie Donahue, Ethel's servant, Caudell Chapman; Pat Donahue, Nellie's husband, Willie Blackwell; Dr. David French, Ethel's former fiance, Fonzie Coe; Mary Papane, Nancy Heath, Katherene Jones, one of whom Ethel plans to adopt, Lennell Eubanks, Gertice Riggins, and Minnie Lee Lockhart; John Peters, Katherene's boy friend, Clyde Bradbury; Sir Edward Laughton-Laughton, an old friend of Ethel's, Vernon Baker.

We hope to have a big crowd out to see the play. We are sure you will not regret spending your money to see it. You will get plenty of fun out of it.

The "hope chest business" is in full swing now. We are selling the chances on it. We hope you all will cooperate with us and buy a chance on it. You mgiht be the lucky one and get lots. This is to help pay for the blackboards.

Those who are on the honor roll this month are as follows:

Jr. III second honor roll—Caudell Chapman, Annie Leah Bates, Gladys Wyatt, Min Lee Lockhart, John Earl Hosey, Willie Blackwell, Clyde Bradbury and Clemon Henley.

GLAUCUS BAKER SAW STARS FALL ON ALABAMA SUNDAY

Mr. Glaucus Baker, who lives about three miles southwest of Clanton, reports that he saw the meteor, or a part of it, which fell on Alapama last Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Baker said he saw his sight about 4:30, and it looked like a silver light, going at lightning speed, and that after it had traveled what seemed to be about 100 yards it disappeared.

Portions of the meteor were seen in several parts of the state, as reported in the Birmingham and Montgomery papers, but Mr. Baker is the only one who has reported seeing a part of it near Clanton.

Just a word about the SERVICE at the
MOLTON HOTEL
FIFTH AVENUE AND TWENTIETH STREET

THERE'S a pleasant, friendly atmosphere about the Hotel Molton—a delightful informality and unobtrusively efficient service that appeals to discriminating guests. While Molton service is punctilious, it is entirely lacking in that stiff formality one often finds in larger metropolitan hotels. That's why the guests who stop here once, feel like they're coming home when they return to see us.

NEARLY ONE-SIXTH OF U. S. ON RELIEF ROLLS

Washington, Dec. 3.—Nearly one-sixth of the population of the United States is on relief rolls.

Federal figures show that famillies are exhausting savings and turning to relief agencies faster than industry and public works cut into the ranks of the unemployed.

The gravity of the situation was driven home to the administration by the latest official figures—those for September. In that month 18,000,000 were on relief and 143,000,000 of public funds was spent to support them. In September, 1933, the relief population numbered 13,338,000 and relief expenditures were $59,000,000.

Cold weather and dwindling funds have brought added problems in recent months.

The government has spent $1,121,000,000 on civil works this year, but relief officials frankly are dissatisfied over the amount of relief provided by these funds. More than half of the destitute unemployed still are dependent on outright doles. Two million bread winners have work relief jobs, but their earning average is only $9.87 each in a recent typical week.

Average $24.00 Monthly

The average family on relief receives about $24 a month. Payments vary widely in different sections, depending on living costs and the contributions made by state and local governments.

OBITUARIES — IN MEMORY

It becomes necessary for us again to call attention to the fact that we make a charge of one cent per word for all obituaries over 150 words published in The Union-Banner. So, if you want an obituary, or in memory article, published about a departed friend or relative, it must be confined to not over 150 words, or else money order for the remainder should be included if sent by mail, as outlined above.

If obituaries are sent in containing over 150 words and no money accompanies same, it will be either omitted entirely or, if possible, condensed to come within the requirement, and published.

PER CAPITA DEBT IN U. S. RISES $7.10 AS NATION SPENDS DOUBLE

Washington, Dec. 3.—Financial experts looked skyward today for the still invisible ceiling of a public debt that mounted by still more millions as the Treasury added another $7.10 to the percapita burden of the nation's population.

This was the amount by which the $900,000,000 of new borrowing offered today, would spread among the country's 126,670,000 people. Already they carry a debt of $27,298,000,000 or $215.50 for every man, woman and child.

These figures took on added significance as President Roosevelt and a group of his chief aides talked over in Warm Springs today new plans calling for the spending of many billions more.

Treasury figures made available today for the first five months of the fiscal year showed the Government was spending an average of $1.98 for every dollar or receipts, which meant that the 98 cents was borrowed. For the same five months a year ago the outlay was $1.67.

WATTS SALE IS OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO WOMEN AND GIRLS

Beginning Friday of this week the Watts Hat Shoppe, of Clanton, is putting on a special clearance and reduction sale which will be of extraordinary interest to women and girls of this community.

The Watts Hat Shoppe is known here as offering the very best and most varied line of fine things for women and girls to wear.

Tremendous reductions in price have been announced for this sale on all items in the store. You will be surprised at the savings you can make at the Watts Hat Shoppe between now and Christmas.

Congressman W. B. Oliver of Tuscaloosa spent last Friday in Clanton.

Mr. Doodle Gore and Mr. Ted Littlejohn attended the Alabama-Vanderbilt game in Birmingham Thursday.

Basil—What on earth will your father say when he knows we're engaged?

Barbara—Oh, he'll be delighted. He always is.

"That fellow spoiled my marriage."

"How?"

"Maried my cook and now my wife does the cooking."

VERMONT SCHOOL

Don't forget, folks, next Saturday night we are going to have our fiddlers convention. Everyone interested in having a jovial time, can't afford to miss this event. All lovers of music are cordially invited to attend. One dollar's worth of genuine fun for only ten cents. All those musicians must register with Mr. Johnson before the program begins.

The Thanksgiving season of 1934 has closed with every one back in school ready to get in three good weeks before the arrival of the Merry Christmas season. From all reports last Monday morning, everyone seems to have had a most pleasant vacation during the holidays just closed.

The Thanksgiving program was presented very cleverly on Tuesday night, November 22, to a record-breaking crowd. Standing room was at a premium. All seats were taken up long before the program got under way. The writer wishes to insert the fact that he has never seen better behavior or a more attentive and enthusiastic audience. Uusually large crowds of this size bring more or less a great amount of confusion and discomfort to thse who wish to listen, but this event was an exception. So the faculty and student body wishes to register their deep appreciation for your kind consideration and your real attentiveness. We want you to come back next Saturday night and we'll assure you in advance that with the same attentiveness as before, you will again go away a better and happier person.

The faculty spent the holidays at their respective homes.

Supt. Little is expected to visit our school this week.

Our well pump has been ordered, but thus far has failed to arrive.

Those patrons who are due wood to our school are again reminded that we are in dire need of pine to use in starting fires each morning. Won't you show your real patriotism by letting us have several loads real soon. We have a sufficient amount of oak, hickory, etc.

Both boys and girls teams went over to Maplesville last week for a practice game. Even though they went down to defeat in both games, they made a creditable showing in teamwork. The girls court has been made ready for practice this week. The county road machines stopped by last week and dressed up our athletic field.

Eleven new students enrolled in our school the second month.

Report cards will be distributed this week. They are late, due to Thanksgiving program, etc., consuming so much time the teachers were unable to complete grading examination papers and making proper entries.

Our basket ball teams are booked to play Enterprise Jr. High School one week from tomorrow, December 14, on their court.

The Jr. III class organized last week and elected the following students to their respective places:

Frences Kendrick, President; Madge Williams, historian; Adell Scott, Poet; Robert Traywick, prophet; Hugh Hayes, grumbler; Gladys Sansom, last will and testament; Lizzie Mae Lewis, Valedictorian; R. P. Kendrick, giftorian.

TAYLOR DRY GOODS CO. BIG CHRISTMAS SALE

The Taylor Dry Goods Company, of Clanton, announces the opening of the biggest sale in the history of Clanton, to begin Friday of this week and continue right up to Christmas.

A flood of advertising matter has been sent all over the Clanton trade territory, acquainting the public with the many rare and interesting values that will be offered in this great sale event.

The store managers, Mr. A. E. Reagan, and Mr. Will Kemp together with Mr. M. W. Marcus, advertising specialist and sales promoter, have been busy for the past week getting everything in the big department store ready to "shoot the works" when the sale opens Friday morning of this week at eight o'clock.

A wealth of specially attractive features have been arranged for the opening day as well as something to make a visit to the store attractive every day from now until Christmas.

Many people will buy merchandise for members of the family between now and Christmas. The Taylor Dry Goods Company has planned this sale for the convenience and saving of those buyers, and it will pay you to come and investigate their offerings before you spend your money.

Betty: Just look at that wonderful stain-proof porceliron work-top! They say it will never wear out or discolor.

Jane: Isn't it a darling color combination? And the enamel is baked on. No wonder it's so smooth and satiny!

Betty: Oh, Jane! See how this base shelf extends when I open the base door—brings pots and pans to your fingertips. Think how that will save stooping!

Jane: Did you ever see anything slide more smoothly than these drawers? See—they're suspended from the top. That's why they'll never jam.
I sure like those drawer pulls, too—they'll not tarnish.

Betty: Look at this big metal flour bin—holds 30 pounds—and that sifter is certainly convenient.

Jane: Gracious! This big, roomy bread-box drawer slides so quietly you'd never know it was metal. See, Betty—the cutting board right here.

Betty: Here are those famous Sellers ant-proof casters. Mrs. Jordan says they keep ants and all other insects out of her cabinet.

Jane: This hardware is all heavily nickel plated See how substantial it is, too.

Betty: Have you noticed how fine the cabinetwork is? Just like the finest furniture . . . and they say there is not a stick of soft wood in it.

Jane: Look at this back, Betty—entirely closed. No mice can ever get in it.

Betty: Try this roll curtain . . . it extends clear across the front and yet it moves at a touch.

Jane: Oh, I like that . . Look, Betty, it has a Klearfront —no swinging doors over the work-table.

Betty: That big glass sugar jar is certainly handy, isn't it?

Jane: Yes, and isn't this plush-lined silver tray clever! They thought of everything.

Just look at this amazing array of Extras given at NO EXTRA COST!

MRS. JOHN HERROD

Paralee Davis Herrod, age 78 years, wife of Mr. John Herrod, who passed away many years ago, of Selma, Alabama, whose death occured at her home on Tuesday afternoon, November 20, 1934, and was buried the following day near her old home, east of Plantersville, Alabama.

She leaves six sons; Messrs. Willie Walter, Grady, Jesse, Marlo and Hubert; and five daughters, Mrs. Durden, Mrs. John Bishop, Mrs. A. B. Jones, Mrs. Bertha McCauley, and Mrs. Hixie, (not known); many grandchildren, relatives and friends.

Everything was done that loving hands could do, but God saw fit to take her from our midst to a better home beyond. Weep not, dear children, mother is gone but not forgotten. The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away. Blessed be the name of the Lord.—One who knew her to love, Mrs. C. C. Gay.

OAK GROVE

We are happy to announce that our Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. are doing some nice work. Everyone is deeply interested in doing anything that we can that will be a benefit to others. We give everyone a special invitation to come and be with us in our pareyr services every Wednesday night. We are so thankful that we have an opportunity to worship our Lord and lets make Him "Lord of our thoughts, deeds and actions."

Our pastor, Bro. Maurice Hodgens, rendered us some fine sermons this week end. We are so thankful for such a nice pastor to come and bring us such good inspiring messages. May the Lord always lead him, direct him, and keep him from all danger.

Our preaching days are the first Saturday night, Sunday and Sunday night. We extend to everyone a hearty welcome to come and be with us any time that you can.

We had our regular singing here Sunday. Everyone seemed to have a bad cold, but as a whole the singing was good.

We had some visitors at Sunday school from Pleasant Grove Sunday. We are glad you came and come again and bring someone else with you.

Mrs. Martin and family of Birmingham visited their brother, Mr. Orb Martin this week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Eubanks, Mrs. D. S. Edwards and Misses Willie and Kate Deese spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Sutley and family.

Miss Marie Ellison from Sylacauga is visiting Miss Loy Mae Glass.

Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Satterwhite had as their dinner guests Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Smith, from Longview, Bro. Maurice Hodgens, and Miss Mary Jim Sutley.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Northcutt and daughter spent this week end with Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Northcutt and family.

Misses Irene Lessley, Dorothy and Lillian Deese are spending a few days in Birmingham.

If nothing happens our B. Y. P. U. will go over to Center Hill and try to render a program that we hope will me inspiring and beneficial to each and everyone present next Sunday night, December 9th, 1934.

We ask you Christian people who pray, not to forget us in your prayers. "Help us Lord, to pray more, for prayer is the key to heaven."

ELIGIBILITY OF VOTER ON THE BANKHEAD ACT

Any person who signed a 1934 and 1935 Cotton Acreage Reduction Contract, any person who is or was eligible for tax-exemption certificates in 1934, any person who presents proof that he owns, and at present has a right to produce cotton, on a cotton farm, or any person who signs and files a witnessed written statement, that he has made arrangements to produce cotton on a cotton farm in 1935, (That is, has entered into a lease or share cropping agreement to grow cotton on a cotton farm in 1935), is deemed eligible to vote on the continuation of the Bankhead Act for the crop year 1935-36, (June 1, 1935, to May 31, 1936). (A cotton farm is any farm on which cotton has been produced commercially one or more years since 1927).

ROADS URGED AS WORK PROJECTS OF GOV'MENT

Resolutions calling on the members of Congress from Alabama to aid in making available larger sums for highway construction and to aid in focusing the Relief Adiminstration's attention on highway construction as a public works project were unanimously passed at a meeting of citizens of three counties assembled at Plantersville Friday night and addressed by Congressman S. F. Hobbs and other good roads advocates.

The resolutions also were sent to President Roosevelt at the White House, and copies were mailed Saturday to every Congressman by H. H. Frasier, secretary of the meeting which was held in the school house. J. A. Lee, County Superintedent of Education, served as chairman.

Speakers at Meeting

More than 100 men heard the good roads discussion which centered about the paving of the Selma-Clanton stretch of road and many spoke briefly and forcefully. Among these speakers were Dr. C. E. Nix of Maplesville, G. C. Blanton, member of the Dallas County Board of Revenue, Dr. W. W. Harper of Selma, Dr. T. M. Martin of Plantersville and others.

Mr. Lee, Mr. Blanton and Dr. Nix were empowered to name a committee to carry on the good roads agitation.

The group also voted to secure the aid of the State Highway Association of which Alex Hancock of Mobile is president in an effort to secure an increase in Federal appropriations for roads in Alabama, much of it from Relief funds. The point was made that more benefit is received by communities along highways from good roads than from any other Relief project.

Doubtful Projects Hit

The resolutions state that the government has been spending huge sums for both direct and indirect relief; that a considerable amount of this has been spent on projects that were neither permanent nor of certain benefit; that the citizens gathered from Selma, Plantersville, Clanton and intermediate communities at the Good Roads meeting Friday night were agreed that practically no loss or waste had resulted from construction of state and federal highways, from funds appropriated to aid recovery.

The resolutions also state that furthermore the money spent for constuction of highways is returned to the tax payer in saving of gasoline, wear and tear and time in travel over improved roads, "and it is evident that the people of the United States pay, by reason of loss in the above instances, for improved roads whether they get them or not," and that the future generations will profit from roadbeds now being built.

The resolution concludes that "it is the sense of this meeting that the President and the next Congress should make available much larger sums for highway construction than they have provided for the past, and respectfully urges the members of Congress from Alabama to "take the leadership to this end."

Plantersville Road Hit

In a letter to U. S. Senator John H. Bankhead, calling attention to the resolutions, Chairman Lee and Secretary Fraiser state that "the citizenship between Selma and Plantersville are sorely tired of breathing dust, chewing sand, and having their cars literally shaken to pieces every time they endevaor to commute between points on this highway. Human nature being so much the same, we know that the citizenship of America on every other highway similar to this one feel the same way. The people of the country are not going to be happy or satisfied any longer with dirt and unimproved roads where the traffic density is sufficiently great to justify hard surface.

"In this section many of the work projects were neither permanent nor conducive of great good and we see at the same time the lasting value and benefit commensuarte with the expenditure in every instance where the money has been spent on highways. We want to impress you in the strongest terms with our belief that larger sums out of the emergency relief funds should be appropriated for highway construction, benefitting labor and all lines of industry besides those actually employed in the construction work"

"We are writing you and every member of Congress from Alabama, and we hope that you will make the improving of the highways of the country one of the major objectives of this Congress."—Selma Times Journal.

Partisian Battle Forecasts As Leaders Declare For Prohibition

Possibility that the election on state repeal, expected to be held next February, will develop into a partisian fight between Democrats and Republicans, was seen today as Republican leaders over the state lined up for retention of the present bone dry laws.

O. D. Street, Sr., Republican national committeeman for Alabama, Dr. J. C. Swann, Wedowee, state chairman of the party and W. L. Longshore, chairman of the Jefferson County Republican Executive Committee, were among those signifying their support of the present prohibition statutes.

"The Republicans in their state platform last June declared for the present prohibition laws," Mr. Street said, " and there is every reason to believe they will stand by this plank in the state election on the question."

Richard Hall Brown, a prominent Democrat, and chairman of the Alabama Citizens Civic Repeal Assn., said that his group would welcome the challenge of Republicans to fight the issue out on a party basis.

"I do not think modification of the state bone dry law in the interest of temperance ought to be made a partisian issue," he said, "but if the Republicans want to put it on that basis, I think it should aid our cause."

U. S. Marshall T. J. Kennamer, a staunch Republican dry, said reports from over the state indicate that the overwhelming majority of party leaders will stand by the platform drawn up by the state convention in Birmingham last June. This platform provided for unqualified support of existing dry laws.

C. O. Vardaman, Birmingham Republican, declared he was "politically and personally dry" and would "vote against light wines and beer and whiskey in the coming referendum promised by Gov.-elect Bibb Graves."

Mr. Vardaman indicated that the Republican party in Alabama would join officially with all dry forces, whether political or religious factions, in opposing repeal.

Yule-tide Family Reunions by Telephone

Families and friends become scattered with the years and we miss their smiling faces and cheery voices—more especially at Christmas time. Probably you are wishing now that you could visit them this Christmas. Why not? Are they too far away? You can't get away? Or is it that it costs too much? Then why not surprise them this holiday season with a telephone visit instead? You can reach them anywhere by telephone. Distance doesn't matter.

A voice visit by telephone, you will find, has the personal charm of a face-to-face visit, is convenient and costs little wherever you call. For example, by using Station-to-Station service you can talk with folks fifty miles away for about 35c, and a hundred miles for around 55c, and greater or less distances at correspondingly low cost.

If you can't go in person, go by telephone.

DEPRESSION ONCE BEFORE

(A description of 1873-78, as given by James Ford Rhodes in his history of the U. S.)

These five years are a long dismal tale of declining markets, exhaustion of capital, a lowering in value of all kinds of property including real estate, constant bankruptcies, close economy in business and grinding frugality in living, idle mills, furnaces and factories, laborers out of employment, reductions of wages, strikes and lockouts, depression and despair.

The automobile engineers invented knee actionwheels so it would be easier to drive in and out of the depressions, but we have not noticed any difference yet, so far as the big depression is concerned.

Monday's observances suggested that for the health of the nation, as well as that of the individual, there's nothing to compare with a good constitution.—Lowell Evening Leader.

A speech expert says children of the rich are more prone to have adenoid trouble. Rich children always do have so many things they don't really need.—Miami Daily News.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

Many political experts, both literary and practical, at this time are getting a lot of fun out of speculating over the future of the Republican party, and furnishing advice as to what ought to be done to resuscitate the G. O. P. elephant. One of the suggestions most frequently heard is that the Republican Party must cast loose from its moorings and become "liberal." Just what is meant by "liberal" of course is a mere matter of opinion. The Republican Party first saw light of day as a liberal party four-score years ago. In those days it was even termed radical by its enemies. During its long lease of power following the Civil War it naturally became more conservative — responsibility and authority generally do bring conservatism. But there has always been much of the spirit of real liberalism in the Repubican Party, and it did not vanish even in the so-called "wicked" days of the middle 1920's which were "wicked" to the agitators principally because everybody seemed to be prosperous.

So it would seem to the casual observer that this matter of going "liberal" will bear a little looking into, especially to the extent of finding out just what is meant by the term itself. If becoming liberal means trying to out-deal the New Deal in liberality of expenditure, if it means following in the steps of Sinclair and endeavoring Prof. Tugwell and Mr. Wallace one better, then there is grave room for doubt about the wisdom of the advice given. The modern, made-over Democratic Party, or preferably the New Deal party, minus the guidance of leaders like Carter Glass, Jim Reed, John W. Davis, Governor Ritchie, Governor Ely and Al Smith, is certainly "liberal" in its own right. But there are other so-called "liberal" movements. There is the Progressive Party of the LaFollettes in Wisconsin, the Farmer-Laborer Party of Senator Shipstead and Governor Olson in Minnesota, the very liberal Sinclair party and the more than liberal Townsend movement in California, to say nothing of the Huey Long party in Louisiana, which could hardly by the widest stretch of the imagination be termed conservative. With all of these "liberal" movements, most of which are steadily going from liberalism to what is known as radicalism, already in the field, it is difficult to see just what niche in the political Hall of Fame the Republican Party is going to occupy as that sort of liberal party. If it were to try to go even further to the left than the minority parties above-mentioned, it would bump squarely into the socialist and communist organizations.

On the other hand there seems to be little political advantage now in taking a position tending toward reaction. Few voters are thinking about the past end very few apparently about the future. Maybe the importance of the Republican party's taking a definite position just now has been over-estimated. The New Deal is going to have to run its course either to success or failure. If it succeeds President Roosevelt will very likely be re-elected in 1936. If it fails, then there will be abundant time before that year has run its course to talk about taking positions.

Senator Vandenburg of Michigan, who proved his political sagacity by becoming one of the few Republican senators to survive the New Deal landslide, suggests that the Republicans in Congress cooperate with the New Dealers in supporting constructive legislation, opposing that which is not constructive. The position of aiding good legislation and opposing that which is harmful is always a good one to take. But when it comes to cooperating with the majority party, that presents a few problems. First there can be no basis of cooperation until we know just what the program is to be, and there is something to cooperate about. Second, the New Dealers have so great a majority in Congress now they may not be anxious to take on any more cooperation at present. It is not to be forgotten that it takes two to cooperate, and some of the majority leaders are already exhibiting signs of impatience with the talk of cooperation with the Republicans.

But at any rate, Congress will soon be with us again, new lines will form, and new problems will be presented. Then we shall see how much cooperation there will be and what positions it will be necessary to take. Only the future can tell.

CREDIT WHERE CREDIT IS DUE

All sorts of reasons continue to be given out by the political speculators as to why the New Dealers won so decisive a victory in the recent election. Some attribute it to the personal popularity of the President, others to approval on the part of the public of the New Deal program and still others to the tremendous expenditures for relief and public works made by the New Dealers themselves. Perhaps all of these elements entered somewhat into the picture. But it is about time to give credit to one agency to which credit is due in considerable quantity and that is to the political organization of the Democratic Party.

This organization was quick to seize on the advantage which the expenditure of public money for relief and business acceleration gave to the party which was doing the spending. The efficacy of pointing with pride to this tremendous expenditure and giving now and then a gentle hint that the golden stream might dry up if the Republicans were permitted to win, was proven in the Maine election. In that preliminary campaign Governor Brann of the Pine Tree State, running for re-election, boasted of the liberal disbursement of public funds in Maine, for which he took some credit to himself, and rather broadly intimated that if he were succeeded by a Republican governor, said governor might not be able to cooperate so well with Washington as he himself had done. The results of that campaign are now political history, and the Democratic national organization proved it was not asleep at the switch. To quote from Arthur Henning, celebrated correspondent, writing in the Chicago Tribune:

"Democratic success in the Maine election convinced the Democratic leaders of the efficacy of such tactics. Soon Democratic candidates everywhere were reminding voters of the generous allotments of government money to their communities by the Roosevelt administration. The Democratic national committee maintained a force of statisticians busied with the tabulation of the recovery disbursements and the calculation of the precise per capita benefit therefrom in each state, congressional district, county and city.

"These statistics were furnished to Democratic state and county committees and Democratic candidates for speeches, advertising and other campaign literature. Hundreds of letters bearing the famous green ink signature of Postmaster General and Democratic National Chairman Jim Farley were sent out stressing the generosity of the Roosevelt administration in the distribution of public funds.

"In numerous speeches Mr. Farley emphasized in every state in which he appeared the enormous amounts of federal funds allocated thereto for relief, for bounties and for public works. The campaign ended in a crescendo note on this theme."

In vain the Republicans rallied at this campaign method, declaring that it was "playing politics with human misery" and stating that the taxpayers would have to pay for it all in the end. When the votes were counted the results spoke for themselves. The campaign strategy of the Democratic National Committee had been vindicated. The boys in charge of the political machinery at headquarters deserve a generous share of the credit for winning the election. Their campaign was perfectly timed and carried out. There may have been a slip here and there, as in California, but it was 98 per cent perfect and that is good enough.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

Newspaper comment gives President Roosevelt, in enunciating his program of economic security, credit with seeking to "turn to the right" in the face of Congress elected with strong leftiest tendencies. In his declaration placing recovery ahead of reform, the President went on record as opposed to new taxes for the purpose of putting into effect unemployment insurance. He stated that the funds for such insurance should come from private means and not through taxation, with the national government and the states cooperating in the carrying out of the insurance program.

If we are to have unemployment insurance, it is of course true that it should be financed by industry and not by the federal government, else it will degenerate in the long run into the dole, which is the thing the President seeks to avoid.

The trouble is that while the administration and the government may start out with the most laudable purposes there is no assurance of what the next five or ten years will bring forth. There will be a constant effort on the part of the radicals, in Congress and out to "liberalize" the provisions of the law, with the government assuming a greater and greater share of the burden. Such assaults will be difficult to withstand because they will be accompained by demagogic appeal to the voters.

Such insurance schemes were tried out in Europe several years ago and were started on a sound basis. But it all ended up with the governments over there taking on an increasingly large burden until the insurance became a dole supported by the taxpayers. It is true, as the President says, that we ought to avoid the mistakes made by European governments. The question is, in the light of American politics and the modern trend of political thought, whether we will be able to do so. There is room for grevious doubt. The President well says: "We cannot work miracles or solve all our problems at once. What we can do is to lay a sound foundation on which we can build a structure to give a greater measure of safety and happiness to the individual than any we have ever known.

The question is, however, whether the professional politicians and agitators will not undermine the foundation and then call on Uncle Sam to carry the structure on his already overburdened shoulders. Therein lies the real danger, and it will be one difficult to avoid.

Scientists say that the air-pollution in New York during October was near the low record for all time. Quite remarkable in view of the fact that it was the final month of the campaign.

The administration is said to be spending $750,000 a year in salaries to press agents for the New Deal. Evidently there is no attempt being made to cut down the production of ballyhoo.

STARS FELL ON ALABAMA

Life is just one thing after another, and sometimes these things don't come in the order in which we plan for them. Now, I already had my copy for this column all fixed up for this week—and, by the way, it was the first time in weeks that I was ready ahead of time. I think it was a pretty fair line of chat, too, but I had to side-track it for something else. I had it all togged out with comments on the governmental ABC system, "Whifflebats" (whatever they are), the grass that isn't growing in the streets as Mr. Hoover said it would (and why), a little about the fellows who sit astraddle of the fence or fall over on the wrong side, a little about the view of the farmers on the cotton business, and what not. And about that time word got around to me that the football team from the University of Alabama had been invited to come out and play in beautiful Rose Bowl again, away out in far-off Pasadena, California, on January 1, and all the other business had to wait on that, for a week, at least. You see, I am some kind of a football enthusiast, and I believe in Alabama first, last and always, too, and that had something to do with it. I made the trip to Birmingham on Thanksgiving Day to watch Alabama's Crimson Tide swamp the dear old sons of Vanderbilt, and when the 'Bama band left the field to the strains of "California, Here We Come," and the crowd roared its applause, something swelled up inside (they call it pride, I think), and I haven't fully recovered from the attack yet.

So, you of my readers who are not football fans, nor have any interest in what fame Alabama is acquiring through the medium of its athletic teams, may be disappointed in this week's column. However, even you may be interested in some of this, that is, if you are proud of your home state of Alabama and swell with pride, as some of us do, to see her fair name spread across the headlines of the biggest newspapers in the country. Alabama has already been put "on the map" by past teams turned out at the University at Tuscaloosa, and now we have another big chance to add to that enviable prestige and to add new glory for Alabama and the whole South land.

Just in case you haven't heard what it's all about, and would be interested to know, the "Crimson Tide," Alabama's football team, has already been to the Pacific coast in Rose Bowl games three times, and came home with two victories and one tie game, a record, in itself, which no other school east of the old Rocky Mountains can boast. In 1926 Alabama went west and beat Washington 20 to 19 in a hair-raising finish that aroused the admiration of every football fan in the country, and the 'Bama team was dubbed "the fighin'est team ever gotten together". Then, in 1927 they went back to Rose Bowl and tied Stanford 7-7, and that Stanford team is said to have been the greatest ever coached by the dean of coaches, Glenn "Pop" Warner, and the greatest that ever represented the West in intersectional contests. Further, in 1931, Alabama went to the Rose Bowl and smothered Washington State 24 to 0. Then, if not before, the football world really sat up and took notice. In 1932, during the regular season, the Tide went west and won from St. Mary's 6 to 0. That cinched the affair. Western people have just about decided that they can not beat 'Bama, and they are joined in this belief by pretty near all the rest of the country. It is not only the University of Alabama and its team which has profited by this fame, but the whole state and Solthland as well have come in for their share of this new and wholesome respect for the "fightin' Southerners". The South began to be recognized as a place where people do things in a bang-up manner—fighters to the last ditch, and a set of folks who are dangerous to monkey with unless one wants to have his ears pinned back.

Now, on the strength of its impressive record for the year 1934, just closed, in which it played nine games, and averaged 32 points per game, the "Crimson Tide" is picked to represent the "rest of the country" against the best the West can afford—and, by the way, it happens to be Stanford again—in the Rose Bowl on January 1, 1935, at the Tournament of Roses game, an annual affair at Pasadena, California.

My readers will excuse my enthusiasm over the great team which is to represent Alabama this year, when they know that sports writers all over the country herald the present Alabama team as the greatest in the nation. Naturally, we are all just a little proud of that. Further, old heads at this football racket are quick to state that this team is one of the best if not THE best ever gotten together on anybody's football field, any time, anywhere. We're proud of that, too, thank you.

In the next few paragraphs, I want to give the opinions of some of the outstanding football critics, coaches, and sports writers from all over the country. Also, I will attempt to draw for you a word picture of this great Alabama team in action, although I want to assure you right now, that I know no words to describe to full extent the smooth-working near-perfect machine that has been welded by Coach Frank Thomas, at the Capstone.

Some time ago, a book was written, the title of which was "Stars Fell on Alabama." This seems to be more than true, when one sees Alabama in action on the gridiron. One sports critic, after watching them, said: "I attended the game to see if there were any All-American prospects on this Alabama team. So far as settling my mind on this mission, I am more upset than ever. If you watch these fellows, one at a time, you get the idea that they are all All-American calibre. But when you watch the whole combine work together, you forget that there are such things as football stars, forget everything but that you are watching something nearing the perfection of a perfectly adjusted watch. I would hate to name an All-American choice from Alabama's team—it would smack of injustice to his team-mates. I have been looking at good football teams all over the country for the past 22 years, and that one at Alabama IS THE BEST FOOTBALL TEAM I HAVE EVER LOOKED AT. Stars DID fall on Alabama, and so far as football is concerned, I think most of the stars of the whole country must have fallen here, to rise and shine in a class by themselves in the athletic firmament. And, to, Coach Frank Thomas I must offer congratulations. If no other honor in his chosen field is ever accorded him, he must surely be credited with coaching the game's, greatest team to date."

"Tiny" Thornhill, coach at Stanford, and whose team will meet 'Bama in the Rose Bowl this year, when he heard the results of last Thursday's Alabama-Vanderbilt game, said: "That's just like Alabama. And you can bet they'll be hard for my boys on New Year's Day. I remember them from other intersectional contests. Those babies fight the Civil War all over again, every time they play outside their home territory. It might be that they could be beaten (although it doesn't look that way) but you can't whip them. They forget there is a whistle in a football game—they fight harder during the last minute than they do during the first. Now, what can you do with a gang like that? I ask you."

A big sports writer from the East, and who is rated as one of the best in the country, and one who has had a chance to look over the work of some of the best teams the game has afforded, over a number of years, writes as follows: "I have seen great teams come and go. There are three or four things which stamp football teams as great. Every one of these teams has boasted one or two of these requisites. Some of them have a great line, and so put up a great bucking game, of the old iron-man stayle. Some show swift backs which circle the ends for long gains, and are counted great. Others take to the air with passes, and win fame in this manner. Some are counted great because of their impregnable wall on defense. But never, in all my experience, have I seen a team which boasted ALL of these qualities, and all of them perfected to the Nth degree, until I saw this 1934 Alabama team in action. Every play in the Alabama repertoire is a potential scoring play. Any one of Alabama's backs is liable to break away for a touchdown on any one of their plays at any time, so perfect is their blocking and ball-carrying ability. It is uncanny. Those fellows are generally up to the scrimmage line before the opposition knows which way the play is going. Once they are that far, the Alabama line hardly ever fails to have a hole open through which the ball-carrier may go, unmolested, and once these swivel-hipped gentlemen get through and back into the secondary, there is only one thing they are not likely to do—go straight up—you may look for nearly anything else. I saw Howell, Angelich, Smith, Riley, Demyanovich, Boozer, Stapp, and others scoot through holes which opened at precisely the right second. I saw these same gentlemen skirt the ends behind enterference as perfect as if a scythe had cut down would-be tacklers. I saw Hutson and Bryant, Gandy and Walker, all ends, work some of the prettiest end-around-end, triple-pass plays these eyes have ever beheld. I saw pass after pass float from the unerring hands of backs—any of them—and I saw bullet passes which went like the wind and found their marks with rifle-like accuracy. I saw an Alabama line, boasting Hutson, Bryant, Marr, Morrow, Dildy, and others too numerous to mention, as they broke through time after time to throw the opposing backs for losses. I saw Howell and Riley punt with the best of them, and hold their own. And, after 'Bama had piled up a score sufficiently high, I have seen an entirely new team take the field—second stringers, if you would call them 'that—the like of which many big colleges over the country would be proud to put on the field as their first team. Those fellows do pretty near everything with a football except eat it, and a few times I began to thing they had even done that, for on numerous occasions I lost sight of it for a moment, only to come awake and see a red-shirted speedster heading out into the open from nowhere in particular, and headed for the promised land with that old melon tucked under his arm. In summing up, I find at Alabama a line game of irresistable force, the fastest breaking end game to be found anywhere, an air game the accuracy of which is uncanny, a tricky game that would put a magician to shame, and last but not least, a defense against any kind of play which is the best that it has ever been my pleasure to witness. Any team which can do as many things with a football in as many different ways as can this Alabama team is well-nigh perfect. To me, Alabama is the class of the country—THE BEST TEAM IN THE NATION."

Alabama has a so-called "first team", 11 men whose total weight is 2,139 pounds—an average of 194 pounds per man. There are 29 reserves, which sports writers and coaches agree are not far different from the first-stringers, who weigh 5,376 pounds, or a little over an average of 185 pounds each. This gives the whole squad—the 40 men usually carried on trips, a total weight of 7,515 pounds, or approximately 188 pounds per man. Together with this, consider that all of these men, line as well as backfield, are exceptionally fast, some of them track men, and it is not hard to see why they have built such a record, considering that they have had coaching from Frank Thomas, credited with being the best coach that Knute Rockne ever turned out at Notre Dame.

The Crimson Tide will leave Tuscaloosa December 21, and it is said that the Alabama "Million Dollar Band" is to make this trip to California also. It is expected, too, that there will be an "Alabama Special" train, maybe two of them, to carry Alabamians on the trip. Particulars about this will be released in the near future. I firmly believe that Alabama will come back "with the bacon" again. I believe they are a touchdown better than any other team in the United States, and maybe two touchdowns better than anything the West coast can muster.

Your truly, ye olde "Man in the Moon" may make this trip—I sincerely hope that I can. If I do, when I return, I'll give you an earful of the whole affair as it looked to these eyes. Besides all this, I'll have a story of the trip and the Rose Festival.—Man in the Moon.

FIGURING FROM PERCENTAGE

One of the favorite pastimes of many political experts was to predict, after a November landslide, that the party buried under the landslide has passed out of existence. The year 1934 is no exception. We are told the Republican Party will not survive the avalanche of November 6. It is to be remembered, however, that predictions of the death of the G. O. P. were made in 1892 after Cleveland had defeated Harrison and in 1912 when Wilson rode to victory after the Republican split and the rise of the Progressive Party. Likewise, the demise of the Democratic Party and the destruction of the Solid South was predicted after Al Smith's loss of the election in 1928.

The figures, however, show that the Republican Party in 1934 cast 46 per cent of the total vote as against 41 per cent in 1932. It is interesting to note also that in the Republican landslide years of 1920, 1914 and 1928 the Democratic Party garnered but 36 per cent, 35 per cent of the vote, respectively.

It is therefore difficult to envision the demise of the Republican Party in a year when as a minority party it cast a greater percentage of the vote than did the Democratic Party as a minority organization on several occasions in the past.

MINNESOTA AND THE NEW DEAL

While from nearly every other state in the nation have come strident claims on endorsement of the New Deal in the late election, there has been loud silence on this point among Minnesota Democrats. Somehow they haven't found a thing to crow about in the whole election, for the only office salvaged from the wreck of their party organization was one seat in Congress, leaving the party in exactly the same position it occupied before the election. Moreover, this one victory was won in the state's hotbed of Democracy, so it would have been strange indeed had this place been lost.

Under the caption, "Minnesota's Verdict," the Mankato Free Press, strong supporter of John Regan for governor, asks the question —"Did Minnesota turn a cold shoulder on the New Deal?"—and then proceeds to answer its question in the following analysis:

There are several good reasons for at least raising the question. Take the re-election of Senator Shipstead by an overwhelming majority. Mr. Shipstead was subjected to a bitter, denunciatory campaign by Einar Hoidale, Democratic aspirant for the santorial toga. His action in voting independently for changes and amendments to New Deal legislation was branded as anti-Roosevelt and his defeat was demanded on those grounds.

James M. Farley, national chairman of the Democratic committee, came into the state and openly called for the election of Hoidale as an evidence that Minnesota was "holding up the hands of the President." Emil Hurja, his assistant, made similar appeals. Certainly Senator Shipstead's re-election cannot be taken as an unquestioning endorsement of the New Deal. Rather it is an endorsement, and an overwhelming one, of Mr. Shipstead's policy in voting independently for those New Deal policies he approved and for the amendment or defeat of those to which he was honestly opposed.

Then there were the congressional battles Mr. Hurja made the positive statement that the eighth district would go Democratic. Claims were made that at least five Democratic seats would be won in Minnesota, possibly more.

The results show that the Republicans increased their strength to five seats, the Farmer-Laborites were cut down to three and the Democrats retain only their former record of one representative from this state. It is true that Republican congressional candidates were not aggressively and anti-New Deal in their campaigning. Theodore Christianson and Harold Knutson have both followed an independent course during the past two years in Congress. They have voted for some administration proposals, they have opposed others. Congressman-elect Pittinger, Andersen and Melvin Maas pledged themselves to a similar course during the recent campaign.

If the re-election of Senator Shipstead by a sweeping majority and the election of five Republican congressmen from Minnesota is not a rebuff to the New Deal by this state, it is at least evidence that the voters prefer representatives in Washington who will independently and courageously analyze legislation and vote their own convictions, rather than "me-too" lawmakers whose sole idea of public service is to bask in the limelight of the President's personal popularity.—Buck Co. Minn., Herald.

WHAT CREATES WEALTH?

Government cannot create wealth. It can only spend it.

That economic axiom was recently pointed out by B. C. Forbes, in commenting on the delusion that government has a limitless purse, that it can pull bundles of cash out of a magic hat, that "a day of reckoning never comes."

Every cent spent by political organisms must be supplied by the taxpayer. And that term, "taxpayer," means every person in the country who has a job, any savings, a piece of property, a business, or a dollar to spend. It means the day laborer as well as the bank president—the clerks as well as the executive. In fact, the clerk and the day laborer have the most to lose from tax extravagance and the most to gain from tax economy. Government cannot be supported by taxing men of wealth—there aren't enough of them to make a dent in the budget. The great bulk of its revenue comes from the indirect taxes on clothes, food—all the necessities and luxuries which the average man and woman of small income buys.

Wealth is created when capital is used to provide facilities with which men can work to produce goods and commodities and services that the people need and want. Potential wealth is lost when the burden of taxation makes impossible this capital investment—when it stifles at the source the jobs and opportunities that would otherwise be provided.

Tax reduction is in the interest of every worker, every farmer, every business and professional man. It would produce jobs, develop industries—and make more taxable wealth. And there is only one way we can have tax reduction—by spending less tax money.

A man made his final payment upon his home and the realtor said, "Come in tomorrow and I'll give you a deed for the place." He replied, "No, I'd rather have a mortgage instead of a deed." "Do you understand the difference between a deed and a mortgage?" asked the realtor. "Well, I know this much," explained the home owner, "the last home I had, I had the deed and the bank had the mortgage, and they got the home."—Dodge City Globe.

More About Mutual Health Association

Editor Union-Banner:

Since my letter, in your paper two weeks ago to the public, I have had numerous inquiries, personal and by letter, about a plan for such cooperative association.

As mentioned before, there can be no doubt that such a plan is economically sound and can be carried out for the betterment of the membership as a whole. As proof of this there are numerous such associations that have been in existence from one to ten years or more. And we have large corporations or industries, thousands of them, all over the world that carry their employees on a list and give them service on practically the same plan.

My vision of such plan would be to furnish hospital service including bed, board, operating room examinations, prescriptions and dressings absolutely without cost other than a membership fee, and have doctors who have prepared and equipped themselves, as specialists in their particular line of work, and who are as well qualified as the average specialist in the larger centers. These doctors to do this work for the membership at a greatly reduced fee (probably less than half the usual fee). Medical cases would be treated in the hospital for a very small fee by these doctors (say $1 per day for their service, and no cost for the hospital).

X-ray and other laboratory service would be put down to a below-cost basis (say about one-third the usual fee).

All serums, vaccines, bacterins, etc., to be given free when furnished by the state or other governmental agency.

Free lectures on hygiene, sanitation and preventitive medicine to be given to members and their dependents.

I want to especially thank Mr. W. L. Sanders for his letter. I believe Mr. Sanders is thinking in advance of his time, and I would not be surprised at a full realization of his thoughts in the far distant future. That is, medical and hospital service to be free to all just as the educational system furnishes free schools now.

For the present, I believe, in addition to the above mentioned plan, it would be possible for our welfare department to join yith this health association in working out a plan whereby the really destitute or indigent could be taken care of adequately at a very small cost to the government supplying the aid whether it be federal, state, county or municipal.

At present less than 50 per cent of our people are getting adequate medical service and still less surgical service.

It would, in all probably, be impossible to find a school in Chilton in which less than 75 per cent of the pupils would show need of medical or surgical attention, or both, to their eyes, nose, throat, not to say anything of other ailments.

Now, at the beginning of this letter, I gave you a rather rough sketch of my plan. It would doubtless need some changes but I am convinced that with a little addition here and a little subtraction there, it would be possible to give a much more thorough and at the same time more economical service than the public is now getting.

If we would get it into our hearts and minds to co-operate, we might start an improved cooperative health association that would later be followed up in muih the same plan far and wide.

Yours very truly,
V. J. GRAGG.

WHAT NEGROES ARE DOING

Farmers Conference

The annual Chilton County Negro Farmers' Conference will be held at the Chilton County Training school Friday, December 17. This conference was postponed until after the conference at Tuskegee Institute so that the agricultural leaders might bring to their community new observations and give them to the people. The time has come that the farmers must venture out for new and improved practices in agriculture. Unless he does he will find himself in that class that hardly exists and moves yearly. Those farmers who are able should go to the conference at Tuskegee and wind their way back to the county training school for wholesome agricultural advice.

Down at Cross Roads

The farmers down at Cross Roads are really progressive. They eagerly accept instructions on farm improvement. The Coopers and Prices, together with others down there have really established a cooperating community, and with special instructions in terracing, killing and curing pork, parmanent gardens, and other agricultural improvement they are sure to make for themselves a more progressive community.

Chop Suey Party

The H. E. Girls, Junior III and Senior I sponsored a chop suey party Wednesday evening in the H. E. Department. The party was strictly Chinese and featured such things as Chinese dancing, fortune telling, fishing pond and guessing box. Even the food was Chinese. Everybody had lots of fun in China with the Chinese at this party.—Benj. Anderson, Prin.

The New Convert Community

It is quite gratifying to note just how hard those people out in the New Convert community are working in order to complete their new three-room school buliding. They have not only made a good stride but are still moving along very rapidly. One year ago very little was done, but today those people have gone into the forest, felled trees, cut timber, cut their lumber themselves and erected a creditable building for their children. As Booker T. Washington said, "They let their bucket down at home and it has come up filled with glad hearts and greater opportunities." We need more people like them.

J. A. WILLIAMSON IS BURIED AT VERBENA

Funeral services for J. A. Williamson, former Birmingham resident, who died at his home in San Antonio, Texas, were held at Verbena Wednesday, Dr. Henry M. Edmonds officiating. Burial was in the Verbena cemetery, with Martin charge. Mr. Williamson was 65 years old.

He had been connected with the Southern Express Company in Birmingham, Montgomery, and Nashville, moving to Texas 15 years ago to engage in the oil business.

Mr. Wililamson is survived by his wife; two daughters, Mrs. Walter S. Roholt, San Antonio, and Mrs. Harry W. Wells, Huancayo, Peru; four brothers, C. M. Williamson, vice-president of First National Bank, Birmingham; Dr. J. S. Williamson, Margaret, Ala.; S. K. Williamson, San Antonio; and E. B. N. F. A. Club News

The N. F. A. Club is sponsoring its annual "Father and Son" Banquet," on Thursday night. Along with this banquet they send a challenge to the H. E. girls to enter a formal debate with them on the subject, "Resolved: That Home Economics is More Important than Vocational Agriculture." The club boys are looking forward to the best banquet ever witnessed at the County Training School.

Without Vision The People Perish

It is obvious that many of the people in the County Training School community have lost their vision, if they ever had one. Especially when it comes to the interest that should be manifested in their school. No community is any better than its school. In proportion as any community supports its school in the same proportion will the community prosper. No school can prosper without financial aid. So, don't let anyone have you believe that the school can run itself. Without vision in a comunity the people are not safe, without vision we rear gamblers, theives and liars, as well as other undesirable people. Let the people have a vision.—Benj. Anderson, Prin.

COTTON TELEGRAMS

The following telegrams were received by County Agent, Fant, from C. A. Cobb, Chief of Cotton Production Section, Washington, D. C. These telegrams help to explain the situation in reference to the cotton program.

"Following points in official statement announcing nineteen thirty-five program should be emphasized in publicity: First, all contracts are declared in effect; second, reduction is twenty-five per cent and optional with pay up to thirty per cent; third, rental payment will be three and one-half cents and parity payment not less than one and one-quarter cents; fourth, searching examinations of all facts and factors relating to world cotton production indicates no immediate threat of appreciable expansion outside the United State. Foregoing should be given widest possible publicity throughout daily press, radio, and in all meetings.—C. A. Cobb."

"The cotton production section is aware of questions in minds of cotton producers at this time regarding procedure to be used in making allotments if the Bankhead Act in effect nineteen thirty-five. In the statement accompanying the ballot the Secretary says: Cotton farmers have had one season's experience with type of control embodied in Bankhead Act. Numerous difficulties obviously have been encountered. It is reasonable to expect that with more latitude in the act for the coming year many of these difficulties can be avoided. You may assure producers that in deciding on plan to be used in nineteen thirty-five every effort possible will be made to eliminate injustice in equalities and defects of operation. Point out fact that delays and inconveniences that were unavoidable this year due to late start, occasioned by the fact, act did not become law until April twenty-first and amendments thereto making it necessary to rework entire application did not pass until last week of Congress, late in June, will automatically be avoided next year and that this fact is the solution to many problems.—C. A. Cobb."

UNION-BANNER GOES BACK TO $1.50 ON JANUARY FIRST

During this Fall The Union-Banner has been advertised at the special price of $1 for one whole year, but on account of the high cost of labor, paper, ink, and everything that goes to make a newspaper, we are compelled to resume our old regular price of $1.50 per year. This will take effect on January 1st, and will strictly be adhered to. When we take in produce, stove wood, etc., it also will be figured so as to amount to $1.50.

However, as will be noted in our large adv., elsewhere in this issue, all through December the dollar rate will prevail where a full year is taken. We will advise all who wish to get The Banner for one dollar to look after this matter during this month, as it will be too late after 1934 is passed.

BANDED BLACK BIRD

Mr. Hollis Vinson brought to The Union-Banner office Tuesday an aluminum band taken from the leg of a blackbird killed Monday by Earl Lewis, near Coopers.

The band bore the inscription and number of the United States Bilological Survey, and has been sent to Washington for identification and history.

When furnished with this information we will publish the story of the bird.

Governor Miller For A Dry State

Calls Upon Sheriffs In All Counties To Enforce Liquor Laws

The following is a letter addressed to the sherrifs of each county for Gov. B. M. Miller:

Complaints are being made to me from different parts of the State of Alabama that the prohibition laws are being openly and flagrantly violated.

The newspapers are carrying items to the effect that at least 2,200 persons have taken federal licenses to sell intoxicating liquors in this state. In Montgomery county, recently, 18 persons paid $1,000.00 each to the Federal Government for the privilege of engaging in a business which is prohibited by the law of the State of Alabama.

It is evident that liquor dealers outside of the State of Alabama, and liquor sellers within the State of Alabama, have determined that they will disregard our laws and will sell prohibited liquors and make money for themselves in spite of the law Alabama and in spite of the effect on the public of their defiance of our laws.

I am sending a copy of this letter to each Circuit Solicitor and each County Solicitor in the State. They will advise you as to the law and I believe that they will promptly carry out the law when you report the facts to them.

I call your attention to the fact that under the law of the State of Alabama you can protect our people and enforce our law in the following ways, among others:

1. When prohibited liquor is being transported into Alabama you can seize the liquor, and have the truck, automobile or other conveyance in which it is being transported, condemned and sold. All of the liquor can be condemned and destroyed. The driver and consignee can be prosecuted criminally.

I am advised that many distillers and wholesalers outside the State of Alabama are issuing fraudulent bills of sale showing that the shipment is to go through Alabama to other states where the sale is not prohibited. It should be easy to prove the intended delivery, especially if you wait until there is an actual delivery to some place in Alabama.

2. You can secure an order from the court to destroy any prohibited liquor being held for sale in the State of Alabama and also to destroy all vessels and receptacles in which such liquors are contained.

3. You can, by injunctive process, close as a nuisance any place of business where prohibited liquors are being sold.

4. The lease on property being used as a driking place, with knowledge of the lessor, can be cancelled.

I believe that you will do your duty as sheriff under the oath taken by you and I shall expect you to do so.

You will find when you begin to vigorously enforce the law that a great majority of the citizens of your county will support you and assist you.

The citizens of Alabama interested in obedience to law should be on the alert, aid, encourage and urge officials to do their duty under their oaths and under the statutes, and to enforce with energy our prohibition laws.

The liquor dealers in and out of Alabama are now combining and attempting to defy and annul our prohibition laws to coin money for themselves. They intend to flood Alabama with liquor to make drunkards of our people and money for themselves.

These liquor dealers must not control Alabama.

Every law abiding citizen in Alabama should help and not discourage officials in the faithful discharge of their duty.

The fight is on.—We must not be slackers.

Yours very truly,
B. M. MILLER,
Governor.

THANKS FORM H. A. HARRIS TO VOTERS OF CHILTON CO.

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper to express my most sincere thanks and appreciation to the voters of Chilton County who expressed their choice for me for Circuit Clerk in the recent election of November 6th.

I want to say to each and all of you that I am still a Republican, loyal and faithful to the principles of politics that stands for clean and honest elections.

My appreciation of the voters who remained loyal to me and our party is unbounded, because I know that they are men and women who are firm in their convictions and willing to stand by the principles of right at any and all cost.

While the returns as counted say we were defeated, I believe we will see the day when victory will be ours again.—Respectfully, H. A. Harris, Clanton, Ala.

Judge L. H. Reynolds remains confined to his room following a recent operation on one of his eyes. He stated Tuesday that his condition is favorable, and indications are that the operation will successfully restore his sight.

While he is compelled to wear colored glasses to keep the light away from his eyes, his doctor has promised him that he will be able to get out of his room by the last of this week.

Help Provided For Needy Children

Report Of Work Is Given By Miss Nolan Meroney, Welfare Supt.

Miss Meroney, of the Child Welfare Department, has given us some ineresting figures relative to her work, and that of Miss Cobern, during the month of November.

Misses Meroney and Cobern have been engaged in a general survey of the school, giving special attention to children who were not in school on account of a lack of clothes or books, or both.

During this survey, Miss Meroney has visited 65 homes in her regular welfare work, and has made 57 special calls in behalf of children. In making these calls she traveled 1,152 miles.

Miss Cobern has visited 80 homes in which there were children who were unable to attend school on account of a lack of clothes or books. Her mileage was 771.

They have given books and clothes to 65 white children and five colored children. As a result of their visits, more than 100 children have enrolled in school.

Besides all this, Miss Meroney carried two children to King Memorial Hospital for treatment. One of these children was seven years of age and had never walked. Miss Meroney also carried another child to Birmingham to have braces fitted.

NEWS AND ANNOUNCEMENTS OF THE METHODIST CHURCH

The new pastor, Dr. A. E. Middlebrooks, of the local Methodist church, preached his first sermons last Sunday to a large attendance at both morning and evening services. Dr. Ezell of the Baptist church and his people were guests at the evening services. A large number from other churches attended the service.

Dr. Middlebrooks will preach next Sunday morning on the theme: "Origin and History of Christmas." At 7:00 p.m. he will discuss the theme: "How to Save Christmas." The choir will render special Christmas music.

The public is cordially invited to attend all services.

LAWRENCE OPENS INSURANCE OFFICE IN UPCHURCH BLDG.

Mr. Buford Lawrence, former superintendent of Education of Chilton County, announces that he has opened an insurance office on the second floor of the Upchurch Drug Company building.

Mr. Lawrence has connections with companies whereby he will be in position to handle every kind of insurance that can be written, and he invites his friends to come and talk over their insurance needs and problems with him.

Since retiring from the office of county superintendent Mr. Lawrence has been special representative of Protective Life Insurance Company, of Birmingham, and has made a splendid record with this popular Alabama Company.

Visitors Day At The High School

Alabama Day Program Will Be Carried Out For Students and Visitors

Next Friday, December 14, will be known as "Visitors Day" at Chilton County High School.

We did not have a formal opening of school when it began in September, because we felt other things were of more importance. Now that we are in the fourth month of our work, and everything running smoothly, we thought it a splendid idea to invite the ublic to visit us at any time it sees fit during the day. We especially invite you, however, to be with us at the assembly period which begins at 10:25 and extends until 11:10. At this time an Alabama Day program will be carried out by the students of our school and others. Mr. Elijah H. Parrish, one of the old pioneers of Clanton and Chilton County will give a few reminiscences of the early history of our community. The main part of the program will be a pageant entitled "Alabama Under the Five Flags."

There will be ushers at the front door to carry the visitors to the various booths in the building and will explain the exhibits relative to each booth. These exhibits will, in a measure, reflect some of the work that is being accomplished in the school room this year. Visitors will please feel free to come any time during the day. We cordially invite you to come to see us, visit the classrooms during recitations, ask any questions you care to, and stay as long as you want to. A warm delicious cup of coffee awaits you, served by the girls of the home economic deartment, under the direction of Miss Virginia Cook.

VAUGHAN QUARTET ON RADIO EACH THURSDAY EVENING

Mr. Marion W. Easterling has a communication from the Vaughan Music school, of Lawrenceburg, Tenn., announcing that the Vaughan Quartet may be heard each Thursday evening over Station WSM of Nashville, Tenn., They sing songs exclusively from the Vaughan publications, their appearances being at 5:15 p.m. The personnel of the quartet is: Palmer Wheeler, first tenor; G. K. Vaughan, second tenor; John Cook, baritone; Jim Waites, bass. James D. Walbert is accompanist.

This is one of the best quartets in the South, and the people of Chilton county who like good sacred songs will be glad to listen in on them each Thursday evening at 5:15.

CREMATED BODY OF HARVEY MOORE BURIED HERE LAST WEEK

The cremated body of Harvey H. Moore, age 42, who died in Kelso, Washington, on August 12, 1933, arrived in Clanton last week. The ashes were buried in the family lot at Clanton Cemetery by Mell Martin last Friday afternoon.

Mr. Moore was born and reared in Clanton, the son of the late Pink M. Moore, former Sheriff of Chilton county. He has two sisters here, Mrs. Bama Cox and Mrs. Frank Foshee.

A Woodmen of the World monument will be erected at the place of burial, the wife of the deceased having designated Mr. Frank Foshee to act for the family in carrying out the necessary negotiations through the Clanton Camp W. O. W. Moore was a member of Camp "O" at Omaha, Nebraska.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hayes, Mrs. Omar Reynolds and Mrs. Julius Burnette spent Monday in Birmingham.

REYNOLDS FAVORS KEEPING BANKHEAD COTTON LAW

Urges Farmers of Chilton County To Go To The Election Tomorrow And Cast Votes in Support of Measure For Next Year

Editor Union-Banner:

I would like to call to the attention of the cotton farmers of Chilton County an election which will be held tomorrow, Friday, December 14th, to give them an opportunity to express their views on the Bankhead Bill.

I hope every cotton farmer and producer of cotton and everyone who is qualified to vote in this election will do so, and after they have duly considered their interest and the interest of all the cotton farmers of the South that they will vote their honest convictions and that they will duly consider all the advantages that they have received and all they will receive if the Bankhead Bill is continued.

I have observed the operation of this bill, and it is my opinion that it has saved the farmers of the South thousands of dollars and has put them on the road to recovery. I know that there are imperfections in the law and some feel that they have been discriminated against. I will admit that there are some amendment that should be made, and I know that the law has been administered by human beings and that mistakes have been made, which I am sure will be corrected at the next session of congress, but if we take it as a whole we are bound to admit that it has been a great help to the Southern farmers.

I believe that President Roosevelt has shown himself to be a friend to the common people. He made a statement the other day on leaving Warm Springs for Washington that he was going to advocate an amendment to the Bankhead law in order that all farmers who raise only two bales of cotton will be exempt from the operation of the law. I am sure that this will go a long way toward satisfying the small farmer.

We must remember that we have been in one of the worst panics we have ever had and we must keep in mind how much better off we have been this Fall than we were last Fall. I am sure we realize that, to a great extent, this is on account of the prices we have received for cotton and cottonseed and we know that we could never have received this price had it not been for the reduction of the cotton crop as the result of the Bankhead Bill.

I have no personal interest in this matter, but am only interested in seeing the cotton farmers and the people of Chilton County, as well as the entire South, do the best for themselves. It is my honest opinion that this is one time the farmers of the South have gotten a square deal from the federal government, and it seems to me the president is doing everything he can in his official capacity to relieve the southern farmers.

I hope you will consider these matters and go to the election Friday and vote in favor of the Bankhead Law.—Yours very truly, L. H. Reynolds.

Who Is Eligible To Vote In Cotton Election To Be Held Friday?

Many farmers are inquiring as to who is eligible to vote on the Bankhead Cotton Law in the election to be held in Chilton County tomorrow, Friday, December 14.

For the information of those concerned, we repeat a statement published in last wek's paper setting out the qualifications of those who will be permitted to vote:

Any person who signed a 1934 and 1935 Cotton Acreage Reduction Contract, any person who is or was eligible for tax-exemption certificates in 1934, any person who presents proof that he owns, and at present has a right to produce cotton, on a cotton farm, or any person who signs and files a witnessed written statement, that he has made arrangements to produce cotton on a cotton farm in 1935, (that is, has entered into a lease or share cropping agreement to grow cotton on a cotton farm in 1935), is deemed eligible to vote on the continuation of the Bankhead Act for the crop year 1935-36, (June 1, 1935, to May 31, 1936). (A cotton farm is any farm on which cotton has been produced commercially one or more years since 1927.)

Dr. Gragg Writes More About The Co-Operative Health Association

Dear Editor:

Since so many inquiries are coming to me about a proposed co-operative health association, I am coming again, asking you to allow me a little space in order that I may give the public some history of such work in both Europe and the United States.

During the past fifty years, most European countries have made payment for hospital and medical care the subject of public action, and a large part of the poulation now pays for such service through periodic payment to a mutual benefit society or association. These organizations are formed of the employees of a given industrial establishment, or of the members, broadcast, of a given locality.

In fact, in most countries of Europe, every person earning less than a specific income is legally compelled to insure himself against illness, and the insurance fund t owhich he belongs must, in return, provide him with certain medical service. In all these countries a voluntary co-operative, non-profit, plan preceded the legal plan and was found to be so satisfactory, that the government followed up with a state or legal plan. In many European countries they have gone further and now furnish cooperative aid against accidents, invalidity, old age, and other hazards.

The British system requires all employed persons making a salary of less than two hundred and fifty pounds annually, to insure against sickness. This began in 1912.

Germany passed its compulsory health insurance in 1883. France introduced compulsory health insurance in 1930. Russia has taken over the entire thing by the government. Denmark and Sweden depend on a voluntary health plan that has the majority of its people care dfor under this system.

Thus, you see, European countries focus their attention upon the problem of payment rather than upon the methods of providing medical care. However, England and in many countries on the continent, care of the indigent is almost everywhere a direct responsibility of the government.

In Europe, methods of group payment for service has been uitilized through two generations in many countries; with widely varying social economic and political conditions; and found to be a success.

In our own country, besides certain industries mentioned heretofore and certain groups, societies, etc., we find some of the largest colleges and most prominent universities have successfully carried out such a plan for years, a student health plan having been started about 1860. On January 1, 1931, there were in the United States 153 colleges or universities with organized student health services. This varies in cost from $9 to $30 per capita per school year. Boylar University of Dallas, Texas, is an outstanding example. In the University of California almost a complete service is given, and around 10,000 students are furnished this at a cost of $17.86 er capita per school year.

I think we could furnish hospital service for considerably less money than appears from these figures. However, the cost would depend in a great measure on the number of members, i.e., 2,000 would cost less per capita than 1,000 and 5,000 would cost still less per capita than 2,000.

In conclusion I wish to thank Mr. E. G. Caldwell for his splendid letter last week. He has had considerable hospital experience and can tell much about costs and service. I think my letter in last week's paper answered his question about a plan or method to carry on.

Would it not have been a grand thing if we now had this plan ready and could present his or her family with a membership card as a Christmas present, meaning that hospital service was theirs without cost at any time needed for the next twelve months?

Have we thought about this seriously? Are we going to wait till we have a large bill to pay, that might have already been paid with a few dollars while we were well and happy instead of sick and in trouble? If we don't want this, then we don't, but if we do want it then the quicker the better. We can have it right here at home at little cost. What do you say?

V. J. GRAGG.

ASK FOR SCHOOL AID

Washington. — Reresentative Hill (D., Ala.), and a group of Alabama educational leaders appealed to the Relief Adiministration Monday for immediate aid to the state's public schools.

After a conference with Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, and Dr. L. R. Alderman, director of FERA education, the group declined, however, to show any optimism that school relief will be forthcoming.

Hill said simply: "The matter now is in the bosom of the court."

Dr. A. F. Harman, Alabama superintendent of education; Dr. E. L. Morphet, director of research and information, State Deartment of Education, and Frank L. Grove, secretary of the Alabama Education Association, accompanied the representative to the relief headquarters.

Gov. Miller, of Alabama, has asked Hopkins for $3,500,000 in school aid.

TOYS AT THE YELLOW FRONT

Mr. Blacketter, manager of the local Yellow Front Store, wishes the trading public of Chilton County informed that his store has a large supply of Christmas toys this year. In doing your Christmas shopping for the kiddies, you cannot afford to pass up the Yellow Front. And of course, they carry a full array of more serviceable gifts for big brother and big sister as well as for ma and pa.

Turn to their big adv., in The Union-Banner this week and read all about what they have for you at the Yellow Front.

Cabinet Sale At Tiffin-Klinner's

Began Last Saturday and Will Continue For a Few More Days

Another of those interesting and profitable events, a Sellers Kitchen Cabinet Sale, is in progress at the furniture store of Tiffin-Klinner this week.

The sale began last Saturday, and already many homes have been made happy by the addition of one of those modern kitchen devices.

In addition to selling the most modern kitchen cabinet that has ever been put on the market, the store is offering quite a number of extra items to go with the cabinets, such as dinner sets, cooking sets, and kitchen cutlery.

Most every home can afford to buy a Sellers Kitchen Cabinet at the unusually easy terms which are offered at this sale. Your old cabinet will be taken in at a liberal allowance, and payments of only one dollar a week are required on the new cabinet.

"This extraordinary offer will continue a few more days," said Mr. J. B. Tiffin Monday, "and we earnestly invite every housewife to come in and let us demonstrate the new Sellers Kitchen Cabinet. Let us show you the extras you get by purchasing a cabinet during this sale, and we believe we can convince you that you can not afford to go away without ordering one of these cabinets installed in your home."

JOE BEN DOWNS PREPARED TO FIX YOUR RADIO, ETC.

Mr. J. B. Downs, who is better known to his friends as Joe Ben, says that for the past several months he has been taking special instructions in the art of and technique of radio service and electronics with the Radio and Television Institute of Chicago, one of the largest institutions of its kind in America. And he has reached the point now that he is able to efficiently service your radio for you, as well as do your electrical work. Mr. Downs says he has the very latest in testing equipment for this line of work and should you entrust your machine into his care it will receive the best of attention.

A SUBSCRIBER FOR 30 YEARS

Mr. J. T. Childress has been a regular subscriber to The Union-Banner for the past thirty years. He sent in his renewal for 1935 last Saturday by his nephew, Ivie Childress. Mr. Childress saw that the special price of $1 per year would be a thing of the past January 1st, so he took advantage of it while the going was good.

The Union-Banner is proud of such loyal friends as Mr. Childress; we have hundreds of them over the county. Some time ago Bob Connell of Clanton Route 5 remarked that he had a record similar to that of Mr. Childress. Some day we will probably offer a premium to the person who has been taking the paper longest without interruption.

FOSHEE-TIFFIN WEDDING AT METHODIST CHURCH DEC. 23rd

Invitations have been received by friends of the family announcing the marriage of Miss Mary Lou Tiffin to Mr. Alvin B. Foshee, at the Methodist Church in Clanton on Sunday evening, December 23, at eight o'clock.

Miss Tiffin is the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Tiffin, of Clanton. Mr. Foshee is a prominent young attorney, also of Clanton.

Mr. George McCain spent Sunday in Sylacauga with his wife, who is ill in the hospital in Sylacauga.

SANTA CLAUS FOR POOR CHILDREN

Everybody Is Invited To Give Something To Bring Christmas Cheer

The Kiwanis Club of Clanton invites all persons, organizations, societies, or business concerns of the county to join with the club in what will be an organized effort to furnish something of interest to the underprivileged children for Christmas time.

John Hollis, Mell Martin and Leonard Williams, have been designated as the Kiwanis Club Committee to handle this program.

In a statement this week Mr. Hollis, speaking for the committee, requested the co-operation of everyone who may be interested in joining the movement to bring Christmas cheer to children who will have no Christmas unless those more fortunate provide it for them.

Mr. Hollis requests that all who may wish to give anything to the poor children, send a list of what they will give to either member of the Kiwanis Club committee or to either of the newspapers in Clanton. Gifts of toys, fruits, candy, clothing or food of any kind will be acceptable. From the lists so furnished the committee will arrange to collect the gifts, assemble them at one central point, and arrange for distribution to the children on Christmas morning.

The Child Welfare Superintendent of Chilton County will furnish to the committee a list of needy children, and the things donated will be given to children on that list. According to Mr. Hollis, the committee hopes to assemble enough gifts to include something for all the needy children within a radius of ten miles of Clanton. "We would like to be able to give something to every underprivileged child in the county," he said. "But of course, our ability will be limited to the co-operation of the people and the amount of things given. If we get enough things donated to reach every poor child in the county, we will be mighty glad to distribute it to them. If we do not have many things donated, we naturally can not reach all the children."

Remember the members of the Kiwanis committee are John Hollis, Mell Martin and Leonard Williams. Just make up the list of what you are willing to give and send it to either of these gentelemen, or leave your list with either of the newspapers in Clanton.

Everybody is earnestly solocited to help out in this praiseworthy effort to provide a bit of Christmas cheer to each and every poor child in Chilton County. Any gift will serve a good purpose. A mere bag of fruit might mean the difference between Santa Claus and no Santa Claus to a family of poor children; and we know you will agree that means a whole lot.

If you are able to give somthing, and many of you are, please join the Kiwanis Club and the other organizations that will carry out this program of Christmas cheer.

Tom McDonald Is Seriously Sick

Clanton Man Stricken Ill While In Birmingham Last Monday

Tom McDonald, telegraph operator, of Clanton, was seized by a stroke of paralysis Monday as he sat in the office of a dentist in Birmingham. In an unconscious condition he was rushed to South Highlands Infirmary for treatment, where he continues in a serious though somewhat inproved condition.

Mr. McDonald had been making trips to Birmingham to have some teeth pulled. The purpose of his visit Monday was to see the doctor. He was accompanied by his wife.

After they reached the city they separated with the understanding that they would meet at the depot and come home on No. 3 Mrs. McDonald, knowing nothing of her husband's illness, got on the train, thinking he had also gotten on. She rode the train to Calera, where she inquired if the operator had a message from her husband, when she was informed of his condition.

She returned to Birmingham on No. 10 and went to his bedside at the hospital. Advice received here Tuesday stated that Mr. McDonald is still in a serious condition.

Mr. McDonald is railroad telegraph operator at the Clanton depot. He and his wife live with Mrs. Curlee in West End.

NEW THORSBY PWA BIDS ASKED

Mr. H. S. Geismer, state public works engineer received word from Washington Friday of the giving permission to go ahead with advertising for bids on construction of the $29,000 waterworks for Thorsby. The well for this project has already been drilled.

MAPLE SPRINGS

Bro. Carroll filled his regular appointment Saturday and Sunday. His sermons were greatly enjoyed by all.

There was no B. Y. P. U. Sunday night, though several were present. Nearly all who were on the program were absent, also our directors. There has been quite a bit of sickness in this community which is the cause of so many being absent. Everybody come back next Sunday night. The group captain has given out the program for Sunday night. So every body come back.

BRANDON RITES HELD LAST SATURDAY AT TUSCALOOSA

Tuscaloosa, Ala. Dec. 8.—William Woodward Brandon, who rose from streetcar conductor to governor, rests today in a quiet cemetery here beside his wife, the life-long compainon who preceded him there by less than two years.

Hundreds of Alabamians, from high stations and low, who knew him as "Plain Bill" Brandon, gathered for funeral services today to pay tribute to man they helped make one of the nation's notables.

For Tuscaloosa, it was a day of mourning. Businesses were closed during the funeral hour, and the county court house remained closed all day to honor the memory of one of the city's best loved sons.

As the Rev. M. M. Davidson, pastor of the First Methodist church here, preached the funeral sermon, eyes were wet and voices choked as the realization came that "Plain Bill's" great booming voice, long familiar in campaign oratory, was stilled forever.

From Montgomery, where the historic state capitol was closed for the day and flags were flown at half staff, came many of those associated with the former governor during his 1923-27 term.

They recalled his unparalelled victory in the primaries of 1922, when he carried 66 of the state's 67 counties, but most of all, they remembered the kindliness which made him one of the state's best loved leaders.

His name already a household word in Alabama, Brandon first came into national prominence at the Democratic national convention in Madison Square Garden, New York, in 1924, when he answered more than 100 roll calls with the now famous roar "Alabama casts her 24 votes for Oscar W. Underwood."

At the 1932 convention, he again headed the Alabama delegation, and cast the first block of votes for Franklin D. Roosevelt.

FIDDLERS CONVENTION AT ISABELLA DECEMBER 15th

STOCKHOLDERS ANNUAL MEETING OF THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK

To the Stockholders of the First National Bank:

The annual meeting of the Stockholders of The First National Bank of Clanton, Alabama, for the election of Directors, and the transaction of any other business that may come before the meeting, will be held at the office of said Bank on January 15, 1935, between the hours of 7 and 8 o'clock p.m.

12-13-4t-ch. J. C. PAGE, Cashier.

He served as a major in the Spanish-American War, having previously been captain of Tuscaloosa's historic Warrior Guards. He was probate judge of Tuscaloosa county before his election as governor, and again served in that office after his term ended. He was re-elected for that post in the general election Nov. 6.

The former governor is survived by three brothers, State Auditor John Brandon of Montgomery, and Ed and Forney Brandon of Birmingham; a sister, Mrs. John D. Elliot of Birmingham, and two stepdaughters, Mrs. Archie Tyson and Mrs. James Fitts Alston of Tuscaloosa.

NEGRO MINSTREL AT VERBENA HIGH SCHOOL

There will be a negro minstrel at Verbena High School, Friday night, December 21, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. Admission will be 10 and 20 cents.

The fun will be put on by a large cast of characters. Music will be furnished by the orchestra. Everybody come.

Mrs. Lila Sheppard, of Verbena, visited Miss Bettie Mullins Monday.

Dr. A. A. Conway, Dentist, of Jemison, was a visitor to Clanton Tuesday.

County Farm Agent, J. W. Fant, and Mr. J. N. Dennis, attended the national meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation in Nashville Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

Mayor C. Fenn Jones reports that the work of ditching and drainage in West End is progressing at a satisfactory rate. He says the drainage project, when completed, will convert many briar patches and boggy places into profitable garden plots next summer.

"Uncle Ed" Hollis, genial and popular representative of the Clark Grave Vault Company, was a business visitor in Clanton Tuesday.

John D. Martin, of Wetumpka, was a visitor in Clanton Tuesday, spending a while with his brother, J. Mell Martin.

COTTON GIN REPORT

A total of 11,939 bales of coton were ginned from the 1934 crop in Chilton County prior to December 1st, as compared with 12,127 bales ginned prior to the same date in last year.

These figures were given out officially Monday by cotton census enumerator, B. L. Vance. Mr. Vance stated that these figures practically conclude the report of ginnings for this year.

WATCH YOUR MAILING XMAS

Christmas mailing is expected to be much heavier this year than it was last, and I cannot urge too strongly that Christmas packages be mailed as early as possible. These packages may be marked, "Do not open until Christmas," if so desired.

Packages should be securely wrapped and properly addressed, with the name of the sender on them. When a package is brought to the postoffice for mailing and is scurely wrapped, properly addressed, it takes only a few minutes of the sender's time to have it weighed and stamped. This will do a great deal toward avoiding delay at the windows, as well as insuring proper delivery of the package. When insuring packages, it is not a good idea to place the address on both sides. One side is sufficient if the package is to be insured.

FIDDLER'S CONVENTION AT THOMAS JR. HIGH DEC. 14

On Friday night, Dec. 14, the P.-T-A. of Thomas Jr. High School are sponsoring a fiddler's convention. All fiddlers are cordially invited and several prizes will be awarded. The time is 7:30 and admission is 10c and 15c. 2t.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Prince and son Wilbur, spent Sunday in Alexander City.

Mrs. C. O. Lawrence, Miss Inez Abernathy and Mrs. A. S. Prince spent Tuesday in Calera. They were guests at a miscellaneous shower given Miss Laura Wood who will be married to Mr. "Happy" Conway at an early date.

"TRAIN RIDE" PLANNED FOR FARM - BUSINESS MEETING

Farmers and business leaders who attend the joint agricultural and industrial meeting in Birmingham on December 18 will be given a three-hour train ride through the industrial sections of Birmingham, according to plans being made by Ashton Collins, of Birmingham, and Dr. L. N. Duncan, Auburn.

The train will contain three or four cars and will be run over tracks of various railroads to accommodate the visitors.

SMOKING CURED PORK IMPROVES THE MEAT

Smoking cured pork colors, flavors, and dries the meat, says J. C. Grimes, head of the animal industry department of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn.

If the smoky flavor is not desired cured meat should be washed in fresh water and hung up to drip. Smoking is thought to delay the development of rancidity in the fat of cured pork that is stored through the summer months.

Any hardwood, such as hickory, oak maple, or apple, may be used for smoking meat. Some use corn cobs. Resinous woods blacken meat and add an undesirable flavor.

The temperature of the smoke house normally varies between 70 degrees and 120 degrees F. Most farmers smoke meat for summer storage at temperatures below 100 degrees.

A two or three-day smoke is generally sufficient. Some smoke cured meat every other day for a week or even longer.

PRESIDENT ENDORSES BANKHEAD COTTON ACT

President Roosevelt has endorsed the Bandhead cotton act and promised an exemption to all farmers who produce not more than 2 bales of cotton. He tremed the act as the salvation of the South. In a statement to the press President Roosevelt said: "If the Bankhead act is continued in effect for another year it is my purpose recommend to the Congress an amendment granting an exemption for the full amount of his base reduction to each farmer who has an established base production of not more than two bales of cotton."

The President cited figures showing that the parity price for farmers in 1932 would have been about 13 cents while the actual price was 5½ cents. Today he said the parity price is about 15 cents while the actual price is about 12½ cents. This he regards as quite an accomplishment.

Mr. Roosevelt also asserted that when the price was as low as 5½ cents exports were diminishing. In other words, cheap cotton does not mean increased exports and therefore the reduction of the huge surplus must be accomplished by acreage control.

He believes the existing 10,250,000-bale surplus can be cut down to 8,750-000 bales by next August and that within a couple of years the normal surplus of 4,000,000 bales will be reached.

The exemption for two-bale cotton farmers from the control act will affect about 600,000 growers but the amount of cotton is estimated at only 700,000 bales, or a "drop in the bucket."

He regards the exemption as helping those who most need help and also as bringing about simplification in regulation.

ISABELLA HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB MEETS

Our Home Demonstration Club met in the Home Economic Department December 6, at 1:45 p.m., with fourteen members present. Six new members were enrolled. We were very glad to have them join us, making our total enrollment 26.

The meeting was called to order by our President, Mrs. Earl Thomas. There being no business to come before the club, Miss Pardue took charge giving a very interesting demonstration on Christmas decorations and wrapping Christmas gifts and boxes attractively.

Our next meeting will be January 3rd, 1935. We will meet in the agricultural building. The project will be handicraft. Remember the date and be there if possible.

LITTLEJOHN COMMUNITY SEWING CLUB MEETS

Our sewing club met last Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Herman Litlejohn. All the members were present except four, and 2 new members were added to our list which we were very glad to have. We are hoping to have some more new members join us at our next meeting which will be on Thursday afternoon of this week. All members are urged to be present, for we are planing on having a comunity Christmas tree and we want all to join us that can so we can make it the most enjoyable Christmas ever had.

Most of the ladies are piecing quilts which is a very important project. When these quilt tops are finished all our members will join together and quilt them. So every member try to be present at all the meeings and be of more service to the community, especially in cooperation.—Secretary.

Lesson for December 16

THE CHRISTIAN AND THE LORD'S SUPPER

LESSON TEXT—I Corinthians 11: 23-34.

GOLDEN TEXT—For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do shew the Lord's death till he come. —I Corinthians 11:26.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Supper Jesus Gave His Friends.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How the Lord's Supper Began.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Observe the Lord's Supper?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Realizing Christ's Presence in the Supper.

By the Lord's Supper here is meant the bread and the wine used as emblems of the broken body and shed blood of the Lord Jesus Christ. Some Christians think of the Lord's Supper as a meal of fellowship eaten before the institution of the bread and the cup. To them it means the agape or love-feast which was practiced in the early church. Such would prefer to call this the Communion instead of the Lord's Supper. With this understanding, we can enter into the real understanding and blessing of the ordinance.

I. The Institution of (v. 23).

1. The time. It was on the night of the betrayal of the Lord Jesus, after the betrayer had been announced.

2. Circumstances of (Matt. 26:26). It was in connection with the eating of the Passover. At the command of Jesus the disciples made ready the Passover, and while they were eating Jesus took bread, blessed it, and gave it to them.

3. The elements used. Bread—doubtless common bread of the Passover feast. The Cup—the fruit of the vine.

II. The Significance of (vv. 24-26 Cf. Matt. 26:26-28).

Jesus took natural and literal elements and made them to be symbols of his own body and blood.

1. It is a memorial of the Lord (Lk. 22:19). When Jesus Christ left the world, he left the bread and the cup for the disciples, by which to remember him.

2. To show the Lord's sacrificial death (v. 26). He did not die as a hero, or as an example of unselfish devotion, but as a substitutionary ransom on the cross he made satisfaction for our sins.

3. It is a guaranty that our sins are forgiven (Rom. 4:25). "It was the signet of the Son of God attached to redemption."

4. It symbolizes the believer's reception of Christ (1 Cor. 10:16). He thereby participates in the body and blood of Christ, becoming a member of his body.

5. It has a forward look to a completed redemption (v. 26). When faith in Christ is exercised, redemption begins, and its completion will take place at the coming of Christ (I Thess. 4:16, 17). The bread and the cup constitute the keepsake of the Lord until he returns.

III. Qualifications for Participation in the Lord's Supper (vv. 27-29).

1. A proper apprehension of its meaning (v. 27). Eating and drinking unworthily primarily refers not to the demerit of the communicant, but to his failure to grasp the meaning and importance of the ordinance. Only regenerated persons can discern the Lord's body. Faith in the integrity of Christ's person and work is essential. Anyone who does not believe in the absolute deity of Christ and his vicarious atonement is an unworthy communicant.

2. Church membership (1 Cor. 11:18-22). The Lord's body is the church, which is composed of regenerated men and women united to Jesus Christ as head, and to each other as members of that body, by the Holy Spirit.

3. An orderly walk. Conduct which disqualifies for participation in the Lord's supper:

a. Immorality (1 Cor. 5:1-13). It is most perilous for one who is guilty of immorality to approach the Lord's table (v. 30). Sickness and death are often visited upon such.

b. Heresy (Titus 3:10; 1 John 4:2, 3). This means that one who holds false doctrine is disqualified for participation in the communion.

c. A Schismatic (Rom. 16:17). The one who stirs up party strife, who causes divisions in the church, should be excluded from the Lord's table.

IV. Penalty for Failure to Discern the Lord's Body (vv. 30-34).

Approaching the Lord's table unworthily issues in the visitation of sickness and death upon the individual. This seems to be plainly the meaning of "weak and sickly among you, and many sleep." This explains the illness of many Christians. The way to escape the judgment is to judge ourselves.

Patience

Patience means "to stay under the burden." It is a call to be loyal to the difficult task even when there are open doors of escape. It means that the whole man should stay in the hard place—heart, head and body.

They Are the Winners

All those who wear the white robe of spiritual purity are those who have overcome in the struggle with all that is base and foul in the experience of mankind.

Mr. and Mrs. Doub Huddleston, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Burnett were visitors in Montgomery Sunday afternoon.

BOB JONES

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

Jesus Christ our Lord beautified all of his contacts. He came in touch with little children and He touched babyhood into beauty. No pagan writer said anything about the golden days of childhood. Childhood had no golden days for a pagan. All of the child welfare work of our modern world came into existence because two thousand years ago Jesus, the San of God and the world's greatest Teacher, said "Suffer little children to come unto Me and forbid them not for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

As we have often said, you never see a man with an electric chair hanging to his watch fob. You never see anybody wearing a necklace with a man hanging by the neck attached to it. The cross, before Jesus hung upon it, was far more horrible than the electric chair or a scaffold upon which we hang men. Yet, people wear crosses about their necks. They wear them on their watch fobs and they put them on their churches and light with electricity. We sing in our churches, "In the Cross of Christ I Glory, Towering over the wrecks of Time." Jesus touched the cross into beauty.

Today our bodies are pulsating with life, tomorrow we die, decay sets in, and the dead bodies have to be buried. We live all of our earthly life in the shadow of the grave. Two thousand years ago Jesus went into the tomb. It was a dark tomb. He stayed there three days and three nights, and there He lighted a lamp and left it burning and walked out of the grave. For two thousand years there has been light burning in the graves of our Christian dead. Jesus our Savior took away the sting of death.

Recently I heard a minister say "there are only two problems in this world. One is the sin problem, and the other is the death problem." After all, there is only one problem. If there had been no sin there would have been no sorrow. Death is the inevitable result of sin. Jesus Christ bore no sin in His body on the cross. He is the solution of the sin problem. "He is able to save unto the uttermost." There are no hopeless cases. No man ever sank to such depths but the grace of God could reach him. No man was ever so enslaved by sin but the grace of God could break the chains of slavery." "If the Son shall make you free, you shall be free indeed."

Good Citizen Is In Bad Health

Editor Union-Banner:

Please give me space in your paper to say a few words in regard to my condition. I have been down ever since the 3rd day of August and for the first two months I improved some, and for the last two months I am worse. I can't rest at all at night. I have to set up nearly all night. Just as soon as I lie down and still a drawing comes in my arms and shoulders and leg. It looks like there is no better for me. I have tried almost every thing, but haven't got anything as yet that has done any good.

I am thanking my friends and relatives for their help and kindness, and favors they have shown me in my affliction, from the depth of my heart. And I want to say that I sure am glad to see anybody come and sit and talk with me. It helps to pass away the time. I just lie and sit in my chair and study about what will become of me. I haven't any income and can't help myself any way, unless there are arrangements made some way to get help. I have a wife and three children to look after.—R. I. Varden.

SOCIETY

Mrs. Hugh Jones Hostess To Thursday Bridge Club

Mrs. Hugh Jones was hostess to members of the Thorsby Contract club and guests at her home last week. The Christmas colors were used in the decorations and score cards. After a series of games Mrs. James Wade was presented club prize and Mrs. W. E. Huddleston was awarded guest prize.

Mrs. Jones served a delicious luncheon plate with hot tea to her guests, who were as follows: Mesdames Omar Reynolds, Arthur Johnson, John Deramus, L. F. Gerald, Grady Reynolds, Otto Jones, W. E. Huddleston and James Wade.

Misses Margaret Davis, Helen Roberts, Gertiwyl Vinson, Dixie Johnson, and Sara Lawrence enjoyed the hospitality of Miss Sarah Hollis at her home at Mitchell Dam during the week end. The guests were joined Saturday night by several of Clanton's young contingent and dancing was enjoyed during the evening.

Mrs. L. F. Gerald Entertained Wednesday Contract Club

On last Wednesday afternoon at her home, Mrs. L. F. Gerald entertained members and guests of her bridge club. The games of contract were played in the rooms where tables were placed and at the conclusion Mrs. Frank Callen was presented high score prize, a pretty bath towel. Later in the afternoon a tempting salad course with hot coffee was served to the guests, who were Mesdames John Armstrong, Hugh Simpson, Omar Reynolds, Julius Burnett, Grady Reynolds, Arthur Johnson, John Deramus, John Browder, N. S. Johnson, Jack Davis, Frank Callen and Billy Smith.

Clanton Study Club

Members of the Clinton Study Club held their regular monthly business meeting on last Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. N. S. Johnson.

The club was called to order by the President, Mrs. Jno. Vanderveer. After the reading of he minutes and thirty minutes of business a most interesting program was given on Alabama. Roll call was answered by names of prominent men and women of Alabama. Mrs. John D. Mullins gave an interesting paper on "What Alabama is doing to Abolish Tuberculosis." Mrs. J. W. Hayes' paper was in "What the Tennessee-Valley Authority Means to Alabama."

Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Norman Roberts to Mesdames J. E. Gowan, J. P. Hayes, J. W. Hayes, Hugh Jones, M. F. Jones, T. C. McSwain, J. Watts Moore, J. D. Mullins, Renfro Mullins, Norman Roberts, Barney Roberts, J. M. Vanderveer, L. C. Warr, Horsley White, M. L. White.

CONCORD 4-H CLUB

The 4-H club of Concord met last Wednesday, December 5, 1934. We were assigned some topics about taxes and cotton on which we discussed at our last meeting. Tuesday, December 11, we had a very good meeting. We have an enrollment of twenty-two in our club now.

A few weeks ago the boys and girls of our school had a contest to see who could raise the most money to pay on a piano for the school. The girls beat the boys seventy-nine cents. For the past two weeks there has been a spelling contest between the boys and the girls, and the girls beat the boys one point. The prize for the winner was a basket of oranges.

There will be a spelling and arithmetic contest between the boys and the girls, and it will last two weeks. —Curtis Wyatt, reporter.

On account of Mr. Fant's absence, Mr. Wingard met with us December 7. The Bankhead Law was discussed by Mr. Wingard. He also gave us figures received of the reduction program during the years of 1932, 1933 and 1934 in Chilton County.

Our next meeting will be held January 11, 1935. The projects for the year will be discussed. We will be glad to enroll new members any time. —Carl Cooper, Reporter.

Adult Education Fine Movement

The movement of adult education in Alabama was launched last year without blare of trumpets and placing of colorful posters in show windows. It has not employed ballyhoo the current season. But quitely all over the United States a large corps of teachers, and thousands of adults and young folks just out of school are returning to class rooms. To all reflective people this should be cause for rejoicing. Life at best offers us many problems; at worst, obstacles; forbidding and impassible walls.

To those who have no resources to combat life's problems, life must always be a drab succession of routine days and dull nights. Often hunger half appeased, pain releived, Monotony unbroken, supersitition looming before us in varied, forbidding shapes.

On the economic side, debts will burden us, changing conditions due to new inventions and discoveries will leave us unemployed and uneeded. Even in such a basic and seemingly simple occupation as agriculture, new marketing and transportation conpests menace us, new methods of fuse us, new fields opened to cultivation compete with us. Eternal vigilance is indeed not only the price of success but a tax nature puts on life.

The accumulation of knowledge, the acquiring of skill, the disciplining of emotions, progress in acting together, whilingness to surrender individual rights for the welfare of the group, are all essential to a solution of our many problems.

The basic skills are training the muscles, training the mind, training the feelings. We need apprentice systems to train muscles; we have this on the farms, where father and son work togerher; the best system we know of. To train the mind we need teachers. We must read, figure, study what the race has learned about any number of things; learn something of our past, politically, industrially, culturally. Only then can we understand the present and chart the great future.

May the movement of adult educaton move down the field under flying colors, and fulfill the needs and dreams of mankind.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

A new drive for internationalism in the United States is in the making. It will explode suddenly on an astonished public as soon as Congress meets in January. The Intenationalists are more hopeful of success than they have been in many years. They point to the fact that there is now a two-thirds Democratic majority in the Senate. Treaties can be put over in the Senate only by a two-thirds vote. These two things go together in the minds of the internationalists and they hope to accomplish American adherence to the World Court and even, perhaps, membership in the League of Nations. They point out the fact that in the historic League fight of fourteen years ago, most of the votes for American adherence to the League came from the Democratic Party and they drew the conclusion from this that a two-thirds Democratic line-up in the Senate now means success for the internationalists.

It may be, of course, that the internationalists are permitting their enthusiasm to run away with their judgment. The Democratic support of the League in the early days was due not so much to conviction on the part of many Democrats as to the driving force of President Wilson and his organization. Since that time many things have happened and the American people have become pretty well cinvinced that the farther away from Europe Uncle Sam remains, the better off we will be. They have witnessed and felt the ingratitude of former allies who have termed us the shylocks of the world because we insisted that they pay us what they owe us, and they have seen these self-same nations default on their debts while at the same time spending annually many times as much for future warfare. They have gone through five years of depression which can be traced directly to the World War and its aftermath.

All of this does not conduce to further adventures in internationalism. But it will not do to think that the fight is over. The internationalists have plenty of money and the best propaganda machinery in the history of America. They will be on the job early and late trying to make us believe that black is white and that Uncle Sam will be "shirking his duty to the world" if he does not enter the World Court and eventually the League of Nations. Today the question of internationalism is not a partisian one. Internationalism is to be found in both parties, but in each the sound nationalists are greatly in the majority. The only danger is that they will be stampeded by a better organized minority.

Those who are studying this question of internationalism must remember above all else that joining the World Court is only the first step which the internaionalists hope we will take. They will not be satisfied until we cancel the foreign debts, reduce our tariffs, agree to lend more money to Europe and finally join the League of Nations and mix in all the crooked politics of the Old World. For example: the "Commission for Inquiry into National Policy in International Economic Relations," headed by President Hutchens of the University of Chicago, in a statement published in the newspaers, proposes not only that we cooperate with the World Court, but that we repeal the Johnson Act which bars loans to defaulting nations, that we immediately settle the war debts for a "lump sum"—which means virtual cancellation—and that we reduce our tariffs to promote foreign trade. First, it is proposed, tariff rates be lowered on commodities so as not to cause unemployment—which would be difficult to do, because most non-competitive goods now come into our country free—but if this is not sufficient to increase foreign trade, it is proposed that other reductions be made. It is further suggested that "dissmissal wages" be paid to workers who are thrown out of jobs by lowered tariffs. This is a good one—reduce the tariff to permit inflow of foreign goods and then let the government support those who are thrown out of jobs. it's a wonder this hasn't been thought of before!

The truth is that an internationalist is an American who puts the good of Europe above that of America, no matter how carefully he may conceal his real motives. Scratch an internationalist deep enough and you will uncover a fellow who favors American membership in the League and World Court, free trade for the benefit of foreign business, cancellation of European debts and restoration of the right and privilege of the defaulting alien to borrow more money from us if he needs it. These are the facts you want to remember. These internationalist qualities all go together.

"Soviet sentences five more 'kulaks' to die for hindering cotton picking schedule," says a headline in the New York Times. In Russia they shoot men for slowing up on their work. In the United States the government pays them to slow up in their work. What a world!

When you make up your mind that the younger generation is going to the dogs you may know for sure that you are at last getting old.

A new drive is to be made to put Uncle Sam into the League of Nations. Wonder where the League advocates get the money to put on all of these drives.

Upton Sinclair has been so quiet since the election that we are afraid he is up to something.

WHICH WAY, G. O. P?

There is growing up in the Republican party a school of thought favorable to competing with the Democratic Party by presenting a program and candidate more radical than Demacracy's. The name most frequently mentioned in this connection is Robert M. LaFollete of Wisconsin.

To us this does not appear to be the logical course for Republicanism. The field for the party of Lincoln does not lie in any conscious endeavor to be fantastic. To the complete contrary, its field lies in appealing to those who believe that the lamp of experience provides the most satisfactory light on the future.

There is no intention here to suggest that the party should be reactionary. It can be progressive without being preposterous. It can be conservative without being standpat in either method or thought. There is such a thing as liberal conservitism.

By its direction since March, of 1933, the Democratic party, or at least that part of it which at this time counts, has assumed that the American future can be carved from idealistic thories or theoretical ideals. Both by tradition and present opportunity, the Republican party can be the vehicle of articulation for those who believe that there is enormous salvage value in a system of government which has elevated America to the top rung among nations.

The channels are deeply etched for the continuance of two party, rule-by-majotity government in America. The issues are far clearer then they ever were when the division was on high, low or no tariff. The new lineup can pe conservative versus liberal or liberal versus radical, as you choose to have it. Whatever the nomenclature the LaFollettes and their ilk will be found in the second group, or by themselves.—Mason City, Iowa, Globe-Gazette.

A COMMISSION REPORT

There is food for careful and prayerful thought on the part of the Brain Trust in the report of the National Planning Board appointed by President Roosevelt some time ago to take a survey of the general situation.

The report, it is said, was completed and transmitted August 1, but was not made public until November. It criticises severely certain phases of the AAA and the NRA programs, seeing extreme danger in the curtailing of output and lack of coordination and direction in the recovery program. In part, the report states:

"One of the basic problems of the NRA is that of wages as a factor in fair competition. But the NRA has made little progress so far in settling the difficult problems of wage differences between industries and sections.

"As regards long-range objectives, it is difficult to find any semblance of planning in the NRA. In fact, the NRA has set up new difficulties in the path of industrial planning. To begin with, the process of code making for the purpose of recovery was so directed as to impede, rather than advance, the planful reconstruction of industry.

"The codes were set up hastily on the assumption that a bad code was better than none at all.

"There was thus much guesswork and a lot of bargaining in their making. As a result, the NRA has brought about a rift in the interrelations of industries. Each industry is supposed to contrive a solution of its own problems and the 475 codes in existence are a complex and confusing system."

"The emergency agricultural recovery program has been seriously affected by the drought of 1934," the report said. "What has been brought home to us is the extreme danger of basing a program on curtailment of output.

"The line between plenty and scarcity is too thin, and in any case in regard to most agricultural products the American people are still below an adequate diet level."

If the recovery has been retarded by lack of confidence, as many experts state, may it not be possible that some of this lack of confidence is due to conditions as noted in the report of the President's commission? If there is lack of cohesion and direction in the recovery program itself, it will undoubtedly be difficult for priavte industry to organize its own forces to move forward against the depression. Perhaps a little pruning, consolidating and eliminating at Washington will be an aid to the return of prosperity.

FRANCE WILL NOT PAY

Announcement comes from Paris that there will be another default on the French war debt when an installment becomes due on December 15. This means that the total of the amount due and overdue will be $160,000,000 with no prospect for payment.

The French say that they cannot pay because they do not have the money. At the same time they are speeding up their prepaations for war. The military budget of the French government for next year will be more than twice all of this defaulted part of the debt and just about fifteen times the amount of the payment due December 15. In other words, France, who says she is too poor to pay us, can spend fifteen times the installment amount in one year for military armaments and is talking too about increasing the size of her navy. Her total "defense budget" is much greater.

In spite of all this there are still some people in the United States who want Uncle Sam to take new adventures in European politics and European finance. They are foolish enough to call on him to join the League of Nations, the League Court, and to remove the restrictions against lending American money to nations which have already defaulted on their American debts. They are not satisfied with the bitter experiences we have had dabbling in European affairs during the past seventeen years, but wants us to enter into political agreements with nations which have proved themselves little better than dead beats, not only cancelling the debts already owing, but clearing the way to lend the chiselers more money!

If Uncle Sam falls for any sort of proposition like the ones above mentioned then we will believe that the poor old fellow ought to go—not into the League of Nations—but into some international feeble minded institute.

But Uncle Sam is not going to fall. The American people have learned an important lesson at a bitter cost measured in war sacrifices and in the sufferings of a major economic depression.

Having failed to be nominated and elected governor of Colorado, Miss Josephine Roche lands a job in Washington as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. Which is just like being traded from the Cincinnati Reds to the St. Louis Cardinals.

Prof. Tugwell is back from Italy but we haven't heard yet whether or not he succeeded in selling Mussolini a new set of blueprints.

Uncle Sam'l Scott

I was stunned a few days ago to hear of the death of a very good friend, Uncle Sam'l Scott, for years on years a photographer with a studio in Clanton. I have studied photography quite a bit, and I really enjoyed sitting and talking shop with the genial old fellow. I knew nothing of his death until after his funeral, or I most certainly would have attended. Uncle Sam'l was Scotch to the core, thrifty as they make them, but all in all a likeable personage. He dearly loved a contest of any kind, and as his age kept him from active games, he took up checkers and dominoes. I think he enjoyed winning a game better than any person I ever met. I believe. I knew Uncle Sam'l Scott as few knew him—for his real self. He learned his trade in the old school, and would have nothing of latter day scientific discoveries in his shop. He called all such new things "fads," and all heaven and earth couldn't change him. He was already aging when I first came to know him, and the last time I was in his studio, it looked exactly as it did the first time I ever entered it. He had a few characteristics all his own, for which he was the brunt of many jokes, but the good old fellow always came back smiling. He was that kind of man. Nothing pleased him better than to get into an argument over whose watch carried the nearest correct time—he would always invite you down to the depot to check his time against yours. I can see the old fellow now, as he walked down the street, with his derby hat cocked over one eye, satchel in hand—he always carried that satchel—and when it was raining he always had his trusty old umbrella over him. After all, Uncle Sam'l conducted his business sensibly. He has told me hundreds of times that the best way to lose a friend or customer was to credit him—hence, he never asked for credit, nor extended any. And you could always depend on him, too. He always made a point of keeping his word. Uncle Sam'l is gone but I—and I imagine there are others like me—will never forget him. He was a grand old gentleman to know, and I very much regret his passing.

I'm Ace High

I don't know if it is egotism, or just a common human failing for a person to like to have his efforts appreciated, and to be told that they are. Be that as it may, I must confess that it makes me feel good to have people tell me they enjoy this column. And, since I have been making it a regular weekly affair again, quite a few have dropped by to wish me luck with it, and a few have written in to me to that effect. Even some of my enemies are wishing me well—however, I wouldn't exactly call them "enemies," though, as I refer to Uncles Joe and Gus, and I wouldn't like to think of them as enemies, but rather as well-meaning critics. You see, Uncles Joe and Gus like to hop aboard of me every time they have a chance, but I enjoy having them do it, too. It adds spice to my every-day, hum-drum life. They say they hope I rise and full every seven days. Thanks for the good wishes, Uncles! But Uncle Z. J. "Zack" Jones goes them one better and says I am indispensable. Maybe that's piling it on a bit thick, but I appreciate the compliment, just the same, Uncle Zack. And that goes for all my well-wishers. And I'm going to drop a hint. I intend to make for myself one special mission to perform in the future. If it is humanly possible, I intend to make the real editor of the Chilton County News disclose his identity. So far, I haven't been able to pull him out of his hull, but there is such a thing as putting so much fire under a turtle's tail until he will run his head out. I think I'll try that system next, and see if it will work. If it doesn't, well, I'll have to try to think up something else again. So, again I want to thank all who have been nice enough to throw bouquets my way—and I appreciate my critics, too—and will do my best to give you as spicy a column as I am able to get together form week to week.

The Cotton Business

When the AAA started the campaign to reduce the production of cotton in the United States, they drew up a beautiful plan whereby the American cotton farmer must surely prosper. The plan called for reduction, which, according to the lew of supply and demand, seemed sure to force the price of American cotton up. But there were two things that the cotton bill designers evidently did not take into consideration. The first of these was: The fact that foreign countries might take offense at the plan to such degree that they would stop buying our cotton altogether, and start raising their own. The second was: That once these foreign nations start raising their own cotton, they will continue to do so, and our foreign cotton export trade will be forever lost. If these two things should happen, the raising of cotton in America would NEVER be what is was once. And now, let's see if this may come to pass. From time to time we see notes in the crop forecasts which tell of increased production of cotton in several foreign countries—in fact, in every cotton-raising country. Even in Russia, which the present administration drew to its bosom with such warmth, on the plea that it would furnish an outlet for our cotton surplus, and so help our cotton farmers, has doubled and re-doubled its cotton acreage. And to top it all, the Russian Soviet government is seeing to it that they raise all the cotton they need. Instead of cutting down acreage and production as is the case in this country, they are giving each farmer an increased allotment, and passing out fines to all who fail to raise their allotment. That was done this year. How much stronger will they make it next year? With our export trade disappearing in a mist, cotton as a money crop will be a thing of the past. And, too, is it not reasonable to believe that, once the farmers of these other countries have started raising cotton, that they will keep it up? We think the cotton plan is just another of those half-baked "brain trust" ideas which looked so pretty on paper, but wasn't so hot when put into practice.

Getting Our Feet On the Ground

In a recent speech by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, shortly after he left the Blue Eagle ranks, he stated that he "longed to see the day when the people of the United States have their feet on the ground again." We know, of course, that Mr. Johnson was speaking in a figurative way, yet, if he will look around a bit, I think he will find that though his wish may not have been gratified in the manner in which he meant it, yet he will find it has already been fully gratified in a literal way. The feet of lots of us have been on the ground for some time—that is, the old shoe soles have worn out and we are back on old terra firma just like old mother nature started us off. And the devil of it is, we can't see much chance of helping the situation any, not in the near future. Now, he might get Sister Perkins to put through an order for some shoes for us poor old benighted Southerners. You know, it is Sister Perkins' idea that we all go barefooted down here, any way. When and if she does all this, we could then have a big convention and join in singing "All Us Chillun Got Shoes"—you know the tune, I am sure. What do you say, Sister Perkins?

The Bible Problem

Here is the solution of the Bible problem given in this column a few weeks ago: Multiply the number of Jacob's sons—12 (Gen. 35:23-26), by the number of times the Israelies encompassed Jericho—13 (Josh. 6:3-4), add to the product the number of measures of barley that Boaz gave to Ruth—6 (Ruth 3:15), divide by the number of Haman's sons—10 (Esther 9:13-14), subtract the number of each kind of clean beast that went into the ark—7 (Gen. 7:2), multiply by the number of men who went to seek Elijah after he was taken up into Heaven—50 (II Kings 2:16-17), subtract from this Joseph's age at the time he stood before Pharaoh—30 (Gen 41:46), add the number of stones in David's bag when he killed Goliath—5 (I Sam. 17:40), subtract the number of furlongs Bethany was distant from Jerusalem—15 (St. John 11:18), divide by the number of anchors cast out when Paul was shipwrecked—4 (Acts 27:29), subtract the number of persons saved in the ark—8 (Gen. 7:13), and this will give the number of students in the young man's Bible class, which is 97. This must have been a fairly stiff one, for at this writing I have only received solutions from two people—Miss Mary Earle Farley, of Clanton Route 5, and Mr. Raymond L. Duffey of Moutain Creek. Both stated that they enjoyed working the problem, and Mr. Duffy went so far as to tell me to make the next one really hard. All right, "Duff," just you wait. I'm going to get down and figure one out for you, especially, and when you finish working it, you'll have to get a bottle of Kolor-Bak—you know, that stuff they say is so good for restoring gray hair. So all of you be looking for a real scorcher, soon. It's on the way—Man in the Moon.

Note:—Since the Bible article was written, another answer to the problem has come in, this one from Mrs. O. D. Deloach, of Clanton. This makes three who have worked the problem.—MITM.

LIVE UNDER TRUSTEES?

In one of his books, the late President Wilson said: "I do not want to live under a philanthropy. I do not want to be taken care of by the government. * * * I want only to have right and justice prevail so far as I am concerned. Give me right and justice and I will undertake to take care of myself. I will not live under trustees if I can help it. I do not care how wise, how patriotic, the trustees may be. I have never heard of any group of men in whose hands I am willing to trust the liberties of the American people."

Woodrow Wilson, before he became President, was a distinguished educator and historian, and in that statement he ably reflects the true American spirit—the spirit that won our independence, wrote our Constitution, and gave us democratic government. That spirit is the direct antithesis of paternalism. Its base is in the solid rock of individual self-reliance. Its image is the typical American who, like the war President, wants no one to determine his destinies, and wants only, under fair conditions, to carve out his own future.

If we, as a people, lose that spirit, the word democracy will ring hollowly. The nation abounds with those who would have us accept paternalism, fascism, communism—one form or another of dictatorship. They would have us surrender our liberties to a group of public trustees. And by doing that we would, in the fine words of the old saying, be trading our inheritance for a mess of pottage.—Munice Evening Press.

AFTER ME—WHAT?

I am the public treasury.

I must be kept under constant guard against looters and despoilers.

As never before I have been converted into a ponderous feed trough.

A veritable deluge is being poured into me, only to be seized upon and snatched up by a growing army of jostling, grasping, contending humanity.

The more I give, the louder they cry for MORE.

The FAT as well as the LEAN have deserted their own boards to come to feed their fill out of my own generous hold.

There seems to be no end to their capacity.

Their hunger is never appeased.

They give no thought that there might come a day when the food stream that feeds them may dwindle to a mere trickle.

Experience has taught me that that day will come, and must come.

Already I see signs of shrinkage in the flow.

Will they then be satisfied with less and less?

Will they be willing to return to their accustomed haunts and provide once more for their own means of support?

Or will they storm the front only to find it dry?

Who then, will be able to stay the furies?

What, then, will become of me?

If I am destroyed, what is there to replace me?

It is I speaking—the public treasury.—Utah Taxpayer.

PEOPLE SAY "NEVER AGAIN"

The League of Nations and League Court propagandists in this country, who have been out of commission for a year or more, are now unlimbering their artillery for a new campaign in the next Congress.

With two-thirds of the Senate belonging to one party, they hope to put the League Court, at least, across.

Foreign policy was not an issue in this election.

Hence there is no reason to think that the American people have been converted to the doctrine of foreign entanglements, a doctrine which they have always emphatically turned down whenever they had the opportunity to vote on it in the past.

And we may be sure that the summer's events in Europe—the killing of Dolfuss, the Nazi upsurge in Germany, the sabre-rattling of Mussolini, the assassination of King Alexander of Jugoslavia and Foreign Minister Barthou of France—have given America cause for heartfelt thanks that it was under no obligations to take sides in any European dispute.

It is possible, we suppose, for a complaisant Senate to involve us in the League Court, which is merely the back door to the League itself.

But we think that any senator who favored such a departure from the wise counsel of George Washington to leave Europe alone would show singular stupidity as far as his own interest were concerned.

He needs only to look at the record to find where America stands on this question.

He needs only to look at our soldiers' graveyards in France to know why the American people say, "never again."—Washington, D. C., Herald.

THE BANKHEAD ACT

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper to express my idea concerning this cotton program we hear a lot about. Our high authority tells us if it was not for the Bankhead Act cotton would be 5 cents per pound.

I would like to know why they think so. The 1932 cotton crop was 11,907 bales and under the sign-up Bankhead Act in 1934, 12,213 bales. So I would like to know where it is of any benefit. Of course it is the thing for some people, for they got more than a five-year average allotment and a nice rent from the government, this envolves about fifty per cent of the people. But the Bankhead Act does not take and staple off the market, and I want everybody to think of this when they go to the polls December 14th.

As Mr. Fant stated in last week's paper, there were 384 bale gin certificates sold at $20 er bale, a total of $6,960.00 that went to the farmer, but, who paid it? Such farmers as I am, where he tried to be fair and square and his rights were taken from him, when the commitments were supposed to have taken 15 per cent from each conrtact. Or, that is, Mr. Fant made that statement at Enterprise school house.

What did they do? They cut mine from 1,900 and some few pounds down to 1,430, and some were not out any. Does this look fair to you? It does not to me. Well, we hear on every side they are going to remedy the Bankhead Act, but the only way they are gong to do it is for the one and two-bale man. A one and two-bale mon would not care if he did not get to sell any, not very many of them any way. So the man in my shape, there is no talk of helping his cause any. There are hundreds of people in my shape so I beg everybody to think of the little children who are suffering on account of the Bankhead Act. I believe one child ought to have the same chance as the other.

So lets consider this when we go to vote December 14.—Yours very truly, A. E. Mims, Clanton, Route 2.

FIRE SPOILS PAPER WOOD

Montgomery.—The anticipated expansion of the paper pulpwood industries in the South places responsibility upon the woodland owner to see that the young pine timber is protected against fire, says Colonel Page S. Bunker, Alabama State Forester. It is not enough that there be a sufficient volume of pine to supply the pulp mills, according to Colonel Bunker, but the pine must be comparatively free from resin or decay.

In young pine trees resin does not exist ready to flow out through the wounds or through the chipping resorted to in turpentine operations. On the contrary, it is the injury to the sapwood of the pine that causes the resin to form. Such injury may be of a mechanical nature or it may be that ensuing from the scorching by grass and woods fires. In either case much of the wood becomes permeated with resin so that the material is unsuitable for paper pulpwood purposes.

Injuries made by fire also add to the deterioration of young pine for pulpwood uses through admitting into the tree various fungi which cause disease and degeneration of the wood substance. Thus the indirect effects of fires impair the quality in young growing timber, renderng it unfit for the purpose in view.

GAME AND FISH NEWS

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 12.—The coming of J. N. "Ding" Darling, chief of the U. S. Bureau of Biological survey, to Alabama December 12, focuses the attention of Alabmaa sportsmen and conservationists on Iowa's model Twenty-five Year Conservation Plan which Mr. Darling helped prepare.

The Biological Survey chief, a native of Des Moines, Iowa, where he became famous as a newsaper cartoonist and wild life conservationist before receiving his Washington apopintment, is comnig to Alabama to be the guest of I. T. Kuinn, state commissioner of game and fisheries, and Judge Arthur E. Gamble, of Greenville on a three day turkey hunt in north Baldwin County. The hunting party also will include Graham Gamble, brother of Judge Gamble, and Walter St. John, both Des Moines, neighbors of Chief Darling.

Iowa's Twenty-five Year Plan has been studied as a model by many state conservation agencies and not only includes a planned wildfire restoration program, but encompasses erosion control, forestry state parks, highways and stream development as well.

Chief Darling devoted his efforts to the wildfire conservation phases of the program and it is in this angle that Alabama has been chiefly interested. The migratory waterfowl restoration program the federal government has undertaken under his leadership has drawn many of its fine points from the conservation practices instituted by Mr. Darling as a member of Iowa's Board of Conservation.

The entire Iowa plan has a direct bearing on the restoration and preservation, of wildlife, affecting as it does parks, preserves, game refuges, lake restorations, marsh projects, artificial lakes, woodland conservation and soil conservation measures, roadside omprovements, and the whole upland game schedule for re-establishing cover and feeding grounds.

An example of the magnitude and results of the program are given in a current report of the Iowa Fish and Game Commission for the biennium ending last June. Receipts from resident hunting and fishing licenses amounting to 83 per cent of the income, or $447,906, while the total department income for two years was $539,319.86.

His Masterpiece

When God planned the earth, He planned it with the view of placing on it something upon which He could look down and with pride and ecstasy proclaim: "That is My handiwork; My masterpiece." So He cut a pattern of pure gold, traversed it with streams of silver, and out of the celestial storehouse of precious things He selected His rarest gifts and planted them in this enviable creation. He gently laid the whole down, its shoulders buoyed against hills of verdant green and its feet resting in the wastes of a placid sea. Over its forehead He placed a garland of precious gems and around its neck a rope of coveted minerals, while about its loins He girded every essential to joy, happiness and prosperity. He blessed it. He endowed it with His love and called it Alabama.

Unsound Advice

Once I was giving a manly young fellow what I thought was sound and wise advice, thinking it would be helpful to him when he grew up. I was telling him how essential it was to begin at the bottom and work upward if we were to succeed in this life. The little fellow listened with rapt silence, his face displaying every possible evidence that he was intensively interested in what I was saying. After I had finished my little sermon on how to succeed by always starting at the bottom, no matter how small or how large the task, the lad hesitated a moment and said: "I know a man what didn't start at the bottom and he succeeded." Startled, I inquired as to who the man was, and the little fellow, like a flash said, "That old man what dug our well."

I never did like smart-alecky children, anyway.

Building Good Roads

Governor Miller has made an enviable record as a road-builder. During his term of office, more than 500 miles of highways have been paved. Any man, be he public office-holder or private citizen is to be commended for lessening the burdens of his fellowman.

A good road is no better than the base on which it is constructed. That's the verdict of the highway engineer. When Col. Bibb Graves was governor, he checkerboarded Alabama with graded highways touching every section of the commonwealth. He built more good roads than did all of his predecessors in the executive office. He built the foundation, cut the grades down, ironed out kinks, placed bridges across treacherous streams, caused guard rails with steel ropes to be placed above dangerous embankments and hard-surfaced hundreds of miles of these newly graded highways. . . . where he could not hard-surface, he made the road passable and less dangerous, he paved the way for his successors to pave the way. Col Graves and Gov. Miller will go down in history as Alabama's foremost roadbuilding governors.

Christian Endeavor News

Last Saturday night, December 8, the members of the society enjoyed a social at the home of Miss Martha Williams. Throughout the evening, table games were played which everyone took part in. After all had played the different games fudge and pop corn were served, "made on the spot." The social ended with all singing one verse of "Blessed be the Tie That Binds," which is sung to conclude all Christian Endeavor Socials. We were glad to have Miss Glasson and our sponsor, Miss McKee with us.

The topic for Christian Endeavor Sunday night was "How's Business?" with Tru Delle Swiney as leader. After the different members had given their parts Miss McKee, our sponsor, led a discussion concerning the topic of the evening. The society voted to send the money which was given them by Mr. Butler, with money to be made up by the society, to the Southern Union College at Wadley, Alabama. The meeting closed with the Christian Endeavor Benediction.

Mr. Roy Raybon left Thursday for Miami, Fla., where he will work for some time.

Mrs. Nels Petersen and son, Norman, were visitors in Thorsby Saturday.

Mr. J. M. Nix passed away at his home Wednesday night after a short illness. He is survived by two brothers, Dr. G. C. Nix, and Oscar Nix, and one sister, Mrs. O. A. Purvis, and his mother, Mrs. W. M. Fuller, all of Opp, Ala., and one sister, Mrs. Jerome Merchant, of Pensacola, Fla., two sons, George H. Nix, of Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., and Jack M. Nix of Clanton, and one daughter, Mary Ruth Nix, of Thorsby.

Mr. Oscar Nix and son, Robert, Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Purvis and Mrs. W. M. Fuller, returned to Opp Thursday after attending the funeral of their brother and son, Mr. J. M. Nix.

Mrs. L. C. Yaw and daughter, Irene, of Birmingham, attended the funeral of Mr. J. M. Nix Thursday.

Thorsby Institute News

The Christmas program, which is one of the most interesting programs of the school year, is to be in the form of a play entitled "Inasmuch" and is to be presented on Saturday evening, November 15th. The play was written by two of the Institute teachers, Miss Allen and Miss Klingelhoefer. Special Christmas music is being prepared. Admission 10 cents.

Rev. William C. Bell and Dr. Ensminger were guests at the Institute Monday evening. Rev. Bell has been a Missionary to Angola, West Africa, since 1897. Just before supper he gave an interesting talk to the teachers and dormitory students, telling of his work and experiences in Africa. He also displayed several curios.

Last Saturday night the members of the sophomore class were entertained at the home of Mr. Vinson Sutlive. During the evening Miss Ruth McKee rendered a pano solo and Mary Nell Pate gave a reading. The group played many games and sang Christmas carols. Miss Allen and Miss Ford were guests of the class.

CHILTON BAPTIST ASSOCIATION WILL HELP REV. RIGGINS

The Chilton Baptist Association at its recent meeting adopted Rev. M. Hodgens and Rev. Warren Riggins to aid in Howard College this year. Bro. Hodgens surrenders all claims in favor of Bro. Riggins, as he has church work to help him. Recently Bro. Riggins has undergone an operation in the hospital and is in need of funds very badly. All churches are urged to take offerings for him and send to Rev. J. W. Jones, Thorsby, Ala., who is treasurer of the fund.

STORRS MAKES FINAL REPORT

Alabama has the best warehouse system in the nation and leads all other states in the marketing of miscellaneous farm products, in soil survey, in seed testing, in apiary, food, feed, drug and fertilizer inspection and in keeping agricultural statistics, asserts Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture since June 1929, in his final report to the State Board of Agriculture.

The retiring commisioner also stated that the department is doing outstanding work in plant industry and shipping point inspection and that the chemical laboratories at Auburn and Montgomery and the plant laboratory at Mobile have made great progress and are doing fine work. He stated that necessary equipment was added recently to the chemical laboratories at Auburn to determine whether or not fertilizers are acid-forming.

Referring to a market bulleting he originated in May, 1932, Commissioner Storrs said: "Our Alabama Farmers' For Sale, Want and Exchange Bulletin has met with very general approval in all parts of the state and is suplying a service that was much needed. It is finding a market for miscellaneous products of several million dollars annually that would not otherwise be marketed."

We are glad to say that the health is good here at present.

Our Sunday school is going nicely. We are thankful to see our children taking the interest in Sunday school work that they are taking. It will be a blessing to them some sweet day. We would like to see the older people take more interest and set a better example before their children.

Bro. Horace Nabors filled his regular appointment here last Sunday at 2:30 p.m. His sermon was enjoyed by all present. We think he is a very promising young preacher. He is doing some good work here.

Miss Betty Denson and Miss Margaret Nabors were dinner guests of Mr. Lee Denson Sunday.

We are to state that Master Aaron Nabors is now back home again. We hope for him a Merry Christmas and A Happy New Year.

Lets all put our shoulder to the wheel and do good and we will get good.

WHAT NEGROES ARE DOING

Bankhead Bill

The negro farmers will have an opportunity to cast their votes on the "Bankhead Cotton Control Bill." In exercising this rare privilege it is hoped that each negro voter will vote his own convictions, that he will not be swayed by mere hear say but will weigh the facts in the case and cast his vote accordingly.

It is a fact that without the Bankhead control measure, cotton farmers will be headed back to the 1932 price level. It is imperative then that we weigh all facts carefully and vote accordingly.

The writer has visited a large number of communities discussng the merits as well as the demerits of the control measure and informng the farmers of the probable changes in the measure for 1935, affecting the little man.

All farmers in the County Training school community will cast their vote at the County Training school. Voting hours will be from 8 o'clock a.m. to 5 o'clock p.m.

Conference Friday

Farmers will have the opportunity of killing two birds with one shot Friday, because they will not have to go to town to cast their ballots. They may bring their exhibits right on to the school and vote while there.

The most elaborate exhibit ever seen at the school is being planned. Don't miss this exhibit as well as other interesting features of the day. Mr. Earle Thomas, teacher of vocational agriculture at the Isabella High School and senator-elect of this district, and Prof. Worthy Hughes, county agent, will be the main speakers.

Other persons expected are: Miss Ruth Pardue, county home demonstration agent, Dr. Ezell, pastor, of Clanton Batist church, Mr. J. Lee Smith, ex-mayor and probate judge elect. The program begins promptly at 10 o'clock.

We have the finest selection of Christmas Gifts for Men and Women we have ever offered. See them before you buy.—Upchurch Drug Company.

Big Rally Planned

A big rally and all-day singing is being planned for the fifth Sunday in December. There will be a three cornered singing contest among the "Big Four", of Bessemer, the Smith singers, of Boothton and the Coosa singers, of New Home fame. Everybody is invited. The purpose of this rally is to raise money to pay on that long past due note at the Peoples Savings Bank.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala., Dec. 11.—Plans for the Crimson Tide's westward flow were changed at the last minute, and the present ininerary will send the team away from Tuscaloosa on December 21 instead of the 19th. The party will arrive in Pasadena on Christmas eve morning, and drills for the New Year's game with Stanford will continue on the Pacific coast.

A one-man advance guard left the Ctapstone December 7 when M. E. Nunn, director of sports publicity, boarded a train for Pasadena. Nunn will join Don Liebendorfer of Stanford University, and the two will set up a Bureau of Public Information for the purpose of providing the Pacific coast papers and the press agencies with first hand news relative to the Stanford Indians and the Crimson Tide.

At the football banquet given by the Birmingham alumni of the University of Alabama, December 5, President Denny announced that a five-year contract running through the 1939 season had been signed by Frank Thomas, head football coach at the University. The new contract carried a substantial increase in salary, it is understood.

The fall initiatory banquet of Alabama Alpha of Phi Beta Kappa was held Wednesday, December 12. Dr. B. A. Wooten, head of the department of physics, spoke on the subject "Our Scientific Heritage." Members in course elected on Monday were initiated.

The Christmas spirit has invaded the University of Alabama campus. The celebration began Sunday when President Denny lighted the annual Christmas tree on the campus. The Christmas program includes a party for needy children, a Christmas dinner tendered by the girls in honor of President and Mrs. Denny, and a Christmas miracle play to be given Sunday afternoon, December 16.

MAPLESVILLE BITS

A Christmas program will be given by the music class, under the direction of Mrs. Floyd Dorsey, at the High School Auritorium, Friday night December 21 at 7 o'clock. Admission will be 10 and 20 cents.

Mrs. W. P. Boykin will be hostess for Circles No. 1 and No. 2, Monday afternoon. A christmas program will be given with Mrs. Cleve McGee chairman No. 1, and Mrs. F. A. Shanks chairman No. 2, in charge.

Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Hayes were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Grady Broadhead in Montgomery Sunday.

GEN. J. B. STANELY DIED AT GREENVILLE HOME AT AGE 91

Greenville, Ala. — James Berney Stanley, veteran newspaper editor, legislator and one of the fast-thinking ranks of Confederate veterans, died at the residence here Sunday following an illness of several weeks. Born in Lowndes County, August 9, 1844, he was in his ninety-first year when the final call came and he laid down the work which had engrossed him for nearly 70 years.

Funeral services were conducted at 10:30 a.m. Monday.

As a boy he attended school in Lowndes County, the Greenville Military Academy and the Greenville college Institute, leaving the latter to enlist in the Confederate Army, in 1862, as a member of Company C, Seventeenth Alabama Infantry, with which he served until wounded in the battle of Franklin, 1864, and was compelled to retire from active service. He took part in several important battles, and returning home soon after the close of the war, established The Greenville Advocate, in 1865, and for 69 years shaped the olicy and edited this newspaper, which throughout the years was one of the leading weeklies in the state, with a wide circulation in Butler and other Central and South Alabama counties.

Gen. Stanley's long connection with The Advocate gave him many years ago the distinction of being the oldest editor in point of service in America, and won him wide recognition for constant service with one newspaper. His paper several years ago was awarded a prize as the best edited weekly south of the Ohio.

FORD SPENDING

Detroit.—Henry Ford Monday— announced further expenditures of $8,000,000 to improve the steel-making and foundry facilities of the Rouge plant.

Three months ago Ford decided to manufacture his own steel, and announced a construction program for two steel mills and their necessary power equipment.

Monday's announcement said that $12,000,000 has already been spent on this project. The $8,000,000 program revealed Monday brings Ford's total expenditures for new equipment within 10 months to approximately $20,000,000.

WELCH PROPOSES TAX AMENDMENT

A constitutional amendment for a $3,500 homestead exemption and a sales tax to provide a substitute revenue will be proposed in the next legislature by Representative W. S. Welch, of Bessemer.

In voting on the amendment, the people would have to accept both or neither, Welch pointed out.

His plan was announced following a conference with Gov.-Elect Graves, who is pledged to a $2,000 homestead exemption and against a sales tax.

Representative Welch outlined his plan in a talk to a mass meeting at the First Methodist Church of Bessemer Sunday afternoon and declared he had the bill already prepared on his desk.

"This county can never be what it should be with a tenant population," he declared. "Now people do not want to own homes because it costs as much to live in a home owned by the resident as it does to rent one.

"Who constitutes the element that creates corruption and trouble in this country? It is the non-home-owning man. A man who works labor told me that he had never had any trouble with a man who owns his home."

The Story of the Bible Told in Pictures

Jonah and the Whale.—Commanded by the Lord to prophesy against Nineveh, Jonah attempted to escape from this commission by flight to Tarshish. He went to Joppa and found a ship going to Tarshish. A furious storm arose and the sailors after their attempts to lighten the ship proved vain, questioned Jonah. "And he said unto them, I am a Hebrew; and I fear the Lord, the God of heaven, which hath made the sea and dry land. Then were the men exceedingly afraid, and said unto him, What shall we do unto thee, that the sea may be calm unto us? And he said unto them, take me up, and cast me forth into the sea; so shall the sea be calm unto thee; for I know that for my sake this great tempest is upon you."—Jonah 1: 9-12. "So they took up Jonah, and cast him forth into the sea; and the sea ceased from her raging. Now the Lord had prepared a great fish to swallow up Jonah. And Jonah was in the belly of the fish three days and three nights."—Jonah 1: 15-17. Jonah then prayed earnestly to the Lord. "And the Lord spake unto the fish, and it vomited out Jonah upon the dry land."—Jonah 2: 10. This illustration is from Merian's story of the Bible in pictures, engraved in 1625.

CENTER HILL NEWS

Sunday was a wonderful day with us folks here. Sunday school Sunday morning was good. Rev. Maurice Hodgens preached a wonderful sermon Sunday morning. Oak Grove B. Y. P. U. came over and put on their program for us Sunday night. It was a fine program and well rendered. We were glad to have them come and be with us. We feel that the folks are doing a good work.

We extend to them a standing invitation to come back any time they can.

After the B. Y. P. U. was over Rev. Bob Cook preached a fine sermon for such a young man. Rev. Cook is just 19 years old. We predict for this young man a wonderful future.

We notice visitors from Mars Hill, Union Springs, Providence, Jemison, Oak Grove and Thorsby. Come again, folks, you will always find a welcome at old Center Hill.

The young people are coming fine on their play that they are practicing on to put on in the near future. Listen out for the date for if you fail to see this play you will miss something.

Mr. Lloyd Cobb has moved back from Montgomery.

Mr. and Mrs. Lessley and family have moved in our community from Oak Grove. We welcome them all.

We are sorry to lose Mr. and Mrs. Buster Scott. They have moved to the Charlie Martin old place.

We were sorry to see Mrs. Mattie Hucks and children move. They went to the Oak Grove community.

Cobb-Miller Wedding

A wedding of much interest was that of Mr. Alton Cobb and Miss Irene Miller. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Maurice Hodgens at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Maude Duncan at Lomax on Thanksgiving night. Mrs. Cobb is the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Miller. They are making their home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. V. T. Cobb.

Mrs. W. J. Collum and Mrs. B. L. Cobb spent Wednesday in Jemison with Mrs. T. J. Ward, helping her quilt.

Mrs. J. E. Cobb went to Clanton Friday shopping.

Revs. Maurice Hodgens and Bob Cook of Howard College were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Cobb Saturday night.

Rev. Cook was the dinner guest of his cousin, Miss Leacy Newell, in Jemison, Sunday.

Rev. Hodgens was the dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Cobb. They went to Pleasant Grove Sunday afternoon where Bro. Hodgens conducted the funeral of Mrs. Freeman.

Mr. and Mrs. William Robinson and daughter, of Union Springs, were the guests of Mrs. Madge Howard Sunday.

Smith-Langston Wedding

Mr. Grady Langston and Miss Alice Smith were married Sunday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Cobb. The ceremony was performed by Judge Cobb in the midst of a crowd of friends.

CARTER WILLIS DIED DEC. 12th

Carter Willis, age 62, died about seven o'clock Wednesday morning at his home in the Reynolds Addition, Clanton. Burial will be at Collins Chapel Thursday, with Martin in charge.

Mr. Willis is survived by his wife, Mrs. Julissa Willis; three sons, Roy Ocie and Obie, all of Thorsby; two daughters, Mrs. Grady Maddox, Clanton, and Miss Myrtle Willis, Clanton; five brothers, George, Watt, and Tug Willis, all of Clanton, and Charley of Texas; four sisters, Mrs. W. O. Vines, of Texas, Mrs. Jim Collins, of Troy, Mrs. Clint Wiggins, of Sayreton, and Mrs. Perry Robinson, of Union Grove.

RED EYED JOHN GORE IS READY FOR CHRISTMAS

Uncle John Gore, who distinguishes himself from all the other Johns by a handle on the front of his name saying Red Eyed John, wants his friends to know that he is all fixed up and ready to do his part in bringing loads of Christmas cheer into every home in Chilton County.

He proposes to do it by selling at the very lowest prices, all the fine fruits, nuts, candy, etc., you want. Call on him when you are in town His place is just above the postoffice on Main Street.

Mr. Paul C. Mims Was visitor to Montgomery Sunday.

T. D. McGEE DIED MONDAY

The remains of T. D. McGee were buried Monday, December 10th, at Pleasant Hill cemetery. He is survived by three brothers and three sisters, namely: Mrs. Amanda Adams, Mrs. Lizzie Suttles, Mrs. A. P. Lawley, J. P. McGee, Ed McGee and Jennie McGee, all of Maplesville, Ala., except Mrs. A. P. Lawley who lives at Anniston, Ala.

Mr. T. D. McGee and his sister, Mrs. Lizzie Suttles, have made their home with Preston McGee, a nephew, for the past few months. Until the time they moved with him they lived at Wilton, Ala.

Uncle Tom, as that is the name he is best known by, was never married. He spent his life caring for his people. He took care of his father and mother during their last days, and has been tenderly caring for his sister, who has not been able to walk for twelve months, until his health a short time ago failed. Since that time he and her both have been at the home of Preston McGee. We who know uncle Tom, know that he has gone to that better place above, called heaven.

We want to thank each and every one for the assistance they rendered during uncle Tom's illness. We are very much pleased with the service rendered by Mr. Cope, the undertaker for the Spiegner Burial Insurance Comany, at Clanton, Ala.—A Nephew.

T. D. McGEE DIED

Funeral for T. D. Mcgee, age 72, who died after a long illness, was held Monday at Pleasant Hill, with Rev. Grady Williams officiatng and Spigener Funeral Home in charge.

He is survived by three brothers; W. E. and Randolph McGee, of Lawley, and J. P. McGee, of Maplesville; three sisters, Mrs. J. J. Adams, of Lawley, Mrs. S. E. Settles, of Maplesville and Mrs. Pink Lawley, of Gadsden.

Mr. McGee moved to this community several months ago from Shelby County and made his home with his sister in Maplesville.

Mr. and Mrs. Barney Burnette, Miss Lucile Sherwood and Mr. Leo Alred were visitors in Montgomery Sunday afternoon.

JOHN ALLEN BLANKENSHIP

John Allen Blankenship, age 81 years, died Monday, December 10, at the home of his son, W. E. Blankenship, in Elmore County. Burial was at New Salem Tuesday, with Martin in charge. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. W. P. Lowery. Six of his grandsons acted as pallbearers.

Mr. Blankenship is survived by two brothers, Green Blankenship of Shelby, and Jeff Blankenship, of Clanton; four sons, N. K., of Calera; W. E., of Elmore, J. R. of Weogufka., and J. G., of Clanton; three daughters, Mrs. Catherine Nix, Mrs. Janie Deason of Shelby county, and Mrs. T. C. Maherg of Mobile. There is one sister, Mrs. Ann Tucker, of Shelby.

SINGING AT COLLINS CHAPEL

There will be singing at Collins Chapel on next Sunday evening, beginning at 2 o'clock, December 16. We invite all who are interest in music to be with us, and especially the old members of the United Singing Society, as we are thinking of reorganizing for the new year. We hope to have a large audience and a good class of singers as it is encouraging to see people take an interest in the things that are worth while. Come on now, folks, and let's have a real singing that is worth while. Don't disappoint us. We are looking for you.—Yours very respectfully, A. H. Glasscock.

GEORGE TIPPETT HAS NEW FRUIT STORE IN CLANTON

Mr. George Tippett, former barber, and prominent ex-soldier, has established a new fruit store business in Clanton, next to the First National Bank.

For the Christmas season Mr. Tippett has put in a very large and attractive line of fruits, nuts, candy, etc., and he invites all his friends to come to see him for their Christmas needs.

Mr. Tippett has many friends, especially his buddies who served in the World War, as well as many other people over the county. He will appreciate an opportunity to serve any and all of them.

Mr. E. E. Plier of Clanton Route 1 reports killing a 561-pound shoat last Monday. More spare ribs, "chitlins," tenderloin, backbone, sausage and gravy! Mr. Plier said the "pig" was a pure bred Duroc.

Hey, Buddies!

Let me fix you and the folks up for Christmas with a fine lot of Fruits, Candy, Nuts, and a bountiful supply of

MISS MADELINE DIX BECOMES BRIDE OF DR. W. P. REEVES

The wedding of Miss Madeline Dix, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dix, of Decatur, and Dr. W. P. Reeves, pastor of the Baptist Church at Tuskegee, Ala., is of interest throughout the state, both being well known and loved. Dr. Reeves was a former pastor of Central Baptist Church in Decatur.

Their marriage was solemnized at noon today in the First Baptist Church with the Rev. J. F. Berkstresser, former pastor, officiating.

A program was rendered with Miss Harriett Irwin directing and presiding at the organ. Miss Elizabeth Wallace and Miss Lougene Clem were vocal soloists.

As the relatives and friends gathered for the ceremony they were ushered to their seats by E. D. Bailey, Sr., J. T. Nelson and David Gibson.

The wedding party entered to the strains of Wagner's "Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin" with Rev. Berkstresser leading the way to the altar.

Mrs. Roland Ehrhorn, of Dallas, Tex., was the matron of honor, and the bride's only attendant. She was gowned in a tunic frock of rust with touches Galyak fur with black accessories, her small black hat with forhead veil being edged with silver. She carried an arm bouquet of Joana Hill roses. She entered from the back of the church and after taking her place on one side of the altar, the groom with his best man, W. R. Spight, came in from the east side.

The bride walked in the center aisle with her uncle, Paul F. Dix, who gave her in marriage. She wore brown cereal crepe made tunic fashion with gold neck clips and a wide gold ornament at the front waistline. Her hat matched her wedding gown and it was trimmed with gold metal and a short wide veil. A bouquet of Talisman roses that she carried was showered with valley lilies.

The church was tastefully decorated the evergreens, ferns and palms used as a background were studdied with specimen white chrysanthimums, and candles in graduated standards.

Dr. and Mrs. Reeves after a wedding trip will be at home Dec. 1, in Tuskegee.

Miss Dix is a Judson graduate and stands high in the Baptist State Association in which she has done splendid work as young people's leader. She is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Dix, esteemed residents of Decatur. Dr. Reeves is a widely known Baptist pastor who is accomplishing splendid results in his pastorate in Tuskegee.—Decatur Daily.

GRAVES IN QUEST OF SCHOOL AID

Gov.-elect Bibb Graves left last night for Washington, D. C., to confer with Administrator Harry L. Hopkins,, of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration. The object of the conference, it is understood, is to determine what arrangements can be made for federal aid funds to help Alabama's distressed school system and make it possible to keep the state's public schools open for normal terms during the 1934-35 session.

Mr. Hopkins, it was learned, has indicated he will be glad to discuss the matter with the governor-elect who is soon to take charge of the state's affairs, and Col. Graves is losing no time in getting to Washington for a conference with him on the subject of school financing. Just what, specifically, the governor-elect has in mind in the way of legislative action to relieve the situation, is not known, but is expected to be revealed following his talk with the FERA Administrator.

Relative to Gov. Miller's recent application for a government aid grant to Alabama $3,550,000 to keep the schools going, Mr. Hopkins wired him Monday, suggesting an extra session of the state legislature to take action in the emergency. The governor replied, however, that in view of the fact that the legislature meets in regular session on Jan. 8, and his successor in office will be inaugurated so soon thereafter, he felt that nothing could be accomplished by calling an extra session. Mr. Hopkins, it is believed, has seen the logic of the point fade by the governor.

Just before leaving for the national capital last night, it is understood, Gov.-elect Graves had a long distance conversation with Dr. A. F. Harman, State Superintendent of Education, who is now in Washington, attending two national meetings of school officials to consider the present emergency in education.

CARD OF THANKS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow us a small space in your paper to express our thanks and appreciation to our friends for their kindness and sympathy shown during the sickness and death of our dear husband and father, Martin Gore. Everybody was so kind and good to us until words cannot express how much we do thank them for what they have done. Especially do we thank Dr. H. G. Franklin, of Thorsby, for what he did and the Spigener Funeral Home, for being so kind to us.

May God's richest blessings abide with each one of you is our prayer.—Mrs. Polly Gore and Children.

MAYOR WANTS A BIGGER TOWN

Suggests That Enlarged Area Take In Exactly Four Square Miles

Mayor C. Fenn Jones continues his interest in the proposed movement to enlarge the city limits of Clanton. By this time he has perhaps talked to a majority of the people concerned by the proposal, and reports that he has not found any serious opposition.

When questioned about the extent of the proposed territory to be included in the town, Mr. Jones stated that no definite lines had been determined. He pointed out on a map an area including four sections of land, the center of which is near the depot in Clanton. "I don't know what will be the ultimate proposal," said the Mayor, "but it strikes me it would be about right to make it exactly four square miles." This suggested extension would include in Clanton the whole of sections one and two and thirty-five and thirty-six.

Another important phase of the proposal was discussed by Mayor Jones concerning the rights of the people in the outlying sections, if included in the town, to have cows, hogs, chickens, etc.

He said, "if we should carry out the proposed extension of the city limits, the people included in the new city area would be allowed to continue to have their cows, hogs, chickens, etc., as they do now, until the areas become so thickly settled that the people themselves would demand restrictions upon such things."

It appears that anybody who might have felt doubtful about the advisability of being included in Clanton on account of this question would find the statement of the Mayor sufficient to satsfy them about it.

The future of the schools of Clanton is a most vital and important matter that is bound up completely in the proposition of a larger city. Those who have studied the question carefully are convinced that the town will never be able to solve its school problems until the area of the town is made larger and the financial ability of the town is increased accordingly. The people of the nearby communities ought to be willing and glad to be included in the town, if for nothing else but to furnish the answer to our school problems.

SINGING AT COURTHOUSE FIFTH SUNDAY AFTERNOON

The Chilton County singing convention will sponsor an afternoon singing at the courthouse on Sunday afternoon, December 30th, beginning at 1:30 o'clock. All societies of the county are invited to participate.

There has not been a singing at the courthouse in some months, and it is hoped that this affair may be an interesting one. Everybody try and be present by 1:30, so that a full two and a half hours of singing may be had. Prof. O. L. Devaughn will be chairman.

Mr. W. A. Willis, Jr., and Mr. Aubrey Taylor spent the week end in Birmingham.

County Secures Terrace Machine

Court Will Employ 67 Men From Relief Rolls of County

At a call meeting December 15, 1934, the Commissioners Court agreed to work in cooperation with the Alabama Relief Adiministration and secure a power tractor terracing machine for terracing farm lands in Chilton county.

The Court is to employ 67 men from the relief rolls of Chilton county for a period of four months at wages of not less than 12½ cents per hour and spend not less than $1,000 per month in this way.

When the county has spent as much as the purchase price of the power tractor terracer machine in this way the Alabama Relief Administration will donate the machine to the county. The terracer machine will cost between $4,000 and $4,500.

The farmer will be charged the actual operating cost and depreciation expense when his land is terraced. This will amount to from $1.25 to $2.50 per acre for terracing land. The cost per acre depending upon the smoothness or roughness of the land.

This equipment will be operated on a per hour cost basis. On smooth land it will terrace 20 to 25 acres per day. On rough land it will terrace much less, therefore, the price per acre will vary.

The whole set up is in such a way that the man who has land terraced will pay the bill. Those farmers who do not have land terraced will not pay anything. The county simply gets equipment for the farmers and farmers pay for it as the service is rendered.—J. W. Fant, County Agent.

"LOVE THY NEIGHBOR" AT CLANTON BAPTIST CHURCH

Everybody is invited to attend. Remember the program will begin at 5:30 o'clock next Sunday evening.

GRAVES SAYS THE SCHOOLS TO RUN

Announcement Made By Next Governor When Returning from Washington

Governor-elect, Bibb Graves, returning from Washington last week, where he went in the interest of obtaining federal aid for Alabama Schools, gave out the very happy declaration that all schools in the state will continue to operate for the full term.

Mr. Graves was rather indefinite as to details, refusing to divulge the exact agreement, if any, which he reached with federal authorities. But his plain statement that the schools will continue, and that a way will be found to finance them, was happily acclaimed by the school patrons of Alabama as sufficient; likewise as a most worthy accomplishment of the Governor-elect.

From the best that can be observed of the negotations that have gone on between Alabama and the federal relief authorities, it appears certain that the latter will expect and demand that Alabama make some kind of a shift to repay whatever money may be advanced to help out the schools this year.

It is most likely that the Governor-elect had to make some kind of a pledge on behalf of Alabama in order to secure the necessary help. Doubtless the question will be up to the next legislature to provide a means whereby Alabama can repay the federal government for aid this year, and operate the state's common schools in the future without having to call upon the federal government.

This can be done, if the legislature will get right down to the job and not be thrown off the track by the great crossfire of special interests that will rise up in opposition to anything and everything designed to save the common schools of Alabama.

County Superintedent Little stated that his office has not received any advice from Montgomery as to the question of federal aid for the schools, but it was evident that he has high hopes for some good news right soon.

EXTRA FINE COLLARDS

Rev. E. A. Norris, of Verbena, gave The Union-Banner a Christmas present Monday, two extra fine collards.

It was raining when we went home for dinner, and Stewart Armstrong wore one of them for an unmbrella. It served the purpose well. Tuesday at dinner the collard was converted to the use for which it was intended. Thanks to Brother Norris.

WADE'S GROCERY STORE FIRST ANNIVERSARY SALE

Jim Wade, manager of the Wade Grocery and Meat Market, announces this week that his store is celebrating its first anniversary with a big special sale of groceries and extra items for the Christmas trade.

In conveying to the friends of the store the sentiments and apprciation of the management and all the employees of the store, Mr. Wade has voiced the following mesage:

"To you, our loyal friends and patrons, who have supported us the past year, and made possible for this concern our first Aniversary, we gratefully dedicate our efforts to give you such values and such quality in groceries and meats and foods as we believe you so richly deserve. We have grown this first year of our existence, but it has been a result of your support. We expect to keep growing, and it will be made possible only by your continued patronage.

"Upon this, the date of our first Anniversary, and at this Christmas Season, we renew to you our pledge to give the best at a reasonable price now and henceforth. Visit our big Anniversary Sale this week, is your invitation, and may this be a joyous Christmas for you is our wish."

STATE OPENS BIDS ON TWELVE ROAD JOBS

Following opening and tabulation Friday at the State Highway Department of 52 bids submitted on 12 road and bridge construction projects, one of them in Chilton County, announcement was made of the name of the low bidder on the job:

"All Lit Up" For Christmas Season

"Merry Christmas" Greets the Travelers Both Ways Through Clanton

When old Saint Nicholas reins his steeds to a halt in Clanton next Monday night, no doubt he will pause long enough to cast an appreciative eye over what will be a royal welcome for even an old veteran like himself.

For regardless from which direction he makes his entrance, he will find the Chilton County metropolis has prepared an appropriate greeting. At both entrances to the business section of the town along the Montgomery - Birmingham highway will blaze forth a "Merry Christmas" in myriad colors, and lining the street from the railroad to the courthouse will also beam hundreds of lights, reflecting a cheerfulness of which even Santa Claus must pause in tribute.

Sponsored by the Clanton Kiwanis Club, which has worked in harmony with the Alabama Power Company is again radiating Christmas cheer with a novel and beautiful lighting effect. Under the supervision of J. Mell Martin and Leonard Williams the "Merry Christmas" welcome signs, marking the entrance into Clanton's business section, and the hundreds of other lights which cast a glow of every color over the town were installed this week, and will continue to burn throughout the Yuletide season.

Spotted here and there over the residential sections are seen Christmas trees on the lawns and in a window in almost every home glows a light of welcome for old Saint Nicholas, and a spirit of cheerfulness and "good-will to all men."

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Mullins and little son of Birmingham were the week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. P. D. Wilson.

M. Lande and Son In Auto Accident

Irvin Is Still In Hospital In Montgomery Recovering From Injuries

Mr. Maurice Lande, accompanied by his son, Irvin, encountered a serious automobile accident last Sunday morning as they were on their way to Montgomery. The scene of the wreck was near Maxwell Field.

Mr. Lande States that one large truck, attempting to pass another, sideswiped his car, and almost completely demolished the body.

Irvin sustained painful injuries, several bruises about the face, and a large cut on the scalp. Mr. Lande was not hurt. The boy was rushed to a hospital in Montgomery, where he is still confined.

"We had a close call," said Mr. Lande, "and I am thankful the result was no worse than it was. I do not see how a fellow can come through such a wreck and get out alive. The impact of the heavy truck stripped the body off my car like a can opener, and rolled the metal up like old roffing that has been through a cyclone."

Irvin was lying in the back seat of the car when the wreck happened, and Mr. Lande thinks the cut on his head was caused by a piece of flying glass.

Easterling Home Damaged By Fire

Dave Says It Is Best To Answer Every Knock On Your Door

The home of Mr. Dave Easterling, on North Sixth Street, was slightly damaged by fire last Friday morning. When discovered the blaze had broken through the roof, and was really headed for a big time. Prompt action of the city fire fighters stopped it before much damage was done.

Mrs. Easterling and a friend were sitting by the fire in the living room when someone knocked on the door. She did not answer the first knock. When a second and more vigorous spell of knocking sounded, she opened the door. There stood a little boy who said calmly, "I just thought I would stop and tell you your house is burning," and fled hurriedly.

Dave says the missus has always been rather careless about answering a knock on the door, as there are so many peddlers going about; but since the occurrence of last Friday, he has added his own personal insistence that she never again fail to answer the door bell.

To make the situation more seriously funny, Dave added: "We have an old cat that has a habit of going up in the loft and making all kinds of strange sounds as if he were as big as a calf. Mrs. Easterling and her friend, as they sat by the fire last Friday morning, heard strange noises in the upper portion of the house, but they merely laughed it off and thought it was the cat practicing up on some new capers with which to keep us awake at night. But when the little boy appeared with his announcement at the front door, things began to happen in a hurry."

Dr. and Mrs. N. S. Johnson have returned from a few days vacation in New Orleans and Florida.

J. O. Middleton Re-Opens Offices

Former Clanton Attorney Returns To Suite In the G. C. Walker Building

Hon. J. O. Middleton has moved back to Clanton and has established offices in the Walker Building, on the highway.

For years Mr. Middleton practiced law in Clanton, after which he moved to Montgomery, where, for many years he was employed by the government is various offices, in a legal capacity.

Mr. Middleton has built for himself an enviable reputation in his profession in Alabama. He is said to be one of the best lawyers in the state, and a brilliant orator. He is a native of Chilton County, and a graduate of the School of Law at the University of Alabama.

He has held several responsible positions in the government's legal department at Montgomery, Birmingham and other Alabama cities.

We join with hundreds of other Chilton County people in extending a warm welcome to Col. Middleton. His return to our city is a distinct asset to the Clanton Bar.

SEND IN NEWS EARLY NEXT WEEK, PLEASE

Next Tuesday is Christmas, you know, but everybody will want to get their Union-Banner on Thursday morning. The Banner force wants to be off part of the day Tuesday; so it will make the sailing a bit easier if our correspondents will get their copy in as early as possible—Saturday or Monday morning. Remember there will be no rural delivery Tuesday, so letters cannot be sent on that day. If they don't reach us Monday, we cannot get them before Wednesday.

We urge our friends to please co-operate with us to this end, and we will try to repay you in some way some day.

COUNTY VOTE ON COTTON CONTROL

Here As Elsewhere Overwhelming Favor is Given Bankhead Law

As a result of last Friday's election, it was found that Chilton County voted 3,210 for, and 138 against continuing the Bankhead Cotton Act for the coming year. This is a little over 18 to 1.

Following is a tabulation of the returns:

	For	Agn'st
Beat 1—	32	3
Beat 2—1	161	22
Beat 2—2	81	12
Beat 3—	97	5
Beat 4—East	406	19
Beat 4—West	250	17
Beat 5—1	169	3
Beat 5—2	60	1
Beat 6—1	84
Beat 6—2	119	11
Beat 7—1	178
Beat 7—2	62
Beat 8—	224	3
Beat 9—	277	13
Beat 10—	224	4
Beat 11—	34	10
Beat 12—1	51	2
Beat 12—2	76	1
Beat 13—	141	4
Beat 14—	130	4
Beat 15—1	131	4
Beat 15—2	83
Beat 16—	57
Negro Training School	82
Total	3210	138

In regard to the Bankhead Act, and the election, Mr. J. W. Fant has the following to say:

"The Bankhead Cotton Control Act voted upon December 14 was approved by a 10 to 1 vote by the Southern farmers.

"There were 3,210 votes cast for the Act in Chilton County and 138 against it.

"This is gratifying approval of compulsory crop control. The cotton farmers have tried for many years to contral the production of cotton by individual voluntary methods and found it impossible to get results, but with a compulsory law to hold the fellow in line who has always spoiled the show, they can get results.

"Despie all the criticisms of crop control we know that it has helped Chilton County farmers.

"With a few revisions and amendments to the Bankhead Act, I am sure that the farmers will be even better satisfied next year than they are now."

S. Q. FOSHEE NOW WITH HILL GROCERY COMPANY

CLANTON METHODIST CHURCH

At a meeting of the Board of Stewards, Mr. Omar Reynolds was re-elected chairman and Mr. Otto Jones was elected secretary-treasurer of the board. The "Family Fellowship Night" to be held Friday of this week was a feature of the board's discussion. All members of the church are invited to enjoy this social occasion. The pastor, Dr. Middlebrooks, stated that it was his custom to have "Family Fellowship Night" at least once a quarter in the churches where he serves as pastor.

The attendance last Sunday was excellent, the morning attendance even better than the previous Sunday when the new pastor preached his first sermon. Christmas themes were discussed and fine Christmas music and singing were enjoyed.

Dr. Middlebrooks announces the theme for next Sunday morning to be: "Why Do We Need Christmas?" There will be no evening service due to the wedding to be at 8:00 o'clock. The young people will have their meeting at 6:15. All young people are invited to hear the fine program that the committee has arranged.

SEND GIFTS TO POOR CHILDREN

Committee Is Ready to Make Distribution To Homes On Christmas Day

The Christmas Cheer Committee of the Kiwanis Club of Clanton this week renews its appeal to all persons and community organizations to join in the movement instituted by Kiwanis to see that there is not a home in this vicinity that does no have a bit of Christmas cheer on next Tuesday morning.

Kiwanis does not expect to get a lot of glory for itself out of this undertaking. On the other hand, it is expected to be a real job of work for those who are engaged in it. But a good Christmas smile on the face of one poor underprivileged child Christmas morning will be enough reward to compensate for the labor done.

The Kiwanis Club Committee, composed of John Hollis, Mell Martin and Leonard Williams, have arranged to assemble gifts for the underprivileged children at Mr. Martin's place of business between now and Monday night. Those who wish to give something are urged to bring it not later than Monday, preferably Saturday or Sunday.

Those who are asked to help out by donations of fruits, toys, candy, nuts, etc., are reminded that those things will be distributed under direction of the committee, with all others who will kindly volunteer to help. And they will be given strictly and only to those children and families who are known to have no other means for providing anything for Christmas of their own.

rist oCh gakdwrgf bfkgattttAaO043

In a statement given out by the Kiwanis committee Monday, Mr. Hollis makes the following appeal to those who are able to give something to help out this program.

"To the many families of Clanton and Chilton County who will on Christmas morning look at the Christmas tree in your living room, with its fruits, toys, and Christmas presents piled around it: Have you ever thought what a joy it would be to the poor and unfortunate children to have a little of the things you have?

"Think back over your experiences of the past. Haven't you, at Christmas time, thought of some family that you wished had some of the things you had? Haven't you thought of how many could be made happy if each of the more fortunate would divide even a small portion of that they were so fortunate to have?

"Then let us ask you, if you have such thoughts, and you feel that you would like to be one to help make some little child in Chilton county feel that there is still a Santa Claus, will you not get in touch with one of the committee of the Kiwanis Club and make your contribution, or send it to Mell Martin's?

"The committee sincerely appeals to everyone who can to help make this a Christmas enjoyed by the many to whom, unless you help, Christmas will be just another day. Think what the day is, and for your thankfulness for it, won't you share with a boy or girl somewhere that would be so happy to find a stocking with fruit, nuts, candy, or maybe a toy in it Christmas morning? We urge you to give, and don't let Christmas come and go without being able to feel that you have done your part."

Governor Returns County's Notes

Money Given Here For Relief Will Not Have To Be Repaid

Judge L. H. Reynolds announces receipt of advice from Governor Miller, stating that federal relief moneys granted to the counties in the past will not have to be repaid by those counties.

In his advice to Judge Reynolds, Governor Miller stated the matter clearly in the following telegram:

"Congress passed a law providing that the States should not be required to repay funds advanced for relief, nor should the money be taken from its federal road moneys.

"Since this Act has been passed the Relief Adiminstration in Washington has ruled that the funds do not have to be repaid.

"I am therefore returning to you the notes executed by the officials of your county.—Yours truly, B. M. Miller, Governor."

In the receipt of relief money the county was required to sign notes to the State of Alabama, which notes would have been paid to the State, in the event the State should have been required to pay the federal government.

Now, since the State will not be required to pay, as is provided by the act of Congress granting relief funds to the states, therefore the state is able to relieve the counties of the obligations of the county's notes.

Judge Reynolds adds the notation that the papers which were release under the Governor's telegram now in his hands and on file wi Commissioners Court.

FATHERLESS CHILDREN HAVE NO SANTA CLAUS

We are not expecting any Christmas presents this time. Our daddy is dead and our mother is sick and confiend to her bed.

Our daddy met his fatal doom
At the courthouse in the back alley.
In nineteen hundred and twenty-eight,
At the great Hoover Rally.

If the widow and the fatherless have any friends
They are mighty hard to find.
But I guess it is because they are too busy studying how they maye make
New laws in order to create a crime.
But what does that matter?
Just so they can collect a fine.

Now friends, if you wish to send us any presents; anything will do.
Up to a hat or down to a shoe.

We believe God yet has a few people
And that according to the election of grace
But you had better get busy or you
Will never see His face.

Wishing you all a merry Christmas and lots of fun. If you wish to send us anything address it to Carl Traywick, in care of J. H. Jackson, Clanton, Ala., Route 1.—Carl Traywick, age 11 years; Elizabeth Traywick, age 9 years; Aubrey Traywick, age 7 years; Lee, Jr., age 6 years.

MINOOKA CLUB MEETS

The Minooka home demonstration club held its last meeting for 1934 at the home of Mrs. Roy Roberts, Dec. 10. The house was decorated in Christmas colors. After a short business meeting the president played santa claus to all club members from a Christmas tree which was loaded with gifts. Refreshments were served. Two visitors were present. The next meeting will be on January 24, 1935, at the home of Mrs. Henry Virgin.

IN MEMORY

Mrs. Elizabeth Glass, 88, passed away at the residence of her son, T. J. Glass, on September 8, 1934, wife of W. M. Glass, who died at the age of 87, on January 18, 1929.

She is the mother of 10 children, 8 living: Tobe, Clayton, Sam, of Jemison; Arthur, of Mount Dora, Fla.; Mrs. R. A. Barnett, Mrs. J. B. Northcutt, of Jemison; Mrs. A. F. Northcutt, of Robertsdale; Mrs. Lelia Gayle, of Birmingham; 52 grandchildren; 43 great grandchildren.

She was a member of the Baptist church of Mt. Zion and was loved by her many friends. Funeral services at Rocky Mt. church, Sunday at 4:00 p.m. with Rev. Davis conducting the funeral services. Interment was in Rocky Mt. cemetery with Spigener in charge. — A Granddaughter, Leila Northcutt.

BOX SUPPER TO BE AT MACEDONIA, BEAT 11

There will be a box supper, together with a cake contest for the prettiest girl and ugliest man, on Saturday night, December 22, beginning at 7 o'clock. The proceeds will be used for the benefit of the church. Everybody is invited to attend and help to make it a success.

There will also be a pounding for the preacher, Rev. E. L. Smith, at the same time. Everybody come prepared for that also.—Virgil G. Smith.

SINGING AT MT. PLEASANT

There will be a singing at Mt. Pleasant, two miles north of Union Grove church, on Sunday afternoon December 23, beginning at two o'clock. All singers are cordially invited to come and bring your song books. Mr. A. H. Glasscock will be in charge.

Mrs. E. T. Darby and son of Montgomery were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Jones last Thursday and Friday.

BOB JONES

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

In the second chapter of II Tim., Paul thus instructs Timothy, his son in the gospel, "And the things thou hast heard of me commit these to faithful men". He did not say to commit them to brilliant men or gifted men, but to faithful men. There is no substitute for fidelity. Men love a faithful dog and have kind feelings toward a faithful horse. God is not looking for great men. He is looking for faithful men.

The country is filled with people out of jobs, but my experience has been that executives usually keep the most faithful members and let the less faithful ones go. An intellegent executive hesitates a long time before "laying off" a man or woman upon whom he knows he can depend. I have in my organization two or three people who are not exceedingly brilliant, but who are dependable and as long as they keep their spirit and I I have a piece of bread I will divide with them. Most executives feel as I do about this sort of thing.

God loves faithful men. He says, "Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life." This does not mean that we are to be faithful as long as we live. Of course, this is understood. It literally means, "Be faithful enough to die and I will give you a crown of life." If we are faithful enough to die, God appreciates it enough to give us a crown of life.

Miss Margaret Kendrick will leave Friday for her home in Luverne, Ala.

PLEASANT HILL

Our pastor, Rev. W. E. Robinson, was with us Saturday night, Sunday and Sunday night. He delivered a wonderful message at each service. Our Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. are still doing fine, but we feel there is room for inprovement and we urge more fathers and mothers to bring their children and join Sunday school and let's make it worth while.

Last Sunday was our regular singing day. We had a large crowd and one of the best singings we have had in quite a while. Directors for the afternoon were as follows; P. M. Cleckler, Jessie Driver, Emmett Wilson, Mr. Parrish and S. J. Twilley.

Pianists for the afternoon were, Mrs. James Gillespie and Mrs. O. L. Martin. We were glad to have the many visitors with us, and especially the Oak Grove quartet which rendered a number after each director. We extend to them as well as others a cordial invitation to be with us any time they can.

We wish to announce that we will put on a short program and Christmas tree at Pleasant Hill church next Sunday night, and we are expecting santa claus to visit us. Don't forget the date, next Sunday night.

A merry Christmas and a happy new year to all. — Reporter.

Lesson for December 23

THE CHRISTIAN HOME

(Christmas Lesson)

LESSON TEXT—Luke 2:8-19; Ephesians 6:1-4.

GOLDEN TEXT—Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.—Luke 2:14.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The First Christmas.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus the Saviour Is Born.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Christmas and the Christian Home.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Is a Christian Home?

It is exceedingly difficult to follow the workings of the mind of the Lesson Committee when they selected these Scripture passages to be treated under the topic "The Christian Home." It is manifestly impossible to deal with these two passages as presenting a Christian home. It will be better, then, to center attention upon these passages in the light of their essential meaning, apart from the topic suggested.

I. The Birth of Jesus (Luke 2:8-19).

The prophet (Micah 5:2) foretold the Savior's birth about seven hundred years before this time.

1. His birth announced to the shepherds (vv. 8-14).

a. The time of (v. 8). It was while the shepherds were keeping watch over their flocks by night. The glorious gospel message was thus sounded forth to these humble men while busy with their common duties. Humble situation in life is no hindrance to the reception of the gospel message.

b. The first gospel message was preached by the angel of the Lord (v. 9). Angels have always had a vital ministry from God to men. Angels are, no doubt, interested in men. Since they are personal beings they know how to sympathize earnestly with fallen and sin-cursed men.

c. The nature of their message (vv. 10-14). It was good tidings of great joy. It was good tidings because the darkness of heathendom which had so long governed earth was beginning to vanish; the casting out of Satan, the prince of this world, was about to take place; liberty was soon to be proclaimed to those who were in bondage; the way of salvation was soon to be opened to all; the knowledge of God was no longer to be confined to the Jews, but offered to the whole world. Truly this was glorious news, so glorious that a multitude of the heavenly host accompanied this announcement with their song of praise. The Savior's birth manifested the glory of God, and wherever this good news is received and lived there is found good will among men. The sign which was to make real this announcement was the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes lying in a manger.

2. The shepherds investigating (vv. 15, 16). They did not stop to argue or raise questions, though these things were no doubt passing strange to them. They went immediately to Bethlehem where they found everything just as represented. These humble men had the privilege of first gazing upon the world's Savior, the very Lord of glory.

3. The shepherds witnessing (vv. 17-19). When they beheld the Babe they could not remain silent, therefore went back praising God. Those who really hear the gospel message and come to know the Savior personally cannot be silent. The one who hears good news must tell it to others.

II. The Mutual Relation of Parents and Children (Ephesians 6:1-4).

1. Responsibility of children (vv. 1-3).

a. They are to obey their parents (v. 1). The ground of this obedience is the fact that the parents stand in the place of God to them.

b. The child should honor the parents (v. 2). Obedience to parents is limited to the period of immaturity. When the children take their place in the establishment of new units in society they are no longer under obligation to obey their parents. "Honor" means to have in reverence. This obligation rests upon children during the lifetime of their parents. Prosperity and long life are the rewards of God to the children who discharge their duties to their parents.

2. The parents (v. 4). Doubtless the word "fathers" was intended to be inclusive of the mothers.

a. Provoke not your children to wrath. This doubtless means that in the exercise of paternal authority there should be the avoidance of irritation.

b. To bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. "Nurture" doubtless means to educate, and "admonition" means discipline. Parents are responsible, then, for the proper education and discipline of their children. Parental responsibility is a fundamental principle of life, and does not change from age to age.

Death and Personality

Every man who ponders long on worth of life as it finds expression in personality and who in addition has spiritual fellowship with Christ, will reach the conclusion that personality persists beyond the grave.

A Gospel to Live By

Take the Gospel, not as a mystic pass for eternity, but as a rational word to live by. Take it to your heart with gladness, for it brings good tidings.

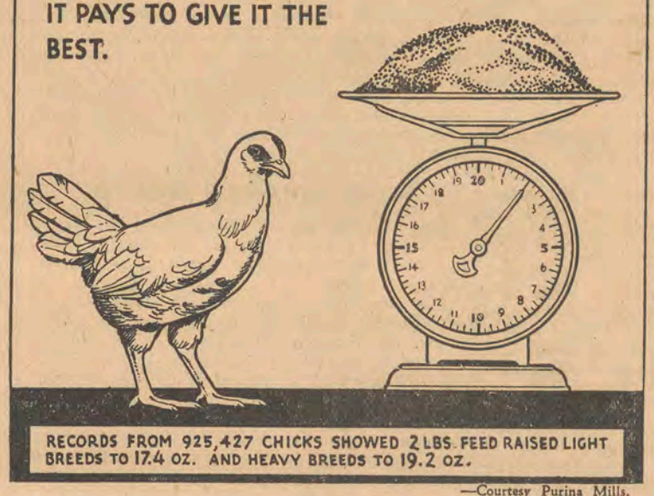
CHICK EATS BUT 2 LBS. FEED

A CHICK EATS SO LITTLE IT PAYS TO GIVE IT THE BEST.



RECORDS FROM 925,427 CHICKS SHOWED 2 LBS. FEED RAISED LIGHT BREEDS TO 17.4 OZ. AND HEAVY BREEDS TO 19.2 OZ.

—Courtesy Purina Mills.

At first thought it may seem like a "dream talking" to say that chicks weighing 17.4 ounces to 19.2 ounces apiece at 6 weeks can be grown at a feed cost of around 6 cents per chick. But when the statement is backed by ample proof from experimental farm tests as well as from 1933 feeding records on nearly a million chicks in all parts of the country, that high average chick production on a penny-a-week cost per bird looms up as a fact worthy of hearing.

This is the record of a chick starting ration developed through exhaustive feeding tests on the Purina Experimental Farm and confirmed last year by 925,427 chicks, to be exact, that were fed on this ration by American flock owners. The records, according to C. S. Johnson, Head of the Poultry Department of Purina Mills, show that on this feed 93% of the chicks lived, and at 6 weeks of age the light breeds averaged 17.4 ounces per chick while the heavy breeds ran 19.2 ounces.

A feed that can build so much chick at so little cost must be good, one would naturally infer—yet how can it be so good and cost so little?

"The answer is that it takes only two pounds of this feed to grow a chick to six weeks of age," Johnson says. "And because it is a good feed, thoroughly chick tested and proven, it builds birds with extra weight and better all 'round development. Those are the things the chick raiser wants—those are the things he must look for in selecting a starting feed for chicks.

"Since the amount of feed involved is so small, any variation between the cost of 2 pounds of this feed or 2 pounds of that feed is of little consequence," says Mr. Johnson. "But what is vitally important is the cost of those two pounds of feed as shown by chicks at the end of 6 weeks. Extra chicks alive and extra ounces per chick in weight at the end of six weeks usually overcomes any price difference quoted. And that very difference both in number and size of chicks raised can mean much extra income."

OPTOMETRISTS DECLARE WAR ON FAKERS

The Optometrists of Alabama have launced a vigorous campaign to protect the people and rid the state of all imposters or fakers who claim to be eye specialists, optometrists or opticians. They travel over the state pretending to treat the eyes medically and in many cases attempt to fake operations. They all claim to fit glasses. The glasses that are supplied, as found by investigation, are of inferior quality which is nothing more than eye poison and if worn will often cause serious trouble and in some cases blindness results.

Since the drive has been launched five arrests have been made and convictions obtained for the violations of the Alabama Optometry Laws. Other arrests are expected at once.

No optometrist sends out agents. Beware of being victimized. Trust your eyes only to an optometrist you know. Yau are urged to report all fakers to your city and county officers or to the Secretary of the Alabama Optometric Association or the Alabama Board of Optometry, 1929-First Avenue North, Birmingham, Ala.

Cruelty To Animals

—•—

Editor Union-Banner:

I wish you would print this letter on the subject of cruelty to animals.

Twenty years ago when I moved from my old home in Perry County to Plantersville I had provided warmth and shelter for all my stock. First, I managed to breed my cows up to full-blooded Red Polls so that I could crowd a lot of them into a large barn and they, having no horns, could not gore each other. My barn would shelter a lot of them, as well as my horses and mules. I also had shelter and warm beds for all my stock hogs. My meat hogs had good, warm-floored pens to fatten in as well as straw beds to sleep on. I also had a hen-house with two departments, one to roost in and the other for nests to lay eggs, with a good roof under which they could roost, and my hounds and bird dogs also had good warm houses in which to sleep. Every animal had plenty to eat.

My wife and the children and servants had a shelter under which to milk and feed the cows and no kind of animals were ever allowed to suffer. When I wanted to kill a beef, mutton or hog I put a small rifle ball into their brains so they would not suffer. Never did I hang up a goat nor sheep and then cut their throats and let them die a slow, lingering death. I also had a wire cage in one side of my hen-house in which to fatten opposums, and my wife rarely ever killed a turkey or chicken without first feeding them on a floored coop. Our boys had fireworks at Christmas eve and maybe during Christmas week, but none in November and early December, as boys do now.

Talk about good times—let's turn back the calendar.

While in Perry County I had about eighty or ninety head of Angora goats and sold them to a man in Birmingham for $1.50 per head. Yet I had one buck in the bunch worth $25.00, and a number of others that should have brought $10.00 per head. I shipped at one time to Leaksville, N. C., one bale of sheep wool weighing over 700 pounds packed in my cotton press. Had 6 pairs of fine wool blankets made for each of my five children as well as some for myself, as well as 6 nice wool coverlets and a lot of carpets and rugs. Talk about good times, let's turn back the calendar.—Yours truly, W. T. Pierson, Plantersville, Ala.

Miss Helen Diefenderfer, senior student at Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga., is at home to spend the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Diefenderfer.

JULIAN SMITH APPOINTED SECOND DEPUTY SHERIFF

Sheriff-elect, John Hardy, announced Tuesday that he has selected Mr. Julian Smith, of Collins Chapel for the position of second deputy sheriff in his administration which begins about the middle of January.

Mr. Hardy has already announced the selection of Mr. J. A. Nivens as chief deputy. He stated that another assistant will be named for the job of jailer, which he will announce in a few days.

Aids Talent

Betty Borden

Willie Morris

NOBODY knows any better than Lanny Ross what trials and tribulations the young unknown artist has to face in his fight for radio recognition. A few short years ago Lanny was an obscure college boy with only a golden voice and unrealized ambitions. And that past is still very vivid in his mind. For that reason, Lanny is extending a helping hand to other young people who have talent and the desire to work and succeed.

Every Wednesday night, the distinguished air tenor brings to his own half-hour Log Cabin program (on the NBC blue network) a deserving newcomer with distinctive microphone possibilities. The first lucky "unknown" was Betty Borden, an 18-year-old society girl of Los Angeles, who sings blues numbers. Willie Morris, soprano of Mexico, Mo., is another lucky girl whom Lanny introduced on the air recently. Maria Georgievskaya, a little Russian cabaret singer of New York City, also got a break with Lanny. And others are being auditioned for future Log Cabin broadcasts.

FUNERAL RITES FOR E. F. TAYLOR AT NEW HARMONY SATURDAY

Funeral services for E. F. Taylor, 73, who died last Saturday at his home on Clanton Route 4, were held Sunday at 11 o'clock from New Harmony. R. L. Huffman officiated. Spigener Funeral Home was in charge of the burial services in the churchyard cemetery.

Mr. Taylor was born and reared in Coosa County, but had been a resident of Chilton County for a great many years. At an early age he became a member of the Baptist faith, but in later life became a member of the Christian church.

Surviving him are: three sons, G. M. Taylor, Route 4; Winston Taylor, also of that community, and Henry Taylor, of Russellville; two daughters, Mrs. Lizzie Hilliard, of Clanton, and Mrs. T. D. Simms, of Pensacola, Fla. He is also survived by one sister, Mrs. Cleo Harris, Shelby; and one brother, Mose Taylor, of Columbiana.

The following friends served as pallbearers: Monroe Nelson, Marion Nelson, Sam Foshee, Charles Elland, Emmett Oates and Ester Jones.

ADDITION TO FRIENDSHIP CHURCH IS COMPLETED NOW

The four-room annex to the Friendship Baptist church, which has been under way for some time, has been almost completed and members of the church are staging a drive to increase the enrollment of the Sunday school at this church. With ample space to accommodate any number who may be within reach of the Friendship church, officers of the Sunday school have issued an invitation to everyone to attend next Sunday.

Sunday is the regular preaching day and an interesting and worthwhile sermon will be heard by those who attend. Sunday school will begin at 10 o'clock, and preaching at 11.

Mrs. Fenn Jones, Mrs. Hugh Simpson and Mrs. T. C. McSwain were in Montgomery Friday shopping.

Mr. Jack Hayes, who attended the Chevrolet Convention in Detroit Mich. last week, is spending several days in Chicago with friends. He will return the latter part of this week.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

Mark Twain once said that there was more discussion of the weather and less done about it than of any other public question. Right along with the weather, in this respect, we desire to place the subject of taxation. There is a lot of talk about taxation everywhere and little is done about it. Unfortunately when anything is done, it is generally the wrong thing. Newspapers and public addresses are full of tax statistics and warnings of what the American people are up against but they are apparently unable to bring the lesson home to the great majority of our people. Perhaps this is because the discussion of taxation is apt to be abstract and theoretical, and the fellow who is being hardest hit by high taxes doesn't realize that he is being injured.

But Percy H. Johnson, president of the Chemical Bank and Trust Company, of New York, in a radio address recently, gave some strikingly concrete examples of what high taxes mean to the American people. The address was reproduced in the November, 1934, issue of the Southern Banker. Mr. Johnson pointed out that we shall soon arrive at the doubtful dinstinction of being the most heavily taxed nation on earth, principally because our expenditures and taxes have risen so rapidly since 1913. Total public expenditures, exclusive of debt redemption, Mr. Johnson tells us, rose from $2,900,000,000 in 1913 to $13,500,000,000 in 1932, an increase of 363 per cent, and they are estimated at $17,000,000,000 for this year. At the same time our total public debt rose from $4,850,000,000 in 1913 to $36,822,000,000 in 1932. It is of course much higher today, but the increase in those 19 years was 659 per cent.

In order to bring this home to the average man Mr. Johnson says:

"Taxes today are taking over 21 per cent of our national income, as against only 12 per cent in 1922. In other words, directly or indirectly, the average American working a full five day week works all of Monday and part of Tuesday morning to pay his taxes. That is not the worst of it, because our governmental expenditures are at the rate of about 41 per cent of our national income. This means that within a year or two taxes will probably have been increased to the point where it will be Tuesday noon before your average American can begin to work for himself."

The largest single item in most budgets today is for debt service, Mr. Johnson points out, and instead of trying to reduce expenditures the various governmental units are seeking new methods of taxation for trying out on an already overburdened people. Continuing, Mr. Johnson says:

"Let me translate the meaning of those debts into common language. Formerly when a man burned the last mortgage on his home he felt a justifiable pride in owning it 'free and clear' and it meant something. Today there is not such a thing in this city (New York) because the state and city debts are in effect a contingent underlying first mortgage to the extent of 11 per cent on every piece of privately owned real estate."

Of course the average non-property owner may reply, "I should worry, I don't pay the taxes anyhow." That is where he makes a big mistake, and it is this inability to visualize the danger which makes tax reform so difficult. In the long run the taxes are paid by the consumer, and the little fellow is a greater consumer in proportion to his income than the big fellow. Processing taxes on wheat have raised the cost of a loaf of bread one cent, and everybody knows what the processing tax on hogs has done to the price of pork. When you buy gasoline thirty per cent of the price goes into taxes. If you pay rent you pay taxes on the property, and when you pay your electric light or gas bill, 13 per cent goes to pay the company's taxes. And so on down the line. You can't escape. The less you have the more it costs you in proportion to what you do possess.

The remedy lies in lessened public expenditures which can only be brought about by making the people tax conscious. Too many of them are heavily taxed without knowing it. Mr. Johnson ends his address with these sound words:

"Our forefathers believed in the theory that the people should support the government, and not the government support the people.

"No permanent recovery can be had or hoped for until the nation is placed upon a sound financial basis."

BUYING VOTES

Senator Jim Reed, distinguished Missouri Democrat, is not deceived by the great project funds being distributed throughout the country by the Democratic administration at Washington. Speaking in Detriot, he said:

"It is getting to be the regular thing for candidates to journey to Washington, and in company with prominent politicians to visit the various departments, secure pledges for the expenditure of millions of dollars in their district, or state, or city and to then tell the voters that his money was furnished by the administration, and that they are in duty bound to support the hand that feeds them. * * * What is this but the buying of votes? It is a bold and insolent attempt to corrupt the electorate."

What else can this game be than buying votes for the party in power. President Roosevelt can laugh it off, if he feels that way, but just the same the people are realizing now that great grants of public funds, the money of the people, is going out in immense sums to assure an administration victory, but the rank effort to thus carry the election is already proving a boomerang to the party in power.

The other day Ogden Mills had something to say about the New Deal and a wise crack that nobody wanted "to kill Santa Claus." This was his conclusion:

"Granted that no one ever shot Santa Claus, is there any reason why the entire population should take to believing in him? Isn't it about time to realize that reindeer are not bringing these billions from the clouds, but that they'll be paid for * * * in taxes or inflation?"—Harrisburg Telegraph.

DISCOURAGES BUSINESS

Unctrtainty about the currency has discouraged investment. The uncertainty is increased by the government's unbalanced budget and the refusal to regard the huge excess of expenditures as anything to worry about. Certainty of greatly increased taxation is, of course, another discouragement. The administration's fondness for experimentation at the expense of invested capital is still another.

Normally there is a huge flow of capital into house building, for example. It is a highly speculative business which depends for its existence on a generous use of credit. Government-created uncertainities have cut off all but a trickle of the money which flowed into this business through the purchase of mortgages and equities. The result is stagnation which will not be releived until the uncertainities are removed. The government has made a bad situation worse by encouraging the fixing of artificially high prices for materials and labor.—Chicago Tribune.

NO WAR WITH JAPAN

American diplomacy could score no greater victory than to bring about a real and satisfactory understanding between the United States and the Japanese governments concerning the several controversial points which now are engaging the attention of the representatives of the two nations.

There certainly are no questions on which the two countries are in disagreement which cannot be solved peaceably and with honor to both nations. There ought to be a way to settle the naval building question so as not to jeopardize the defense of either country, and certainly there are no commercial or economic questions dividing them which are worth going to war about.

There are two elements which could cause a misunderstanding between the two nations that might lead to war. Fortunately neither of them is really American. First is the element in our country which is sympathetic with communism and hence with Soviet Russia and would like nothing better than to see Uncle Sam and Japan involved in a war that would rebound to the advantage of Soviet Russia.

Secondly is the British element. For centuries it has been the British diplomatic method to accomplish its ends by playing off one nation against the other. In the present controversy in the Orient, Great Britain has a commercial stake twenty times as great as ours because a great part of her foreign trade is carried on with the Orient. She is therefore much more interested in Chinese open doors, etc., than we are. But John Bull is the foxiest diplomat on earth. If he can shuffle things around to the point where Uncle Sam will take the lead in opposing Japanese movements in Asia he will gladly do so, washing his hands of the whole matter but expecting to get the benefit in the end.

Here are two things Americans studying the Oriental question must always keep in mind: we do not want to be led into strained relations with Japan in order to help Russia in Siberia, and neither do we want to be put in the position of pulling John Bull's Oriental chestnuts out of the first. Let us permit Russia and Great Britain to do their own squabbling in the East. We will have all we can do to look after our own interests, and certainly our interests in China are not big enough to risk involvement in an Oriental war.

ARE YOU THRIFTY?

Thrift is saving a dime by shining your own shoes. It is sending a telegram only when somebody is dead. It is having the old dress dyed a different color and brightening it up with a girdle of a contrasting shade. It is buying shoes that were the style last year.

It is resisting the temptation to have somebody clean your motor car and doing it yourself. It is using only one match to light four candles. It is having the old felt cleaned and reblocked and getting your wife to take the spots off your neckties so that they will do until Christmas.

It is waiting for movies to reach the second run house. It is turning out all the electric lights except those that are being used. It is having one kind of soap for the family and another kind of soap for the guests. It is buying tooth paste by the gross and making one tooth bursh last a year. It is writing one letter to Aunt Susie and having the other members of the family add postcripts.

Thrift is, in short, watching the pennies so carefully that you are enabled to live within your income with a little to spare and thus can afford such luxuries as taxes, charities, miscellaneous contributions and investments that do not turn out so well.—Baltimore Sun.

Announcement at Washington that the five per cent pay cut of federal employers would be restored was made on October 30. The fact that the announcement came a few days before election had nothing to do with it, of course. The pay boost becomes effective on June 30, 1935, and the administration just wanted to prepare the bureau boys and girls several months in advance, so that the pay boosts wouldn't come as too great a shock.

It is said that relief from Washington was sent to all the states before the election excepting Maine. And Maine got hers before she voted in September.

A day of rejoicing—a day of joy and goodfellowship is ours again. We have passed another milestone on our life's journey. Again the anniversary of the birth of the Savior of all mankind has come. Glorious Christmas is with us again! What a day!
What a period of blessed memory! Not a day for rioting, but one for hushed and hallowed reverence for Him who gave His life that we may live forever a life bubbling over with joy in a haven where there is no sorrow nor pain, but where all is bliss. Make this Christmas a day befitting the occasion which it commemorates — a day of joy, yet a day in the living of which we as His children follow more closely in His own sacred footsteps. Let us all, for one day, at least pay due respect to our Lord—
He who gave to us our life, our being, our all.
I hope that each of my readers have enjoyed the year past, and hope for you—each of you
—many years of life, good health and prosperity. May your cup of happiness bubble over during the dawning year of 1935, and MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL OF YOU!

Don't Be Alarmed

A few days ago a good old lady stopped me on the street and asked: "What do you think about all these lights we see in the sky about every night, nowadays?" Right off I didn't know what the good madam was talking about and told her so. "Why," said she, "every night, about 7:00 o'clock lights begin flashing in the sky, and they always come from the south, or southeast. They look like big flash-lights. You watch for them tonight." The good sister seemed quite frightened about it, and had not the slightest idea what was causing it. A few minutes later a self-styled, 90-day-wonder preacher mentioned the lights to me, too, and gave me his idea of what it meant. He said: "I have been watching them for several nights. I believe they are signs in the skies, as written about in the Bible. You know the Bible says that strange signs and wonders will come to pass in the last days." The next night I kept a watch out for the lights, and saw them. The lady was right—they did look as if they came from giant flash-lights. I investigated and found what was causing them. The Signal Corps of the U. S. Army, at Maxwell Field, in Montgomery, has been making a series of anti-aircraft tests, and one of these tests is to send several airplanes up, and then, with giant searchlights, try to locate them while in the air. The rays from the lights are plainly visible here, although the search-lights are over 40 miles distant. In cloudy weather they are plainer than in fair weather. So, if you see the lights, too, don't be alarmed, and decide it is Gabriel out with his flash-light trying to round up a wandering angel, or that old Nick has lost one of his imps. It's just another army game that boys in khaki are trying to polish up on.

Hot Thieves!

Thieves must certainly be getting hot along now. Not long ago, during one of the coldest nights we have had this winter, the Birmingham police department had a call to come to an ice house to investigate a robbery. Imagine thieves robbing an ice house, with the mercury doing a back-sliding act like nobody's business. One might expect that to happen in July or August, or the robbery of a coal bin any time now. I think a fitting sentence for an ice thief at this time of the year would be a year and a day in nut factory and repair shop over at Tuscaloosa. That thief's noodle needs looking into.

Pigs—or Hogs?

You who read your Union-Banner right close last week more than likely noticed the paragraph about Mr. E. E. Plier's 561-pound "pig". Now, I had an idea Mr. Plier was starting something when he reported killing a "pig" which weighed 561 pounds. And sure enough, he did. No quicker than the paper got out so that people could read it, Mr. J. W. Hamilton, of Clanton Route 6, reported to us that he had killed a "hog" which weighed 780 pounds, going Mr. Plier over 100 pounds better. He said that he had taken five cans of lard—250 pounds,—from his kill. I've been in this racket several years, and I know just what is about to happen. Every time somebody comes in with something especially fine then someone else always comes in with something a little finer. And that's just what will happen in this case. Somebody is going to show up with a report of killing a "pig" or "hog" that weighed more than 780 pounds. They always make a contest out of it. Well, fellows, bring 'em in. Let's see who has the biggest chunk of meat all in one piece this year. And, by the way, I'd like to have this "pig and "hog" question settled. Just what is a "pig", when is he big enough to be called a "hog"?

More Bible Students

I have recived solutions to the Bible problem from two others, but they came in too late to be mentioned last week. One of them is from Phares Raybon, of Thorsby, and the other is from Myrtice Green, of Montgomery. That makes five, in all, who solved the problem. Two of them, Miss Farley and Phares Raybon were wrong on their first try, but came back to try again, and turned the trick. And, by the way, Dr. V. J. Gragg has informed me that he intends to take a hand in these problems from now on, that is, if he can stay out of his plane long enough. Any way, keep an eye peeled for another one soon. I owe Raymond Duffey, of Mountain Creek, a "real" problem, and he's going to get it, don't forget that. And while he's getting his, all the rest of you can "jine" in the fun.

On To Rose Bowl

Unless my plans miss fire at the last minute, when you read next week's paper I will be on my way to Pasadena, Calif., and the Rose Bowl, to see Alabama and Stanford play football on New Year's Day. At this writing, those who are sure to make the trip with me are my "missus" and 6-year-old baby daughter, together with Mrs. T. M. Taylor, of South Clanton, and Mr. Raymond Duffey, a rural letter carrier, of Mountain Creek. "Duff" is a dyed-in-the-wool football fan, a great believer in the Alabama team, and just filthy with money, so he will be aboard when my "lizzie" takes off Tuesday at noon. However, the old column has been provided for. I have prepared the copy, and all the fellows have to do is just set it up and print it. And when I get back I'll have plenty to tell about the trip, and it should be interesting. Too, I explants, rocks, etc., from the "golden West", pect to bring back a bunch of specimens of and expect to make something like 100 pictures of interesting sights along the way. That will all come along in January, as I will not be back until about 7th of the month. I'll be seein' y'u!—Man in the Moon.

RADICALISM GAINS RAPIDLY

A brief study of the returns of the November, 1934, election is enough to convince us of the rise of a real radical movement in the United States, one which bids fair to play an important part in the 1936 election if it can be consolidated under one set of leaders.

Starting with the known Sinclair vote in California as a minority vote, though he was the candidate for governor on the Democratic ticket, we find something like 2,300,000 votes cast for these "other parties" throughout the country.

Sinclair had nearly 800,000 votes, and his power is likely to increase if he does what he has promised to do—namely, "we will carry this fight into every state in the nation."

The average vote of the Socialist Party in New York is over 100,000, and the Socialist Labor pary and the Communists together cast half as many more. It is a fair guess that the minority parties had 250,000 voter in New York.

The progressive radicals, under the leadership of the La Follettes, had about 250,000 in Wisconsin, and they say this means the organization of a nation-wide third party. The Farmer-Labor party in Minnesota had 265,000 votes and won the state.

The most notable vote in the East is that of the Socialist party in Connecticut, where they had almost 39,000 votes for governor and won the large city of Bridgeport by a vote that was larger than that polled by either of the old parties. They also elected five members of the legislature.

They will hold the balance of power in the state senate. Measured by the vote of four years ago, the off-year, the Socialists and independent parties made considerable gains, in some cases over 100 per cent.

Senator La Follette says this great vote means the formation of a third party for 1936. Soloman, candidate for governor on the Socialist party ticket in New York, and who polled about 70,000 in New York City alone, made a statement two days before the election in which he said that all signs point to the formation of a third party, in which he said the Socialists would be willing to join forces under any fair conditions.

If the radicals decide to organize a real third party they can poll in 1936 some six million votes based upon the Cingressional returns and the radicalism of the candidates, plus the independent vote that was cast.

About 25 per cent of the delegates to the recent convention of the American Federation of Labor favor a third party, and they include Francis Gorman of the Textile Union. Lastly, there is the threat of Huey Long, who says that he "sure will run for President next time."

YOUR DOLLAR'S WORTH

Take a dollar out of your pocket, it's yours—you can do anything you like with it. But you can't buy a dollar's worth of commodities or services.

The reason for that is that about 25 per cent of yiur dollar has to go to government. If you use it to buy theater tickets, gasoline, cigarettes, electricity, clothing, or anything else, 25 per cent of the cost on the average will represent taxes.

The main reason we have allowed the tax problem to grow so grave in this country is that millions of people haven't realized that such a problem exists. These are the people who pay no taxes directly. Their incomes are below the level touched by the income tax. They rent homes. They do not own a business, but work for some one else. And the result is a belief that those who own businesses, having larger incomes, and possess property pay all the taxes.

There aren't enough large income people in the country to make a dent in meeting the cost of government. The great bulk of taxes is taken from the ordinary person—and it is taken indirectly. Instead of writing the tax collector a check, most of our citizens pay their taxes unknowingly during the course of daily living. Rent is higher than it would be, because the landlord must pay taxes. Salaries are smaller, because the employer is heavily taxed. Food is more costly because the farmer, the processor, the transporter and the final seller are all taxed. So it goes, through everything we need and use.

Don't be fooled. Everyone pays taxes—every one is in danger of being forced to pay more. A reduction in taxation through less tax spending is essential.—Richland County Farmer, Wahpeton, N. D.

WILL CARRY ON

No matter what its enemies may think about the future of the Republican party, Henry P. Fletcher, the party's national chairman, has not given up the fight. In a ringing statement given to the press the other night, Mr. Fletcher, who certainly carried on the recent campaign under handicaps, not the least of which was the flow of money from the public treasury just before the election, declared that the Republican party "is not dead and is not going to die." He predicted that the New Deal will yet topple because of its "socialistic" and "paternalistic" tendencies, and said that the Republican party was the only organization in the field to carry on the fight "for sound economic and political principles."

Pointing out that 13,000,000 Republican votes were cast in the November 6 election as against 15,500,000 for the Democrats, he declared that "the overwhelming Democratic majority in the Senate and House rests on a very narrow popular base," and he cited the fact that the Democratic vote this month was 7,000,000 shy of 1932 as against a Republican decline of only 3,000,000. Continuing, Mr. Fletcher said:

"There is no other organization which has in every voting precinct in the United States a body of loyal, active workers, ready to take the field and make the fight for sound economics and political principles. Nor can any amount of money place another such organization in the field.

"Any fight which has for its object the defeat of the policies and practices of this administration must start with the 13,000,000 Republican voters who went on record against the New Deal last Tuesday.

"In the teeth of the most cynical and shameless use of public money to influence votes, we polled 47 per cent of the total vote cast November 6, which was over 80 per cent of our Presidential vote of 1932.

"This record, not equaled in any previous off-year election by any party, was possible because our fight was based on principles. We will continue to fight for them."

While Mr. Fletcher's statement may seem somewhat bold and optimistic at this time, it will not be a strange development if he gets added help from time to time. It is even barely possible that developments in the next Congress may somewhat slightly change the political picture over what it is today.

THE RUNAWAYS

The New Deal is indorced by the voters of the United States—for the time being. The lavish outspread of government funds has covered the country like a mantle. Innumerable beneficiaries of this recklessness have returned the favor with their approving ballots. Warnings of the future day of settlement have been unheeded. The teachings of all economic history have gone for naught. It is a sorry chapter in the story of our national development and a far departure from the teachings of those who framed our cherished American political system.

The New Deal runs counter to common sense and to natural law. Its defects have been cumulatively exposed in the last few months. Its economic unsoundness has been repeatedly revealed and its social implications have been made increasingly evident. The Santa Claus "argument" has been worked overtime but its fallacies must eventually be realized in the shape of increased taxation—and this taxation will have to be borne by every class in every community. The New Deal orators and press have enlarged to the utmost of their rhetorical powers on the generous policies of the Alphabetical Authorities but they have remained silent as to the bills that we shall have to pay.

The reckoning day cannot be avoided, however long it shall be delayed. "Snfficient unto the day" has been the presuasive shobboleth of the ardent upholders of the national administration, but tomorrow and the next day and the years to come must eventually be faced. Mounting government indebtedness has been ignored by millions of beneficiaries of the White House largess, but they will some day be sorely conscious of it.—Providence Journal.

"Elder Blossom" Talks To His Sunday School

Having no appointment for the fifth Sunday, Elder Blossom goes to his own chuch to Sunday school and is asked to make a talk. It hab bin a long time sinc ah wuz here on Sundy school. You superintender axed me to gib youai a talk for de good ob de school.

I wuz struck wid de talk dat he made on de lesson, an de thing dat struck me most wuz dat he didn't no nothing bout de lesson. I feels shoah dat dat berry thing is whut is de mattah wid de Sunday schools ob dis county. Let me sa to youse superintenders dat you stop gowling bout nobody comin to Sunday school till you git interested enuf yoah sef ter study de lesson. Once when I wuz pastor in Coosa County da lected Brudder Wash King superintender, and I went wid him fur dinner and dat evenin on de front verander, I sa Brudder Wash I am glad da lected you supintender cause de school wuz on a drag an looked lak hit would die in spite ob evything and evybody.

He laffed deep down in his ches an sa, I am too. An I sa why, evy body tries to git outen de job an you sa you are glad. How is dat? An he sa you are glad. How is dat An he sa, well, I won't hab ter study de lesson none now.

Now to de teachers, you ought to be carcful to splain evy thing to de chilluns whut you teach and don't assume dat de chile nos. Effen you don't watch yoah sef you will make two statements, dat widout explanation, will git de chile's mind tangled up. And it will go home widout bein benefitted.

Let me tell you bout dis: Little Linda wuz told in her class dat Jesus wuz a Jew. An dat evenin a naber visited her home an she sot dere an lisened to him and her pappy talk. An da got to talkin bout Jesus' temptation an de naber say, an he wuz a man lak me, an her pappy say, yes, des lak us. Well, she got tangled up right den. Her teacher say he wuz a Jew an da say he wuz a man lak dem.

So on Sundy nite follerin she sa, pappy, wuz Jesus a Jew. An he sa yas honey. An you sa he wuz a man lak you? An he sa, shoah, he wuz a man des lak me. An ader while she sa, well, I didn't eber no dar wuz eny nigger Jews. So, teachers, watch clost an try to splain evything to de chile. Don't think it nos as much as you does.

Now to de sectery, why does you keep one end ob yoah pincel in yoah mouf when you is makin youh report. An why does you talk so fast dat it souns lak four or five mices cuttin on a cubbard doah?

I don't belebe enybody heah dis mawnin heard a word dat young lady sed. She talked so lo an so fas I thought she sholy wuz in a hurry to git home, an dat she wuz savin her bref fur de trip. An ah bet effen hur mammy kin git her started to washin de dishes in de mawnin, you could heah her singing Steam Boat Bill a quarter ob a mile, an understan evy word she sa.

Now to de chilun. How meny ob you wuz made to come to Sunday school dis mawnin? Hole up yoah hans. Des look at de hans. Now de nex questin is, is yoah daddy and mammy heah? I don't see but two hans up.

As I cum on dis mawnin, I overtuck brudder Webbfoot an his wife, Polly. Dey got in my Foad, an ah say is da got a purty good Sunday school now? An he sa, ah think so; an whin ah axt dem whar wuz da chilluns, da sed, das gone on. An when we got to dat road rite down dar he sa, stop an let us out. An I sa, aint yous gwine to Sunday school? An da sa, no we is gwine ovah to Polly's sisters to spind de day. An I sa an you sont de chilun on to Sunday school? An he sa no, da wint on oveh to da aint's early dis mawnin.

Now, all ob you whut reads dis paper, let me sa to you, efen you aint gwine to Sunday school, please don't go visitin in de mawnin ob de day, an keep others fum goin. Da tole me on de church yard dat her sister an family wuz regular comers to de Sunday school. Effen you must git a meal outen it, go in de evenin an sta till atter supper.

The Story of the Bible Told in Pictures

Micah Foretells the Birth of Christ.—Micah prophesied during the reigns of Jotham, Ahaz and Hezekiah, being a contemporary of Isaiah. Micah 4: 5 promised restoration of Zion, of its temple and of its people, with a gathering in of all nations under the sovereignty of the Messiah. The birth of Christ is foretold. "But thou, Bethlehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall He come forth unto Me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting. Therefore will He give them up, until the time that she which travaileth hath brought forth: then the remnant of His brethren shall return unto the children of Israel. And He shall stand and feed in the strength of the Lord, in the majesty of the name of the Lord His God; and they shall abide: for now shall He be great until the ends of the earth."—Micah 5: 2-4. This illustration is from Merian's story of the Bible in pictures, engraved in 1625.

The singing was fine Sunday afternoon although our crowd was somewhat small. We appreciate the help from Poplar Springs and Coopers. Next Sunday afternoon the society meets with Poplar Springs. Come on folks, lets go help them out.

B. Y. P. U. was well attended Sunday night. Our visitors were Alton Deloach, Junior Baker and Audie Brown. Everybody come next Sunday night and bring somebody with you and your Leading Light song books.

Listen, the W. M. S. ladies are going to put on a play next Sunday night at 6:00 o'clock. Following the play will be B. Y. P. U. and then following B. Y. P. U. the W. M. S. ladies will render their program. Everyone is invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wise visited Mr. and Mrs. Claud Downs near Verbena Sunday.

Mr. Marvin Mims from Coopers was in this community last Saturday.

Mr. Arnold Glenn had as his week end guest Mr. Arthur Mitchell.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mims from Montgomery were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Mims this past week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Reubin Devaughn spent Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davis.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Glenn spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Parrish.

Miss Alma Blalock spent the week end with Miss Margie Aldridge.

Mrs. Ethel (Deloach) Sandlin was the guest of Mrs. Ben Blalock and daughter, Laura, Monday.

Sunday school was good Sunday. There were several absent. Don't think that we don't miss you all, for we do. Try to be here next Sunday.

We had a real good prayer meeting Sunday night. After prayer meeting we had a B. Y. P. U. business meeting. Our officers for the next quarter are: Lonnie Cobb, president; Leo Cobb, vice president; Mrs. Madge Howard, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. B. L. Cobb, Bible quiz leader; V. Miller and Miss Mable Cobb, group captains; B. L. Cobb, choir leader; Mrs. J. W. Collum, organist; Miss Ruby Cobb, corresponding secretary.

Several from this place attended the funeral of Mr. Percy Watson at Providence Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Cobb, Mrs. Madge Howard and children attended the 11:00 o'clock preaching service at Jemison Sunday. They and Rev. Maurice Hodgens were the dinner guests of Mrs. Cobb's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Merchant, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Thornbro, (Miss Irene Dennis), are the proud parents of a fine baby girl. They have named the young lady Ruby Jenette.

Mrs. Alice Durbin of Jemison has been visiting her son, Mr. and Mrs. Euell Durbin.

Listen folks, our play comes off next Saturday night, Dec. 22, and will begin at 7 o'clock. The play will last two and one-fourth hours. At the close of the play the quilt will be given away. Admission 10c straight.

There was a little misunderstanding about the chances that we have been selling. They are just chances on the quilt and not tickets to the play. The chances are 5c each, and to get in to see the play will be 10c each.

The play is the "Small Town Romeo," a comedy in three acts. The scene takes place in the lobby of a hotel in a country town.

The cast of characters are: Joe Stanford, a breezy young playwright, Lonnie Cobb; Sly Perkins, the village constable, Alton Cobb; Bud Williams, the village mechanic, Ben Tom Haynes; Morton Kendall, the village miser, Leo Cobb; L. B. Lloyd, a mysterious guest, V. Miller; Betty Braxton, the young owner of the hotel, Mildred Cobb; Sarah Higgins, the spinster maid of all work, Mrs. J. W. Collum; Miss Gates, another mysterious guest, Mrs. Ruby Cobb; Jane Hastings, the village banker's daughter, Ollean Miller; Anna Aldrich, the village school teacher, Coquece Barnes.

Remember next Sunday afternoon is our regular singing afternoon. If nothing happens we are expecting visitors from a distance. Everybody come and bring what books you have, as shortage of books has been being one of our troubles.

We have the finest selection of Christmas Gifts for Men and Women we have ever offered. See them before you buy.—Upchurch Drug Company.

Listen folks, we are having a play out at Baker School Friday night, December 21, 1934. The name of this play is "Her Aunt Elvira," one of the best of the season. Admission is to be 10c and 15c. Come on folks and bring your money and see this play. You will never regret it. There are plenty of laughs throughout the play and you will be sure to become enterested at the first and stay interested to the last.

Don't fail to see this play. If you do, you will just miss half of your life. Come on, be a sport. You won't regret it. And listen, the cedar hope chest and other prizes which we have been selling chances on are to be given away also. So be sure and come, you might be the lucky one if you have a chance. Don't fail to see our play at 7:30 o'clock and there will be plenty of music to entertain you between acts.

Mrs. Omar Reynolds spent last Monday and Tuesday in Atlanta.

Miss Kittye Clyde Austin spent the week end in Selma with her parents.

FARMERS MEET WITH INDUSTRIAL LEADERS

Birmingham, Ala., Dec. 18 — Alabama's industrial and business leaders today got together with farmers of the state for a discussion of problems of mutual interest with a view to aiding the latter in finding markets.

From every section of the state leaders in various lines came for the one-day pow-wow and get-together that started with a tour of the industrial district.

The conference was arranged by Dr. L. N. Duncan, representing the extension division of Alabama Polytechnic Institute and Ashton B. Collins, manager of Associated Industries of Alabama.

The visitors were taken through the district on a special train that visited all of the principal industrial plants. This trip occupied the forenoon and this afternoon the group will get down to a discussion of problems.

The afternoon session will be devoted principally to a discussion of marketing problems and means of providing closer cooperation and relation between the agricultural and industrial interests of the state, to give a better understanding of the problems of each.

Visiting farmers were guests of the Associated Industries of Alabama.

Bankhead Happiest Man In Washington

Voices His Elation At Farmer's Mandate To Continue Cotton Control

Washington, Dec. 16.—By his own statement John H. Bankhead, senator from Alabama, today was one of the happiest men in Washington.

The farmer mandate for continuation of the act which bears his name probably meant more to the Alabamian than any other person, for on the revolutionary plan of compulsory control of cotton production he had apparently deliberately staked his political future.

Friends of the senator saw in the victory for the Bankhead act a reward for dogged tenacity.

When Bankhead whipped the veteran J. Thomas Heflin in 1930, he brought to Washington some definite ideas about the problems of facing the cotton farmers and what should be done about the whole perplexing situation.

As a country lawyer in Jasper, Ala., he had seen the failure of State attempts to curtail production and raise prices.

The senator introduced his first compulsory measure in 1931 during the Hoover administration. His plan then was to bar from interstate commerce any cotton produced above a designated quota to each farm.

When the AAA launched its voluntary acreage reduction program, Bankhead immediately pointed to the possible adverse effect of huge planting by non-cooperators and increased production by contract signers through intensive cultivation.

He then brought forth his measure to allot each farmer a quota of production on the basis of past crops and compel cooperation by a tax on quota surpluses.

The more conservative members of Congress and even the liberal Roosevelt-appointed leaders in the Agricultural Department were cool toward the legislation. Friends of the senator pointed out to him the political hazard of becoming identified with such a measure.

But Bankhead did not swerve. Representative Will Bankhead, his brother, joined up with him on the House side.

The farmers themselves were sounded on the law. They wanted it by a big majority too. Then the President approved the Bankhead bill. Congress enacted it with the provision that two-thirds of the cotton growers must vote for continuance in 1935 or it would be scrapped.

The test last Friday showed a 9 to 1 majority for retention. Bankhead's own State backed his judgment by a 23 to 1 vote.

HALF MILLION FOR SCHOOLS FOR CHRISTMAS PAYROLLS

Education finances which it is understood will total at least $500,000, will be formally released by Comptroller J. H. Hard, Jr., from the Special Educational trust fund and the Public School Fund in the state treasury today or tomorrow, to be distributed through the state department of education.

While some of he money will go to the University, Auburn, Alabama College, and Teachers College, and for other educational purposes, most of it will be disbursed for teachers' salaries. Distribution is expected to be made by Friday or Saturday, so that the teachers wil be paid on or before Christmas Day.

The Scotchman had fallen into the well, and while swimming around in it he shouted to his wife. She came running to him and said: "I'll call the servants from the field, and they will pull you out."

"What time is it?" he inquired.

"Eleven-thirty."

"Well, never mind," he said. "I'll swim around till dinner time."

CARD OF THANKS

NUMEROUS CLAIMS BEFUDDLE HOUSE SPEAKERSHIP RACE

Washington, Dec. 18.—Claims and counter-claims have muddeld the contest over the House Democratic floor leadership.

Representatives O'Conner, of New York, claimed he could count 125 of the 322 Democratic votes for himself. Representative Beiter, of New York, said he counted about 103 for Representative Mead, also of the state.

Representative Sabath, Illinois, besides counting definitely on 21 Illinois votes, said in a statement he expects to "receive the support of many of of the Southern members."

The Leading Southern candidates—Represenatives Bankhead, of Alabama, and Rankin, of Mississippi—named no figures, but expressed themselves as "satisfied" with the trend of things, as did Representative McCormack, of Massachusetts.

In Bankhead's behalf, the Alabama delegation addressed a letter to all members, asking their support and advancing his condidacy "entirely on the basis of his qualifications."

Thorsby Institute News

School will close on Thursday at 2:00 p.m. and open at 8:30 on January 2nd. Miss Klingelhoefer, Miss Ford, Mrs. Jenkins and Miss Jenkins plan to go to St. Petersburg, Fla., by car. Miss Klingelhoefer will visit friends there and the others hope to visit other places also. Miss McKee returns to her home in Lineville, Ala. Miss Leech and Miss Fairbanks expect to be in Thorsby a part of the vacation, at least, and in Birmingham some of the time.

The dormitory sale on Monday afternoon was quite successful. Candy and fancy things, as well as clothing, were sold. About seventeen dollars was realized.

The Christmas play which was presented on Saturday evening, December 15th, was very impressive. It was entitled "Inasmuch," and was based on the scripture: "Inasmuch as ye do it unto the least of these, ye do it unto me." The first scene represented the home of a family who had lost the true spirit of Christmas and thought only of the gifts they were to receive and gave to others merely to pay social obligations. An unexpected change of plans brought the entire family to a beautiful Christmas church service. They caught a new vision of the meaning of Christmas and of doing for others, and happiness came to them when an opportunity arose to do real service for the hungry and poor. The play was written by two of the Institute teachers, Miss Klingelhoefer and Miss Allen. Special music by the Girl's Glee Club, and a reading "The Other Wise Man," by Mary Louise Reinhardt added interest to the program.

Mr. Tom Flummer of Birmingham and Mr. D. J. Flummer made a trip to Florida this week.

Mrs. Hubert Reinhardt of the public school will entertain the pupils of her room at a Christmas party at her home Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Addison Barnes of Montgomery are being congratulated on the birth of a son last Saturday. His name is Nelson Eugene.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Moody of Birmingham are to be congratulated on the birth of a son on December 11. His name is Leonard Allan Moody.

Miss Eleanor Eastburn of Washington, D. C., is home for the Christmas holidays.

Mrs. G. F. Harper, Mrs. W. H. Reinhardt and Mr. Herbert Reinhardt spent last Thursday in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Collins and daughter, Earlene, spent last Saturday in Montgomery shopping.

Mr. John Pate visited in White Pond Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Turner Gamble moved to Clanton last week.

Mrs. J. H. Goddard had as her guest Thursday night Mrs. E. R. Oden of Berry, Alabama.

The Thorsby Eastern Star and Masons will have a social and supper on Thursday night, January 3rd, in the Masonic Hall. This is expected to be a real family social.

Mrs. Hattie M. Gerald made a trip to Birmingham last Saturday to see her new grandson, Leonard Allan Moody.

Mrs. E. W. Butler made a trip to Birmingham Friday and Saturday of last week.

We extend Chrstmas Greetings to all our Patrons and Friends.

CHESTNUT GROVE

We are having some fine weather for the time of year. A fine time to get plenty of wood for the holidays, which we should spend as a memorial of Christ's birthday.

Miss Betty Denson was a dinner guest of Miss Margaret Nabors Sunday.

Mr. Frank Cox, of Bibb county, spent the day Sunday with Mr. William Holcombe of this place.

Mr. G. G. Nabors was a guest at Mrs. Nannie C. Moore Sunday evening.

Mr. T. R. Teel was in town Saturday on business.

We are glad to say that we are having a good school here this year. Our teacher is doing some good work for us and we appreciate it.

We have a good subject for our Sunday school lesson next Sunday: "What is a Christian home?" The home that is Christian must be based on Christian principles, animated with Christian ideals, productive of Christian character, cherished in a Christian atmosphere and devoted to Christian service.

TACKY PARTY WILL BE AT COUNTY LINE SCHOOL

There will be a "Tacky Party" at County Line School Friday night, December 21, at 7:00 p.m. Prizes will be given the tackiest; prizes also given in several contests. About two and one-half hours of real fun. Everybody invited, and come dresed for the occasion. Admission 10c and 15c.

PITY THE POOR FARMER

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your dear old county paper for a few lines to say a word about the Bankhead Law. As I see it, although I am not a very good writer like our good friend Mr. Tracy, or others, neither can I see much farther than the end of my nose. But being a farmer on halves I have worked hard, followed old Beck for many a long hot day. I raised three bales of cotton which weighed five hundred a piece, and when I got my coupons I found I had been cut to two hundred and seventy-five pounds to my part. So there is none hundred and sixty-seven pounds to pay tax on.

When the government and landlord gets through with me I will only receive four cents for my part of the cotton crop. And what I am interested in most, can Mr. Bankhead or any other kind of a head figure out where a man can pay his honest debts under just such rotten laws as we have. Or is the cause of a lot of this in our farm board committees? If so, they should be thrown out of office and honest men put in their places, for we are living in a New Deal Day now. So we should not have a law or official that would take our money that we could buy the children some shoes and clothing, and take it for cotton tax.

So let us all be for Mr. Roosevelt and all that is good.—A Poor Farmer.

BUSINESS MEETING AT WALNUT CREEK CHURCH

All persons interested in the church at Walnut Creek are requested to attend a business meeting at the church on Thursday night of this week, at which time important matters will be discussed.—Cleveland Driver.

VAUGHAN QUARTET ON RADIO EACH THURSDAY EVENING

Mr. Marion W. Easterling has a communication from the Vaughan Music school, of Lawrenceburg, Tenn., announcing that the Vaughan Quartet may be heard each Thursday evening over Station WSM of Nashville, Tenn., They sing songs exclusively from the Vaughan publications, their appearances being at 5:15 p.m. The personnel of the quartet is: Palmer Wheeler, first tenor; G. K. Vaughan, second tenor; John Cook, baritone; Jim Waites, bass. James D. Walbert is accompanist.

This is one of the best quartets in the South, and the people of Chilton county who like good sacred songs will be glad to listen in on them each Thursday evening at 5:15.

Dr. and Mrs. S. J. Ezell were called to North Carolina last Monday on account of the illness of her mother, Mrs. Hix. Dr. Ezell returned the latter part of the week and was accompanied by his son, John, who attends school.

Mrs. W. A. Willis, Misses Margaret Kendrick, Sara Colley and Alice Brooks spent Saturday in Birmingham shopping.

Teachers Association Adopts Code of Ethics

Chilton County High School Teachers Association To Adopt The Following Code of Ethics

At the regular December meeting of the Chlton County Teachers Association Saturday, December 8, the question of ethical relations between teachers and all concerned was brought up. A rather lengthly discussion was made relatve to them after which it was unanimously agreed to adopt the following code of professional ethics and LIVE up to it:

Article I.—Relations With Pupils And to the Community.

Section 1. The school room is not a proper theater for religious, political, or personal propaganda. The teacher should exercise his full rights as a citizen, but he should avoid controversies which may tend to decrease his value as a teacher.

Section 2. The teacher should not permit his educational work to be used for partisan politics, personal gain, or selfish propaganda of any kind.

Section 3. In instructional, administrative and other relations with pupils, the teacher should be impartial, just and professional. The teacher should consider the different interests, aptitudes, abilities and social environments of pupils.

Section 5. The teacher should seek to establish friendly and intelligent cooperation between the home and the school.

Section 6. The teacher should not tutor pupils of his classes for pay.

Article II.—Relations to Profession

Section 1. Members of the teaching profession should dignify their calling in every way. The teacher should encourage the ablest to enter it, and discourage from entering those who are merely using the teaching profession as a stepping stone to some other vocation.

Section 2. The teacher should maintain his efficiency and teaching skill by study and by contact with local, state and national eductional organizations.

Section 3. A teacher's own life should show that education does ennoble.

Section 4. While not limiting his sevices by reason of small salary, the teacher should insist upon a salary scale suitable to his place in society.

Section 5. The teacher should not exploit his school or himself by personally inspired press notices or advertisements, or by other unprofessional means, and should avoid innuendo and criticism, particularly of successors and predecessors.

Section 6. The teacher should not apply for another position for the sole purpose of forcing an increase in salary in his present position. Correspondingly, school officials should not pursue a policy of refusing to give deserved salary increases to their employees until offers from other school systems have forced them to do so.

Section 7. The teacher should not act as an agent, or accept a commission, royalty or other reward, for books or supplies in the selection or purchse of which he can influence or excercise the right of decision; nor should he accept a commission or other compensation for helping another to secure a position.

Article III.—Relations To Members Of the Profession.

Section 1. A teacher should avoid unfavorable criticism of other teachers except such as is formally presented to a school official in the interests of the school. It is also unprofessional to fail to report to duly constituted authority any matters involving the best interests of the school.

Section 2. A teacher should not interfere between another teacher and a pupil in matters such as discipline or marking.

Section 3. There should be cooperation between administrators and the classroom teachers, founded upon sympathy for each other's point of view and recognition of the administrator's right to leadership and the teacher's right to self-expression. Both teachers and administrators should observe professional courtesy by transacting oficial business with the properly designated person next in rank.

Section 4. The teacher should not apply for a specific osition unless a vacancy exists. Unless the rules otherwise prescribe, he should apply for a teaching position to the chief executive. He should not knowingly underbid a rival in order to secure a position; neither should he knowingly underbid a salary schedule.

Section 5. Qualification should be the sole determining factor in appointment and promotion. School officials should encourage and carefully nurture the professional growth of worthy teachers by recommending promotion, either in their own school or in other schools. For school officials to fail to recommend a worthy teacher for another position because they do not desire to lose his services is unethical.

Section 6. Testimonials regarding a teacher should be frank, candid and confidential.

Section 7. A contract, once signed, should be faithfully adhered to until it is dissolved by mutual consent. In case of emergency, the thoughtful consideration which business sanction demands should be given by both parties to the contract.

Section 8. Due notification should be given by school officials and teachers in case a change in position is to be made.

Recommendation of Committee on Professional Ethics.

The committee on professional ethics recommends that the following steps be taken in order to make known, to interpret and to enforce this code of ethics.

1. In order that the code may be known to all teachers, particularly to those who are entering the profession, each institution for the training of teachers should give every student the opportunity of becoming familiar with its provisions. Other practcal means for making the code known are by publishing it in school magazines, and by discussing it at teachers' institutes and similar meetings.

This organization and other similar - mfw bgk 8923333faftmramtfffffwkwg organizations should be given the duty interpreting the code, of investigating reported violations of the code, and of securing the cooperation of all members of the profession in abiding by the code. Each teacher should regard as an obligation the necessity of reporting to this committee any cases of unprofessional conduct which may come under his observation. Before making a decision against the accused, the committee should give him an opportunity to be heard. When appropriate to do so, the findings of the committee on such cases should be published in the Alabama School Journal; to prevent identification, except when it is advisable, capital letters or other symbols may be used instead of names and places.

Signed,
Chilton County Teachers Assn.

REFUGE NEWS

As last Saturday and Sunday were our regular preaching days we had three wonderful messages delivered by our pastor, Rev. Lockhart.

Next Sunday we hope to have Sunday school at ten o'clock and Sunday night we will have a Christmas message by our pastor. We hope to have a large crowd at each service. We invite you to come, for you are always welcome at Refuge.

It seems that somehow we have grown careless with God's work. Let's remember that God has a higher power than any human being. Let us, as never before, make this a happy Christmas serving the Lord, for we never know today what tomorrow will bring about, for we have no promise for tomorrow.

Wishing for all a merry Christmas and a happy New Year.—Reporter, Mrs. J. S. Easterling.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Page returned Monday from a few days visit to relatives and friends in Tennessee. They were accompanied by Mr. Page's mother who will spend Christmas with them.

CHAS. COOPER EXPRESSES VIEWS ON HOSPITAL PLAN

Editor Union-Banner:

For some time past I have been reading articles from people concerning a co-operative hospital for Chilton county. So far no one has gone into the cost and the service that might be expected to come from it. One writer has intimated that a person could pay a certain price that would include partial hospital attention, and that a reduced price would be made on certain operations.

I do not approve of partial medical or hospital services. I am heartily in favor of a co-operative hospital service together wih some home attention.

Most of my life has been spent in building contracting, and at this time I have more jobs than I have had at any one time during the past ten years. My largest job is the post office job at Anniston.

Since I am accustomed to figuring I decided that I would do a little figuring on this proposed mutual hospital proposition, and I have come to the following conclusions, which I think can be taken as reasonably correct.

First, I figure that with $25,000.00 we can build a modern 50-room hospital, complete with steam heat, hot and cold water, all necessary furnishings, including X-ray machine and everything else that a modern hospital is supposed to have. This would be a one-story brick and wood structure, with operating room, reception hall, office and nurses quarters, in addition to the fifty rooms for patients. I also figure that there are at least five thousand families in Chilton county that ought to join a mutual co-operative hospital association. I estimate that at a cost of $2.50 per month per family, and $1.25 per month for bachelors, old maids, widows and widowers, will provide all the medical and hospital attention, including dental work, that we would have occasion to need, and would also provide a complete burial in the wind-up.

If five thousand will join, we can build and equip the hospital at a cost of five dollars. My five is now ready.

At the above estimate of $2.50 per month per family, all expenses can be paid and a surplus fund can be created to take care of epidemics or calamities that might befall the people of Chilton county.

If the people of Chilton county are interested in this proposition, will say that I am interested enough in it that I am willing to donate one hundred dollars to the surplus fund, in addition to the monthly fees and say the five-dollar building fund.

I figure that this proposition should be run without profit to anyone; that four directors should be elected to direct the afairs, one from each commissioner district, that these directors employ a manager, who in turn would employ doctors, nurses, secretary-treasurer, and all other empoyees. The directors should be farmers who possess business qualifications, men like Duncan Manning, Charlie Foshee, George Guy, W. S. Clark, and others of similar type.

If you people are interested, suppose we meet at Clanton some Saturday and talk it over.

CHAS. COOPER.

UNION-BANNER GOES BACK TO $1.50 ON JANUARY FIRST

During this Fall The Union-Banner has been advertised at the special price of $1 for one whole year, but on account of the high cost of labor, paper, ink, and everything that goes to make a newspaper, we are compelled to resume our old regular price of $1.50 per year. This will take effect on January 1st, and will strictly be adhered to. When we take in produce, stove wood, etc., it also will be figured so as to amount to $1.50.

However, as will be noted in our large adv., elsewhere in this issue, all through December the dollar rate will prevail where a full year is taken. We will advise all who wish to get The Banner for one dollar to look after this matter during this month, as it will be too late after 1934 is passed.

Mrs. J. P. Hayes Entertained Thursday Contract Club

Members of the Thursday contract club were entertained last week by Mrs. J. P. Hayes. Two tables were arranged in the spacious living room. High score prize was awarded Mrs. Grady Reynolds.

Bank Robbed At Sylacauga

Occupants Of Building Lie On Floor While Raiders Scoop Up Cash

Sylacauga, Ala., Dec. 17.—Two bandits, their faces striped with adhesive plaster as masks, this morning held up the City National Bank of Sylacauga, and obtained approximately $15,000, but in their haste got only about half of a pile of currency lying on the counter.

The bank had just opened for business when the pair entered the rear door, and sweeping the interior of the bank with a sub-machine gun and sawed-off shotgun, ordered everyone to lie face down on the floor.

Eleven Lie on Floor

Six customers joined five employees in stretching out on the floor, and as one of the pair menaced them with his weapon, the other hurridly snatched at the piles of bills lying on the counter.

The pair then backed out of the building, dropping currency as they went, fleeing in a waiting automobile. Persons on the street reported that two cars drove away from the bank about the time of the robbery, one heading toward Goodwater and the other in the direction of Birmingham.

Customer Cuts Loot

Entry of a customer was credited by officers as preventing the pair from obtaining between $25,000 and $30,000 in cash on the counter where it had been placed during a rush of merchants to make deposits from late Saturday sales.

The customer entered and shouted, "the bank is being robbed." One of the bandits then snatched at the piles of currency and bolted.

A posse immediately was formed and was believed to have been close on the trail of the daring pair.

MRS. LIZZIE FISHER

Mrs. Lizzie Fisher, age 73, died last Thursday at her home in the Sardis community. Burial was at Antioch Friday with Martin in charge. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. H. D. Durbin.

The deceased was the wife of Mr. Henry Fisher, who survives her.

SINGING AT POPLAR SPRINGS

Take notice, there will be singing at Poplar Springs church on Sunday at 2 o'clock sharp. The new books will be used. Be sure and be there and bring your song books. All singing societies are cordially invited. Come and bring only singing spirits with you. Special numbers will be rendered by Prof. W. M. Devaughn and others.—Chairman.

Mr. and Mrs. George Trotter, of Martin Dam, spent last Saturday with friends in Clanton.

East View News

Mrs. A. C. Nelson spent three days in Montgomeryl last week, where she had several X-rays made. She is now taking treatment from Dr. Fred Wilkerson of Montgomery. It is hoped she will soon be able to be up again.

The Christian Endeavor and Sunday school are going to have a Christmas tree Monday night. Everybody is invited to take part in the service. Anyone desiring to put presents on the tree please bring them early. Also a Christmas program will be arranged for the same night.

Just listen, folks! The Mt. Springs church is coming down next Tuesday night to present a real Christmas play. Be sure to be here, for the play will be very interesting.

Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Rushing were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Coggins.

Mr. and Mrs. Arque Baker and Miss Mattie Lou Clements visited the home of Rev. and Mrs. A. C. Nelson Thursday of last week.

Mrs. Jewell Huett of Thorsby is the guest of Mrs. Clara Rushing this week.

Mrs. Sallie Strength has returned home from Birmingham, where she has been visiting her daughter.

PERRY FUNERAL RITES CONDUCTED LAST SUNDAY

Services for Benjamin Franklin Perry, whose death occurred in a Selma hospital Saturday, were held at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon from the Plantersville Baptist Church, the Rev. S. A. Bentley officiating, assisted by the Rev. J. P. Peacock, Methodist minister. Interment was made in the Plantersville cemetery, Jud Breslin directing.

Pallbearers were H. H. Biscoe, J. E. Terry, L. D. Walker, R. R. Fuller, J. W. Letcher and J. W. Friday.—Selma Times-Journal.

Mr. Hoke S. Pipes, of Louisville, Ky., is spending a few days in Clanton visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Pipes.

JACKSON CHAPEL P.-T. A. WILL PRESENT "BOUND TO MARRY"

If you do not want to miss one of the best plays of the season, be sure to be present at Jackson Chapel school Saurday night, December 22. This play is one continuous laugh from start to finish. There are nine players, and the play lasts for two and one-half hours.

There will be some between-act features including the Lowery boys band from Siluria. There will be a small admission charge, which will go to help the school. Come and bring someone with you.

H. BRIGGS HODGENS.

NEW SALEM NEWS

The people of New Salem community are hereby invited to a special service which will be held at the church next Sunday at 11 o'clock. Sunday schol will be at 10:00. The pastor will be present with a special message. You are urged to come.

G. H. CARROLL, Pastor.

NEW SALEM SOCIAL CLUB

The New Salem Social Club held its regular meeting this month at the home of Mrs. Dochie Bean. An enjoyable time was had by the crowd attending.

A quilt top was given to the social club not very long ago by Miss Kit Thacker. This has recently been quilted and had chances sold on it. The person having the lucky number for this quilt was Mrs. German Bean, of Atlanta, Georgia.

Next time we are to meet at the home of Mrs. Hubert Smith. We invite each of you to attend our meetings on Thursday before the 3rd. Sunday of each month. We hope that you will come.

MR. RUFE HARRIS DIED; BURIED AT PROVIDENCE

Mr. Rufe Harris, age 75 years, died last Sunday at his home near Wadsworth. The body was carried to Providence in Coosa county by Martin and buried Monday. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. D. Hughes.

Mr. Harris is survived by one brother, J. V. Harris, of Clanton; two sisters, Mrs. Lizzie Glenn and Mrs. Susie Glenn, both of Coosa county.

There Is A SANTA CLAUS

"From Greenland's Icy Mountains to India's Coral Strand" as the poet has sung it, there sweeps at this season the spirit of a universal holiday. It is the Christmas-Time.

In every known tongue some little one is lisping those words which signify a mystic someone who showers material things that gladden the childish heart—Santa Claus.

Shall we, in our mature complacency, deny this benevolent personage, or shall we recognize in him the spirit of a great universal unselfishness which prompts us to look upon the world and our neighbor with a kindlier eye? In this spirit surely we can all join in saying "There is a Santa Claus."

Acquaintance begets friendship. Friendship leads to a sympathetic personal interest in the well-being of our friends. This year, in common with thirty-four gone by, has given us many new ecquaintances and has strengthened the ties which bind us to our older friends.

To all these and to our unknown friends of the future we extend season's greetings, and, in the words of Dickens' immortal character, Tiny Tim, we say,

"Merry Christmas God Bless us Every One"

FRIENDSHIP TO HAVE SUNDAY SCHOOL IN ENLARGED BLDG.

The Sunday school annexes to Friendship church have been sufficiently completed that Sunday school will be held in them next Sunday morning. The officers urge all the members of the school to attend next Sunday morning.

There will be preaching by the pastor Saturday night, Sunday and Sunday night, also Sunday afternoon there will be singing. The public is cordially invited to attend all these services.

REUBEN LOWE HAS JUST RETURNED FROM FLORIDA

Mr. Reubin Lowe, the merchant, of South Clanton, returned from Florida Tuesday, with a big truck load of oranges for his Christmas trade.

Elsewhere in this paper Mr. Lowe has an advertisement informing his friends and customers of the things he has provided for their Christmas needs.

"I want them especially to know of the oranges and firecrackers," said Mr. Lowe. "The oranges I have are all good and fresh, right from the trees in Florida. We left there with them Monday evening, and arrived at my store Tuesday. Plenty of firecrockers and all sorts of fireworks for the Christmas celebration too."

The grocery stores of Thorsby are being decorted for the holidays and their windows look very attractive.

MRS. MATTIE FREEMAN DIED

Mrs. Mattie Freeman, age 82 years, died on December 8th, after an illness of only a few days. She was laid to rest at Pleasant Grove cemetery by the side of her husband, Dave Wood Freeman, who died about 19 months ago.

The family wishes to thank the many friends for their attentions during the sickness and death of Mrs. Freeman, and for the many beautiful flowers that were placed on her grave.

The comforting words of Bro. Morris Hodgens were apreciated.

Mrs. Freeman leaves six children and about thirty grand children.

NEGRO MINSTREL AT VERBENA HIGH SCHOOL

There will be a negro minstrel at Verbena High School, Friday night, December 21, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. Admission will be 10 and 20 cents.

The fun will be put on by a large cast of characters. Music will be furnished by the orchestra. Everybody come.

CARD OF THANKS

Editor Union-Banner:

I want to use this means of expressing my appreciation to my friends that have helped us so much during my wife's illness. Wishing each and everyone a merry Christmas and a happy New Year. May God send His richest blessings on them.—Albert Edwards.

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

We are gald to greet our friends at Christmas time with the wish that all of you may be joyful and happy. We want you to know that we fully appreciate your friendship.

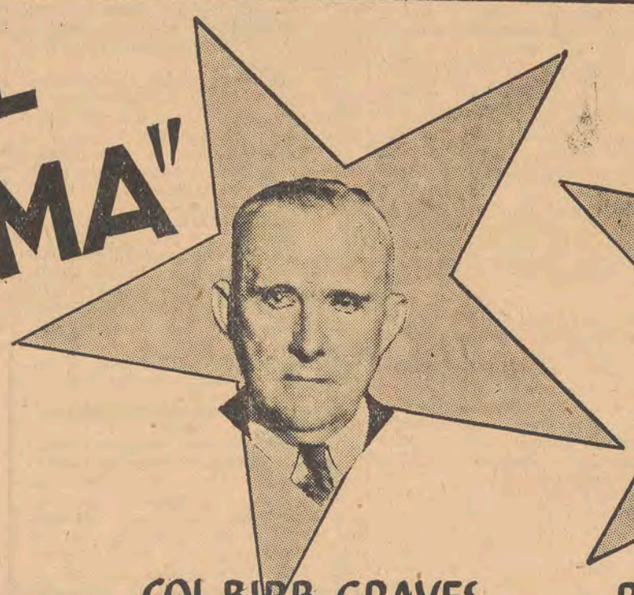
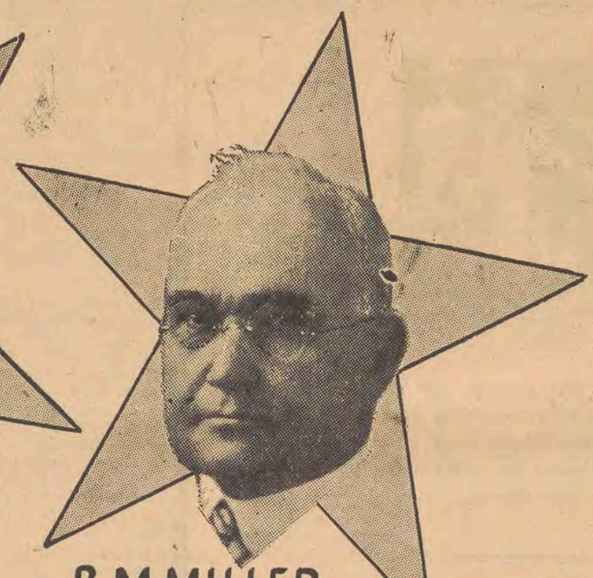
"STARS FELL ON ALABAMA"



COL. BIBB GRAVES
ALABAMA'S 41st and 43rd GOVERNOR



B. M. MILLER
ALABAMA'S 42nd GOVERNOR

Since Alabama was admitted to the Union in 1819 many legislative sessions have been held . . . but it remained for Gov. Graves' legislature to enact Alabama's first burial association law.

This law has saved the citizens of this state thousands and thousands of dollars that would have been spent in excessive and outrageous prices for funerals. The much needed relief from prohibitive funeral prices was made possible by this legislation.

Congratulations to Gov. Graves!

During the administration of Gov. Miller the legislature enacted a law which strengthened the burial associations and gave the policyholders and public more security and protection and further shielded and protected them from being forced to pay unfair and unjust prices for funerals. The citizens of Alabama were again saved thousands and thousands of dollars in funeral bills alone.

Congratulations to Gov. Miller!

During These Two Administrations More Than a Half Million Alabamians Applied for Burial Certificates

History teaches us that the laws governing life insurance companies were gradually strengthened by many different sessions of legislatures in all the states giving to the policyholders and public more and more protection. This took MANY years to accomplish.

It is the HOPE of the officials of this company that if Alabama life insurance executives and agents and burial association executives and agents and Gov. Graves' legislators feel that the burial association laws should be strengthened, thereby giving to the policyholders and public EVEN MORE protection and security, such laws will again be enacted. In this we pledge our whole-hearted support and unstinted assistance.

We Will Gladly Comply With and Operate Under Any Law When It Is Enacted

Our citizens must not be forced to return to a state of fear of being overcharged at death by outrageous, unjust and greedy prices for funerals.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

5,000 FARMERS ATTENDED FARM BUREAU CONVENTION

Fully 5,000 farmers, representing every state in the United States, attended the annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation in Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 10-11-12. It was a very enthusiastic meeting during which national leaders predicted a brighter future for cooperating farmers.

While attending the convention the farmers went on record favoring rural educational facilities equal to those in metropolitan areas; equitable tax system so that farmers will pay only their fair share; gold content of the dollar further reduced to raise commodity price level to normal, giving farmers "an honest dollar"; crop production control through AAA to assure equality between farm prices, industrial wages; expanded farm credit facilities; slashes in protective tariffs which have caused foreign barriers to spring up in retaliation, costing American farmers outlets for products of 50,000,000 acres; adequate farm storage facilities; and many others.

FERTILIZER PRICE FACTS ARE GIVEN

Retail prices of mixed fertilizers in the spring of 1935 will probably be about the same as in the spring of 1934, says the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

"Prices on potash and tankage will be lower, prices on cottonseed meal and superphosphate will be higher than a year earlier," says the report.

FARM TAX SITUATION SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

Auburn, Ala.—The farm tax situation has recently shown some improvement, says the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, which reports that "farm real estate taxes per acre levied in 1933 were about 14 per cent less than those levied in 1932."

The department estimates "a further decrease in taxes of 5 to 10 per cent in the 1934 levies, with the benefits to farmers from this decrease partially offset by substitute taxes."

ALABAMA GIRL IS NATIONAL WINNER

Auburn, Ala.—First prize in the informal party dress section of the dress revue contest held at the National 4-H Congress in Chicago, December 1-8, this year was won by Virginia Charlton of Autauga County who was presented a beautiful gold watch as a token of her achievements.

FARMERS ADVISED TO FEED ROUGHAGE

From one end of Alabama to the other, F. W. Burns, extension livestock specialist of Auburn, is telling farmers that "the high price of all grains is making it advisable to feed roughage liberally this winter in order to reduce the amount of grain needed in livestock diet."

Good home-grown roughage will supply the nutrients at a smaller cost than purchased grain, he says, and will also maintain a good milk flow as well as keep the animals in good condition.

ALABAMA GAME AND FISH NEWS

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 18.—What Game Commissioner I. T. Quinn believes to be the latest quail hatching date on record in this country was reported to him recently by District Game Warden I. E. Adams of Greenville.

Warden Adams said that Herman Williams, a Butler county hunter, found a quial nest containing 16 eggs in a cornfield in that county on November 17. Williams watched the nest closely and reported that every egg hatched the following week.

He discovered the nest when his dog started barking and thought he had come upon a snake until he investigated himself. Commissioner Quinn said, that so far as he knows, this is the latest date on record for quail eggs to hatch.

CENTURY MYTH EXPLODED

Montgomery.—It doesn't take a hundred years to grow a saw log, according to the investigations of the Alabama Commission of Forestry, based upon growth studies. For many decades one of the most common excuses offered for the failure to keep woodlands in timber production was the offhand statement that it required approximately a century to produce merchantable timber.

The Commission's researches have revealed that if the common species of timber trees are permitted to grow naturally without hindrance from frequent burnings or other forms of abuse the growth in quantity and quality is many times greater than that shown in the neglected and mismanaged stands which formed the basis of the century myth. As a matter of fact, in cared for woodlands paper pulpwood has been grown in seven years, while ten years can easily be made a practicable average. Posts, poles, small piling and railroad crossties can be produced in from eight to twenty years, and larger piling and saw logs in from eighteen to forty years. Naturally, the longer trees grow under proper conditions, the higher the quality of material they are likely to yield, and if one wishes to permit them to go uncut for from thirty to sixty years he can obtain very high class material indeed.

IN MEMORY

On Tuesday morning, December, 4, 1934, our loving friend, Mr. Monroe Gore, age 70 years, passed away. He was a kind loving husband, father and grandfather, and a good friend. He was a member of the Baptist church of Mineral Springs.

He had been in bad health about six years and had been in a serious condition 2 weeks prior to his death. Mr. Gore leaves a wife and five children; two sons, Martin and Lonnie Gore, and 3 daughters; Mrs. Daily Robinson, Mrs. Hixie Heflin and Mrs. Minnie Sammons, all of Mineral Springs; one brother, Mr. Henry Gore of Clanton; one sister, Mrs. Minor, and several grand children.

He was laid to rest in the Robinson cemetery at Mineral Springs with Spigener in charge, Rev. W. E. Robinson conducting the funeral services at 11 o'clock a.m. Wednesday.

Mrs. J. Renfro Mullins, Mrs. John D. Mullins, Mrs. Hugh Foshee were visitors in Montgomery Friday.

WHAT NEGROES ARE DOING

Farmers Conference

The Negro Farmers Conference held last Friday was one of the best, if not the best, ever held at the County Training School. The exhibits were many and varied. The stage in chapel was beautifully decorated with farm products on display. The vocational agricultural department was filled with exhibits of poultry, velvet beans, milk, butter, eggs and other farm products selected with the utmost care. The vocational home economics department had in it a large display of the farm woman's work, including cakes, canned fruits and vegetables, pickled peppers, sauce and meats. There were also quilts, spreads, dresses, scarfs, and other useful things made by the farm woman in her own home. Prizes were given for the best exhibits.

The speakers of the day were Mr. Ben Brown, president, Mr. Worthy Hughes, County Demonstration Agent, who gave a few high points on the rehabilitation project as it affects the negro. Mr. Callock of the Booker Washington School on wheels, who spoke at length on the agricultural adjustment act, and Elder Mitchell, who gave the farmers a bit of advice and encouraged them to go on.

The conference, for several good reasons, was not as largely attended as in previous years, nevertheless it was none the worse because of it. I wish to thank all persons who did their part in putting the program over.

These Things Ought Not To Be

The expression is very frequently forthcoming, "What's going to become of of young men?" It is a problem that we created ourselves. In practically every home where there are boys and girls, there is a great tendency to make things as convenient as possible for sister and forget brother. The very best room is set aside for sister and the old, dark, and dingy back room is left for brother. Likewise the best sheets, spreads and the like are given sister, while brother takes the leaving. It is suggested to him that he is filthy at early childhood and that becomes his complex. Sister gets shoes and dresses according to the season of the year, while brother gets only enough to pull through the winter.

When school opens in October sister starts the first day while brother stays at home harvesting the crop. He finally gets in school before Christmas. Anytime during the term when daddy doesn't feel like working (and that's quite often) he simply tells brother to lay his books aside for the day. When brother gets back to school he finds the lessons getting hard because he missed some days. The next day he persuades daddy to let him cut wood or drive to town for him. He gets by that hard assignment. At the end of the year he finds sister getting promoted and on his card he finds "Retained." The boy fails to realize that he or his parents are responsible for the situation. He places the blame on the poor teacher. Usually he says he is just as good as John Jones and if he can't go on to the next class he will "quituate," and he does. Then brother is thrown loose in the community and with that gang everybody dislikes, but practically everybody is responsible for. In this gang may be found all types of individuals, thieves, liars, murderers, gamblers, drunkards and the like.

Gentlemen, lets check up on ourselves, our homes, our community.

We are so busy trying to make sister the woman she should be that we forget our brother. Consequently fail to rear the type of companionship for our girls that we owe them. They are bound to seek associates and if they don't find good boys they are going to keep company with the bad ones.—Benj. Anderson, Prin.

The teachers of the Grammar School, who are leaving for their respective homes Friday to spend the holidays, are Miss Lucille Sherwood, Brundidge; Miss Ada Holcombe, Calera; Miss Anita Campbell, Selma.

Mrs. George McCain, who has been ill at Sylacauga, returned to her home Tuesday and is much improved.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Prince and son, Wilbur, attended the marriage of Mr. Happy Conway and Miss Launa Wood in Calera Sunday.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala., Dec. 18.—The body of William Crawford, University of Alabama student, who was killed in an aeroplane crash near Tuscaloosa, on December 13, was sent to his home in Hollyoak, Dela., for burial. Crawford, a junior in the College of Engineering, sustained fatal injuries when the plane he was piloting crashed from a height of 100 feet.

Miss Eleanar Millinger of East Cleveland, Ohio, has been awarded the $100 scholarship given annually by the Caroline Hunt Home Economics Club to the junior or senior woman in home economics excelling in scholarship.

Among the students recently elected to Phi Beta Kappa, national scholastic society, at University of Alabama, were William Davis, Prattville; William Blank, Tuscaloosa; Bernie Fell, Birmingham; Mrs. Lottie Gamble, Tuscaloosa; William Hawley, Bessemer; Christine Howell, Fairfax; William Lewis, Birmingham; Theresa Osburg, Tuscaloosa; Allen Ramey, Dothan; Ray Tipton, Anniston; Barbara Way, Tuscaloosa; Frances Williams and Ray Noojin, Huntsville.

The War Department has extended the tour of duty of Major Edgar H. Underwood, commandant of cadets at the University of Alabama. Major Underwood, who completes his four years here this June, will continue in his present capacity until July 1936.

Christmas holidays at the University begin December 20 at noon. Students will return to meet eight o'clock clases on Friday, January 4. The Crimson Tide and fans attending the Alabama-Stanford game will return early Saturday morning, January 5.

DO YOU GET UP NIGHTS?

ARE YOU OVER 40?

If so, nature is warning you of danger ahead. Get rid of your troubles early. Make this 25c test. Get Juniper oil, Buchu leaves, etc., in green tablets. Ask for BUKETS, the bladder laxative. Take 12 of them in four days; if not pleased go back and get your money. BUKETS work on the bladder similar to castor oil on the bowels. Flushes out excess acids and other impurities which cause getting up nights, frequent desire, scanty flow, burning, backache or leg pains. You are bound to fell better after this flushing and you get your regular sleep. Guaranteed by Alred Drug Co., and Upchurch Drug Co.

Mrs. J. Q. Wade, who is visiting friends and relatives in Georgia and Florida, will spend the Christmas holidays with her sister in Fort Myers, Florida.

SUNSHINE NEWS

Our Sunday school is going on nicely although some seem to have lost interest in church services. We hope and pray that they will soon come back, and that many others will join with us and enjoy the blessings of the Lord. We are having services every night this week. Bro. John H. Kesley, from north Georgia is bringing the messages.

We had a wonderful outpouring of the old time power right from Heaven here Sunday. Souls were saved and many were blessed. God has said in hins word, if we humble ourselves in his sight he will lift us up and we know that when we come humbly before God souls will be saved and set free from sin. We invite everybody to come to these services and enjoy the blessings of God and help us on in the work for the Lord. Services begin at 6:30 each evening.

Mr. Doub Huddleston spent Saturday in Tuskegee.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hollis and children of Mitchell Dam spent Saturday in Birmingham shopping.

Miss Sara Colley will leave Friday to spend Christmas holidays in Troy, Alabama.

Taxes Paid Ahead To Meet Teachers Payrolls Before Xmas

In response to a great number of requests by County Superintendents of Education and other educational authorities throughout the State for immediate advance payment of the Company's ad valorem taxes to help meet teachers' payrolls before Christmas, arrangements have been made to complete payment prior to the holidays. Total ad valorem taxes which are due on December 31, 1934, will amount to $1,300,000.

Of this $1,300,000, approximately $600,000 will go into specific State and County school funds. The Company's total taxes in this State for 1934 will be about $2,200,000, of which approximately $1,000,000 is for educational purposes.

Mr. Thomas W. Martin, president of the company has written Dr. A. F. Harman, State Superintendent of Education, Montgomery, Alabama, advising him of the company's action and its desire to aid in the present school emergency.

Light Symbolizes Christmas Spirit

As a star in the eastern sky announced the new birth, so light today, one of the richest gifts of our times seems a fitting symbol to express our sentiment of "Peace on Earth and Good Will Towards Men" at the Yuletide Season.

Throughout Alabama this December beautiful and novel outdoor home lighting decorations will be used extensively to extend a cheery greeting to the passerby and help create the true Christmas spirit.

Christmas home illumination is now available in a wide range of original designs and interesting effects. Its installation is comparatively simple and inexpensive. Our Lighting Division invites you to inquire for full particulars.

Greetings!

In this season of "Good Cheer", we extend to our customers and friends the old, yet ever new greeting:

"Merry Christmas and Happy New Year."

We appreciate to the fullest extent your use of our service and pledge to you renewed effort to make it more and more efficient.

May we all hold fast to the uplift of spirit which the Christmas tide brings and project it into our planning to make the coming year happier and more prosperous.

Thos. W. Martin,
President.

QUAIL NEST FOUND NOV. 17 BY BUTLER COUNTY HUNTER

What Game Commisioner I. T. Quinn believes to be the latest quail hatching date on record in this country was reported to him recently by District Game Warden I. E. Adams, of Greenville.

Warden Adams said that Herman Williams, a Butler County hunter, found a quail nest, containing 16 eggs in a cornfield in that county on Nov. 17. Williams watched the nest closely and reported that every egg was hatched the following week.

He discovered the nest when his dog started barking and thought he had come upon a snake until he investigated himself. Commissioner Quinn said that so far as he knows this is the latest date on record for quail eggs to hatch.

Some children were having a backyard dramatization of some history stories which they had read. "Queen Elizabeth" with trailing skirts and majestic air stumbled over "Sir Walter Raleigh's" coat, which covered a pan of water placed in the gravel path.

The knight rose solemnly from his knees and ended the play by saying, "Well, so long, Queen; I'll be seein' you."

To this the dignified Elizabeth replied, "O. K."

TWO MEN HELD IN HOLDUP

Birmingham, Ala., Dec. 18 — Two men were taken into custody here today for investgiation in connection with the hold-up of the City National Bank of Sylacauga in which approximately $11,000 was taken Monday.

Identity of the two men was not revealed, but Detectives H. C. Propst, who with Detective O. F. Osborne took the men into custody said one of them was under indictment charging attempted robbery and the other is from Dayton, Ohio.

The two officers left here early tonight for Sylacauga with the suspects for the bank employes and customers to attempt to identify them as the pair.

The two men who robbed the bank there yesterday, forced customers and bank employes to lie on the floor while they hurriedly snatched piles of currency from the counter.

One of the robbers wore a handkerchief about his face and the other had his face striped with adhesive tape to prevent identification.

A customer entering the bank and shouting "the bank is being robbed," caused the robbers to flee leaving more money on the counter than they took.

BOB HAS ANOTHER GRAND CHILD

MANY CHANGES TO BE MADE IN THE NEW YEAR

Mullins and E. L. Klinner Will Have New Locations Soon After First

The new year usually brings forth several changes in location of business houses in Clanton, and the advent of 1935 will be no exception to the rule. Already a number of important moves have been announced.

The E. L. Klinner Furniture Co., will open up on New Year's Day in the Upchurch Building directly across the highway from their present place. They announce a special sale this week in which they offer very attractive reductions in price of all furniture if taken before they have to move it to the new location.

The Upchurch Building has already been improved and renovated for occupancy by the new tenants.

Mr. J. Renfro Mullins, who owns the building which has been occupied by Klinner, states that he will move his business from the old Mullins Building to the Klinner place, just as soon as he can get the building equipped after Klinner moves out.

While definite details are not yet announced, it is understood that the old Mullins Building, which has been a landmark in Clanton for the past half a century will be torn down this spring, and a new modern structure erected in its place.

The old Mullins corner is considered among the best business property in Clanton, and furture plans concerning this place will be of much interest to the public. The old Mullins Building, it is understood is owned jointly by some of the children of the late W. I. Mullins.

Works Will Cost Thirty Billions

Huge Loan Needed If America Should Embark On All Plans Hinted

Washington.—If the government should embark on all the projects already proposed or mentioned by senators, representatives and various executive agencies it would spend more than $30,000,000,000.

A survey of projects either advocated outright or put forward as long-run possibilities showed Monday that they aggregate this sum, which would more than double the existing public debt.

Few expect, however, that the bulk of the proposals will even approach the point of passage in Congress, though in the case of some measures not smiled upon by the Democratic high command, the majority leaders anticipate some trouble in hewing to the line what will be chosen.

Chairman Buchanan (D., Tex.), of the House appropriations committee, has expressed the hope that regular appropriations for next fiscal year will be kept within the bounds of current appropriations—under $3,000,000,000—and emergency expenditures limited to the president's budget recommendations. Wth few exceptions, he indicates that he expects this hope to be borne out.

Senator Dickinson (R., Iowa), meanwhile, said that "if we continue this thing the way we are going we are bound to reach a state of collapse."

"Borrowing money to bridge over the distress period has its limitations," he said. "We're beyond a sane limit now, with prospects of these proposals adding to the burden."

Here are some things that have been advanced:

National Resources Board—$10,000,000 reserve fund for public works.

War Department—Says it has plans for ultimate development of inland waterways, under which, if approved, $8,000,000,000 could be spent.

Representative Patman (D., Tex.)—An estimated $2,200,000,000 to pay the soldier's bonus with treasury notes.

Representatives McLeod (R. Mich.)—$1,800,000,000 to pay off depositors in closed banks.

Senator Frazer (R., N. D.)—and Representative Lemke (R. N. D.)—A maximum of $3,000,000,000 for refinancing agricultural indebtedness, and $100,000,000 for farm marketing.

Senator Wagner (D., N. Y.)—and Senator Duffey (D. Wis.—$1,000,000,000 additional in home loan bonds.

MINUTES NOT CALLED FOR BY CHILTON CO. CHURCHES

Minutes for thirteen churches of the Chilton County Association are still at The Union-Banner office uncalled for. They are: Bethsalem, Center Hill, Jemison, Corinth, Macedonia No. 1, Mars Hill, Mulberry, New Cedron, New Salem, Sardis, Shiloh, Union Springs, and New Hope.

The clerks of these churches, or someone interested, will please call at an early date and get these minutes. The churches ought to have them, and they are doing no one any good here, besides they are in the way.

MOODY McGEE KILLED IN WRECK TUESDAY AFTERNOON

Moody Suttle McGee, age 38 years, was killed in an automobile accident Tuesday afternoon on the Maplesville Lawley Road. Mr. McGee and three other men were in the car when it turned over four miles west of Maplesville. The others were not hurt.

The deceased is survived by his father, J. P. McGee, mother, Mrs. Dolly McGee; his wife, Mrs. Pearl Ruth McGee; one child, Helen, age 9; four brothers, Preston, R. C., Lewis and Clint, all of Maplesville.

The body was brought to Clanton by Spigener and prepared for burial, which was at Lawley Thursday at 11 o'clock. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Ed Littlejohn.

Mr. McGee was an ex-soldier who was in the United States army during the world war.

CHESTER DOWNS DIED ON SUNDAY

Hit By Automobile In Cooper Last Saturday Night, December 22

Chester Downs, age 34 yeras, son of Mr. Gip Downs, of Poplar Springs community, was killed in an automobile accident at Coopers last Saturday night. After being hit by a passing automobile, the injured man was brought to the hospital in Clanton where he died Sunday about one o'clock without regaining consciousness.

Report of the accident says that Downs, with Joe Ben McDowell and Dee Patterson were together with their car parked on the side of the highway at Coopers. Downs was out on the ground by the side of the car. Another car going south struck the Downs car, also Mr. Downs, hurling his body several feet away. After hitting the man the other car turned over. No other persons involved in the accident were hurt.

Mr. Downs suffered a compound fracture of the left leg, a fractured skull and several cuts about the face.

Martin had charge of the burial at Poplar Springs Monday at two P. M. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. W. P. Lowery.

Pallbearers were Joe Ben McDowell, Lncoln Devaughn, Cliff Duke, D. Patterson, Leroy McDowell, Lee Cox.

Mr. Downs is survived by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Gip Downs, of Poplar Springs; two sisters, Miss Lena Downs and Mrs. W. E. Parrish; four brothers, J. R. Downs, of Birmingham, Whit Downs, of New Orleans, Arthur Downs, of Longview, Texas, and Roy Downs, of Clanton.

COUNTY SHARES SCHOOL AWARDS

Chilton county school will get $6,088.23 of the $755,528 released to the state department of education this week by Comptroller J. H. Hard, Jr., out of the public school fund and special educational trust fund.

Of the total allotment, 96 per cent is set aside for teachers' salaries and the remainder for incidental school expenses.

Christmas Story Told In Pageant

Pretty Yuletide Program Held At Baptist Church Last Sunday Night

The Christmas pageant entitled "Love Thy Neighbor," was presented by the Sunday school at the Clanton Baptist church last Sunday night at 5:30 o'clock. It was directed by Mrs. Arthur Willis and Mrs. L. C. Ross. Miss Della Latham had charge of the music. A special committee of ladies was assigned to the task of decorating the stage, and they did a very artistic job of it.

Miss Mary Ellis presided at the piano, and lovely violin music was rendered by Mrs. W. L. Longshore of Birmingham. These two features added immeasurably to the attractiveness and feeling of the program.

At the clost of the pageant, Superintendent L. C. Ross came forward and called for the special donations from the various classes and departments of the Sunday school, which money was to go to the Baptist Orphanage at Troy. Following is the amount given by each class: Mr. Shaw's class, $13.48; Mrs. Hyman's class, $17.50; Miss Latham's class, $14.00; Mrs. Ezell's class, $25.00; Mr. Harris's class, $11.50; Mrs. Mullins's class, $25.00; Intermediate Department, $15.00; Lower Department, $16.90; Officers of S. S., $6.00. A public collection was also taken, amounting to $2.96, making a grand total of $147.34. This entire amount, which was the total contribution of the school for Sunday, was sent to Dr. Colley at the orphans home at Troy.

Rother L. Harris and wife of Mobile, Elmer Harris and wife of Birmingham, Archie and wife from Gorgas, Miss Mabel Harris from Alabama College, spent the Christmas holidays with their father and mother in Clanton, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Harris.

Some Uutstanding Bits Of 1934 News

—xXx—

(Year-End Review)

Many of the outstanding events of 1934 revolved around persons and personalities.

Bruno Richard Hauptmann. His arrest in the Lindbergh case provided sensational surprise denouement in most famous kidnapping.

King Alexander, of Yugoslavia. Met death at assassin's hands.

Adolph Hitler. Consolidated his power in Germany through nazi blood purge.

John Dillinger. Crime career of America's "No. 1 badman" ended by government operatives.

Chancellor Dollfuss, of Austria. "Dollfuss has resigned," said a strange voice on the Austrian radio; it proved to be death speaking.

The Dionne quintuplets. Five babies were born obscurely and five survived and thrived.

The Moro Castle. Another chapter in the age-old tragedy of men who go down to the sea in ships.

Democratic off-year victory. Republican party went down under avalanche of votes.

San Francisco general strike. A million people learned what it meant to shift for themselves.

Samuel Insull. "Not guilty," said jury, which tried dethroned utility czar, home after chase half around the world.

Other outstanding events: Death of Albert, King of the Belgians; London-Melbourne air derby; death of President von Hindenburg of Germany; Dizzy, Daffy Deans provide thrills in world series; General Johnson steps down from NRA; revaluation of dollar; great American drought; June Robles and other kidnappings; airmail contracts cancelled; Paris riots; Stavisky scandal in France; John Jacob Astor wedding; Babe Ruth plays last year of baseball; Pecs miners threaten mass death for pay increase; Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt fights for custody of daughter; bandits get half millon in Brooklyn armored car hold-up.

Child Welfare Work Seeking Aid For the Needy In Chilton County

Many Have Already Responded By Lending Aid To Needy Neighbors. More Such Assistance Necessary

To the People of Chilton County:

We wish to take this opportunity to express our appreciation to the people of the county for their loyal support and hearty co-operation with us in the work which we are trying to do in the county. There is some confusion in the minds of many people as to the difference between our work and that being done by the Federal Relief Administration. In the beginning of the present Administration the Federal Government recognized the fact that many people were suffering because of widespread unemployment. To cope with this situation the Federal Emergency Relief Administration was set up. The Administration was set up to provide jobs for the jobless, not to relieve any county or community of it's responsibility of caring for it's own needy people. Due to the fact that many counties did not have Welfare Workers the Relief Administration undertook to provide direct relief as well as work. In October Chilton county employed two full time welfare workers, so the local Relief Administration is no longer allowed to provide for unemployed people.

In going over the county we have found many people who have been doing effective work for neighbors and friends, privately, as they did before the advent of public relief and welfare work in the county. We especially appreciate work of this kind, for no problem should be brought to a public agency such as ours until all private resources for aid have been exhausted.

Some time ago we visited the schools and asked for donations of used school books. The response which we received to this appeal was gratifying and we wish to thank every citizen in the county who contributed. However, notwithstanding the fact that many children were supplied with books and clothing in this way, the problem is not yet solved. There are many children in this county who do not have sufficient clothing to enable them to attend school regularily. If you have good clothing which you no longer need, will you not either give it to some child in your community who is in need or bring it to the welfare office?

We would like to thank the following merchants and interested citizens who have within the past week contributed directly to the welfare department for the purpose of providing clothing for school children:

Mr. J. H. Hayes, Jemison, 1 sweater; Mr. L. H. Bean, Jemison, 50c; Mr. H. V. Robinson, Jemison, 25c; A. C. Bratton, Jemison, 25c; Clanton Bus Station, Clanton, 25c; Armstrong Shoe Shop, Clanton, 1 pair shoes; Mazar's Store, Clanton, 1 sweater and 1 pair shoes; Dr. S. J. Ezell, Clanton, 1 sweater; Mullins and Moore, Clanton, 1 sweater; Mr. J. E. Teel, Clanton, 1 pair shoes.

Miss Callie Watts, Clanton, 1 sweater; Mr. T. L. Williams, Clanton, 50c; Mr. J. Q. Wade, Clanton, $1.00; Mr. Tom Kemp, Clanton, 1 sweater and 1 pair shoes; Mr. Rowland Taylor, Clanton, 1 doz. pair shoes; Mr. Dick Hayes, Clanton, 50c; Dr. J. E. Edgar, Clanton, 25c Mr. H. F. Brown, Maplesville, 1 sweater; Dr. H. M. Nix, Maplesville, clothing; Mr. Pope Payne, Maplesville, clothing; Shanks Drug Company, Maplesville, 50c; Mr. C. C. Cobern, Maplesville, 1 suit underwear; Mr. A. T. Dawson, Maplesville, 25c; Mr. J. B. Hardy, Maplesvlle, 50c; Shanks Merc. Co., Maplesville, 25c; Mr. O. D. Deloach, Clanton, clothing; Mr. Ben Margolis, Clanton, clothing; Mr. L. J. Stewart, Clanton, 50c;

Mr. M. Lande, Clanton, 1 suit underwear; Alred Drug Company, Clanton, 50c; Mr. V. J. Elmore, Clanton, 1 sweater; Clanton Laundry and Dry Cleaning Company, $1.00; Mr. J. B. Tiffin, Clanton, $1.00; Polk Brothers Motor Company, Clanton, $1.00; Calloway Garage, Clanton, 50c; Mr. W. J. Easterling, Clanton, 1 overall jumper; Mr. J. L. Ruffin, Clanton, 50c; Mr. W. A. Fiquette, Clanton, 50c; Sinclair Service Station, Clanton, 15c; E. L. Klinner Furniture Company, Clanton, 50c; Mrs. Mable Simms, Clanton, clothing; Upchurch Drug Company, Clanton, 50c; Taylor Dry Goods Company, Clanton, 3 sweaters; Mr. P. F. Mitchell Verbena, 25c; Clanton Motors, Clanton, $1.00

In conclusion we wish to say that we are always glad to be of service to Chilton County at any time and in any way we can.—Nolan Meroney, Child Welfare Superintendent; Icie Belle Cobern, Assistant.

ISABELLA SCHOOL HOUSE IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Fire destroyed the main building of Isabella school Wednesday night of last week around two o'clock. A banquet had been held earlier in the night, however, it is thought the blaze was caused by defective electric wiring.

The loss was about forty thousand dollars. It was less than half covered with insurance.

Efforts are beng made to provide temporary quarters for school to be carried on after the holidays.

NEW FINE TRAIN WILL RUN THROUGH CLANTON TO FLA.

Leaving Chicago at 6 p.m., Wednesday, January 2nd, a new De Luxe train, over the Pennsylvania Railroad, will head out for Florida by way of Louisville, Nashville, Birmingham, Clanton, Montgomery and Jacksonville. It will pass through Clanton, like a blue streak, on Thursday morning about 10:40. It goes from Birmingham to Montgomery in two hours and twenty minutes.

The southbound train will make Alabama points on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Sundays. The northbound train will pass through here on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. It will go north through Clanton on these days about 5:15 p.m., the first one to pass through here Saturday, January 5th.

MANY WRECKS IN THE PAST WEEK

Two Fatalities In County From Auto Accidents During Holiday Time

Chester Downs, son of Mr. Gip Downs, of Poplar Springs community, died in the hospital at Clanton last Sunday morning, as a result of injuries sustained Saturday night in an automobile collision on the highway at Coopers. Downs, driving a Ford, was hit by a Chevrolet.

A second wreck occurred Saturday night when a Plymouth driven by R. V. Macon, of Selma, connected with a Buick, on the Birmingham Highway at George Freeman's place above Jemison. No one was hurt. Spurgeon Calloway's wrecker brought the cars to Clanton.

Early Sunday morning Calloway's wrecker was called to a smash-up between a Ford and a Chevrolet on the Selma highway between Clanton and Maplesville. None were injured in this wreck.

Monday morning a big Lincoln sedan, occupied by a lone negro driver, took to the tall timber at Popwell cemetery south of Clanton, as it was going around the curve at about ninety miles an hour. The car was completely demolished as it rolled over into a ditch. The negro was not hurt.

Spurgeon Calloway, who towed the wreck into Clanton, expresses the belief that the negro had stolen the car which bears an Indiana 1934 tag. After the wreck the negro tried to sell the car for three dollars. He had a drum of gas in the car which he is said to have disposed of for twenty-five cents.

The negro started back to town with the wrecker. As they met the bus, he got aboard and went south. He said he was on his way to Gulfport, Miss.

Moody McGee was killed instantly on Chirstmas Day when a car left the road and turned over about four miles West of Maplesville. Three others with him in the car were uninjured.

Sylacauga Raid Claimed Solved

Two Young Men From That Town Arrested For The Alleged Hold-Up

Sylacauga, Ala., Dec. 22.—Two men living near here, were in custody tonight in connection with the holdup of the City National Bank last Monday in which approximately $11,000 was taken.

The men, booked by officers as Lawson Adair and Horace Saltzer, officers said staged the holdup with the aid of a borrowed car.

Sheriff George Burk, Jr., at Talladega said Adair had confessed and implicated Saltzer.

Other officers said Adair told them they had borrowed a car from a neighbors and drove direct to the bank and armed with a single barrel shotgun and a .45 calibre automatic pistol held up the institution.

After holding up the bank, officers said, Adair told them they returned the car to its owner.

The bank was held up last Monday as merchants were making their deposits from Saturday night sales. Officials of the bank estimated between $25,000 and $30,000 was on the counter when the two men entered and ordered everyone to lie on the floor.

BEN'S STORE WILL MOVE TO NEW LOCATION SOON

Mr. Ben Margolis announces the consummation of plans for moving his store to a new location in the building next to First National Bank. He states that he will begin at once to remodel the building for his new place, and expects to be ready to occupy it within the next week.

It is understood that a new grocery store will open for business in the next few weeks at the place now occupied by Ben's. Details of this proposition are not yet released for publication.

Mrs. Bessie Fiquett is spending the holidays with her parents in Evergreen, Alabama.

PLANS MADE FOR INAUGURATION OF BIBB GRAVES

Colorful Ceremony At State Capitol Planned For The New Governor

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 22.—Drums rolling, bands playing, thousands applauding, Col. Bibb Graves will ride up historic Dexter Avenue on January 14 to become Alabama's forty-third governor.

Four years ago he rode up the same avenue with his successor, Benjamin Meek Miller, in the automobile in a parade as simple as this one will be colorful.

With Governor Miller again at his side, Col. Graves will ride up Dexter avenue in a parade that will be headed by the University of Alabama's "Million Dollar Band," Auburn's band, military units from Maxwell Field, national guardsmen, ex-service men, and hundreds of civilians.

Swinging into the capitol grounds, Col. Graves will mount the inaugural platform on the capitol steps that will seat the high officials and notables of the state.

There'll be no slip when he takes the oath of office from Chief Justice John C. Anderson of the supreme court, for he took the same oath four years ago, and he will be the sixth governor that Chief Justice Anderson has sworn into offce since he became chief justice in 1914.

Committee officials declare that from 25,000 to 60,000 persons will be listening as Col. Graves delivers his inaugural address—an address close friends say will be one of the shortest in the history of inaugurations.

Between the hours of 7 p.m. and 8 p.m. a public reception will be held at the capitol with General Robert F. Ligon, clerk of the supreme court, in charge of arrangements.

Later during the evening, the inaugural ball will be held at Maxwell Field with Col. Graves leading the grand march. Other state officials and their wives will attend the ball, as well as county and city officials from over the state.

The inaugural ball, one of the most colorful socal events of the state capitol, will be held at Maxwell Field since the city hall—where other inaugural balls were staged—was burned in 1932.

Fifteen committees have been named to direct the work of the inauguration with Police Commissioner William P. Screws as vice chairman of all committees.

Col. Everett Jackson, now stationed at Tuscaloosa, has been asked again to lead the inaugural parade, and few successful parades have been held during recent years in this historic city that Col. Jackson did not lead.

When he takes office, Col. Graves will become the first man ever to serve more than four years as governor of Alabama.

Governor Makes Pledges

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 22—Support of rural electrification, a seven-months rural school term and the general advancement of agriculture was promised by Gov.-Elect Graves today to 100 farmers representing organized agriculture in Alabama.

Attending the meeting were the chairman of the legislative committee of every county farm bureau; the executive committee of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation; Dr. George H. Denny, president of the University of Alabama; Dr. A. F. Harman, state superintendent of education; Dr. L. N. Duncan, head of Auburn's Extension Service; and Dr. O. C. Carmichael president of Women's College at Montevallo.

"My first consideration will be rural development," Col. Graves said. "And that includes a seven months school term. A week ago it didn't look like we would have the seven-months term in the rural areas but now I can promise it to you."

The next governor declared he favored a broad rural electrification program for Alabama that would lighten the burdens of farmers.

"There is no reason why the farmer should not have the same electrical conveniences as the city man, and at the same price," he said.

The governor declared he would support the agriculture experiment station, "because it finds out new things for the farmer to use in raising his crops and producing his livestock," and would also support the extension service "because it carries these things to the farmer."

After his address, the meeting adopted a lengthy legislativeprogram to be sponsored before the 1935 legislative session that included a minimum term of seven months for rural schools with improved school facilities, adequate provision for operation of the higher institutions of learning, restoration of vocational education "to its original basis," and "increased support" by the state of experiment station and extension service at Auburn.

As to new revenue the meeting adopted this resolution:

The farmers of Alabama pledge their whole-hearted support to the governor and the legislature in working out a reasonable and fair revenue program for the operation of the necessary and vital functions of government including education."

The Alabama State Legislature

Convenes January 8th

You will want to know who is chosen Speaker of the House.

Will the Legislature give the people a chance to express themselves on the matter of prohibition?

Will they appropriate funds to pay our school teachers, and keep the schools going for a full term?

Will they reduce our Automobile License tag fee? Will they exempt small homes of taxes?

Never in the history of Alabama has there been so many questions of vital importance to be settled in one session of the Legislature.

A. E. A. AGREES UPON LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 15.—"The Legislative Committee of the Alabama Education Association made real progress toward writing a legislative program for the schools of Alabama at a meeting held Wednesday night," said H. G. Dowling, President, when interviewed in Montgomery Thursday.

Mr. Dowling explained that the full committee representing every type of educational service in the state attended the meeting. As previously announced, the legislative program to be sponsored by the Association will be concerned primarily with recovering the services provided for the school children of the state prior to the onset of the depression.

The major items agreed upon at the Wednesday night meeting and which constitute a partial legislative program are as follows:

1. An amendment of the Budget Act which would guarantee the school budget for any given year by specifying that any deficit incurred during that year would be deducted from the funds available for the ensuing year.

2. A provision for the parity of all governmental services in the allotment of funds for the payment of appropriations.

3. The payment of existing educational appropriations in full together with additional revenue which would replace losses due to decreased property valuations in an amount sufficient to insure the following educational services:

a. An 8-months school term for districts in which local conditions make such a term possible and a minimum term of 7 months for every school in the state.

b. The restoration of the rural school library fund to the amount formerly available.

c. The provision for state aid for approved pupil transportation.

d. In keeping with the plan of efficiency and economy as practiced in the handling of major state services provision for effective supervision of instruction in counties and cities.

4. The selection of the state board of education in such a way that only a minority of its members would be chosen within a given legislative quadrennnium; and

The appointment of the state superintendent of education by the state board of education.

In addition to adopting the above partial legislative program, Mr. Dowling explained that the committee reached two other important agreements at the Wednesday night meeting. It was decided that all proposed educational legislation should be reviewed by the committee, representative of the several school groups of the state, and that the members of the teaching profession would be advised of the reaction of the committee to such proposals. Further that the Research Committee of the Association would be instructed to examine into the School Code and to offer suggestions for its revision which would improve administration of the several types of educational services. To this end the members of the profession are requested to suggest to the committee in advance of the meeting of the legislation any desired legislative proposals.

CHARLIE, HAVE A "CRACKER"

Etowah, Tenn.—Firecrackers and cigarets are about the same size—in the darkness they fell about the same—but Charles Dunn, 28, knows now they don't smoke alike. En route home at night Dunn decided to light a cigaret. He had both cigarets and Christmas firecrackers in the same pocket. Dunn, keeping his eyes on the road, felt for a cigaret and struck a match without looking at what he pulled from his pocket. Tuesday he was recovering from a badly larcerated face. Two front teeth are missing and brows and hair are badly

E. M. PINKARD'S SON MARRIED IN GALVESTON

The following clipping taken from a Texas newspaper, and sent to the Banner by Dewey B. Henley, of Co. 897P-60T, Oakhurst, Texas, will be of interest to the many friends of the Pinkard family in Chilton County:

Galveston, Dec. 13.—Miss Jane Burton, daughter of Mr. Middleton Burton, and William Edward Pinkard were united in marriage here Wednesday night in one of the most brilliant social events of the current social season.

Rev. Edmund H. Gibson, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, officiated at the ceremony, which was held at "The Open Gates" on Broadway, the palatial home of the bride's grandparents, the late Mr. and Mrs. George Sealy. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bride was lovely in her mother's wedding gown. The gown was of real lace made in princess style with rose point yoke and flounces. She wore a veil of rosepoint which was made in Paris for her grandmother more than 60 years ago. The veil was arranged in a coronet and was held in place by a small spray of exquisite French chiffon orange blossons. The bride carried an old fashioned bouquet of cream colored roses fringed with lily of the valley.

Miss Caroline Burton, sister of the bride was maid of honor. She wore a gown of pale green chiffon velvet and carried Talisman roses. The flower girls were Eugenia Sealy and Laura Harris. They wore quaint organdie dresses with pale green sashes and carried old fashioned nosegays of tiny pink rosebuds which were edged with lace paper.

The bridal party came down the winding staircase to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March. Miller Spark's of Houston sang immediately before this. An aisle was made of white ribbon stretched between smilax covered standards and the service was held at the end of the gold and white drawing room against a profusion of ferns, palms, calla lilies and white roses.

Mr. Pinkard, the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Pinkard, formerly of Clanton, Ala., had as his best man Lieutenant Clayton Baxter Claasson of the United States air corps.

A reception followed the ceremony. Many out of town guests were here for the nuptials. The bride's mother wore a gown of soft cream satin trimmed with emerald clips.

In the center of the mahogany paneled dining room the bride's table was covered with antique lace and English silver tankards were filled with white roses. At one end of the decorated wedding cake and at the other end a rare Queen Anne silver service was used for coffee. Southern smilax decorated the room, which was flooded with a soft light from the glittering candelabra. Dainty confections were served on the latticed sun porch amid hanging ferns and clinging vines.

The bride and groom left on their wedding trip to Mexico. For traveling the bride wore a gray ensemble with a matching hat. They will return for the Christmas holidays, after which they will reside in Port Arthur.

TO PREACH AT THORSBY

Rev. L. E. Goodgame of Florida will preach at the Thorsby Baptist Church next Sunday at 11:00 o'clock. A cordial invitation is extended to all to hear him. He was reared in Chilton county and he will be glad to see any old friends and relatives.

TO EASTERN STAR MEMBERS

Clanton Chapter No. 271, Order Eastern Star will have a social hour Thursday night, December 27th, following the regular meeting.

All members, past and present, are invited to attend. A program will be rendered and refreshments served.

PLANTERSVILLE

The Rev. J. P. Peacock preached his first sermon for the conference year at the Methodist Church Sunday. He delivered an eloquent address from the parable, "The Rich Man and Lazarus."

Sunday night Mrs. W. E. Allen's chorus class gave several beautiful Christmas hymns and Mr. Peacock told the Chirstmas story.

Sunday afternoon at 4:30, announcement is made of a community Christmas service at the Methodist church. The program will be presented by Mrs. Fred Cunningham as leader, assisted by the young people of the church. A cordial invitation is extended to everybody.

The Rev. A. S. Bentley will preach today at both morning and evening services at the Baptist church. The Woman's Missionary Society of the Baptist Church will present Mr. Bentley with a silver tea service at the meeting of the society Monday afternoon.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist church at its last regular meeting elected officers for the ensuing year as follows; Mrs. Fred Cunningham, president, Mrs. W. J. Ponder, vice president, Mrs. J. A. Sample, corresponding secretary, Mrs. H. P. McKey, recording secretary, Mrs. H. H. Biscoe, treasurer, Mrs. D. K. Brasington, superintendent Bible study, Mrs. John Milstead, superintendent Christian social relations, Mrs. A. J. Finlayson, superintedent supplies, Mrs. J. P. Peacock, World Outlook agent.

This society presented the Rev. Peacock and family with a fine turkey for Christmas and the Methodist church remembered them with a liberal "pounding."

Mrs. Geneva Hogue passed through Plantersville Friday en route to Hopeville, Ga., where she will visit her children.—From Selma-Times Journal, (Sunday).

POPLAR SPRINGS

Last Saturday and Sunday were our regular preaching days. Rev. Lowery, as usual, delivered two good sermons.

Before this goes to press Christmas will have passed and people will be planning for the New Year. May each of us make resolutions to do better in the year 1935 than we have in 1934.

On next Sunday Rev. W. E. Robinson will preach here. We hope that the people will give him a good audience.

Don't forget Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. each Sunday and Sunday night.

Here's wishing everybody much success in the New Year.

Lesson for December 30

TESTS OF A CHRISTIAN

LESSON TEXT—I John 5:1-12.

GOLDEN TEXT—Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God: and every one that loveth him that begat loveth him also that is begotten of him.—I John 5:1.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How to Show We Love God.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Sons and Daughters of God.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Christ Helps Us to Live Our Best.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Victory Through Christ.

The purpose of John in this epistle is to furnish criteria by which one may know beyond a peradventure that he has eternal life (see I John 5:13). In working out his purpose he sets down a definite thesis in chapter 1, verses 1-4, which is that eternal life was manifested to credible witnesses—John and his fellow apostles—in the person of Jesus Christ. Through the incarnation Jesus Christ has become identified with the human race, so that those who believe in him are introduced to the Father, resulting in a vital fellowship. The saved one has fellowship with God, or fellowship in the life eternal. The entire epistle is devoted to the exhibition of tests by which one can surely know that he is saved. The lesson unit for today is the culmination of these tests.

I. Believes That Jesus Is the Christ (v. 1).

Such faith is the proof of regeneration. He not merely believes in the ethics of Jesus, but that the historic Jesus is the Messiah of God—the Son of God come in the flesh. The one lacking this belief is still unregenerate, regardless of his pretensions. Jesus Christ is the giver of eternal life. Yea, he is, in his very essential being, eternal life. Therefore, the one who believes in him as manifest in the flesh is born of God.

II. Loves the Children of God (v. 1).

The one born of God loves those who are born of God. The unfailing test of fellowship with God is that we love those who are born of God. Love for God shows itself in loving God's children.

III. Keeps God's Commandments (vv. 2, 3).

This is filial, not legal obedience. We do not keep God's commandments in order to become his children, but because we possess his nature. Obedience is the unfailing proof of the divine birth.

IV. Overcomes the World (vv. 4, 5).

Conflict for the regenerate man is absolutely certain. The world's ways are opposed to God. By the world is meant all that is opposed to God. It includes all the lusts of the flesh which respond to the enticements of the world. It also includes Satan, the prince of this world. The one who believes that Jesus is the son of God is born of God and has Jesus Christ living in him. Therefore, he overcomes the world, because he has in him one who is greater than Satan. Faith in Jesus Christ is the weapon by means of which victory is realized. The victorious life is the absolute test of being a Christian.

V. The Grounds of Christian Belief (vv. 6-12).

Since victory over the world is secured by faith in Jesus as the Son of God, it is important that we know the grounds upon which such belief is based. The believer's faith rests upon the threefold testimony of the Spirit, the water, and the blood.

1. The Spirit is the Holy Spirit, the third member of the Godhead. His supreme business is to make Christ real. This he does to the spirit of the believer (Rom. 8:16), and to the world, through the Word of God and through the lives and testimony of believers.

2. The water is his baptism at the Jordan. By baptism he formally entered upon his mediatorial work. It was here that the Spirit came upon him in the form of a dove, and that the Father acknowledged him as his Son.

3. The blood is that of the Cross in the act of baptism he dedicated himself to that task of making full a righteousness for man on the cross of Calvary. This is doubtless what is meant by "fulfilling all righteousness." His baptism and the crucifixion, with all that they signified, were proofs that Jesus was the very Son of God. The witness of the cross of Christ is still gripping and saving men.

Children as Teachers

The child in the cradle is God's child. How, then, shall we take this little child? We will take him as one who brings a new revelation to us. The children are the great teachers. They bring a new revelation of God and his love.

Call for Prayer

Emergencies call for intense prayer. When the man becomes the prayer nothing can resist its touch. Elijah on Carmel, bowed down on the ground with his face between his knees, that was the prayer—the man himself.

Life

What kind of a tale is life to you? Is life meaningful and worth living? That depends upon the one who lives it. The really good man finds life good.

GOING TO VAUGHAN'S MUSIC SCHOOL SOON

Prof. W. M. Devaughn reports that his son, Floy, and a student of his, Audie L. Brown, leave Saturday of this week for Lawrenceburg, Tenn., where they will spend six weeks studying music in James D. Vaughan's music school.

The two young men have been taking two lessons daily for the past month and a half under Prof. Devaughn at his home. They have made splendid progress in the work, and after they get six weeks of grilling in the Vaughan institution, no doubt they will come back well versed in the work they have chosen.

PATES CHAPEL

Yes sir, folks, Pates Chapel church is a good place to go on Sunday. The Sunday school is progressing fine for the weather, under the leadership of Bro. B. O. Blow as superintendent. A large crowd was present at which time a collection was taken up for the orphans home. The people of Pates Chapel Community believe in doing their part when it comes to lending a helping hand. Thanks to the leadership of our Pastor, Rev. M. Lockhart. Just watch the associational minutes for the coming year and you will see with your eyes what we have done during the year. But come to preaching the first Saturday night, Sunday, and Sunday school each Sunday, and B. Y. P. on Sunday night, and you will not only see but hear something that will be worth while.

On Sunday night a very interesting and effective program was given by the B. Y. P. U. members under the leadership of Miss Lucille Cleckler. Those taking an important part on the program were Miss Evie Caton, Miss Rosa Lee Price, Miss Eula Caton, Miss Lena Caton, and Miss Evie Watley. There was a large crowd out to the services Sunday night. Sunday night, December 30, we are expecting a large crowd out to B. Y. P. U.. We will have special music and are expecting Rev. Robinson to preach to us after the program. Visitors cordially invited to come and be with us.

B. LAWRENCE

Over Upchurch's — Clanton, Ala.

Mrs. Hubert Reinhardt gave her children of the second and third grades of the public school a Christmas party on Friday evening at her home. There was a Christmas tree and each pupil received a gift. Games were played and the party was much enjoyed.

Mrs. Harry Waters and son, Bobby, and Mr. D. J. Flummer left Friday for Birmingham to spend Christmas with relatives.

Mrs. Christine Christiensen will have as her guest for Christmas, her son, Mr. Arnie Christiensen and family.

THORSBY SECTION

(Mrs. S. E. Norton, Manager)

Regular services for the Congregational church on the fifth Sunday morning, December 30, at 11 o'clock. Sunday school at usual hour, 9:45. Christian Endeavor at 6:30 p.m.

There will be no prayer meeting on Wednesday evening, December 26.

Boy Scouts will meet on Thursday morning at 7 o'clock at the hardware store.

On the afternoon of the fifth Sunday the Congregational Sunday school will have a service at the poor farm at 3 o'clock.

The Christmas party given by the "Busy Bees" Sunday school class of the Congregational church, whose teacher is Miss Ruth Cosby, to the children of the primary department and others, was held Thursday afternoon at the primary room at the church. This was a very pleasing affair with a Christmas tree and gifts for all and a Santa Claus. As Miss Cosby was obliged to go home that afternoon, Mrs. Stanley took her place and entertained the children. Light refreshments were served and the thirty or more children all went home happy, with hands full.

Richard Petersen and Fred Blankenship of Miss Lois Primm's Sunday school class have also had the Christmas spirit of helpfulness and have cut and split ten loads of wood for Mrs. Deerhovdt, from her wood lot. When the wood was in readiness Bill and John Collins offered to haul it to the house for them with their oxen. So, on account of the kindness of these four young men, Mrs. Deerhovdt has wood at hand for the winter. Perhaps there are other young people who possibly heard the beautiful play given last Saturday night at the Institute auditorium entitled "Inasmuch," that might like to lend a helping hand "in His name."

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

This is being dictated in Ireland. It is Thanksgiving Day in America. It is the first Thanksgiving the writer has ever spent away from his native land. However, in his heart he is rendering Thanksgiving to God for his own country. I am wondering if the average American realizes how much he has for which to praise God. The average American lives more comfortably than any other man in the world. The colored people on the farms in the South are more comfortable than the peasant class in any European country. America can feed and clothe the world. Personally, the writer does not believe in destroying cotton, burning grain and killing hogs in order to reduce the supply. There are millions of people in the world who go to bed hungry every night. What a pity man does no know how to properly distribute what he is able to produce and thus satisfy the appetites of hungry women and children! If America were only willing to do what Jesus said, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you," what a country we would have! It is sad when we think that no nation in all the history of the world, as far as we know, ever has done what Jesus said do. That explains the misery and distress of the whole wide world.

Someone asked Queen Victoria, "What is the source of England's greatness?" The Queen replied, "It is the Bible." It is the opinion of the writer that in spite of the sins which kings and royalty have committed in the past this nation has a reverence for the word of God that possibly cannot be found anywhere else in the world. Of course, here is modernism here and an effort is being made to undermine the faith of the people in the authority of the Bible, but as the writer has said before, England has written the name of God and quotations from scripture on practically all of her institutions. America had a religious beginning. England did not. What America and the whole world need now is a revival of the old time religion similar to the old time revivals under Luther, Calvin, Knox, or the Wesleys. A great revival in England and America would solve the problems of these two great countries.

During this Fall The Union-Banner has been advertised at the special price of $1 for one whole year, but on account of the high cost of labor, paper, ink, and everything that goes to make a newspaper, we are compelled to resume our old regular price of $1.50 per year. This will take effect on January 1st, and will strictly be adhered to. When we take in produce, stove wood, etc., it also will be figured so as to amount to $1.50.

However, as will be noted in our large adv., elsewhere in this issue, all through December the dollar rate will prevail where a full year is taken. We will advise all who wish to get The Banner for one dollar to look after this matter during this month, as it will be too late after 1934 is passed.

The Story of the Bible Told in Pictures

Christ Born and Laid in a Manger.—Shortly before the birth of Jesus, Caesar Augustus decreed that every one should be taxed, and in accordance with the custom of that time, Joseph, the husband of Mary, went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judea, unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem, because that was the city of his fathers. Mary accompanied Joseph, and while they were in Bethlehem, Jesus was born. "And she brought forth her first born son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn. And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them; and they were sore afraid. And the angel said unto them, fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord."—Luke 2: 7-20. This illustration is from Merian's story of the Bible in pictures, engraved in 1625-1630.

LEGION ATHLETIC PROGRAM

Birmingham, Ala., Dec. 26.—Through the state aviation commission, the Alabama Relief Administration has assigned 160 men to the American Legion-MacFadden Athletic Program to serve as local leaders in 40 towns.

Col. Theodore Swann, state aviation commissioner, has adopted the program as an official activity of the commission in connection with airpark development and joined the American Legion in its sponsorship. It was because of the airpark development in Alabama, originated by Col. Sumpter Smith, that Alabama was selected by Bernard MacFadden for the initial establishment of this program; which is designed to utilize the airparks wherever possible or upon their completion.

In each of the 40 towns four men will be assigned from local relief rolls to conduct programs daily. These local leaders will be trained by two state atletic supervisors furnished by the American Legion-MacFadden Program. Athletic equipment will be provided each town without cost. The program in each town will be supervised by the MacFadden committee of the local American Legion post.

Steps are now being taken to organize the various towns and it is expected that by the middle of January programs in all 40 towns will be in operation. It is hoped that more than 10,000 boys can be provided with athletic recreation in the next six months. During the past three months, when the program was conducted on an experimental basis in eleven towns, more than 3,000 boys participated at one time or another.

Asa Rountree, Jr., state director of the program for the Legion, has also been appointed an assistant Aeronautics Director by Colonel Swann, and will coordinate the joint participation of the aviation commission, Alabama Relief Administration and the American Legion.

MRS. LIZZIE RETHERFORD DIED

Mrs. Lizzie Retherford, age 42 years, died last Thursday, December 20, at her home west of Jemison. Burial was at Center Hill Friday, with Martin in charge. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. R. M. Honeycutt.

Mrs. Retherford was the widow of .. .... Retherford, and is survived by three children, four brothers and two sisters. She was a daughter of James M. Glass. She had been ill about a year, suffering with cancer.

Mr. E. H. Parrish, Jr., of Birmingham, was in Clanton with relatives Sunday and Monday.

We are thankful for the business you have given us during the past year, and our wish for you is that the coming year may be filled with Success and Prosperity.

FIRST MUNICIPALITY LOAN MADE AT EUFALA, ALABAMA

Birmingham, Ala.—What is believed to be the first loan made in the United States by a bank to a municipality under the modernization credit plan of the Federal Housing Administration has just been closed at Eufaula, Ala. The loan was made by the Eufaula Bank & Trust Company to the City of Eufaula to enable the municipality to purchase and install a new heating system in the local public and high school. Mr. Robert Jemison, Jr., state director, pointed out that the same opportunity is now open to other municipalities in Alabama to borrow through authorized banks for long terms at low interest rates for public improvements of various kinds, including repairs to fire stations and other public buildings.

Ala. Anti-Repeal Forces Organize

The Alabama Alliance of Anti-Repeal forces have opened state headquarters at 1601-4 Comer Building in Birmingham, with telephone number 7-7363.

State and county organization is going forward rapidly under the leadership of H. L. Anderton, Birmingham attorney, who was selected on December 6th by the combined dry forces of the State as State Campaign Director. Each county of the State will be organized and county directors will be selected.

Mr. Anderton made the following statement:

"The united drys place John Barleycorn as Public Enemy No. 1. We have organized to fight repeal to the bitter end. We expect to win.

"No individual is now running for office. No political parties are involved. The referendum presents to our citizens a straight moral issue. Shall Alabama subject her people, old and young, to the ravages of strong drink? On her answer to this question hangs the welfare of our people.

"We shall fight with fair methods and without malice toward anyone. Our hight shall be for a sober citizenship and for the best interests of a million and a half Alabama boys and girls. We call upon every citizen who would not have his children debauched by strong drink to join us in this battle for safety and sobriety.

"We shall oppose legalization of all intoxicating liquors including beers and wines. Wherever beer has been legalized it has greatly increased drunkenness. It cultivates appaetites for stronger drinks. It is a menace to the public in automobile driving.

"We warn the people of Alabama that if conditions are bad in our state now they will be a thousand times worse if we repeal our laws and turn our people over to the greed of the foreign liquor lords. Wherever state laws have been repealed conditions have become unbearable. Safety lies in enforcing our laws.

"We believe the people of Alabama will never consent to increase the sale of intoxicants to her people in order to balance the state budget. We believe in the people of Alabama. They will not debauch their children with strong drink in order to get revenue to educate them.

"Repeal of the 18th Amendment has deluged America with liquor. Every promise to the liquor lords has been broken. The old time saloon has not returned but conditions many times worse are here with liquor sold everywhere. Drunkenness has multiplied many times. Liquors are sold to shool children and minors. Death and accidents from drunkeness has already increased.

"Self preservation demands that we refuse to repeal our laws governing the manufacture, sale and distribution of intoxicating liquors. We appeal to the people of Alabama not to repeal our statutes and bring upon us the danger and death that will surely come from automobile driving by moderate and immoderate drinking."

Mrs. Tom Ellis of Mobile spent the holidays with her parents here, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Armstrong.

Sensational New Ford V-8 For 1935 Will Be Introduced Saturday, Dec. 29

It's always news when Henry Ford introduces a new car. Three years ago he startled the automobile industry by bringing out a V-8 at a low price. For 1935 he's presenting CENTER-POISE-RIDING—an important advance in motor car comfort. It makes the ride a glide.

The reason for the remarkable comfort of the New Ford V-8 is a fundamental change in automobile design, with new weight distribution, new seat position, and new developments in spring suspension. You ride forward, toward the center of the car—away from the rear axle and away from the bumps. Hence the name Center-Poise Riding. For almost the first time a car has been specially designed to give real comfort to back seat passengers.

The wider, longer, roomier New Ford V-8 for 1935 will be introduced Saturday, December 29th, and we will have it on display at our showrooms. Please accept this as a cordial inviation to see it and learn the full story of its dinstinctive new features, including the new easy-pressure clutch and newly designed self-centering brakes.

The combination of fine-car comfort and fine-car performance makes it an outstanding value. The luxuriousness of its upholstery and appointments has never been approached in a low-price car.

VISIT BABTIST ORPHANAGE

Rev. Wm. E. Robinson, J. Dudley Collins, Martin Gore, Ulmer Ashcraft, and Virgil Robinson, of Friendship, Mt. Springs and Cane Creek, went down to Troy Monday and visited the Baptist Orphanage at that place. These gentlemen went to carry the Christmas offerings from these churches to the orphans. Besides money, they carried some produce.

The gentlemen took dinner with Miss Ethel Gentry in the boys dormitory, over which Miss Gentry supervises. This fine lady, you will remember, is from Chilton county, her home being near Mt. Creek.

WILL BEGIN BUILDING NEW BRICK CHURCH AT WALNUT

Rev. J. W. Enfinger, pastor at Walnut Creek M. P. church, announces that work on the new brick church building will begin Monday morning, December 31st. All who are prepared to donate work are asked to be on hand bright and early next Monday morning. Bring your hammer, wrecking bar, saw, and any other tools that you can use.

The new building will be located just in front of the present wood structure, and will face south. The size will be 40 feet by 60 feet. There will be three Sunday school rooms besides the main auditorium. It will be rushed to completion as early as possible.

$10,000 FIRE DAMAGE

Jasper, Ala.—Fire of undetermined origin gutted a portion of the First National Bank Building here Sunday night, occupied by Lantrip's Drug Store, and for a while jeopardized the entire business section of the town. Two volunteer fire fighters were hurt, one seriously, in the blaze that caused damage estimated at more than $10,000.

The blaze started in the prescription room of the drug store and was discovered two hours after the closing hour Sunday night. Slight damage was caused to the First Natonal Bank and offices on the second floor of the building. Bursting cans of chemicals hindered work of the fire department in fighting the flames.

Cecil Deavours, Alabama Power Company employe, was seriosuly hurt when he was knocked down from the balcony of the drug store by a bursting can of chemical. Earlier Robin Boteler was overcome by smoke. Deavours was taken to a local hospital for treatment.

Paul Lantrip, owner of the store, said the loss was partly covered by insurance and stated the building would be remodeled at once.

NICHOLS TO PREACH AT SAMARIA

New Process "Washes" Oil of Impurities—Makes Cars Start Quicker

An ice coated engine in a test room with the temperature at zero, started instantly with a motor lubricant made by new Clearosol Process, which "washes" oil clean of natural impurities as you would wash dirt from your hands with soapy water.

STARTING of engines in winter has always been the car owner's worry. In many cases the trouble is due to improper lubricating oils, which causes piston rings to stick and valves to gum. A process to refine oil properly has been sought ever since the automobile has come into general use.

Recently the Socony-Vacuum Oil Company announced a revolutionary new way to refine oil that is expected to change the entire trend of present day refining, and to save trouble and dollars for motorists.

Chemists and engineers have long sought a way to completely remove from oil the harmful elements which nature imprisoned in crudes millions of years ago. They have been striving to discover new methods which would supplant older systems of refining, complicated and unsatisfactory in many ways.

The new way known as Clearosol process uses powerful solvents to "wash" oil of impurities, as you would wash dirt from your hands with soapy water.

It is the most effective process that has ever been developed to produce all of the desirable characteristics for motor oils in one operation.

Just as conditions of operation in modern automobile engines impose high temperature stresses upon the oil used, so also conditions of low temperature winter operation require that the oil preserve its fluidity at low temperatures. Thus trends in automotive engine design, as well as new ideas as to the service expected from both engines and oils, demanded the development of motor oils having characteristics unheard of a few years ago.

The discovery of the process should be of great benefit and savings to motorists in upkeep and repairs. From the car owner's standpoint, Mobiloil Arctic made this new way lasts up to 25 per cent longer; motorists will have no stuck piston rings, gummed valves or other annoying motor troubles due to the oil; it will greatly cut down carbon in the motor caused by improper lubrication.

MRS. SALLIE ROBBINS DIED

Mrs. Sally Robbins, age 73 years, died Monday morning at her home in the Mt. Pisgah community. Burial was at Mt. Pisgah cemetery Tuesday with Martin in charge. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. H. Lembrick.

She is survived by her husband, Mr. Tom W. Robbins; two sons, Ed Hammond and Tom Headley; two daughters, Mrs. L. A. Brown and Mrs. Rube Burkhalter.

Mrs. Robbins, affectionately known to her many friends as "Aunt Sally," was a lifelong resident of the Mt. Pisgah community, and was universally loved and respected as one of the most outstanding characters. She had been married three times. Her first husband was Mr. Hammond; second was Mr. Headley; third Mr. Tom Robbins, who survives her. She was a member of the Mt. Pisgah church.

PLEASANT HILL

Health of our community is fairly good at present. We are glad to say our Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. are still going. We had a large crowd out Sunday and we feel sure that our Sunday school will continue to grow.

We had an unnsnally large crowd out Sunday night to enjoy our Christmas program and Christmas tree. Best of all Santa Claus was with us which made our program complete. We hope to have a better program for Santa Claus next Christmas.

Several from here attended the singing at Friendship Sunday and reported a good singing. Visitors are always welcome at our church.

GRADY TAYLOR BOUGHT MATT'S LUNCH SHOPPE

Mr. Grady Taylor has bought Matt's Lunch Shoppe from Mr. M. L. Ware, and has already assumed management and operation of the business at the same location.

The name of the place will remain unchanged. Mr. Taylor will have associated with him a staff of popular and experienced helpers, Mr. DeWitt Easterling and Mrs. Willie Easterling Moore, both of whom have had long and successful experience in cafe operation in Clanton.

In taking charge of the business this week, Mr. Taylor made the following statement:

"I want to say to all the friends and former customers of Matt's Lunch Shoppe that the new management solocits a continuation of their patronage and good will. We will continue to operate the place upon the same high plane of good service which has characterized Matt's for many successful years. We expect to make some improvements as soon as we can get around to them. All our friends will receive a cordial welcome, and we shall strve to render a service that will be pleasing in every way."

FUNERAL RITES FOR W. T. HILYER HELD SUNDAY P.M.

Funeeral services for W. Tom Hilyer, 53, who died at his home near Cooper, Saturday afternoon of a cerebeal hemorrhage were held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Chestnut Creek Baptist church at Coopers. The Rev. J. D. Hughes officiated and Martin & Sons were in charge of the burial services in the churchyard cemetery.

Surviving him are his widow; and the following children: Dock, Curtis, Willis, Reedy, Misses Alma, Jeanie, Mozele and Aaron, Ollie, Gordon and Maye.

The following friends of the family served as pallbearers; Theodore Thornton, Charles Thornton, Will Thornton, Joe Gilliland, Britton Nelson and Houston Thornton.

WILLIAM FRANKLIN LANGSTON

William Franklin Langston, age 57 years, died last Saturday at his home in Birmingham. Martin brought the body to Union Grove for burial Sunday. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Green, of Jemison.

Mr. Langston was an old resident of the Jemison community. He had been sick for a long time prior to his death.

REFUGE NEWS

Our Sunday school was quite small Sunday, however we had some real good discussions on the lessons.

We had a very large crowd Sunday night. The program was rendered by the little dirls. The Chrostmas message, delivered by our pastor, was thoroughly enjoyed by all. There were several visitors which we were glad to have.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Mims, of Sylacauga are spending the holidays with relatives and friends in this community.

Little Curtis and J. B. Burson, of Birmingham are spending this week with Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hardy.

As next Sunday will be the last Sun-in this quarter, let's all try and come with a well prepared lesson, and get some new books and start the new year right.

"The Watchmen On The Wall"

Elder K. U. Hull Admonishes People Regarding the Dangers of Repeal

In the days of the Prophets, the Lord had men placed on the wall as watchmen, for the safety of his people. These watchmen were expected to ever keep awake and be ready to give the alarm if the enemy was seen approaching. If these watchmen were fathful and failed not to give out warning, then their skirts were clear, even though the enemy came and destroyed the people who refused to take warning. But if these watchmen, after seeing the enemy coming, failed to warn the people and the enemy came and destroyed them, their blood was required at the watchmen's hands. Ezekiel, 33rd. chapter.

I believe God has men today who are placed over his churches and people whose duty it is to not only feed his flock with the bread of life, but whose duty it is to also warn the people of any approaching enemy or evil. I believe most all preachers will agree with me here.

Now I am wondering how many of God's watchmen are keeping their eyes on the great approaching evil, the return of the open saloon in Alabama. Then I am wondering if we really intend to warn the people of its dangers and what it means to our boys and girls to have this cursed stuff placed in reach of all. I am informed that we are to have an election early next spring, to let the people say whether we retain our present prohibition law, or have the saloon. I know somebody is now ready to say, we are not voting for the return of the saloon. We are voting to do away with an unjust law, that we may enact a better one. That is not true. When you have repealed the State prohibition law, you open the way for the bootlegger and drunkard, to peddle the stuff all over the country and you will have no way of protecting your boys and girls and homes from the effects or it.

Some people argue that our prohibition law has been a failure, but we all know it has been no more a failure than any or all of our criminal laws. What will our preachers, God's watchmen, do about it? I am wondering how many are prepared to take the field, cry aloud and spare not.

We have already had two elections, and some of our preachers took a big part in the general election, in order to put his party over. I took no part in this, more than to go to the polls and cast a vote on principle, or for the man I thought would best serve the people and uphold the law and the good morals of our county and state. I was made to feel bad on account of the way some of our preachers, deacons, laymen and members of the church did. Some of our preachers, even Baptists, lined up with the drunkard and the lawless element. I don't know how they can redeem themselves. In other words, I fear that when you start your trumpet in the next campaign, someone will say, how inconsistent!

Will you stand on the housetops and tell the people of all the evils that are sure to come of the saloon? Will you go to the father and mother and plead with them to vote to save their boys and girls from this curse? If, when you do, some bootlegger should say, brother preacher, what is wrong with you? In November you asked us to line up with you in electing men to office whom you knew to be both politically and personally wet, men whom you knew would not enforce the prohibition law. Now why have a law and not enforce it? What will you say? How will you answer

I know some wise crack is going to raise up and tell us preachers to keep out of politics, but this coming election is not a political one but purely a moral question. If it were a political question and there was so much at stake, then it would become our duty to rise up in our manhood and with love for our boys and girls, our homes, our schools, and our churches and tell the people of the approaching enemy of mankind.

Watchmen, if you did go contrary to your better judgement and knowledge in November, will you not climb back to the top of the wall, and warn the people as God has required of you? It may be a little hard for you to go so far after appearing to be such a friend to it, but you have no one but yourself to blame. God is listening for the trumpet. May we all be more faithful in the future than in the past.—Sincerely yours, Elder K. U. Hull, Clanton, Alabama Rte. 6

Driving down a country road we saw a line-up of autos—eleven of them by actual count. A little farther down the road we saw ten men, and, apparently an overseer—eleven in all, cutting weeds, raking them up and burning them. Eleven men and eleven cars. About a mile down the road we came to a small town. Our curiosity being aroused, we stopped and made inquiry as to what was going on up the road. "Oh, it's one of the county emergency relief gangs working," answered a store keeper. Eleven men, eleven cars, county relief gang!—Tom Johnson in Minneapolis Better Way.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

"Pledged Lawbreakers" is a title applicable to those who have been preaching and advocating disloyalty and refusal to defend the United States government in the event of war. Some ministers of the Gospel have no doubt been led into believing that they are preaching something else other than lawbreaking when they agitate the people from their pulpits to pledge themselves to refuse to defend this nation in case of war, and when they and others advise students to refuse to accept military training in schools and colleges they should awaken to the fact that they are encouraging a violation of the Constitution. On one hand the disloyalty being preached by some ministers and on the other hand by socialists and communitsts, many of the latter also at the same time advocating the destruction of the church and religion is rather significant.

Among the false statements made by many of these ministers, and reds, and pacifists is that military training and preparedness in schools and colleges is contrary to the Briand-Kellogg peace pact, while some assert that the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution is being abrogated. Those who believe that our nation is worth defending and that to preserve peace the nation must be prepared to thwart the designs of enemies within and without, have been painted as militarists, imperialists and war mongers in the pay of the munitions makers or the War Department.

The United States Supreme Court has had an occasion to rule on the question of military training in schools and colleges recently. Their decision, upholding the Supreme Court of California and, therefore, the University of California in enforcing military training on the students who choose to attend that institution, indirectly settles numerous other questions such as state rights of the nation to defend itself in the face of the Briand-Kellogg peace pact, the duty of all citizens to defend their state and the nation, and the requirements of aliens seeking to do likewise.

This decision confirms the contention of patriotic citizens that those who are agitating students to refuse military training, and advocating that aliens and citizens pledge themselves to refuse to defend the nation in case of war, are preaching law-breaking. That some of the churches have been used as a means to advocate law breaking is not the only serious aspect. The fact that they have advocated law breaking of a kind which would result eventually in the complete destruction of religion and the church, if the conspirators against republican government and religion succeed in their devolution after disarming the opposition to it while secretly arming themselves, is the sad part of it. There may have been some of these disloyal propagandists who were in doubt as to the constitutionality of many of our laws, or perhaps some were confused by their misleaders as to the meaning of the Briand-Kellogg pact. But now that the highest tribunal of our land, the United States Supreme Court, by unanimous decision has held that the enforcement of compulsory military training is constitutional, regardless of their religious beliefs; that every citizen is subject to service in defense of the state or of the nation; that the Briand-Kellogg peace pact merely outlaws wars of aggression and not of defense, and that no alien may become a citizen without accepting the obligations to defend this nation as is required of every American-born citizen, the entire question is now settled. No citizen or alien can any longer hide behind ignorance in preaching such disloyal doctrines as have been so treasonably advocated so freely heretofore in this country. He must go now on either a patriot or a traitor. The line is drawn on the basis of lawfulness or lawlessness.

DAY OF RECKONING SURE

A "relief" map of the United States, showing the manner in which the 48 commonwealths have contributed of their own resources in the fight against hunger and cold, shows a state of affairs that ought to bring shame to Louisiana. The figures indicate that during the first three months of this year Massachusetts drew the smallest percentage of its relief funds from the federal treasury, or 2.9 per cent; in other words, Massachusetts put up 97.1 per cent of all the cash expended in this work within its borders. New York and Illinois were next to the top, paying their own way to the extent of 18.7 per cent, while the government put up the remaining 18.3 per cent. Eleven states drew from one-fourth to one-half of their relief funds from the federal treasury, twelve states got from one-half to three-fourths, and the remaining twenty-two states got from 75 per cent to 100 per cent from the United Sates Treasury.

Louisiana, shamefully enough, was one of the three states in the Union which did not put up a dollar of its own money to care for the needy within her borders. Arkansas and South Carolina did likewise, and two other Southern states were practically in this class, Mississippi drawing 99.8 per cent and Florida 99.7 per cent of federal aid. In this state the legislature was asked to take steps to correct this disgraceful state of affairs, but a majoriiy of its general assembly was too busy doing the will of a political boss to give a thought to duty. Wherefore, though Louisiana can afford any sort of extravagance in behalf of the politicians, it cannot make even so much as a gesture toward caring for its own charity cases.

But it may not be doubted a day of reckoning is to come. It is too much to expect that such states as Massachusetts, Illinois and New York will be willing to continue paying practically all of their own "relief" costs and at the same time be called upon to put up, in the shape of federal taxes, a very large proportion of the sums expended in other states. The United States Government will not always follow he practice of helping those who refuse to help themselves—and none can be found to blame the administration at Washington if it should withdraw its aid in commonwealths which refuse to cooperate in the providing of relief funds.—Shreveport, La., Journal.

WHY ALCATRAZ?

The utilization of Alcatraz Island for the confinement of the most desperate, troublesome federal prisoners is a grim reminder of the change which has taken place in the nation's campaign against crime. In other days the traditional federal offenders were national bank robbers, counterfeiters and violators of the immigration laws. They were not pleasant customers, but the ordinary penitentiary could handle them without difficulty. Prohibition, racketeering and the motor car have now given us the killer types and the government finds it necessary to keep them away from their fellow criminals.

The Attorney General has said that about 700 of the 18,000 federal prisoners now in confinement constitute our most serious problem in penology. They do the plotting, stir up the rest, and are the most willing to murder and follow in the footsteps of Dillinger. These are the characters for whom the buildings of Alcatraz Island have been reconstructed. It is twelve acres of solid, precipitous rocks in the Golden Gate, four miles away from San Francisco, and was used once as a military prison. It has few of the forbidding aspects of a Devil's Island, a Lipari, or an Andamans, but is almost escape proof. The decision of the government to take this step may be accepted as another sign that the national warfare against the gunman will not be so mild as formerly.—Boston Herald.

THE CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT

Within the next few months the nation may be called on to decide whether the government is to be given power which may eventually become federal control of its youth. During the past two years many of the states have been faced with a similar issue, with varying results. Now the issue is again to become a national one, with a proposal for another amendment to the constiution. The Supreme Court has held such legislation unconstitutional and an effort is now to be made to change the Constitution.

The question is a serious one. The proposed amendment for child labor will result, if it becomes the fundamental law of the land, in a federal control of children broader than the public now realizes. If, for example, a minor is to be refused permission to work until he is of age, what is to become of the youth who cannot finance a college education? Is he to walk the sreets, learn law violation and become a public charge, or will our government be confronted with the problem of regimenting him into a concentration camp, a government conrolled club or other federal institution? Will the future of our youth be taken into control by the government as has happened in Russia, or will our children remain subject to the control of the individual family?

The development of the child in America, under family influence and control, has been satisfactory, giving us such men as Lincoln, Roosevelt, Edison and Ford. Lincoln did not fail because he had to work on his father's farm as a boy; Edison did not lose all chance of his future because he was compelled to work in his youth as a newsboy on a passenger train. Al Smith is evidently none the worse off for having been a fish peddler in his youth. It is interesting to speculate on what might have happened to these great minds had they been placed under government control and regimentation in their youth, to have been the subjec of governmental social experimenters most of whom had never taken the trouble to raise a family of their own. If the youth of the land is not to be permitted to work until it arrives at the age of maturity, what is to become of the thousands of students who annually work their way through school? Will they be better off and their chances for the future brightened if they are to depend on some governmental Santa Claus for support?

No sound and patriotic American wants our boys and girls forced into what is known as child labor. We all want them to go to school as long as they are able, or a least as long as is good for them. But that is anoher thing from insisting that they shall spend their spare time in idleness, or in the control of federal experimenters, some of whom seem more anxious to break up the idea of the family unit than to assist in the future of the youth.

A Rose For FDR

The Chilton County News editor (whoever he is) has accused me several times of picking on President Roosevelt and his "brainy" boys, and never giving them a boost for the good things they have done. I must admit that the chances I see to boost them are few and far between, but I believe in paying even the devil his dues, so here's a rose for FDR and his boys. By that FDR stuff I don't mean to be disrespectful, but, I believe, that's the new title that has been pinned on the president in this day of making everything alphabetical—some of the fellows have gone so far as to spell it "Fdr", just like that, not even bothering to make it out in capital letters. But now to get back to my story. What I want to commend he president for is a few words he uttered some time ago, and the way he has backed them up with action. Said he: "I want to emphasize to the Department of Justice the importance of their bending every effort to run down all, or as near all as possible, of the super-criminals that now abound in this country. They may rest assured that I will put at their disposal every aid that it is ours to give, that our people may be rid of this menace to society." Since that time, the Department of Justice HAS been more active, it seems, than at any time in its history. One after another of the "big shots" in the criminal world have been designated as "Public Enemy No. 1", and one after another these have been relentlessly hunted down and disposed of. Now the Department is down among the so-called "small fry" of the criminal profession, and the hunt goes on. Some of the super-criminals and master-minds have been caught and imprisoned, but most have been shot in gun battles with police and Department of Justice agents. No matter what the manner of disposal, it is to President Roosevelt's credit that he has taken the stand that he has, and every good American should commend him for it.

The Post Office Surplus

If you have been reading any of these good old Southern Democratic newspapers of late, no doubt you have read column after column about how the present administration has "made the post office pay, for the first time in history", to quote their own words. Along back last summer they told us the "surplus" would be about five million dollars. They went into a huddle, decided that wansn't big enough, and lately came out with the announcement that the deparment had a surplus for the postal year (July 1, 1933, to June 30, 1934) of twelve millions. Strange to say, the American public swallowed the whole thing for the truth. But now, since the United States Treasury has made its annual report we find that, instead of a "surplus" of twelve million, there is really a DEFICIT of $52,003,295.62. That statement is not mine, nor that of any other Republicon—those figures are hot off the line from the U. S. Treasury, itself, and they are authentic. I just wonder if those papers will give as much space to letting "the dear people" know the bare truth as they did in putting over the "surplus" hooey. All my life I have heard that "figures don't lie". The situation is just the same as if Mr. Corntossel had been going around telling that he cleared $12.00 on his cotton crop, and then we found out that he went in the hole over $52.00 worth. It's all just a lot of bunk, which, when carefully boiled down, smells very suspicially like a lie. I've always heard too, that common folks lie, while the big shots are "mistaken", but if a lie is just a grown-up mistake, then I believe we might safely brand the surplus as one of the well grown variety. Growing from a $12,000,000.00 surplus to a $52,000,000.00 deficit is a fast growth. Don't you think so?

One Man's Experience

Milo Reno, speaking from Station WOC, at Des Moines, Iowa, a few nights ago, stated that the recent "elections" held over the country to determine if the Bankhead cotton law and similar laws would be continued, was a farce. He said that, for the most part, people did not fully understand just where the AAA activities ended and the special laws began. And, a few days later a friend handed me a clipping of a letter written to the Moutain Eagle, a Jasper, (Ala.) paper. It ran like this: "Dear Eagle—I have been reading you all your life, and this is the first time I have ever wanted you to put anything in for me. I am 75 years old, have been farming all my life, made 55 cotton crops for myself, sold cotton for 5 cents to 30 cents a pound. When goods went up, cotton went up, and when goods went down, cotton went down. It has been that way ever since the Civil War. This fall goods went up and cotton went up until it got to 14 cents, then the government put it to 12 cents. If it had not been for the Bankhead act the price of cotton would have been from 15 to 20 cents per pound, according to the way goods are selling. This has beat the cotton farmers out of thousands of dollars. I have raised from two to five bales of cotton a year for 55 years until this year, when I raised one bale. They gave me a ticket to sell 65 pounds of lint cotton. So I've got to buy a Bankhead ticket for 4 cents a pound to sell my cotton, ginning will be $5.00, and bagging and ties $1.00. About all I will get out of my cotton crop is four cotton fertilizer sacks. The women will make me a shirt out of two of them, and the number of my shirt will be 10-4-4. The other two will go to patch our old clothes, and we will have to stay at home. We will not raise any more cotton. As ever, T. G. ESTES." Remember, the AAA cotton law cut down the production of cotton, but it took the Bankhead Act to peg the price at 12 cents when it was rising daily. Which did the people really want—the production cut, or the price cut? We wonder. Any way, the above is one Alabama farmer's experience.

Harry, the Designer

I've often heard it said that "it takes all kinds of people to make a world". I reckon that's right. Some people like to drive cars, some like to tinker with their "innards", some like to race them, and there are others who like to stunt them. Same with airplanes. Some like to take them up and handle the "joy stick", others don't care for that part of it and are content with just riding around in them. There are others— and lots of us—who are content to let any and all ride who want to, but we don't care to go above our raising, thank you. And then there are some who enjoy digging in and seeing what makes the things go up and down. Anyone who takes to the last-named phase of the air game is in a fair way to become a designer, because, sooner or later, these fellows have ideas of things which they believe will make the planes go through their stunts better. If they study hard enough, have lots of imagination, and follow up their ideas by making working models, in most cases do turn out to be designers. One of these last is a man of our own town—Harry Walker. When Harry had the chance, he began taking flying lessons. He is a body-builder by trade, but he has found lots of time to take his lessons. Not long ago he told me intended building a plane. And a few days ago, sure enough, he brought it in for us all to have a look-see at. It was only 20½ inches wing span, and the "fuselage" or body was only 16 inches, but it was a perfect copy of the big sky-birds. I kidded him a little about his plane, and then he told me why he built it—it is only a model for a real plane which he intends to build. And after seeing the model, I wouldn't doubt for a minute that he will build it. But right here and now I want to disclaim any right to take a ride on his creation's maiden flight. Just the same, it just goes to prove that our Harry is really air-minded, and not just hot-air-minded. That's the stuff that goes to make designers—the boys who drag down the big dough, no matter what their line of work.

More ABC's

Here's one for those who like to laugh now and then. A high official in the national government recently received a letter from a man in Arkansas—a farmer, by the way. Among the things this man had to write about were quite a few things he didn't like about the New Deal. He made his letter pretty hot. And, when he had signed his name, he added the letters "D. D." The official decided to answer the letter, and, noting the "D. D." at the end of the name, naturally took it to mean that the man was a preacher. So, in addressing his letter, he pinned on the title of "Rev." to the addressee. An answer was not long coming in, and what a shock that official got. The reply ran something like this: "Dear Sir: I got your letter all right, but you're all wet about what you thought that D. D. meant. That didn't mean that I am a preacher. That stands for Disgusted Democrat."—Man in the Moon.

SOME ELECTION FIGURES

There is some disagreement among the New Dealers themselves as to the future of the Republican party. Mr. Farley, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, after the election gave out a statement which indicated his belief that the Republican party is dead. With this belief no less a New Deal personage than Prof. Raymond Moley, advisor extraordinary to the administration, takes sharp issue. Prof. Moley, writing in Time, says that "The Democrat who talks glibly of the end of the Republican Party is simply ignoring the facts."

We are inclined to agree with Prof. Moley despite the authority of Mr. Farley's long political training. In the recent election the Republicans cast 47 per cent of the total vote, which was a greater percentage than it cast in 1932. It is true that the New Dealers now have a two-thirds majority in both branches of Congress, but it is equally true that a few thousand votes, distributed here and there on election day could have materially changed the results.

Let us consider a few of the Middle Western states which, until 1932, were the very cornerstone of the Republican Party. The Democrats swept Missouri, yet they cast 62 per cent of the total vote as against 65 per cent in 1932. In Iowa they cast 54 per cent as against 59 per cent in 1932. In Indiana they cast 52 per cent as against 56 per cent two years ago. In other states the percentages were: Nebraska, 56 as against 64; South Dakota, 58 as against 65; North Dakota, 54 as against 21.

In the two radical states of Wisconsin and Minnesota the comparisons were startling. In Minnesota the Democrats cast but 30 per cent of the total vote as against 62 per cent in 1932. In Wisconsin they cast but 26 per cents as against 67 per cent. The reason for this is, of course, the tremendous gains made by the Farmer-Labor party in Minnesota and the Progressive party in Wisconsin.

Indiana is a good example for comparison as between the two years. It is true that Senator Robinson was defeated for re-election but he cut the Democratic majority 150,000 under the 1932 figure. It is true also that the Republicans gained but one congressman but they lost some of the others by very narrow margins. And the Hoosier Republicans won back scores of county offices all over the state, gained 30 seats in the legislature and elected more mayors in Indiana cities than they have held in a dozen years.

Of course it was a Democratic victory in Indiana but the results show that the minority party is far from dead. The same is true in the other middle-western states.

Let the socialists experiment with their own money all they want to, not with money raised by taxation.—Jewell Republican.

THE THIRTY-HOUR WEEK

One begins to wonder who will benefit by the much discussed thirty-hour week legislation for which is being proposed for consideration at the next Congress assembling in January.

The forty-hour week did not benefit labor, or at least the government records fail to show that it did. There are, according to government records, considerably more unemployed this year than last. The laborers that were employed prior to the enactment of the forty-hour week were of course forced to sacrifice wages that they had been earning when they were working over forty hours. The theory of the Brain Trusters was that these lost hours to those employeed would have to be filled by additional ones to carry on production in most plants and shops. The Brain Trusters figured, evidently, that all business firms were working to capacity and did not figure that most businesses were not and were sacrificing by paying this regular help for the full forty-two, forty-eight or fifty hours merely to keep their skeleton organizations intact for a better day or felt obliged to many of these employees because of years of service.

Now that business is not any better than when the fory-hour week was put into effect, the employed might find that they again have been beaten down in their weekly earnings and no one helped by the move, and the firms that do not have the business to warrant more help will, as they did last year, merely curtail their expenses some more at the expense of their employees, being forced to it by the government.

The employed lost. The unemployed do not gain.

CONTROL OF IMPORTS

One can debate all they wish over the right or wrong of the tariff, but there is one thing that is certain. Whether it is the tariff way or otherwise, imports will have to be stringently controlled by the Washington administration or the New Deal will be upset.

There is no sense in curbing production by killing off pigs and plowing under corn, wheat and cotton in order to help the farmer by raising the prices and spending billions to accomplish that, then to allow an influx of foreign products of a competitive kind which will flood the markets and break down the farmers' price again. But that is what is liable to happen. If it does the billions will have been spent in vain.

Free traders are now or will soon be driven to face this problem. They will whether they like it or not be compelled to set up a tariff, if not an embargo, that will make the much growled at "Grundy" tariff fade into thin air. Either that or give up the New Deal program. They can take their choice.

ALIEN AGITATORS

A development encouraging to those who believe that the safety of America will be enhanced by the deportation of alien agitators who rail against our constitutional government, was the statement made recently by Congressman Samuel Dickstein, chairman of the powerful House Immigration Committee, demanding that the alien red disturbers who have come to the United States illegally be sent back to their European or Asiatic homes. Mr. Dickstein added that he will sponsor in the next session of Congress legislation providing for a tightening of the laws against the admission of foreign agitators and for the expenditious deportation of those who are already with us.

In this effort Mr. Dickstein will have the support of every patriotic American worthy of every patriotic American worthy of the name. Those who have not studied the situation have little idea of the part played by these agitators in disturbing our economic situation during the past few months. As Mr. Dickstein well states:

"Communists are to blame for most disorders during strikes. Whenever there is a strike, they move in. They won't work, but want everybody else to support them. They endanger our institutions and should be shipped out of our country. Our present laws are full of holes. I intend to introduce a bill closing them."

The charge placed against communist agitators, the majorty of whom are aliens, can be substantiated by the facts. The recent outbreak of radicalism during the strikes in Claifronia is a typical example. Wherever there is labor trouble the communist agitators swarm in an attempt to start revolutionary activities. They care nothing about the welfare of the laborer or the conditions of labor. Their desire is to weaken the economic structure and through this destroy constitutional government in the United States.

Agitators of this type should be sent back to the countries whence they came. They can serve no useful purpose in America. It is to be hoped that Congress will strengthen the laws dealing with this alien menace, when the next session starts in January.

Fifty years ago one of the Democratic party principles was opposition to the accumulation of a surplus in the national treasury on the ground that it would inevitably result in governmental extravagance. Undoubtedly the Democrats are opposing more stubbornly than ever surplus in the Treasury. They are avoiding the likelihood of a surplus for the next hundred years.—Charleston News and Courier.

JEMISON GIRLS WIN IN CONTEST

The first and second prize offered by Congressman W. B. Oliver to the best all round girl in Vocational Home Economics in his Gongerssional District were awarded to Miss Mildred Caldwell and Miss Josephine Adams of Jemison. These young ladies were recipients of this information in a letter of December 18th from Dr. J. B. Hobdy, State Director of Vocational Education.

The awards were based on personality, scholarship, leadership, honesty, initiative and home project work. To be eligible to enter this contest the girls were required to have had two years vocational home economics and projects related to at least four different phases of this work.

First prize; a trip to Washington and $25.00 was won by Mildred Caldwell. The second prize, a trip to Washington, went to Josephine Adams. These students were judged by Misses Ruby Simpson and Marie Fuller, State Assistant Supervisors of Home Economics.

Congressman Oliver is to be highly commended on his efforts to stimulate work done in all phases of vocational education. This is shown by his legislative action in Congress as well as promoting vocational training in his own District.

8,000 STATE FARMERS JOIN ORGANIZATION

Approximately 8,000 Alabama farmers have become members of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation during the past two months, reports C. W. Ashcraft, executive vice- president.

Statistics by counties show that Monroe County Farmers are leading with a membership of 554, while Butler County farmers are second with 462 members. Choctaw is third with 352 members, Escambia fourth with 350 members, and Montgomery fifth with 316.

Counties in which the Farm Bureau membership is between 200 and 300 are: Autauga, Bibb, Clarke, Dallas, Hale, Lowndes, Marengo, Mobile, Pickens, Sumter, Tuscaloosa, and Wilcox. Other counties have from a few members to 200.

NATIONAL FOREST FUNDS INCREASED BY PRESIDENT

Montgomery.—That the National Forest area in Alabama will be very greatly increased in the comparatively near future is the belief of Colonel Page S. Bunker, State Forester. Impetus to a larger program of land acquisition has recently been furnished by the President through the allocation of ten million dollars additional for this purpose.

Several purchase areas have been located in Alabama by the U. S. Forest Service, according to Colonel Bunker, and the State forestry authorities expect that a considerable proportion of this amount will be expended in Alabama. The location, examination, appraisal and details of purchase of land are wholly in the hands of the U. S. Forestry Service, and the Alabama Commission of Forestry advises that interested landowners and communities take up these matters with the Regional Forester, U. S. Forest Service, Glenn Building, Atlanta, Georgia. While the Commission is anxious to be of service in these connections, the final decision rests with the Federal authorities.

WINTER TIME TO PRUNE TREES

Auburn, Ala.—The best time for pruning ornamental shrubs in Alabama is February or March, reports C. E. McCord, extension landscape specialist.

In pruning shrubs one should have four general purposes in view. They are (1) To balance the top and roots at transplanting time; (2) to modify or control the form, shape, and size of the plant; (3) to regulate the number and character of the flowers or berries produced, and (4) to remove unsightly dead, broken, diseased or weak branches.

FARMERS' INCOME IS HIGHEST IN 4 YEARS

The highest farm income in four years is reported by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Estimated values of various crops were listed as follows: Corn, $1,085,565,000; all wheat, $432,441,000; oats, $272,754,000; grain, sorghums, $28,415,000; cotton, $602,314,000; cotton seed, $154,106,000; all hay, $779,530,000; edible beans, $35,159,000; peanuts $33,413,000; potatoes, $169,099,000; tobacco, $240,937,000; apples, $102,178,000; sugar beets, $38,463,000. The value of all truck crops was estimated at $192,651,000.

BETTER COTTON BEING ADVOCATED

Auburn, Ala.—Alabama has taken another forward step in improving the grade and staple of cotton produced in 1935 and future years. It also announced that the United States Department of Agriculture will cooperate in the work.

Working together the State Extension Service, the Experiment Station, the Vocational Department and the Cotton Marketing Association have named a committee of four to work together in making it possible for farmers to improve the grade and staple of their cotton at a minimum cost.

The committee is composed of H. B. Tisdale, plant breeder of the Alabama Experiment Station; J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist; J. C. Cannon, district supervisor of vocational agriculture; and J. A. Beaty, president of the Alabama Cotton Cooperative Association.

FARMERS FAVOR BANKHEAD ACT

By a vote of approximately 10 to 1, southern cotton farmers expressed their desire that the Bankhead Bill be continued for 1935.

In Alabama the vote was over 18 to 1 in favor of the act being continued. The tabulation by counties in this state shows the vote as follows:

Autauga, 2640, for, 28 against; Baldwin, 676-97; Barbour, 2,873-192; Bibb, 1,930-54; Blount, 3,825-298; Bullock, 2,572-43; Butler, 3,333-44; Calhoun, 2,844-389; Chambers, 3,141-46; Cherokee, 2,840-207; Chilton, 3,210-138; Choctaw, 2,596-84; Clarke, 2,162-89; Clay, 2,205-343; Cleburne, 1,290-284; Coffee, 3,645-164; Colbert, 3,087-43; Conecuh, 3,863-66; Coosa, 1,525-165; Covington, 3,251-89; Crenshaw, 2,899-157; Cullman, 5,730-492; Dale, 2,440-172; Dallas, 6,836-14; DeKalb, 4,466-875; Elmore, 3,265-160; Escambia, 2,045; Etowah, 3,151-275; Fayette, 2,-720-295; Franklin, 2,810-404; Geneva, 2,384-202; Greene, 3,655-68; Hale, 5,-194-20; Henry, 2,557-45; Houston, 3,365-185; Jackson, 3,531-218; Jefferson, 2,049-428; Lamar, 3,155-131; Lauderdale, 4,564-142; Lawrence, 3,197-237; Lee, 2,478-122; Limestone, 5,053-124; Lowndes, 3,528-32; Macon, 3,746-47; Madison, 4,408-143; Marengo, 6,339-102; Marion, 3,844-339; Marshall, 6,-109-225; Mobile, 583-15; Monroe, 4,480-58; Montgomery, 3,431-68; Morgan, 5,431-235; Perry, 4,404-19; Pickens, 3,735-153; Pike, 3,098-105; Randolph, 3,222-301; Russell, 2,563-72; Shelby, 1,567-128; St. Clair, 2,265-339; Sumter, 4,033-22; Talladega, 3,341-108; Tallapoosa, 2,034-87; West Tallapoosa, 989-51; Tuscaloosa, 4,368-241; Walker, 1,703-592; Washington, 664-22; Wilcox, 3,945-19; Winston, 1,698-232; total 217,324 for the bill, and 11,473 against.

MEETING OF THE CHILTON COUNTY S. S. CONVENTION

Program for meeting of the Chilton County Sunday School Convention to be held at Friendship Baptist church Sunday afternoon, January 6, 1934.

2:00, devotional period led by Rev. M. Lockhart.

2:15 to 2:45, plans for work for 1935 by John M. McGuire, state Sunday school worker.

2:45 to 3:15, Reaching the lost through the Sunday school, by H. A. Harris.

3:15 to 3:30, round table discussion.

Each Sunday school in the Chilton Association is urged to send a delegation to the meeting. Friendship church is located 1 mile northeast of Clanton on the Lay Dam Road.

NOTICE!

There is to be a meeting at Jackson Chapel schoolhouse Thursday night, Dec. 27th, at 6:30 o'clock, to consider an opportunity school. Everybody invited. Come.

COTTON GIN REPORT

The report of B. L. Vance, cotton census enumerator, shows that 11,950 bales of cotton were ginned in Chilton County from the 1934 crop prior to December 13, as compared with 12,133 bales ginned prior to the same date last year.

From these figures it may be seen that the cotton crop in this county this year was 183 bales short of last year. The ginning season is finished, and it is likely these figures will be final.

FOSHEE-TIFFIN WEDDING WAS SOLEMNIZED SUNDAY NIGHT

In a beautiful wedding ceremony, the words of which were impressively spoken by Dr. S. J. Ezell, the marriage of Miss Mary Lou Tiffin to Mr. Alvin B. Foshee was solemnized at the Methodist Church in Clanton last Sunday evening.

For the occasion the church was beautifully decorated with a profusion of lovely white lillies, white snapdragons, and gladiolas. The gentle blending light of many candles added a touch of loveliness to the scene.

"At Dawning," by Cadman, was sung by Dr. C. O. Lawrence. Mr. Percy Pitts sang "Until," by Sanderson. Mr. Sid Gibson rendered a violin solo, "All For You." Mrs. B. M. Roberts played the pipe organ, accompanying the songs. "To A Wild Rose," was played softly during the wedding ceremony.

The bride entered upon the arm of her father, Mr. J. B. Tiffin. She wore a lovely blue ensemble, with suitable accessories, and carried a bouquet of Talisman roses. Miss Mildred Cabiness, of Birmingham, was maid of honor.

Proceeding down the aisle with her attendants, the bride was met at the altar by the groom, accompanied by Dr. S. J. Ezell, and Mr. Raymond Mims, best man. As the music was played softly, Dr. Ezell spoke the vows that united the happy couple in the holy bonds of matrimony. John Ezell and Joe Moore were the ushers.

Mrs. Foshee is the lovely young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Tiffin. Mr. Foshee is a prominent young attorney, of Clanton. They will make their future home here, and their many friends extend congratulations and best wishes for their happiness together.

The Chilton County singing convention will sponsor an afternoon singing at the courthouse on Sunday afternoon, December 30th, beginning at 1:30 o'clock. All societies of the county are invited to participate.

Both Prof. O. L. Devaughn and Prof. W. M. Devaughn announce that they have a supply of the latest Stamps-Baxter books, Harbor Bells No. 4, on hand, and will have them at the fifth Sunday singing at the courthouse Sunday afternoon. Of course, all singers are asked to bring their other books too.

There has not been a singing at the courthouse in some months, and it is hoped that this affair may be an interesting one. Everybody try and be present by 1:30, so that a full two and a half hours of singing may be had. Prof. O. L. Devaughn will be chairman.

FRIENDSHIP HAD SERVICES IN NEW ANNEXES SUNDAY

The first services in the new annexes at Friendship church were held at Sunday school last Sunday. The attendance goal of one hundred was not quite reached, but the people out there are very gratified with the showing that was made. There were 89 present, with some coming in too late to be counted.

Preparations are being made for a religious census of the community this week end. Rev. Robinson says that prospects around Friendship look good for the real advancement of all religious work out there.

POISONING FINDING BROUHT IN DEATHS

Goodwater, Ala., Dec. 25.—A finding that Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barnett, of Parkdale, an elderly couple, came to their deaths "from strychnine poisoning, by persons or persons unknown," has been returned by a coroner's jury here. The couple died at their breakfast table early in the morning of November 15.

The viscera of Mr. Barnett was sent to state chemists, who reported that an analysis revealed strychrnine.

Mrs. Barnett's last words were that she and her husband had drunk some whiskey her husband had found on their washstand.

J. R. TAYLOR IS LAID TO REST AT CHESTNUT CREEK

Funeral services for J. R. Taylor, 69-year-old resident of Cooper, who died Saturday evening at 7:05 o'clock at the home of his son, L. Roy Taylor, in Montgomery, of an attack of pneumonia, were held Monday morning at 10 o'clock from the Chestnut Creek Baptist church, of which he had been a member for a great many years. The Rev. J. D. Hughes officiated. Burial was in the churchyard cemetery with Spigener Funeral Home in charge of the services.

Mr. Taylor's death came after a week's illness. He had been at the home of his son in Montgomery for a brief time before pneumonia set up ending his life within a few days.

He was born and reared in Coosa County, having removed to Chilton County and settling at Cooper about 25 years ago. Mr. Taylor was an active member of the Chestnut Creek Baptist church at Cooper, and of the Masonic Order.

Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. Dora Taylor, of Cooper, who is dangerously ill; three sons, L. Roy, Montgomery, Archie J., and Leo Taylor, Cooper; four daughters, Mrs. E. D. Hand, Mrs. A. L. Taylor, Mrs. Walker Allen, all of Cooper, and Mrs. W. I. Smith, of Athens; three sisters and one brother.

Just a word about the SERVICE at the MOLTON HOTEL

FIFTH AVENUE AND TWENTIETH STREET

THERE'S a pleasant, friendly atmosphere about the Hotel Molton—a delightful informality and unobtrusively efficient service that appeals to discriminating guests. While Molton service is punctilious, it is entirely lacking in that stiff formality one often finds in larger metropolitan hotels. That's why the guests who stop here once, feel like they're coming home when they return to see us.
